Schools Present Music Festival

STIRLING — A large number of parents and interested friends gathered on Friday evening at Stirling theatre for the music festival under the direction of Mrs. Doug Faires, music supervisor.

Dr. Bruce Murray was master of ceremonies, and welcomed the group. Nine schools and their teachers participated as follows: Eggleston, with Mrs. M. Spencer, teacher, opened with a group song and closed their part with another selection. Vocal duets were rendered by Brian and Terry Kovack, also Carol Danford and Carol Stapley.

Rivet Valley, Mrs. Wayne Jones teacher, contributed four items. Ricky Osmond and Sheila Richardson, Violet and Jane Richardson rendered vocal duets and Jane Bush a vocal solo.

At the intermission the following door prizes were awarded: Murray McFaul, 12th line; Steven Bush, River Valley; Judy Hart, Burnbrae; Mary Jones, Eggleton; Mrs. Gerald Clancy, Wellman's, Mrs. Ed Embury, Springbrook; Mrs G. Anderson, Burnbrae, and Neil Scholten, Stirling.

The prizes for selling the most tickets were given to F. Sutherland, 4th line, who sold 14 tickets and received a fountain pen, and second prize to Teddy Clarke, who sold nine tickets.

Mrs. Lois Thompson on behalf of, Springbrook Juniors, Harold, and 4th line, spoke briefly and Janice Reid of Harold school, presented Mrs. Fairs with a gift of remembrance for her part in promoting this exceptionally fine music festival. The recipient voiced appreciative thanks.

Canadian Fashion & Fad

BY pegg rogers

ONCE OVER LIGHTLY FOR JUNE

From a few early previews of the fall fashion scene, it is obvious that we will be in the red this fall. If the fashion pundits have their way, carnation red will be everywhere. This is a deep red with almost a black cast to it. In coatings, red and black fibres go into the actual blending of the fabric and the depth of color is not only truly beautiful, but subtle. For the woman who wants to lead the fashion parade this fall, a red coat will put her in the front ranks.

Remember the old adage that a red coat is a basic fashion? Carnation has been worn with black, of course, as well as grey, brown and some of the darker, less vivid blues. It looked right with any and all of them. A color that goes with all—at least, four of them—is basic.

Rumor has it that Corform shoes, the newest miracle of synthetic leather that breathes, resists scuff marks and actually can be cleaned with a damp cloth, will definitely be on the Canadian market this fall. There was a limited number of these shoes around this spring and they sold quickly. The fall colors range is beautiful, especially in two - toned combinations of brown and coffee, as well as red and black.

EVENING WEAR BROCADES

According to several leading Canadian dress houses, brocades for evening wear will be new s for this coming winter season. Brocades, because of their intricate weaves, can contain subtle mixtures of three or four colors, all in one hue, or in one color alone. The texture induced by this intricate weaving produces textured fabrics of volume and weight, ranging from soft, light taffeta, which drape and pleat well, to materials that are so independent that they stand alone. A coating of brocade with a tonning headwork; for instance, a beaded bodice matched to a brocaded skirt is often seen in the fall evening dress collections. Some of our newly arrived Canadians are skilled at this complicated - painstaking - work. Their absorption into the better dress factories accounts for the sudden appearance of some of the most fascinating and imaginative "Canadian" designs.

The brocade look has overflowed into the coat market. Several street-length theatre coats are featured in some of the advance collections of domestic coat fashions. The most interesting of these all is the gored old polo coat with the usual notched revere pleated back and tie belt, all classically correct. The big difference in this coat is that it has been made up in a satin brocade of snow white, ivory beige or carnation red. (No, it does not look like a bathrobe!)

If you have a question on fashion, write Pegg Rogers in care of this paper.

U.C.W. Meeting

STONE CHURCH U.C.W.

The May meeting of the Stone Church U.C.W. took the form of a pot-luck dinner, for the school children, their teacher Mrs. Priest and visitors. After all had enjoyed the dinner hour, one of the senior pupils, Linda Shorey, thanked those who served the dinner.

This was followed by the regular U.C.W. meeting. The president, Mrs. E. Demorest, opened the meeting with a reading, during Grace was pronounced a truly new way of life. He would not wish His gospel sewn on a fine patch on an old garment, the world has still a long way to go to catch up with His standards.

Mrs. D. Moore, program convener, chose as her subject "Church Membership," and explained the United Church of Canada. She in most understanding manner and spoke of the symbols and gifts which are so rich in meaning for every one's lives. She closed her address with the thought, "To live is to give, to withold is to perish."

Mrs. Cooper conducted the Bible study on how Jesus rebuked the wicked.

Going Places

By SHIRLEY and BOB SLOAN

DALLAS, Tex. — A travelling salesman who was in El Paso received a wire from his office in Chicago requesting that while he was in Texas he run over to Texarkana in case a customer. His wired back to send someone down from Chicago because it's nearer. And he's right.

That Texas is big hardly is a secret. At the drop of an LBJ hat, any Texan will say a few words about Texas' size. One politician even pointed out to us proudly that he represents in the legislature 11 counties larger than the whole state of Connecticut.

All the publicity Texas has received over the years is a testimonial to the power of word of mouth. Until last year, it was actually against the law to advertise and promote Texas by conventional means; the legislation had been on the books as an anti-carpetbagging measure ever since Reconstruction days.

As a result, a stereotyped image has grown up that is about as accurate as most gossip. Big hats and bandanas, desert wastes and cactus, oilcans and gushers, cattle herds and searing heat, oil, cattle, the same rich, and to top it all off, Lyndon Harvey Greenhill Jack Ruby (neither of whom were Texans, though the president of the United States is).

All of these are, of course, part of the fabric of Texas. But the picture is about as realistic as what you see in a carnival skinny-mirror.

HAD SEVEN FLAGS

With its bigness, Texas has a diversity of terrain, people, history and geography that really makes it at least three different states. It's had seven flags (how ever it — the United States, Texas, Spain, Mexico, the Republic of Texas, Sam Houston's short-lived Republic of Fredonia, and the Confederacy (which Sam Houston opposed). Much of its history was crucial in the development of the United States; the defeat of Mexico at San Jacinto made possible the opening of the entire West.

The deserts of west Texas are the driest in the United States, yet parts of east Texas are the wettest lands in the country. There is more woodland in the state to fill all of New England. There is more inland water — lakes, all of it man-made — than in any state but Alaska. The two highest peaks east of the Rockies are in Texas.

There are more differences in the attitudes, personalities and philosophies of Texans than of perhaps any other state's citizens. Northeast Texas is more of the Old South. Antebellum plantation houses still stand from the days when slavery was king, and the people came from Alabama, the Carolinas, Georgia and Tennessee. Descendants of slave days are more deeply entrenched here than in most southern states.

Yet San Antonio in the south, with its deep, rich and proud interweaving of Mexican culture, was the first major city in the country to integrate. And the far west is still a little bit wild, closer to frontier and pioneer days than any section of the United States. Its independent and tough people are emotionally like New Englanders of two centuries ago.

FULL OF SURPRISES

So Texas is full of surprises. Not a few of them are here in the central part of the state, south to San Antonio. Whatever blows Dallas may have had in its pride, it still hasn't hurt its Theatre, art and music flourish yet, and it is the new rich who support it. Dallasites point out that they appreciate new things and rich things.

Dallas even has its own Disneyland, and it's a good one. Called the Flags Over Texas, it is divided into amusement regions themed to the various cultures that have made the state. Obviously patterned after Disneyland, its stage coach and railroad rides, river boat trips and six-gun shoot-outs delight children, and make it a good place to sample the way Texas sees itself.

A sure-fire favorite is a ride in hollowed log through the mines and flumes of a sawmill. An admirable feature of the park is that $2.75 for adults and $1.75 for children buys admission plus all the rides.

This part of Texas is surprisingly green, full of lush fields dotted in Spring with bluebonnets. To the south, around the state capital of Austin, it becomes even more so, and hilly and beautiful — capitol building one of the largest in the country, was built by a British architect who had fled Scotland (3,000,000 acres of wasteland. (You guessed it — they struck oil.) The building is handsome, somely paved with marble, its rotunda soaring above picture galleries and walls lined with statues of such greats as Stephen F. Austin and Sam Houston.

LBJ RANCH

On a side road 60 miles west of Austin sits the LBJ ranch. Though not as large as Texans like it, it's access is often backed up for miles by motorists who come to see and be photographed at the entrance, and gaze at the President's pulled cattle as if they were Brahmas from other cattle. Johnson City is a minor village where the filling stations offer "Political Information" with gasoline.

A few miles northwest of Austin is the sandy sleep hills, winding roads, and lush foliage, Hes a string of seven man-made lakes dominated by Lake Travis. Here the fishing is easy for black bass, guppies, catfish and carp. Here, also, are the vacation homes are springing up all over. Water skiers and sailboats ripple the waters amid scenery strongly reminiscent of that associated with Michigan and Minnesota than Texas.

Half-way between Austin and San Antonio is San Marcos, a kind of place you usually associate with Florida than Texas. Its Aquarena surrounds a spring-fed lake, and highlights include the customary glass bottomed boat rides and a much less customary submerged theatre from which one of the only two underwater ballets in the world may be viewed. Spectators are treated to fetching mermaids, clowns, and fascinating instruction in the arts of "perfect breath control," whatever that is.

EMMY'S POTATO SALAD:

To make 6 cups potato salad which will serve anywhere from 6 to 9 potato salad lovers, you need 3 lbs. waxy-type potatoes. New potatoes are best. Wash the potatoes thoroughly and cook gently with skins on in covered saucepan in small amount of unsalted water, until barely tender. Drain, rinse with cold water; cool. Peel and slice and dice into ¾" cubes. Now add: ¼ cup French dressing, drizzling it over. Stir. Add 1 tablespoon very finely chopped green onion and tops or your own chives, ¼ cup fresh green pepper, ¼ cup chopped candied pimiento, ½ cup finely chopped inner celery stalks, about 2 tablespoons salt, 2 or 4 sliced hard-cooked eggs, ½ cup diced cucumber. SIR GILBERT PARKER

"A lilac bush close to the gate
A locust at the door
A low, wide window, flower-filled,
With ivy covered o'er."

Our chat with Mrs. James Forrester, 46 Bridge Street East, ended with her kindness in loaning us clippings and interviews about her famous uncle, Sir Gilbert Parker (1862-1932) who once lived in Bellefield—and was buried here.

Claimed in 1902 as "one of the most famous men of letters in the world" here are some of Sir Gilbert's answers to questions later raised by interviewers on being an author:

"You cannot ask an artist why he does anything. He does not know; it is instinct. Only when he is put into a corner and a pencil is thrust at him as you thrust yours now, does he begin to know.

"I only know this: that from the time I was a baby I was fond of books. I never suspected I had any real gift for writing, and nothing surprised me more than my first success. I began my literary career as a writer of verse. I have never thought I was a poet, and I don't think so now. . . ."

Gilbert Parker wrote three plays while in Australia, and it was as a dramatist he went to London to continue as such, when he decided to turn to fiction. A period of research fruitfully influenced by his reading "when Golden Dog" by William Kirby ultimately brought forth (many French-Canadian) historical novels from his pen.

"I have heard several critics say that 'When Valmond Came To Pontiac' is my best work. Is that your opinion?" Miss Florence Deacon Black asked for the Canada Magazine back in August, 1926.

"Yes, it is my best work," Gilbert Parker agreed promptly. An account of it was written in told in his words:

"The manuscript of the book was completed within four weeks. It possessed me. I wrote day and night. There were times when I went to bed and, unable to sleep, I would get up at two or three o'clock in the morning and write until breakfast time.

"An hour's walk after breakfast and I would write again until nearly one o'clock. Then luncheon; afterwards a couple of hours in the open air and I would again write until eight o'clock in the evening. The world was shut out. I moved in a dream.

"The book was begun at Hot Springs in Virginia, in the annex to the old Hot Springs Hotel. I worked night and day. There was no one in the place except the old negro caretaker and his wife. Four-fifths of the book was written there.

"Then I went to New York and at the Lotus Club, where I had a room, I finished it—but not quite. There were three pages of the book to do when I went for my walk in Fifth Avenue one afternoon. I could not shake the thing off, the last pages demanded to be written. The sermon which the old curate was preaching on Valmond's death was running in my head. Then and there I stepped into the Windsor Hotel, which I was passing and asked if there was a stenographer at liberty.

There was!

"In the stenographer's office of the Windsor Hotel—with the life of a care-deserted morning around me, I dictated the last few pages of "When Valmond Came to Pontiac."

"It was practically my only experience of the dictation of fiction. I have never been able to do it since, and I am glad that it is so, for I should have a fear of being led into mere rhetoric. It did not, however, seem to matter with this book. It wrote itself. The printers had completed the first part before the last was written.

"I can't tell you how I began to write or how I happened to choose Quebec as the scene for my stories. How does anything happen? Quebec is the most interesting place, historically, in America. From Quebec, New York and Albany, all the life of this continent evolved, and Quebec is the richest and most interesting place of these."

"I mean by this; no depreciation whatever of Ontario and the West. It is a fact and a wonderful fact, though Toronto and Lake Ontario and the Bay of Quinte. . . (the Jesuits founded one of their early Missions on the Bay of Quinte, and to it great numbers of United Empire Loyalists came.) — and Fort Frontenac (Kingston) are ancient in the big history of the Dominion."

Mrs. Forrester recalls as a young girl having wonderful luncheons and dinners with her uncle in New York and "... how distinguished - looking he was. He looked like King Edward VII. In fact they were good friends. . ." It was this sovereign who conferred the honour of knighthood upon Mr. Gilbert Parker. But more of this next week.

Music Teachers Elect Officers

The annual meeting and election of officers of the Registered Music Teachers' Association was held at the home of Mrs. E. M. Hall, 25 Sinclair St., on Wednesday, June 3rd.

The aim of this project is to bring the teachers and parents in closer association and to enable both to understand and combine their efforts in promoting the student's music study in the best possible manner.

It was also suggested that at some future date the branch members might avail themselves to sponsor one or more talented students in recital and thus encourage and support the young local musicians.

No Pat Answer in Dealing With Illegitimate Child

DEAR DORIS — First I would like to say to "Wit's End" you can never hide the facts. I have seen many try but somewhere the truth leaks out, and I know that all fair-minded people will think more of you keeping this little one in the family.

Please don't make your daughter give up the baby. It is your flesh and blood and should not be given away like a chattel.

I was faced with the same problem. We adopted the baby who is now four years old. She is a doll and loved by everyone. We have other adopted children and I can't see that this child is treated any differently from the others just because she was my daughter's baby. — ALL IN THE FAMILY.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR ALL — There's no pat answer; which is the reason I always send unmarried mothers to trained counsellors who will help each one work toward the decision which is right for her. There is pain or sacrifice either way.

Would other grandmothers who have adopted a daughter's illegitimate child like to share their feelings with us?

DEAR DORIS — I am fairly popular with boys but lately one boy has been constantly telephoning me. Although he is very pleasant I don't like him. I've been on dates with him twice, but now I make excuses to get out of dates with him.

I don't want to hurt his feelings by telling him I don't want to go with him. What can I do? My mother thinks he's very nice. — CONFUSED.

DEAR CONFUSED — You're the boss. No need to date him; but no need to hurt his feelings either. Merely say you have other plans. Unless he is unconscious he'll get the hint, eventually.

DEAR DORIS — At what age may a girl be married without her parents' permission in Quebec? We have had some conflict about this in our family. What is the closest place to Ontario where a girl can be married at the age of 16 without her parents' permission?

Where could I write for my birth certificate to be obtained? — ANXIOUS TO SETTLE ARGUMENT.

DEAR ANXIOUS — There is no province in Canada where a girl may be married at 16 without her parental permission. In Quebec she (as well as her boy friend) must be 21 before he or she may marry without the signed consent of the father.

If she goes elsewhere, the father may, if he wishes, have the marriage annulled.

For birth certificates: There is a different source for each province. Write saying where you were born and I'll send you the address to write to.

DEAR DORIS — I want to become an assistant nurse. The application requires that I be five feet. Could you please let me know how I could possibly grow an inch during the summer? — SHORTY.

DEAR SHORTY — Authorities say we can gain as much as three-quarters of an inch by stretching and bending. One good exercise is to reach for the top of the door frame, first with one arm then with another. Repeat. Gradually increase to twenty-five "reaches" on each side.

You may still have a little growing to do. I'd say send in the application anyway. Nurses are badly needed in Canada, and they might stretch a point, as it were.

ST. MICHAEL'S ACADEMY

On Monday evening, the Parent-Teacher Association of St. Michael's Academy and Junior School held its last meeting for the term in the school auditorium. Mrs. Leonard Daley conducted the meeting.

An outstanding feature was the display of projects done by students of four schools in the home economics and industrial arts departments at the Academy. Attractive color selection and skilful finishing were evident in the exhibits in the home economics department. From embroidered pieces to beautifully made dresses and suits, the wide range and quality of the articles were a tribute to their teacher, Reverend Sister Mary Carthagh.

Students " the industrial arts department. were on hand to demonstrate some of the skills learned under the capable guidance of Mr. J. MacCauley. Made by the boys in this section, the projects displayed included pencilty and ornamental articles and also well-fashioned practical furniture pieces.

Council Voices Protest Over Letter to Paper

CAMPBELLFORD — At a meeting of the town council held Monday evening, a resolution was passed expressing council's displeasure with a letter, signed, "A Taxpayer," which was written by a local citizen and appeared in The Ontario Intelligencer under the heading "Tired Assessment Method Is Favored."

The resolution empowered Mayor Morley W. Tanner to send a letter to the Belleville paper's editor strongly protesting against the letter.

Reeve George H. Free, who presented the resolution, was particularly critical of an excerpt from the letter which read:

"Citizens were promised in the December, 1962, election that three industries were ready to move in as soon as the municipal administration changed, which it did. That was almost a year and a half ago, so our industrial situation now is two down and three to go." "The first bunch of this double-barrelled quotation is nothing but a terminological inexactitude and the second barrel a false prophecy of dire things to come," said Reeve Free.

Was Detained In Custody For 38 Days

TORONTO (CP) — A 21-year - old Greek sailor, who jumped ship in Montreal in 1962 and was arrested here this year by immigration authorities, claims he was held in custody for 36 days without a court appearance.

John Thomadakis made the claim in a hand-printed letter delivered to the Ontario Supreme Court Friday.

He says he worked for 15 months in restaurants before he was arrested here March 3. He says immigration authorities locked him in jail and did not advise him of his right or allow him to call a lawyer.

In his letter, Thomadakis says he appeared in a court April 10 and was sentenced to five months in Toronto's Don Jail. He did not say on what charge, although he adds that he was told about a charge April 3.

A letter from the Supreme Court has been sent to Thomadakis in jail, asking him if he wants to be represented by a lawyer in his habeas corpus hearing for which no date has yet been set.

Hays Defends Farm Subsidies

JASPER, Alta. (CP) — Agriculture Minister Hays said Friday he is concerned about "the misunderstanding that seems to exist in the urban mind" about government subsidies to farmers.

Mr. Hays said special federal assistance to farmers is not paid "because governments have some special place in their legislative hearts for the farmer."

"It's because the farmer's job is producing food and it's a hard and uncertain job but obviously the most important and essential single job in the whole country."

He was addressing a meeting of the Outdoor Advertising Association of Canada.

Mr. Hays said the farmer has as much right to "a little security" as anyone else.

He said he realizes that some farm subsidies have been lear than business-like.

"But, in the main, most farmers have never wanted more than a fair deal from their countrymen and I think most government farm programs have tried to aim at this goal."

Bells

come, or perhaps it was just the adaptability of war nerves layed to absorb a news shock, but it was very evident this morning, at least, that the man on the street took the outstanding newsbreak of history in his stride".

What the writer undoubtedly was seeking was of course some mass display of excitement some feeling of festivity after a victory. But for most of the people at home D-Day was not that kind of victory. It was a triumph, not of arms in the field but of the human spirit. It signified renewed dedication to a common cause; the victory, if there was to be one, would come later.

"You are about to embark on a great crusade. The eyes of the world are upon you and the hopes and prayers of all liberty-loving peoples go with you."

Thus, those seeking a crowded flag-waving reaction on hometown streets were disappointed. D-Day was bigger than that.

SERVICES HELD

So starting at 7 a.m. the church bells tolled the news.

They rang for 15 minutes, ceased then began again on the half-hour. Within the hour a special Mass of reflection was being said at St. Michael's, before its Roman Catholic parishioners.

At city hall, Mayor Harry Rollins and the city fathers hastily conferred with the local ministerial association to organize prayers in all the churches.

At 12.45 p.m. "intercession services" were being held at the city's conclaph where "300 mothers, wives and sweethearts of soldiers who may be taking part in the Allied invasion of the French coast" stood with students, Boy Scouts and cadets.

The Kiwanis Club dispensed with its usual luncheon speaker to attend in a body a similar service at the armoury.

Work in the city's wartime industries went on as usual but "at one o'clock members of the Ministerial Association visited a number of industrial plants, where special services were held, the Intelligencer reported.

That night, home from work, the city turned once again toward religious dedication and "practically every church in the city was crowded to the doors with worshippers as prayers were offered for the success of Allied arms and the speedy liberation of oppressed peoples in the world."

All that was left then was to wait for the news bulletins, while rumor, anxiety and ignorance — of the real events played with the imagination.

The Intelligencer reported one man pondering whether the bells would break through the beachhead area and reach Paris by night.

"Haven't you heard!" somebody told him. "They're there already."

WON'T DISCUSS LINKS

OTTAWA (CP)—Justice Minister Favreau declined to say in the Commons Friday whether the RCMP has uncovered links between Communists and separatist terrorists in Quebec. Ann Landers

Some People Go Haywire In Regard to Their Pets

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I made up my mind if it happened one more time I would write to you. Well . . . it did. I received a birthday card from a friend, signed "Best wishes from Gertrude and Madame Du Barry." Madame Du Barry is her dog.

This woman always signs her dog's name on everything and I resent it. I don't want best wishes from a dog.

Every Christmas I receive about ten or twelve cards with pictures of dogs and cats who are sitting right there with the family. "Fido, Snowflake, King and Champ" are treated as if they were children. When we get a card from a ANN LANDERS certain friend, my husband says, "I didn't realize the Browns had five girls." I told him they didn't. He said, "You're wrong, here are their names . . ." Then suddenly he discovered Ruth and Mazie were a couple of Siamese cats.

Will you put something in your column and end, once and for all, this ridiculous practice? — DANDER UP.

DEAR DANDER — Many people consider their pets part of the family. It's amazing how many people who are perfectly well balanced in other respects go a little haywire when it comes to their pets. Accept it because you can't change it.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I am a 16-year-old girl who moved to this rather large city from a small town in Nebraska.

I became friendly with two girls who are also high school sophomores. Last Saturday afternoon we three went to the movies together. I was quite surprised when these girls seemed a lot more interested in the young fellows than in watching the picture. They started up conversations with different groups of boys. One of the girls accepted a ride home with a boy she never had seen before.

When I told the other girl that I thought this was cheap, she said I was crazy — that it's fun to get acquainted with kids from other schools, and that a theatre movie is the best place to meet. She called me a "square hillbilly" and said when I came from everybody knows each other, but in a large city it's the only way to make new friends.

DEAR NOT SURE — Girls who start conversations with boys they've never seen before put a cheap price-tag on their company. And it doesn't make any difference whether you live in Miami or Grand Island.

You need some girl friends whose ideas are more like the ones you brought from Nebraska.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — My husband and I have been invited to a wedding. The daughter of a long-time friend is being married. We will be out of the city on the day of the wedding and will not be able to attend.

My husband insists that we are not obligated to send a gift since we will not be at the ceremony. It seems to me that the manners thing to do is send a gift regardless.

Will you please settle this? I am getting fed up arguing and we have gotten nowhere. Your word will be the last one. — DEAF ALREADY.

DEAR DEAF — The invitation was sent because they wanted your presence — not your presents. Obviously they consider you friends.

Confidential to NOT LAUGHING — Nobody says you must laugh, but a sense of humor can be invaluable in such a situation. It can help you overlook the unattractive, tolerate the unpleasant, cope with the unexpected and smile through the unbearable.

Do you lack self-confidence . . . have trouble making friends? If so, send for Ann Landers' booklet, "How To Be Well-Liked," enclosing with your request 25c in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Six Terrorists Plead Guilty To 50 Charges

MONTREAL (CP)—Six members of the terrorist Armee de Liberation du Quebec pleaded guilty to a string of some 50 charges Friday, including theft of arms from two armories.

Their pleas came several days after two of the eight men charged with terrorist activities turned Crown witnesses and linked the six youths with a series of robberies.

Despite their guilty pleas, the six maintained a jaunty air. Most smiled as they entered their pleas and they whispered behind their hands to each other.

They will be sentenced later in the month. Pre - sentence arguments from the defence and prosecution will be heard June 15.

The ALQ members could face life imprisonment on the charges, including arms thefts from armories in Montreal and Shawinigan, two bank robberies in regions north of Montreal, holdup of a casino populaire (credit union) in east-end Montreal and theft of a transmitter from a Granby radio station.

Priest Says World Is Socially Sick

HAMILTON (CP)—The world is socially sick because it is morally sick, a Roman Catholic priest said Friday in denying that the church has shirked its responsibility to speak out on social problems.

Rev. J. P. Lardi, rector of St Mary's Church, Hamilton, told final sessions of the Canadian Conference on Social Welfare the church has raised its voice through papal encyclicals over the last 200 years.

These have covered subjects from the nature of society to labor-management relations.

Father Lardi's denial was prompted by remarks from Florence Philpott, president of the Ontario Association of Social Workers, and Captain Bruce Halsey of the Salvation Army's social department at national headquarters in Toronto.

Miss Philpott said the voice of the church has been "weak . . . or not raised at all" while society has been deteriorating. It has often withheld comment on subjects on which it had a clear responsibility to comment.

WATCHES EFFECTS

Captain Halsey said the church, including the Salvation Army, was often concerned with the effect its statements on social problems would have on its image in fund - raising campaigns.

"Too often we are too concerned with our next Red Shield drive or building fund campaign," he said.

More than 800 delegates heard five major addresses, more than 100 speeches by panelists and attended 24 seminars and 48 interest groups during the conference.

Increasing delinquency, disintegrating families, leisure and automation were some of the subjects discussed.

In another discussion, a Toronto social worker said children born legitimately to immature and irresponsible parents probably have less chance in life than illegitimate children cared for by unmarried mothers.

SUBSIDIES NEEDED

Lloyd S. Richardson, director of the Metropolitan Toronto Children's Aid Society, asked whether the state should provide subsidies for unmarried mothers to allow them to keep their children and provide day care and other services for the illegitimate children.

He also wondered if the state should remove the word illegitimate from records and if the state should legalize birth control methods.

The conference, in its final stages, passed a resolution to merge with the Canadian Welfare Council, a national association engaged in research into welfare problems. It will provide staff and administrative services required by the conference which exists to provide a forum for the airing of views and exchanges of ideas among professional persons interested in social welfare.

The conference will continue to raise $a-cent funds.

James Wilson, a British Columbia planning expert, said the shopping centre is becoming the only real community centre in the suburbs. He told a seminar that a lot of money is retarding such services as the training of community leaders. . .

Seeking Funds To Pay Banks' Legal Costs

TORONTO (CP) — A campaign to raise funds to defray the legal expenses of Harold C. Banks, deposed president of the Seafarers' International Union of Canada (final), has been launched by a committee within the union, it was reported Friday.

However, an SIU spokesman said the committee did not have the sanction of the union.

A Lift for Living

Fulfillment of God's Wishes Brings Life's Greatest Glory

By REV. HAROLD E. KOHN

Night before last our region suffered a heavy wind and rain storm. Great gusts of wind blew lustily, gustily, bending the trees that line our trail, rattling our doors, fiercely pelting our windows with giant raindrops.

The next day when I visited our family's nearby woodland retreat I came upon a fledgling bird lying dead below its nest. Perhaps the fall from the nest injured it and the cold night rain finished it. It was well feathered out; this baby phoebe, and about ready to fly if it had been spared. Plump it was, too, from many a rich meal of insects and worms. But its brief life was already spent before its talent for flying could be tested. The mother bird had invested weeks incubating the eggs and warming and feeding that birdling. All that care and nurture, and nothing would come of it now. That nestling was meant to stroke the sky with wind-loving wings, but now it would never know the meaning of flight. The fledgling had missed the mark of becoming a bird.

Several years ago, while on a walk through the woods in the springtime, I came upon a still-born whitetail deer fawn. The bottoms of its hoofs were clean; it had never stood upon its feet. Through some unknown defect the fawn had been born breathless, lifeless and thus had missed fulfillment of its creaturehood. It was meant to be a dappled, stilt-shadow among other shadows on the forest floor. Later it should have become a bounding through grassy glades, frequenting hidden, nearly forgotten forest trails, browsing on shoots of birches, sipping from icy streams, mating and bearing its own young. But the fawn missed fulfillment. Its further birth.

Perhaps the pity we hold for the young that die is linked to our awareness that a lack of fulfillment is one of life's sorriest tragedies. In the death of young creatures there are tendencies that are thwarted before they reach their goals and capacities that are blocked and foiled forever.

But death is not the only way fulfillment of latent possibilities is frustrated. In human beings sin thwarts realization of life's highest goals. Indeed, this is one of the real meanings of moral evil: it is a failing, blocking or a misdirection of the good; a wrong aim; a missing of the mark. The word commonly translated "sin" in the New Testament is a Greek word used as a term in archery, and it means "to miss the mark." Any archer who aimed his arrow forward a target and missed it was quite literally a "sinner." The word was carried over from that graphic original meaning to broader applications and used to describe any disharmony with the purpose of God. To sin meant to use any part of nature in such a way as to stray from God's intentions for us. If God wills good toward all of His children, then sin is anything that thwarts the good in any of us. It is anything that hinders an individual or the whole social order from achieving the good God desires.

Are not many of our worst troubles caused by some good arrows that go astray and maim or destroy someone's life, often our own? The old Roman proverb, "Optima corrupta pessima" expressed a deep insight — "The best things when corrupted become the worst." Of course they do.

Sex easily goes astray. Young people are too often told they should not indulge in sex relations because sex is unclean and ugly. The very opposite is true; the unmarried should not indulge because sex is a good and beautiful thing reserved for those who are wholly, unreservedly committed to each other in marriage, and thus the relationship of sex is sacramental, having holy meanings. To use it outside of marriage is to profane a holy thing.

Our problem is not how to handle the bad thing, sex, but how to preserve the good thing and how to reach its goal of being sacramental, expressing the good in human nature. Any other use of the function is sin, in the sense of "missing the mark."

Religion, too, often misses its goal. While the function of religion is to remind us of the God who is always near us and to prompt us to use His power and to obey His will, religion often goes astray. Religion can be misdirected so that it becomes a retreat from the real world, from life's gay facts, a search for mental comfort and spiritual ease. Such religion becomes a substitute for intelligent thought and it takes the place of an agonizing involvement in the woes of one's fellow men.

Some people find that contemplating God is so satisfying that they become indifferent to the hurts of human beings around them. Some use this faith that was meant to be armor to protect them in life's struggles, as a cloak to hide their real faults. Others use religion like a spare tire — only in emergencies.

Religion can shrink the mind or stretch it; it can make one narrowly bigoted or bigger and more understanding of others; it can confirm one in prejudice or expand one's compassions. Indeed, religion's most popular feature is its flexibility; it can be adapted to whatever we wish to do. But such a limp religion is like a flimsy arrow, sure to miss its target. And a religion that doesn't serve its high purpose is sin.

All the way from a dead nesting bird and a still-born fawn through business ideals, sex and religion, tragedy is found in lack of fulfillment, missing the goal. Life's great glory is in fulfilling the high target, being what God means us to be, doing what God wants us to do.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Can Northern Dancer do it? Can the chunky Canadian-bred colt complete the sweep of the Triple Crown races when he runs in the 96th edition of the $125,000 added Belmont Stakes at Aqueduct this afternoon?

Not since Citation turned the trick with victories in the Kentucky Derby, Preakness and Belmont Stakes in 1948 has any been able to win all three. And, only eight in history have swept this triad of races.

The home-bred from our side of the border has his work cut out for him. The Belmont is not called "The Test of the Champion" without reason. At a mile and a half under scale weights of 126 pounds, the Belmont demands the best from that best of the three-year-olds.

There is a lot of national pride riding with Jockey Bill Hartack. The sensational feats of Canada's first home-bred horse in the Derby and Preakness has quickened interest north of star-spangled banner territory and millions of eyes will be glued on the race—named "Dancer."

In the Kentucky Derby—at a mile and a quarter—Northern Dancer moved to the lead at the head of the stretch and held off the late rush by El Peco, the favored Hill Rise, scoring by a neck in track record time.

In the shorter Preakness, a mile and three-sixteenths, the Dancer took the lead a half mile from home, then pulled away when Hill Rise came to challenge, scoring by two and a quarter lengths over the Scoundrel with Hill Rise another head back in third place.

But Dancer's victories over Hill Rise in the Derby and the Preakness hasn't convinced die-hard American race fans that the upstart Canadian horse is the better.

They point to the American horse's late surge in the Derby when he rapidly overtook the Dancer and missed by a head at the wire. They discount the defeat of Hill Rise by both Dancer and Scoundrel in the Preakness as "one of those things."

And they point to the longer mile and a half distance of the Belmont. They are placing their faith—and likely a lot of money—on their horse despite the fact Dancer has been rated a 4-5 favorite.

But strong as he appears to be, Northern Dancer doesn't seem to be wearing other rivals away from the Belmont. At this writing the field has swelled to eight aspirants for the huge pot of gold. They figure a horse has to enter if he wants to win—and anything can happen in a horse race.

Four of the horses who finished in the first five of the Derby and Preakness are gunning for Dancer blood —and the loot that goes with it. Scoundrel, in this corner's opinion, the biggest threat to Dancer in the Belmont was forced out by an ankle injury. I believe the big long-striding horse would be the one to give the Dancer the race of his life over the longer distance.

If Dancer pushes a velvety nunzle under the wire in front of the pack he will bank $124,446. . . Second place loot is $49,000; third $12,500, and fourth $6,250.

The Belmont will receive wide radio and television circulation. It will be broadcast from 4.30 to 8.00 o'clock over CNS and CBC outlets.

Rate Dazzling 'Dancer' 4-5 Favorite

By KEN PRITCHARD

NEW YOR K(CP) — Sparkling weather, a fast track and an eight-horse field led by Canadian-bred Northern Dancer, winner of the Kentucky Derby and the Preakness, was expected to draw more than 50,000 racing fans to Aqueduct this afternoon for the 96th running of the Belmont Stakes.

A number of records were ripe for smashing in this 1½-mile test, in which Northern Dancer, owned by Canadian industrialist E. P. Taylor's Windfields Farms near Toronto, is striving to become the ninth horse to sweep all three of the American classic races for three-year-olds.

The weatherman promised fair skies with the temperature in the 80s, and this could push the attendance past last year's 53,381 which saw John W. Galbreath's Chateaugay beat the short-priced Candy Spois.

If all eight horses reach the starting gate, the winner of the $125,000-added race will receive $110,000, the largest winner's purse in any past Belmont was the $109,350 Jaipur garnered in 1962. Second money totals $25,000, $12,500 and $6,250.

HARTACK IN SADDLE

If talented but controversial jockey Bill Hartack can get Northern Dancer home first, the little packet will be presented a mile from Toronto will be the first-ever Canadian-bred to win the triple crown for three-year-olds. He also seemed certain to set a record for combined winning times in Derby, Preakness and Belmont.

The dazzling Dancer was an early-line favorite to beat his arch-rival Hill Rise and six other colts and geldings and join the group of eight triple-crown winners whose most recent addition was Citation, 16 seasons ago. Hill Rise, a big colt standing 16 hands, one inch, was early-line second choice at 2 to 1.

The Dancer, a sturdy campaigner despite the fact he weighs less than 1,000 pounds, already had whipped three of today's rivals at least twice and the other four didn't seem to present major problems for the quick-striding son of Nearctic-Natalma and grandson of Native Dancer.

BILL HARTACK

But Horatio Luro, Northern Dancer's Argentine trainer, wasn't detected at any time before the race meaningful hid colt's bead for the triple crown. First he had to prove that the Dancer could stand up to the long-striding Hill Rise, beaten by only a neck in the Derby in race-record time.

WEIGHT MAY TELL

All the entries in this race carried 126 pounds, a formidable load for the little Canadian colt at the mile-and-a-half distance.

The name Northern Dancer was the last of the eight dropped in the entry box, along with a $250 fee, Friday morning. The Taylor colt drew post position No. 2. Hill Rise got No. 3.

The others, from the rail out, were Determined Man, Shook Quadrangle, Orientalist, Roman Brother and Brave Lad.

The fact the favorites drew adjacent starting-gate stalls was expected to be a break for millions of North American television fans. The CBC was carrying the race on 50 stations, starting at 4.30 p.m. Radio coverage was to start at 4.40 p.m., with post time approximately 4:48 p.m.

The Aqueduct track, to which the Belmont was transferred in 1963, is only 1½ miles long. To accommodate this 1½-mile race, the first quarter-mile of running is on a curve. Then comes nearly three-eighths of a mile of straightaway before the horses swing into the bend leading to the backstretch. A long run down the backstretch leads into the final turn where position is important in the quarter - mile dash to the finish line.

THIRD SINCE 1948

Since Citation's 1948 victory, only three horses started in the Belmont with a chance to make the sweep. They were Tim Tam, who ran second to Carvan in 1958 after suffering an injury in the stretch, Carry Back, who finished seventh three years ago, and Northern Dancer.

The first triple crown winner was owned by a Canadian. That was Sir Barton, an American-bred owned by Commander J. K. L. Ross of Montreal, which swept the three races in 1919.

The best combined winning time for the Derby, Preakness and Belmont before today was 6:29 3-5 by Count Fleet, the 1943 winner. The total was made up of 2:04 in the 1¼-mile Derby, 1:57 2-5 in the 1 3-16-mile Preakness and 2:28 1-5 in the Belmont. Northern Dancer's Derby time was 2:00 flat and he won the Preakness in 1:56 4-5.

Kidd Badly Beaten

Crother Breezes To Win 800

COMPTON, Calif. (CP-AP)— Bill Crothers of Toronto breezed to victory in the 800-metre race but fellow Torontonian Bruce Kidd was a victim in a stunning upset in the 5,000-metre run at the Compton Invitational track meet Friday night.

Crothers ran his specialty in one minute, 48.2 seconds. Jan Underwood of Oregon State followed the University of Toronto pharmacy grad across the finish and George Kerr, a Jamaican who runs for Oregon State, was third. Both trailing runners were clocked at 1:48.4.

Bob Schul, an unheralded gallopher from Ohio's Miami University, made his first major track victory a dandy as he captured the 5,000 metres in 13:38.0. That smashed the American record of 13:43.8 set by Kidd in this meet two years ago.

Another record fell when eight runners, led to the tape by Dyrol Burleson, finished in less than four minutes in the mile. Burleson, from Oregon State, won it in 3:57.4 after a duel with Tom O'Hara of Chicago's Loyola University. O'Hara was second in 3:57.6, Archie San Roman! third with the same clocking, Morgan Groth fourth with 3:57.9, Jim Grelle fifth with 3:58.2, Bob Day sixth and Jim Weisiger seventh, both with 3:58.3 and Jim Ryun eighth with 3:58.6.

IS FIRST SCHOOLBOY

Crothers was strong at the finish in the 800. He took the lead with about 100 metres to go and seemed to have no trouble holding his edge over Underwood.

Schul stayed off the early pace in the 5,000 but moved into the lead with three laps to go, trailed by Bob Larrieu of Los Angeles, Gold and New Zealander veteran Bill Baillie, in that order. Gerry Lindgren of Spokane, Wash., 17-year-old high school sensation, gave the crowd a thrill as he alternated between first and fourth in the early running.

But once Schul took over the battle was between him and Baillie. The 33-year-old New Zealander couldn't gain any ground in the final lap and wound up second in 13:40.0. Larrieu was third in 13:43.3 and Lindgren fourth in 13:44.0.

Kidd was sixth with no record time.

Selections by "Seldomite"

"Seldomite," this newspaper's harness race selector, "seldom puts" out again — well — almost.

"Seldomite sent word by Reginald Dust he would be unable to classify all the entries but by a rush job he sent his selection of the most probable winners in the four-race program.

In the first race he picks Dominion K. Abbey.

Mr. Sudkey with Terrific Pick a definite threat in his choice in the second race.

He likes Red Gun in the third race.

His choice in the fourth race as for-for-all is a stable entry Hal Peace and Frosty Magic.

Uses Two Heads

Bulldog Defeats Yukon

Dick "The Bulldog" Brower should know better. He has been around long enough to know you cannot dislocate the end of an arenh with a human noggin.

That is what he tried to do last night with the cranium of Yukon Eric, no doubt aided and abetted by the counsel of his second, one Fred Atkins.

Atkins, the hardrock from "down under" is the manager, secretary, adviser and general facotum for the Delaware growler.

He entered the ring for argument's sake after the Yuke had strummed the Bulldog to win the second fall, but his growls got him nowhere. Referee Tiger Tasker saw to that.

The crowd, larger than that of opening night, was solidly behind Eric.

He dropped the first fall after a severe battering at the hands of the Bulldog then reared back to snatch the second to square the score.

He was on his way to grab the boot when the Bulldog decided to take matters out of the ring. He flipped Eric over the hemp and followed him. He gained a stranglehold and began to knock the south end of the area out with Eric's skull.

But he kept a wary ear on Tiger Tasker's authoritative.

When the squat referee reached the count of eight the Bulldog allowed himself enough time to clamber back through the ropes to get the decision while the Yuke was trying to extricate his pate from the plaster.

Hiro's mastery of the Valentine took the decision from Chief Sunl War Cloud in a lively preliminary bout.

Only Few Weaknesses

Rough Riders Said Happy

OTTAWA (CP) — Things are looking up for Ottawa Rough Riders back in the front office and on the playing field.

So said Red O'Quinn, general manager of the Eastern Football Conference club in an interview Friday.

His see-now, pay later season ticket plan promises to add about 1,000 to the season subscribers for Rough Rider games, O'Quinn said.

And when training camp opens June 22 for Canadian rookies and June 30 for varsity and new imports, Head Coach Frank Clair and Bill Smyth will be able to concentrate on plugging only a relatively few weaknesses in the club that finished second in the Big Four last season.

Only 17 imports have been signed and this year's scouting has particularly aimed at landing an offensive halfback, an offensive lineman, a linebacker, defensive halfback and defensive halfback.

That's quite a change from the last two years. Riders injected 12 new faces in their lineup in 1963 and six in 1962.

"But you can figure only about five new guys will make the club this year."

LIONS SIGN TWO

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia Lions of the Western Football Conference have announced the signing of two veteran 1963 western conference all-stars, offensive guard Tom Hinton and corner linebacker Norm Fieldgate.

Busy Season Planned By Tennis Club

Ambitious plans for a busy season at the Quinte Tennis Club have been put into action with the announcement that the club courts are now open for play.

Play on the newly-surfaced courts is by membership only but the club has extended an open invitation for anyone in the city and district to apply for membership, in either sex, junior or adult special out-of-town players divisions.

"We are a little late getting under way," said a club spokesman, "but the courts are now in excellent condition and all are lighted for evening play so we are looking..forward to a most successful season".

A coaching program has been designed to help not only beginners but also for those who wish to improve their game. Assisting along these lines are district champion Doug Grant, the number two ranked player in Ontario Junior tennis, Dave Hurst and Mrs. Lett, a former Wimbledon and Forest Hill star in Tweed.

Plans call for a most active season of competition play with in the club as well as competition against clubs from other cities in various tournaments.

Those wishing to apply for club membership are asked to do so at the clubhouse, at the corner of Queen and Dufferin, any evening after 7.00 p.m.

WINS DECISION

HERBERT INJURED

CHICAGO (AP) — Veteran pitcher Ray Herbert will be lost to the Chicago White Sox at least 30 days because of a torn muscle in his right elbow, it was announced Friday. Herbert, needed relief in the sixth inning of a 5-1 triumph at Cleveland Thursday when his elbow stiffened. The victory brought his record to 2-3.

Cubs' Slaughter Proves Braves Killer

Mets Blank Dodgers

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Sterling Slaughter, in only his second year of pro baseball, stopped Milwaukee Braves 5-3 on six hits for the second time in a week Friday night.

The 6-foot, 185-pound southpaw, a 23-game performer with the Cubs, marked the first time he's completed a game in the majors. He came out of the ballpen for his first start last Saturday and held the Braves to one hit in seven innings before getting relief help in the eighth. The Cubs won it 2-0.

The 23-year-old righthander was signed last June. He pitched for Amarillo and led the Texas League with his 3.00 earned run average.

Elsewhere in the National League, San Francisco Giants squeezed by Philadelphia Phillies 5-3 in 11 innings, New York Mets blanked Los Angeles Dodgers 3 - 0, Pittsburgh Pirates slipped Houston Astros 4-3 and Cincinnati Reds edged St. Louis Cardinals 5-4.

Slaughter struck out eight and walked three as the Cubs handed the Braves their sixth loss in seven games. Billy Williams increased his league-leading average two points to .412 with two singles in four at bats.

HITS THREE SINGLES

Billy Cowan belted three singles and drove in two runs while Joe Amalfitano slugged a two-run homer in the third for the Cubs.

Harvey Kuenn's single and Chuck Hiller's triple knocked in two runs for the Giants in the 11th against Jack Baldschun. Orlando Cepeda's sixth homer had tied it 3-3 in the eighth.

Cookie Rojas scored all three Phillies' runs, two of them after hitting doubles in the first and third.

Galen Cisco pitched his first complete game victory since Sept. 21, 1961, limiting the Dodgers to 4 hits. It was his first decision since losing a 23-inning game against the Giants last Sunday.

Ron Fairly's error on Cisco's grounder led to seven unearned runs in the third. Ed Kranepool and Charlie Smith hit back-to-back homers in the inning. Kranepool's with two on.

The Pirates rallied for three runs with two out in the ninth, the winning run scoring on Roberto Clemente's double. Donn Clendenon and Manny Mota each singled home a run before the winning hit.

The Reds came from behind in the ninth. Deron Johnson slashed a two-run pitch single, climaxing a four-run outburst. The Cardinals contributed two errors of the rally.

Glen Hobbie had a 4-0 shutout until the eighth when Vada Pinson singled in the Reds' first run. Hobbie and Bill White homered for the Cardinals.

Defeat Oshawa 8-4

Belleville Joyces Win Baseball Opener

By PETER CARVER

Joyce Realty Senior made a successful Lakeshore Senior Baseball League debut last night in Little Britain by handing Oshawa Merchants an 8-4 setback.

The former Kenmore were a bit shaky afield but their bats were as strong as ever as they unleashed a spirited 10-hit attack.

With a few more games to iron out the kinks they should blossom into a solid crowd pleasing unit.

There is most definitely nothing lacking in the hitting department but another good starting pitcher is needed to back up workhorse Bill Latchford.

Local fans will get their first look at the seniors this Wednesday night at the Fairgrounds when they battle mates Oshawa in their home opener, which has been twice rescheduled from last week.

Latchford shows signs of another great season on the mound. He has first real workout of the year he zipped third strikes by a whopping total of 10 batters, while issuing seven walks. He allowed seven hits, three of which were scratch infield hits, while his own bat accounted for two singles.

"Lucky" Wills started on the Oshawa hilltop and took the loss. After allowing six runs on the same number of hits he was lifted in the sixth in favor of Joe McConkey.

Latchford was a bit shaky in the first inning. He walked the leadoff batter who went to second on a passed ball and came home as Latchford threw poorly to first base on a ground ball. Scatcher Joe Fisher led in their half of the third as Latchford walked, was sacrificed to second and scored on Anselstine's booming groundrule double. Weston promptly singled Anselstine home with the winner's second run.

Oshawa retook the lead in the last of the third, scoring two unearned runs on a double and a single, a stolen base and a big throwing error. The seniors' hitting potential really showed through in the fourth frame as two walks, Mavety's line shot double and solid singles by Latchford and Weston platted four runs to make it a 6-3 game.

The Merchants got one back in the bottom of the inning when Bo Garrow walked, got second on a passed ball, stole third and came home on a passed ball. Belleville retaliated in the fifth with a run of their own when Larry Soule doubled and scored, on Latchford's second hit. In the sixth Larry Mavety connected a towering blast over the left field fence to make the score 8-4. Oshawa second baseman Jim Hodgson flied out to centre to end the bottom of that inning when Wood walked, advanced to third on a throw and scored on a fielder's choice on a ground ball.

Larry Mavety connected for a single, a double and his powerful round-tripper. His could be the take-charge guy at the plate this year, with Weston, Anselstine and Hunter. Pete Weston and Latchford were each good for a pair of singles while Anselstine, Soule and John McKibbon stroked two-baggers. Weston and Mavety had three RBI's.

Qualifies With Blazing 96. MPH

Gurney Leads Field At Mosport Park

By JOHN TRACY

TORONTO, Ont. (CP)—The top United States international driver, Dan Gurney, led a field of 32 up to the green flag today in the 200-mile race for sports cars at nearby Mosport Park.

The 34 - year - old California chassaded the 2.45-mile track Friday at a blazing 96.01 miles an hour for a qualifying lap time of one minute, 32.2 seconds to give him No. 1 position on the starting grid.

His time was only 0.7 seconds slower than the lap record he set here two years ago driving a British-powered Lotus 19. Friday he was piloting a Lotus 193 with a Ford V-8 engine, better by 500 horsepower than the 270-HP machine he drove here in 1962.

Gurney's performance made him a threat to A. J. Foyt, professional Texas driver who pushed his big roadster to victory last August in the 200-mile Memorial Day race at Indianapolis. The Texans turned 1:34.7 to give him fifth place on the grid with his Cher-powered Scarab.

With the withdrawal of Jim Clark, reigning world champion driver, Gurney and Foyt seemed the class to beat. But 26-year-old Bruce McLaren of Auckland, N.Z., was close behind Gurney. He drove the qualifying lap with 1:33.1.

MAIL IN FRONT TOW

Best Canadian effort in the fastest qualifier was Norm Nemerow of Montreal. His Ford Lotus 193 turned up 1:35.8. Nemerow is publisher of Canadian Track and Traffic Magazine.

Filling up the second row and an sixth position was Ludwig Heimrath, who turned in 1:35.9 with his Ford-powered Cooper. Heimrath, German - born Toronto garage mechanic, was 1961 Canadian Trivia champion when he was driving a Porsche RSK.

Clark's withdrawal was a disappointment to the fans who were expected to number more than 30,000 by the 2 p.m. EDT start. The Scottish farmer had been having trouble with his suspension all day. When the mechanics were unable to fix it, Canadian Racing Drivers Association officials exhausted all efforts to get him a suitable substitute car before scratching him.

After his withdrawal, and even before the qualifying times were posted, Clark said he would put his money on Gurney in today's race which he will watch from the pits.

WORTH $3,000

The race, first big international event of the Canadian sports car racing season, is worth $3,000 to the over - all winner as much as $1,000 may be added to this for winning heats and lap times. The event follows Grand Prix rules with an event for touring cars between heats.

Mosport Park is set in hilly country about 40 miles east of Toronto. Its asphalt surface curves sharply away from the starting grid. A series of sharp bends follow it before hitting the south end of the track and what is known as Moss corner because it was designed by Stirling Moss, who has retired from active racing and now operates the track today as a manger.

The corner is probably one of the toughest in North American racing. One of the few drivers who negotiate it can open up to 130 miles an hour on a straight before entering a chicane which leads to the finish line.

The big spring race and its fall counterpart, the Canadian Grand Prix, have become weekends of festivities for racing fans many of whom came from Quebec province, upstate New York and Michigan. Hundreds camp in the infield enclosed by the track.

Second Banana to Caesar, Reiner Successful Writer

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "I'm a hack doing hack work. But to other hacks, I'm a good writer."

This is Carl Reiner's analysis of his talents. Majority opinion in Hollywood does not concur. Reiner, one-time second banana to Sid Caesar, has emerged in recent years as the most versatile and successful writer in town.

His status was confirmed at the television academy awards, when The Dick Van Dyke Show, Reiner's creation, took top honors with five Emmies. His first screenplay, The Thrill of it All, was a top money-maker of 1963, and he is writing another, The Art of Love.

Reiner also wrote a novel, Enter Laughing, which was converted into a Broadway hit. Add to this his interlude and record dates with the 2,000-year-old Man (Mel Brooks), plus hosting the weekly Celebrity Quiz on CBS.

"Look, I've got a way with comedy," he says. "I've got the kind of a mind that if you drop a situation into it, I can come up with a scene that will play and get laughs.

"And I hope to go on doing just that. It's a limited fellow. I have no desire at all to play Hamlet."

"We were actually cancelled the first season," said Reiner. "We never would have made it back if it hadn't been for the efforts of (executive producer) Sheldon Leonard in going to New York to plead in our behalf. He kept telling sponsors and advertising people to give us a chance, and they listened to him because he had gone to the trouble of making the trip.

"We're on top. And no matter who you are, that's when they start to carp and snipe at you. You told the whole gang to get ready for it. Next year they'll be aiming for us."

Magee Shoots A 73

Lema Leads Thunderbird

RYE, N.Y. (AP)—"I am 30," said Champagne Tony Lema, "going on 40, from standing over those pressure putts."

Lema fired it so he wouldn't age any as a putt on the 18th green Friday. He chipped the ball into the hole from off the apron for an eagle three.

That gave Lema a birdie-eagle finish in the second round of the $100,000 Thunderbird golf tournament, a 67 and a 36-hole total of 135, two strokes in front of Champagne Tony overhauled Ken Venturi and Mike Souchak after they posted halfway totals of 137.

He also zoomed in front of Jerry Magee of Toronto, the first - round leader with a 66 Thursday. Magee came in with a fat 73 Friday that boosted his total to 139—four with Arnold Palmer with 71 and Julius Boros with 68.

BALDING SHOOTS 75

Al Balding of Toronto added a 75 to his opening 69, for 144, five strokes under the cutoff point. George Knudson of Toronto was out of it on rounds of 76 and 77.

Souchak had 66 Friday and Venturi a 70 as the field toyed with the 6,575-yard Westchester country club course. Par is 72.

"I hooked my drive into the trees, chipped out and hit a very poor iron shot into the trap. I blasted out about 25 feet away and proceeded to three putt."

Before this nightmare hole, Magee, who made only $96 on the pro tour last year, was breezing along. He turned the front nine in 35, one under par, and had birdied the 10th to go eight under par.

Caddy Crisis Blew Up In British Open

GANTON, England (AP) A caddy crisis blew up during practice for the British Amateur golf championship Friday with most of the players lugging their own carts.

Only a handful of caddies were available and it was doubtful the situation would improve much for the opening round Monday.

Dale Morey, 44 - year - old former American Walker Cupper of High Point, N.C., pulled his own cart and said:

"We don't know what is going to happen. I'm told that holiday workers get more money selling ice cream than caddying."

LEAVE MONGOLIA

TOKYO (AP)—Red China reported Friday that another group of Chinese technicians have left Mongolia for home, bringing the total departures to 3,500. At one time about 12,000 were in Mongolia. The report by the New China news agency gave no indication the departure was the result of a worsening of Chinese-Mongolian relations.

Aries (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): Financial obligations spring to forefront. Cycle remains high. Speak to those in authority. Express optimism. Don't shy away from frank opinions. You now attract success!

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20): Answer to recent puzzle can be solved. Realize that future holds unusual amount of opportunity. Be prepared. Take advantage of forthcoming offer. Important to finish current project.

Gemini (May 21 to June 20): Cycle moving up. Action out of past is brought to light. Use own judgment. Let others form their own opinions. Some may prove merely "fair-weather friends," but those who "count" will remain with you.

Cancer (June 21 to July 22): Your hopes, wishes hang in balance. Friend with "ideas" is valuable ally. Don't be too quick to dismiss suggestions. Utilize intuitive intellect. Divest from recent past contains answer.

Leo (July 23 to Aug. 22): Decisions appear to run contrary to plans. Earlier you may be discouraged. Later, if you relax, sense of humor saves day. Try to be versatile. Throw off tendency to be too fixed in views.

Virgo (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22): Put beliefs on line. Separate reality from fantasy. Applies especially where professional decisions are concerned. In private life, be tender with loved one. Don't carry job home with you.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Mate or business partner appears restless. Instead of expressing displeasure — offer encouragement. Positive attitude wins the day. Personal magnetism rating high. Turn on charm.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): No time to push, force or try to turn tide. Your ideas appear to run contrary to popular opinion. This a waiting period. Stick to home base. Remain with those who truly understand.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Take a breather! Let others do most of the talking, acting. Higher-ups take greater notice if you are "quiet." Come to conclusion regarding personal problem. Then relax!

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19): Energy level high. Ask questions. Make creative suggestions. Investments demand attention. Look to future rather than past. Be young in heart. Tonight fine for romance, variety.

Aquarius (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18): Better for finishing than starting. Good lunar aspect later highlights pleasure through children, hobbies, creative endeavors. Some of your "far out" ideas will prove practical. Profit indicated!

Pisces (Feb. 19 to Mar. 20): Attend to details. Especially those affecting security, bonds, investments. Take initiative. Dig for information. Don't attempt to "twist" information.

Questions and Answers
On Highway Travel
Ontario Motor League

QUESTION: Would you please tell me the nearest picnic park outside Kingston where a family can go for a day's outing?
— Mrs. L., Napanee

ANSWER: Why not go to Fairfield Park just west of Colborne Bay, on Highway 33. This is a good day-use park with picnic facilities and cheap charges. Also, Ellamere Park, Highway 31, one mile east of Bath.

QUESTION: We are thinking of going to Daytona International Speedway, Daytona Beach, Florida, and would like to know when it operates and what day it has its varying events. Also how much are the grandstand seats? — M. J. R., Belleville.

ANSWER: The Daytona International Speedway opens in Daytona Beach, Florida, Tuesday, June 20th — car inspectors at Speedway, Wednesday, July 1st — Practice 9 a.m. - 5 p.m. Thursday, July 2nd — Practice all day — Practice and qualifying trials 9 a.m. - 5 p.m. Two fastest qualifiers get two pole positions for Daytona Firecracker 400" race. Admission is Friday July 3 — Two 50-mile qualifying races — First at 11 a.m., second at 11:05 p.m. Admission $3. Monday, July 4 — 9:30 a.m. — Parade of beauty queens entered for 1944 U.S. Clothes which works out preliminary events. 10 a.m. — Start of Sixth Annual "Daytona Firecracker 400". Name of Classic model stock car race "World's Greatest Show on Wheels." Over seventy cars at Daytona on July 4 include Greyhound racing and Jai Alai with both casino and night club programs and the finals of the Miss Dixie beauty contest at Peabody Auditorium that night. Grandstand seats vary from $7 to $20 depending on location. Infield location $4.

QUESTION: Do they still have changing of the guard at Ottawa and if so what are the dates and time of day? — Miss O., Napanee

ANSWER: One of the most colorful attractions is the Changing of the Guard presented in the tradition of the British pageantry in much the same fashion as the changing of the guard at Buckingham Palace in London, England. The changing of the guard is presented daily at 10 a.m. from July 2nd to Sept. 4th on Parliament Hill. The most scenic route from Belleville would be No. 2 Highway to Prescott and then north on No. 16 to Ottawa.

QUESTION: Could you please give us some information on the Thousand Islands Bridge and how much it costs for a car and its passengers. — Mrs. S., Trenton.

ANSWER: The Thousand Islands Bridge over the St. Lawrence River is at Ivy Lea, Ontario, on Highway No. 401, and the new scenic highway 2 — to Gananoque and Brockville to Lansdowne Landing (between Clayton and Alexandria Bay) N.Y. Highway No. 12) is considered the most scenic bridge route in America. The bridge route consists of 5 spans, 5½ miles of bridge. From the mainland to mainland covers a distance of seven miles through the heart of the scenic Thousand Islands — a convenient and most picturesque means of crossing to the U.S. Rates: Car and passengers to U.S. mainland or round trip to Island in U.S. Car and passenger round trip from mainland to mainland — $1.80. For further information write: The Thousand Islands Bridge Authority, Ivy Lea, Landowne.

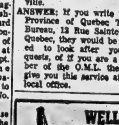
TRAVEL TIPS

Did you know that seat belts not only protect you in accidents but give good body support on long trips and ease the strain of driving?

That with coming of hot weather, your tires do not have to be pumped up to maximum pressure, as the hot pavement will increase tire pressure, so keep an eye on tire pressure in hot weather?

That you have to be 18 years of age or over to drive a car in New York State whether you live there or not?

Sir: I have read in the May 28 paper a very confusing answer to J.O., Trenton's question re U.S.-Canadian gallon. Part of your answer is correct, but inherently confusing as follows: That the Canadian gallon is one-fifth larger than the U.S. gallon. The latter part of your answer is correct but assumption that five Canadian gallons are equal to four U.S. gallons which works out as follows:



U.S. gallon (Liquid) - 128 oz.
Canadian gallon (Imperial) 160 oz. x 5 equals 800 oz.

Probably you can find such simpler and more easily understood to say that 4 Canadian gallons equal 5 U.S. gallons; (160 x 4 equals 640 oz.)

I think rather incredible that such an everyday formula could be so misquoted by such an authority as the Ontario Motor League. — Sincerely, Karl Kahut, Madoc, Ont.

QUESTION: We are taking a motor trip to Quebec, and wondered where we could get maps, brochures, etc. and a list of motels and their rates. — Mrs. L. I., Belleville.

ANSWER: If you write to the Province of Quebec Tourist Bureau, 13 Rue Sainte-Anne, Quebec, they would be pleased to look after your requests, or if you are a member of the O.M.L. they can give you this service at your local office.

The Golden Years

Retirement Enters Your Life Years Before You Grow Old

By THOMAS COLLINS

Retirement is not just an old man's game, as is commonly supposed.

It is a game that is being played, for heartache or gladness, about four times before a person reaches 65 — the first time at about age 25.

A good many people who still have their teeth and their hair don't fully appreciate this.

When a youngster finishes his education he has his first encounter with retirement. He is likely to get his first job because some 65-year-old man is being eased out of the chute at the far end of the line to make room for him at this end. Not always, because firms do expand. But often. In fact, some companies spot employees as they pass age 61 or so and then plan their hiring of young people accordingly.

Money is involved here because a company can frequently hire two college graduates for what it is paying one 65-year-old employee. Or it can hire one college graduate a year before the old employee retires, teach him the old man's job, and in a couple of years be making a profit on the exchange.

IT'S JUST BUSINESS

There's nothing evil about this. Business must have young blood. It must keep the age level of its employees as low as it can in order to hold down costs. But the educated young man who gets his first job without knowing that retirement may have had a hand in it is not a fully educated young man.

The second time people play the game of retirement is in their early thirties. They are married now, are very much in love, have babies, and mortgages, and installment accounts, and problems — and are striving mightily to get going with success.

In this helter-skelter, when they're giving the baby the 2 a.m. feeding when they're washing the diapers in the basement, when some character on the job has just pushed them out of a promotion — at such a moment as this, between 29 and 35, the dream of retirement hits them like a truck.

It is probably the most wonderful vision of retirement a married couple ever has — a vision of no work, no struggle, and some aloneness with each other.

Don't scoff at this — the evidence of it is overwhelming in the 2,500 letters coming to me every month. There seems no doubt that the most intensive periods of thinking about retirement are age 64, and between 29 and 32.

The third encounter with retirement usually comes in the early forties. People are on the way to success now, if they'll ever be. Joining this, serving on that, running hard. And boarding money to pay the taxes, to move up to a better car, a better house, two TV sets, and to send the kids to college.

PARENTS RETIRING

Just at this age the parents of the husband and wife are reaching 65 and retiring. So there must be a pause in the running to offer an emotional crutch . . which many people now retiring surely need from their children. And there must be a glance at the bank book, because most people now retiring don't have enough money to maintain a standard of living the 60-year-old children — who with the status drive — think is proper. So, an allocation for this. And when and if serious illness hits the retired parents without health insurance, there can be, and is, financial disaster.

The early fifties are the fourth time people play the retirement game. They become aware of signals all around them, telling them it is growing late, retirement is coming, and they'd better start storing some nuts. But ironically, this is just the time when people start reaching back and trying to hold on to youth. Exhilaration, romance, excitement, sex, the works — people in the early fifties wish very much not to let go.

And so they struggle between taking the gay road or the safe one, and it is a rough battle.

Finally age 65 comes, and the real retirement. Which is not bad, if they will adjust to their lower income, get health insurance, leave their children be, and set out to build a new life on top of the old.

Floodlights picked out the French, Canadian, American and British contingents marching along the sand only yards from one of the three main British beachheads of the invasion. Thousands of invasion veterans, Frenchmen and tourists packed the shoreline beneath twin searchlights cutting a "V" for victory—into the sky.

French newspapers today devoted pages to photographs, recapitulations and memoirs of the D-Day invasion. L'Amore published a special four - page supplement that included the D-Day memories of Eisenhower and messages from the U.S., British, and Canadian ambassadors in Paris.

Hundreds of American, British and Canadian veterans of D-Day revisited the old battleground. Some were joined in the pilgrimage by their wives and children. They wandered over the beaches and hedgerowed fields, trying to recollect for their families some personal memories of the great battle.

BOLD CEREMONIES

The official ceremonies were held in the British sector—Gold, Juno and Sword beaches—Friday, ending with a military parade of the old Allies and fireworks display at Hermanville-sur-Mer.

The program today concentrated on the America area—Utah and Omaha beaches—and the villge of Sainte-Mere-Eglise, on which U.S. paratroopers descended in the biggest air assault attempted up to then.

The day began with a simple memorial service at Sainte-Laurent-sur-Mer cemetery overlooking Omaha Beach, where 9,041 U.S. dead are buried.

INDUSTRY THREATENED

LINDSAY, Ont. (CP) — The Christmas tree industry in Durham and Northumberland counties, south of this town 20 miles west of Peterborough, is being threatened by the European pine sawfly, the department of lands and forests said Friday. The department said the insect may cause serious damage to the industry, which last year harvested 1,000,000 trees.

Admits Plotting Illegal Entry Of 26 Chinese

VICTORIA (CP) — A 46-year-old city shipyard worker Friday admitted he conspired to bring 26 Chinese into Canada illegally in a case police described as probably the biggest racket of its kind in Canada.

Chong Wing Ming, better known as Peter Chong, pleaded guilty to seven charges. An eighth charge, to which he pleaded not guilty, was withdrawn.

Circumstances in the case, under investigation by the RCMP since last fall, will be given June 15 when the accused comes up for sentence.

An RCMP officer said earlier that the scheme to bring Chinese into Canada illegally involved them posing as Canadians returning to Canada after a trip abroad.

Chong's brother - in - law, Quon Chung Hung, also of Victoria, has been arrested in Dauphin, Man., in connection with what police say was a Chinese immigration racket.

A MODERN CONSTRUCTION ADVANCEMENT MAKES A "ROLLINS HOME" BETTER!

"TRUSS ROOFS"

In most homes the roof is partially supported by the outside wall and partly by the inside partitions.
In a Rollins Home the Truss Built Roof does not depend on the partitions at all.

In a Rollins Truss System the rafters are precision cut and held in an aligning fixture. Steel plates with large protruding barbs are placed on each side of every joint and then squeezed into the wood with a 5 ton roller.

These joints then become so rigid and immovable, that should there be an incorrect measurement, the entire Truss must be rebuilt as they cannot be taken apart once the plates are fastened into the wood.

In a very few years the Truss Roof System will be the only acceptable construction system. Why wait? This system is now available in all homes built by Maurice Rollins Construction Ltd.

Tribute Is Paid Normandy Dead At Beny-sur-Mer

Poppy Shower Climaxes Day of Ceremonials

By BEN WARD

NORMANDY BEACHES (CP) Canada paid a stirring tribute to the dead of the Normandy campaign Saturday, the 20th anniversary of the D-Day invasion of Europe.

More than 200 Canadians, joined by representatives of the other allied powers, gathered in the evening sunshine at the tree - shrouded cemetery near Beny-sur-Mer where 2,043 Canadian servicemen are buried. Below, 335 were cut down on the D-Day beaches. The others were killed in the bitter fighting of the next few weeks.

Canada's was the last event in a full day of ceremonials at the military cemeteries of nations whose troops were in the D-Day assault.

At the climax, three RCAF Dakota aircraft swooped in at treetop level and scattered 20,000 poppies made in Canadian veterans' shops.

Dozens of young French children rushed to collect the red poppies as they blew across the rows of simple granite headstones, dancing in the crowd and along the roadway.

PLACE WREATHS

Veterans Minister Roger Teillet placed the Canadian government wreath, followed by Sir Winston Churchill's eldest son, Canadian Ambassador to France, and French Co-operation Minister Trouboult.

Subsequent wreath - placing events were representatives of the Royal Canadian Legion and Lieut.-Gen. Simmonds, who commanded a Canadian corps in the Northwest Europe campaign.

Further west, American veterans saluted their dead at the U.S. cemetery where 9,386 graves had come ashore. Twenty-eight U.S. Air Force planes flew in formation as the bugles to drop wreaths into the surf.

A hitch developed in the Canadian ceremony when the United States representatives failed to arrive in time to place their wreath at the base of the white stone cross that dominates the five-acre cemetery.

The field of Canadian crosses and Stars of David in the adjoining U.S. forces' burial ground had come ashore. Twenty-eight U.S. Air Force planes flew in formation as the bugles to drop wreaths into the surf.

A hitch developed in the Canadian ceremony when the United States representatives failed to arrive in time to place their wreath at the base of the white stone cross that dominates the five-acre cemetery.

The field of Canadian crosses and Stars of David in the adjoining U.S. forces' burial ground are laying, however, clusters of Americans whirled on to the cemetery gates. Retired U.S. General Matthew Ridgway was in the lead and apologized profusely to Teillet for missing the ceremony.

Bands of young French schoolchildren began placing their bouquets of flowers at the monument. They had stood patiently through the long service, clutching bunches of small sum-

Family Report Criticized

By BRENDA LARGE

OTTAWA (CP) — Mrs. E. Davie Fulton, wife of the former federal justice minister, sharply criticized a 30 - page report presented Sunday night at the opening session of the Canadian Conference on the Family by Montreal sociologist Dr. Philippe Garigue.

Mrs. Fulton, a former social worker and a vice-president of the conference, was taking part in a panel discussion dealing with Dr. Garigue's report, "Permanence and change in ideas on the family."

She called the report, which dealt with philosophical and sociological concepts of the family from biblical times to the present, "abstract, obstruse and difficult to understand."

Mrs. Fulton, whose husband now is British Columbia Conservative party leader, told the 350 sociologists, and welfare workers attending the first session of the four-day meeting that Canadians would have to update their thinking about the family.

"Illegitimacy and juvenile delinquency are no longer private problems but problems of society.

CITES CAUSE

"The trials and tribulations of modern families arise because modern social arrangements have neglected the family as the traditional functions and patterns of authority."

Mrs. Fulton later told a reporter that one example of these "modern social arrangements" was the way families were fashioned themselves today.

"There isn't enough group activities for families now. Entertainment, particularly television, comes from outside the home."

The modern family was in trouble, Mrs. Fulton said, because its traditional values were being attacked from all sides.

"Children are told that sex is sinful, yet we use it constantly to sell our products."

Marlies Hellyer, Governor-General Vanier officially opened the conference with a plea for Canadian families to reconquer

Stampede As Ashes Strewn

ALLAHABAD (AP) — Thousands of grieving Indians plunged into the Ganges River in a frenzied stampede today as the ashes of the late prime minister Nehru were strewn on India's holy rivers.

At least one woman was drowned before police, wielding canes from boats, forced swimmers and waders to the shore. Four persons were killed in a stampede Sunday as Nehru's ashes were brought from New Delhi.

The mourning thousands, dressed in the white homespun cotton of India's poor, mobbed the bathing platforms and sank under their weight. Scores tried to climb in boats filled with relatives from home provinces, but police beat them back.

About 500,000 persons crowded to the river banks or waded in. The temperature hit 107 degrees and many collapsed. Others were injured by police trying to push them back.

Adding to the confusion, a large group of huge turtles suddenly appeared in the midst of the swimming crowds.

STREW THE ASHES

Nehru's family, wilted by the heat and the crowds, remained in the uproar, went out into the river in an amphibious army vehicle and in boats.

"Babuji (father) is gone," sobbed Nehru's daughter, Mrs. Indira Gandhi, as she boarded the vehicle.

Her sons, Rajiv and Sanjay, emptied the urn of their father's ashes at a point where the Ganges and the Jumna Rivers meet.

At the same moment, other members of Nehru's ashes were strewn on rivers and fields and mountains in other parts of India.

Nehru had directed in his will that his ashes be immersed in the sacred rivers of Allahabad, his birth place. Hindu priests selected for this ceremony the ashes of Nehru's head and chest to signify his heart and mind.

SAVED WIFE'S REMAINS

The remains of Nehru's wife, Kamala, who died 28 years ago, were brought to Allahabad for immersion in 1942. He kept the small coffin of ashes in his bedroom.

Nehru's ashes were brought from New Delhi by special train. Crowds stampeded in cities and towns in several small towns along the 35-mile route, trampling men, women and children. Police charged into the mobs with flailing clubs but could not control them.

The stampede at Gadarbaha, a state of godliness attained in death, continued today by being near a great man of India.

Today's ceremony marked the culmination of 12 days of state mourning for the 74-year-old prime minister who died May 27 of a heart attack.

Nehru, an agnostic, chose Allahabad in his will for the immersion of his ashes because of his childhood memories and because the Ganges represented to him the flow of Indian culture.

Thousands stood in the scorching heat on each of the hottest days of the year—the temper-

Makarios Reports Rumors Turks Plan Separate State

NICOSIA (CP) — Archbishop Makarios, the Cypriot president, said today there has been "rumours" that the Turkish-Cypriots plan to set up a separate state in Cyprus. Such a move was quickly denied by Turkish-Cypriot Vice-President Dr. Fazil Kuchuk.

"I hope they are all rumors and that there is nothing to them," Makarios said in a brief interview amid a round of conferences and meetings to discuss weekend developments in the Cyprus situation.

The Cyprus government called in three top UN representatives Sunday and asked them what the UN peace force would do if Turkey invaded Cyprus. The unofficial reply was it was impossible to say at this stage.

President Johnson is said to have pressured Turkey into abandoning plans for landing on Cyprus. The Turkish air force is continuing diplomatic talks with Turkish officials on the problem.

Makarios today played down the threat of a Turkish invasion. He said he has received many threats of a Turkish landing on the troubled Mediterranean island to protect the Turkish minority of 90,000 people is not as serious as earlier ones.

Asked whether he regarded the possibility of direct Turkish intervention over as being more serious than in February, he replied: "In February, it was more serious, in my view."

As to the action the Cypriot government is taking to meet new threats, he said only that two are taking certain measures and in general making certain preparations."

Makarios said he hoped that if a meeting between President Johnson and Turkish Premier Ismet Inonu in Washington materializes, it "will be constructive."

Meanwhile, the UN peace force has sharply reduced its security patrol in Cyprus through Greek-Cypriot areas.

The Turks immediately protested that the results of the exercise "is bound to be very serious."

A spokesman for the UN said the peace force backs the main Turkish convoys of food and supplies from the port of Famagusta to Nicosia and convoys from the countryside to market to Turkish-Cypriot airport.

Turkish employees at British bases and other installations also have been escorted.

"Turkish-Cypriot reaction to this blindfolded UN action is quite bitter," the Greek-Cypriot information bureau declared. "It will mean more hiding and torturing . . . for which the UN will have to bear responsibility."

Canada Rejects Aid Bid

By HAROLD MORRISON

WASHINGTON (CP) — Gen. Robert Wood, director of the Pentagon's military assistance division, says the impulsive government asked a number of countries for direct bilateral military assistance and that Canada was one of those which declined to participate.

The problem, he told the congressional subcommittee on foreign appropriations, is to develop a co-ordinated Western program of military aid for the future in the light of the United Nations intention to withdraw its troops there by the end of June.

"The UN originally talked about a multilateral program but it did not get off the ground," Wood said in his April 14 testimony contained in the censored transcript of the subcommittee's hearings made public today.

"Eventually, the Congolese asked Belgium, United States, Italy, Israel, Norway and Canada to help them. Belgium's reluctance to their forces on a bilateral basis. Norway and Canada declined to participate. The Belgians have agreed to train the air force. Israel agreed to instruct in parachute techniques.

Wood touched briefly on the Congolese situation as testimony opened from the new South Viet Nam to the huge 1961 Canada - U.S. plane swap which involved 200 planes, $200,000,000 worth of F-104G Starfighter aircraft production into Canada's Montreal plant. The U.S. put up $150,000,000 and Canada $50,000,000.

Paul H. Nitze, deputy assistant defence secretary for regional affairs, told the subcommittee that originally the U.S. had hoped to get 11 planes built in Canada for the $150,000,000 contribution but through production savings, the U.S. actually will get 140 of the jets shipped to its European partners under mutual aid. Wood disclosed that the final U.S. payment to Canada of $33,400,000 is being made this year.

However, Conservative Otto Passman, subcommittee chairman and a sharp critic of U.S. foreign aid, argued that the plane swap, under which Canada also agreed to acquire 66 U.S. Voodoo jet fighters, was a "raw deal to "bail" the Canadians out of an embarrassing military situation.

He said he faintly recalled the deal a year ago when we went in with no good reason except to bail them out of some situation. Now they're back on their themselves involved. I think it was production line costs."

WARREN VISITS RUBY

DALLAS (AP) — Chief Justice Earl Warren spent more than three hours Sunday with imprisoned slayer Jack Ruby in the Dallas County Jail. Warren went to the jail after spending some two hours earlier in the day at the Texas School Book Depository, from where the bullets set behind Lee Harvey Oswald fired that killed president John F. Kennedy Nov. 22. The jail is across the street from the book building.

Supplies Run Out In Strike

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — "I'm sorry, we don't have that in stock."

St. John's residents are getting this answer in almost every store and restaurant in this city of 90,000 as a longshoremen's strike continues well into its second month.

The strike so far has caused no serious shortage of necessities, but every day businesses run out of more items that may be lacking long after the strike is settled.

Ice cream stores can no longer get fruit sundaes. In bandaises, there are no new lawn chairs for the summer cottage, while candies like in new carriages, bakeries can't cook apple pies because their supplies of apples are gone.

At least one large store is wondering what it will do with a consignment of Mother's Day cards that is still lying in a dockside freight shed.

STARTED IN APRIL

The strike began April 24 after the Longshoremen's Union (Intl.) refused to meet demands of the St. John's Employers Association, a representative shipping companies, on management rights in handling gangs in diverting their ships.

The companies want increased authority over longshoremen gangs but believe claims this would butt into union ranks and take away established union rights.

The jobs of more than 1,000 men are affected.

Women are resigned to the fact they will have to wear last summer's shoes.

MAGAZINES ARE OLD

Book and magazine racks would make one forget what the day—or week—was. Some magazines are three weeks old and retailers have been told by distributors they won't be sure of getting new books until the strike is ended.

A leading restaurateur said it was cutting more to fly steaks

Institutions Unable to Cope With Problems Meeting Told

MONTREAL (CP) — The world's political institutions no longer can cope with the new problems the world faces, Dr. Brock Chisholm, former director of the World Health Organization, said here during the weekend.

He called for some kind of world government to work out the human problems.

The human species has not shown it is capable of surviving the revolutions he told a banquet during the two - day meeting of the World Federalists of Canada.

Man's traditional pattern of thoughts and, behavior, he said, "are no help in dealing with the new problems created by his ability to wipe out mankind or with the population explosion and uneven distribution of wealth.

"Our political institutions are obsolete. They were never intended or evolved for this kind of world."

Whether we like it or not the human race has become one and indivisible. The next inevitable social step, if we are to survive, is some kind of world federalism or world government to deal with or realize tackle basic problems.

"These problems are all beyond the power of any national government remaining in the

'Co-operative Federalism' Denounced by Societies

QUEBEC (CP) — Some 800 delegates from St. Jean Baptiste societies across Quebec denounced "co-operative federalism" and urged a revision of the Quebec-Labrador boundary at a resounding closing Sunday to the annual convention of their provincial federation.

Abbe Lionel Groulx, 86-year-old advocate of self - determination for French-speaking Canadians, called on such Canadians to join in achieving "a state that's all our own" but one which would not involve any kind of isolationism."

The delegates declared "co-operative federalism" as one that denys the provinces their rights and subordinate them to a central government.

In a policy resolution, they termed the concept "a form of out - and - out national socialism" and called for a revision of the British North America Act of 1867.

On Labrador, the federation condemned the 1927 settlement of the issue as "a usurpation" of Quebec territory.

It urged the provincial government to work for a revision of the settlement through the British Privy Council, which handed it down, or by carrying the case to an

Second U.S. Navy Jet Shot Down Over Laos by Groundfire of Reds

VIENTIANE (AP)—Communist groundfire knocked down the second U.S. Navy jet in two days over Laos Sunday, but the pilot was safely lifted out of the jungle.

U.S. officials hoped to continue an air search today for the pilot of the first plane, but a heavy cloud cover hung over Vientiane. The nonmonsoon season has set in.

Both planes were shot down east of the Plaine des Jarres area, recently overrun by the Pathet Lao. Both were Crusader jets capable of 1,000 miles an hour. They were operating from the carrier Kitty Hawk in the South China Sea.

The second jet was armed and accompanying an unarmed reconnaissance plane over central Laos. The United States has been conducting photographic flights over communist positions since May 17 at the request of the neutralist Premier Souvanna Phouma.

In Washington, the state department said the reconnaissance flights would be continued with U.S. fighter escorts. The armed escort was added on Saturday after the loss of the second plane near Ban Ban, 25 miles northeast of the Plaine.

The downing of the two planes created a new sense of urgency among U.S. officials in Washington. President Johnson met at the White House with his advisers. Secretary of State Dean Rusk returned an appearance at Ohio University's commencement exercises.

The defence department said it had no information on how the planes were shot down. One theory was that the Reds were using Russian-made heavy machine - guns or 37 - millimetre cannon.

South African Policy
Want to Survive?- - Then Learn to Kill

JOHANNESBURG (AP) — "You want to survive—then be prepared to kill." That is the message in one of South Africa's strangest schools. It teaches a dozen variations in the art of killing.

The Combat Survival School, as it is called, advertises regularly in the local newspapers. It is getting used to the echo of rifle volleys and car-splitting battle cries.

The principal is a man well versed in the art of survival, Australian-born Davo Davidson 60, is a former Mau Mau fighter who says he killed many terrorists during the Kenya uprising. Ago quit Kenya eight months ago when Mau Mau leader Jomo Kenyatta attained political power.

"Everyone—men, women and youths—should learn to protect themselves and their families, whether the threat comes from whites or blacks," he says.

"If you possess a pistol, knife, stick or even umbrella, learn to use it to its best advantage. If you have nothing, learn to use your hands which can kill as efficiently as a pistol."

Among recent students are a mother and daughter team who can kill a man with a knife, a three-inch circle representing a man's heart on a black, man-sized target.

By means of a simplified Chinese form of judo called tode, mother and daughter can floor a 140-pound man with ease, without smudging lipstick or ruffling their hair.

Students at the school include housewives, clerks, typists and government employees.

A condition of acceptance is that students must sign a form pledging that they are be is "a member of the European community (white); not a member of any anti-South African or pro-Communist group."

The current first course totals 14 students. More are being enrolled.

Davidson's school differs from the commando weekly "pistol parties" held by thousands of South African men and women throughout the country. At these they often take coffee and sandwiches and spend hours of shooting practice.

Davidson's students are expected to be ready for combat the moment schooling begins.

Even when school is over, complete relaxation is discouraged. Students enjoying a quiet smoke in the lounge are often confronted by gun-toting, door-kicking Davidson.

"Stop, you dog," he snarls. "Two of you died two seconds ago."

Many of South Africa's ordinary schools have introduced anti-sabotage training, unarmed combat and pistol shooting for schoolboys. There are cadet units train in most major cities throughout the republic.

It is officially estimated that about half South Africa's 5,000,000 white possess guns. Target shooting is a favorite with whites over 15 years of age.

Faced with a strong Afro-nationalist movement near its borders and the possible infiltration of Communist influence, seeking to overthrow this country's government, many South African whites are becoming increasingly security-minded.

It is not uncommon, especially in Johannesburg, to see a pistol in a man's, trouser band or in a woman's handbag as she rummages for change. Some women carry pistols which fire tear gas.

Three Governors Tell Goldwater To Change Image or Lose States

CLEVELAND (AP) — Senator Barry Goldwater of Arizona had notice today from three Republican governors that if he becomes the Republican presidential nominee he will have to alter his conservative image or lose their states in the November election.

Governors Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York, William W. Scranton of Pennsylvania, and George Romney of Michigan spoke out Sunday at press conferences held in connection with today's opening of the annual governors' conference.

Scranton said he is available for the Republican nomination. He moved a little further into the race at the urging of former President Eisenhower.

Scranton said Republican candidates are worried about winning in their states if Goldwater is the nominee.

Rockefeller said that he is in the race until a better representative of the moderate Republicans comes along, and he made it clear he doesn't think one will.

What had taken on the aspects Sunday of a stop-Goldwater movement rapidly was changing into an effort by Republican moderates to get Goldwater to accept a strong civil rights declaration in the party platform to repudiate some of his ideas, such as making the U.S. social security system voluntary instead of compulsory.

After a day in which moderates flailed away at Goldwater, Governor Mark Hatfield of Oregon summed it up as "an exercise in sheer futility." He said he thinks Goldwater's nomination is certain.

Goldwater said in Chester, Pa., that his views in the conference here would be limited because of Tuesday votes in the Senate, but he would be glad to talk to Scranton and other leaders about his issues.

Governor John Anderson Jr., of Kansas, conference chairman, said on a television broadcast that he doesn't believe Goldwater will change his views but he hopes he will give Goldwater to talk with other leaders.

Tabulations indicated that Goldwater will push close to 600 publicly committed delegates' this week.

Senator Thruston B. Morton of Kentucky, after meeting with Republican governors to discuss a general election campaign plan, predicted Goldwater would fall 90 to 100 votes shy on the first convention ballot of the 655 votes needed for nomination.

Victoria Ave. Water Main Bursts Sunday

Houses on Rollins Drive and Chelford Crescent were without water for nearly five hours Sunday morning, when a six-inch water main burst on Victoria Avenue. Cause of the break is not yet known, but Belleville Utilities assistant manager H. J. Britton said today there had been "some soil settling" around the pipe. The pipe was installed when the area was opened up, about six years ago.

The break was discovered about 3:30 a.m., when falling pressure in the city system indicated trouble. Workmen who expected to find a damaged hydrant, instead found a sea of mud under the street.

Because the water system is laid out in a grid pattern, it was possible to shut off pressure in the damaged main and "detour" water around it to the east end of the city. Only the houses on Rollins Drive and Chelford Crescent were completely cut off.

The main was repaired by 8 a.m. by a three-man PUC crew working under water distribution superintendent Fred Clarke.

Minor Injuries To Two Men In Collision

A two-car crash at the junction of old Highway 37 and the highway's new Corbyville bypass today caused minor injuries to two men.

Herbert Johnston, Corbyville and a passenger, Joseph Mc-Williams, received what police called "slight back injuries," when Johnston's car collided with an automobile driven by Allen LeCroix, 11 Elvine Gardens.

Family Kicked, Beaten by Gang, Got No Aid

TORONTO (CP) — A family of three was kicked and beaten in a west-end shopping plaza here Saturday while a crowd of more than 40 persons watched.

Kenneth Hamilton, 45, of Toronto, who suffered head injuries in the Second World War, was knocked to the ground and kicked several times in the head. He was treated in hospital and released from hospital after being treated for cuts and bruises.

Police said there was no apparent reason for the kick except that store operators had been warned by a gang that frequents the plaza that they would one day clean out the plaza.

Police have arrested four men and a youth and charged them with three counts of assault causing bodily harm. Charged are James Flaherty, 21, of Montgomery, 23, Patrick O'Hagz, 21, Gary Nicholson, 20, and Roy Ernest Trafford, 21, all of Toronto.

Mr. Hamilton had been visiting his wife who worked in a restaurant and had just left to get into his family car. His son, who was following, was confronted by a gang and attacked.

Mrs. Hamilton, who was the attack, ran out to aid her son and was also knocked down. Mr. Hamilton heard his wife's screams and, when he arrived on the scene, was hit, knocked down and kicked.

Rotary Clubs Remain Stag After Debate

TORONTO (CP) — An increased budget for scholarships and fellowships of $2,500,000 by 1966 was recommended Sunday by the Rotary International committee on legislation.

The committee recommended a $450,000 increase for the Rotary Foundation for its capital fund for 1964-66, bringing the total outlay to $1,450,000. The recommended budget for 1965-66 was an additional increase of $1,050,000 over 1964-66.

Some of this money is intended for young artisans and technicians to study in other countries. Rotary's new development program will involve the enrolment of blue - collar workers.

The money will also be used to finance exchange visits between nations of young business and professional men.

Earlier, the committee recommended that its 52-year-old service organization remain stag and rejected a proposal from the Rotary Club of Cabo Larina, Ceylon, that would permit women to join.

All recommendations by the committee are subject to reversal by 14,000 Rotarians attending the 55th annual convention here this week.

A resolution proposed by two Indian groups, that would allow honorary women members, was also turned down by the committee.

It rejected an enactment that would have enlarged membership qualification by admitting more members of the clergy, newspaper, radio and television.

Temple Obtains Answers To Problems of Servicemen Facing Forced Retirement

As representative of a riding in which one of Canada's largest RCAF stations is based, Mr. Robert Temple, member for Hastings South, is taking a personal as well as an official interest in the government's proposal to combine the three armed services and reduce personnel by 9,000 members.

Mr. Temple is a member of the special committee on defence and at a meeting of the committee late in May inquired as to the action which the reduction reduction in the armed services would be achieved by normal retirements and attrition.

He also asked regarding airwomen how many would be forced to retire from the services before their normal retirement age.

Mr. Temple noted that already approximately 500 officers in the forces have come up for discharge in July and asked how many of the 10,000 would be released through normal retirements.

SEVERANCE PAY TAX

In answer to a question regarding the taxation of severance pay, Mr. Temple was told that the rate of 85 per cent of the income tax would apply on benefits received.

"I think the important point is that the rate will not be increased as a result of the additional increments," replied Defence Minister Hon. Paul Hellyer. "We will just be paying 35 per cent of the rate they would have been paying without the severance pay. This is a special arrangement which applies to members of the armed forces. They do not get a higher rate because of the special benefits."

As a result of his questions to the committee, Mr. Temple was later given an outline of the retirement benefits to be paid a member of the armed forces whose career is unexpectedly terminated by reason of forced retirement.

AMOUNTS VARY

The amount of the special cash benefit, to be paid in one lump sum, will increase with length of service. It will be a sum of the equivalent of 10 months pay for those with 15½ or more years of service. It will be reduced progressively as normal retirement age is approached. Officers serving on Short Service Commissions are in a special category. The period of time for which their service is shortened will be the basis for calculating their benefits.

Following are examples of the benefits: maximum amounts payable in special benefits to officers and men retired after 15½ years service, who have 15½ or more years of service: Major-General, $16,840; Colonel, $11,550; Captain, $6,930; Warrant Officer 1, $5,600; Sergeant, $4,200; Private, $3,300.

SPECIAL BENEFITS

Because of the significant number of to be released compulsorily under the retirement age or completion of a short service, the government also proposes to offer certain additional benefits along with the normal retirement benefit which include:

(a) pension and related benefits under the Canadian Forces Superannuation Act;

(b) rehabilitation leave equal to one month for every five years of continuous service;

(c) in some cases, special leave up to an additional thirty days;

(d) if they have over ten years continuous service, they and their dependents, furniture and effects will be transported at public expense to their selected places of residence in Canada.

So far as it is reasonably possible, officers will be placed upon normal retirements and attrition rather than on compulsory release. It is difficult to make an accurate forecast of the extent to which the projected reduction of 10,000 officers and men in the Canadian Armed Forces can be achieved by normal retirements and attrition.

WILL STILL RECRUIT

But recruiting must continue. A continuous flow of young men into the forces is vital to maintenance of an effective and efficient defence organization. In addition, as the problems of defence become more complex, the need for specialists in civilian life. This need can be met only be ensuring that there is no interruption in the enrolment of officer cadets through the Regular Officer Training Plan, Canadian Services Colleges, and the universities. The reduction in the forces that can be achieved through normal retirements and attrition will, therefore, be offset to some extent by the proposal to maintain recruiting at a reasonable level.

Nevertheless, it is expected that a very large portion of the reduction will be met by normal retirements and attrition.

Normal attrition anticipated over the next two years will be very largely in the lower ranks for both officers and men. At this stage in the re-organization it is impossible to state the precise continuing requirements for officers and men of all ranks and all specialties, but it is quite clear that some of those at present serving will have to be released compulsorily.

Irvine Ness Back in Game, Buys Pacer

Once the harness racing bug bites you it is hard to get it up. A good example of that saying is Irving Ness who was the caretaker at the Quinte Driving Club for a couple of years, when the club was first formed at that time Irvine had a pacer Lee Mack S. and in his second year of ownership won more races with the little pacer than any other horse on the North American continent. He raced him against all comers in his class and he never took a lame step and always gave his best every time he went to the post.

The pacer developed a lameness Saturday night he again entered the racing game in the Quinte district by purchasing Millie Magic, winner of two races at the two meets held here by the local driving club. This mare is a bay chestnut, four years old and as sound as a dollar. She is a glib pacer with a fine turn of speed. The mare has been out in good hands and will no doubt prove herself one in short time under the guidance of this popular horseman.

21 Associations Will Convene For Conferences

By JACK PICKETTS

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — University professors from across Canada, from physicists to linguists, gather here during the next two weeks with men from other important facets of academic life to share one thing in common—learning.

They are members of one or more of 21 associations that will hold annual meetings here during this year's Conference of Learned Societies.

The conference opened Sunday with the Classical Association of Canada's annual meeting and will continue through a wide variety of conventions until the last two, the Canadian Association of University Teachers of German, and its counterpart, French teachers, meet on June 19-20.

The Royal Society of Canada opened its four-day session Sunday with a two-hour sail aboard the navy's ocean escort Fort Erie.

START SESSIONS

Also starting sessions Sunday was the Canadian Conference of University Schools of Nursing, and today the Canadian Association of Professors of Education will begin three days of meetings.

The 21 conventions each last an average of two to three days and involves academic or professional people grouped around that association's particular subject or discipline.

Today the Royal Society gets down to business with a general meeting that includes introduction of new Fellows and a general appreciation on "Confederation then and now."

To some extent, this would seem to be a general lead for discussions.

French Poodle Liked Front Seat of Taxi

NEW YORK (AP) — Murray Arnowitz decided he didn't want anything to do with the lady — your passenger who slipped into the front seat of his cab Saturday so he ordered him out.

But the passenger refused to budge and before the matter was settled the passenger had bitten one man eight times chased Arnowitz out of his own hack and tied up traffic on East 75th Street more than two hours.

Miss Monroe and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Martin Monroe, hailed the cab to take Carousel to a pet hospital for a checkup. The dog leaped from the back to the front seat next to the driver.

Arnowitz engaged in a starting duel with his passenger before he decided to try and shove him into the back seat.

The dog growled and snapped at the cabbie and Arnowitz fled the cab, slamming the door behind him.

Meanwhile, the Monroes took turns trying to coax Carousel out of the cab, but the dog would have none of it and Mr Monroe eight times.

Finally, a representative of the American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals took the dog to an animal shelter.

"REALLY, THIS IS TOO MUCH," a retired Golden Hawk seems to be saying. Relegated to ground display, the former crack aerobatic display craft became the play toy of swarming children at National Air Force Day at RCAF Station, Rockcliffe, on Saturday.

Mrs. Dent escaped with minor scratches.

Two Accidents Send Three To Hospital

TRENTON — An accident on Highway 2, just west of the Hill Top restaurant, Saturday night, resulted in damages to the two cars involved of $625, but no injury to the drivers, 20-year-old James Pandschuck and Dundas St. East and Benny Stetsina, 19, of R.R. 1, Ameliasburg. Both cars were travelling west, when the collision occurred around 11.35 p.m. Damage to the Pandschuck car was $400 to the Stetsina vehicle $700.

Christine Keeler Is Released From Prison

LONDON (Reuters) — Christine Keeler, the red-haired good time girl whose love affairs made headlines around the world last year, was released from prison Saturday.

Miss Keeler, 22, was serving a nine-month sentence for perjury and conspiracy to pervert the course of justice.

With three months off for good behavior, she could have been released Friday. But another woman prisoner Friday from Holloway Women's Prison, where both were prisoners, said Christine had committed a minor offence for which she was docked three days of her "good behavior time."

Eight hours after her release today a prison official said Miss Keeler left the prison at five minutes past midnight.

There were no crowds at the prison when she emerged.

Miss Keeler was the key figure in a government-rocking sex scandal that brought about the resignation of Conservative War Minister John Profumo a year ago. Profumo first denied then admitted he had had an affair with Christine at a time when she was also the girl friend of Capt. Eugene Ivanov, former Soviet naval attache here.

She was a friend of Stephen Ward, the fashionable London osteopath-artist who became a vice trial defendant here last summer. Ward committed suicide before his trial ended.

The perjury and conspiracy charges against Christine arose from the trial last June of Jamaican jazzman Aloysius (Lucky) Gordon, 33, who was accused of assaulting her. He was convicted and sentenced but appealed and won.

Baby Found Dead in Crib By Parents

TRENTON — A 2½-month-old Trenton baby was found dead in its crib about 9.45 Sunday morning by his parents. Dead is Ronald Paul Vigneaux, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Vigneaux of 55 Dundas Street West.

Mr. Vigneaux called the Trenton Police Department. Sergeant Gordon Steenburg in turn called the fire department to send their resuscitation equipment to the Vigneaux home.

While the fire department was en route to the house, Constable Fred Nokes of the Trenton Police Department administered mouth-to-mouth respiration.

When the family doctor arrived, Dr. K. Flynn, he said that the child had apparently been dead for some time. Death was attributed to asphyxiation due to breathing in milk.

Pearson Opens Cultural Centre At Toronto

TORONTO (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson said Sunday night Canada had no reason to be proud of forcing persons of Japanese origin to move from the British Columbia coast during the Second World War.

"That action by the Canadian government — though taken under the strains, and fears and pressures of war—was a black mark against Canada's traditional fairness and devotion to the principle of human rights." Mr. Pearson said at the official opening of the Japanese-Canadian Cultural Centre.

Almost 20,000 persons of Japanese descent were forced to leave British Columbia when its coastline was declared a protected area in 1942.

Mr. Pearson said the action had one compensation — it was brought to the attention of other provinces the "strong character and fine qualities of our Japanese citizens and settlers."

An estimated 80,000 persons drove 22,000 cars, rode on special buses or walked to National Air Force Day at RCAF Station Rockcliffe, Ottawa, on Saturday.

The six-hour program was a blending of the old and the new with planes from the first and second world wars vying for attention in the sky with Delta-wing jobs from the USA.

Flt. Lt. Gerry Billings, a D-Day pilot, who 20 years ago, June 6, flew a World War II "Spitfire" over the beaches of Normandy, put a restored Spitfire through its paces. This aircraft was restored by Lieut. N. Paterson, of Fort William, who is on loan to the Canadian Prior to the flying demonstration, the restored aircraft was handed over by Mr. Paterson to K. M. Molson, the curator of the Air Museum at Ottawa.

"The only reason you're getting the Spit is because my wife won't let me keep her," Mr. Paterson told RCAF personnel later, adding, ruefully, "but I guess the museum is the proper place for her."

Another older plane, a Sopwith Snipe, a World War I fighter, was flown before the crowd by Wind Commander Paul Hartman, the pilot who flew the replica of the Silver Dart in 1959. The Snipe was put on display in the War Museum following the performance at Rockcliffe.

Bringing the picture up to date, a Royal Air Force Vulcan bomber, and high speed aircraft from the U.S.A. put on a "Salute to the 40th Anniversary of the RCAF," this year.

Static ground displays included a 100 foot Titan intercontinental missile from the USA; a model of the Mercury space capsule used by Col. John Glenn and other astronauts in the US space program and an imagined design of a Moon Base, also American, which gave the spectators an idea of how man would exist in a lunar colony on his first venture to the earth satellite.

Up in the air again, and making its first public appearance, was the RCAF's new jet trainer, the CF-114, "Tutor", which will replace the Harvard as the air force's single-engine training craft, and the CH 113 helicopter, the RCAF's newest.

Acrobatics by the retiring Harvards, stepped up jet p e r formances by Hercules, and this year's Red Knight, Flying Officer Bill Slaughter of Winnipeg, who climaxed the s h o w with a spectacular solo display in his flashing red starfighter, made the crowd forget the absence of the retired Golden Hawks this year.

Of special interest to the Trenton reporters at the show was a band marching display by the RCAF Trenton Drum and Pipe Band, an Air Transport Command static display of transport aid carved model aircraft and the Air Material Command display. Air Force Day in Trenton this year is Aug. 29.

Suspend Korean Officials for Corruption

By C. S. CHIN

SEOUL (AP) — President Chung Hee Park suspended 27 government officials—including a cabinet vice-minister — for corruption today in an effort to quiet student demonstrators. The action was announced by Premier Chung Il-kwon but he did not identify the officials or give other details.

Corruption within Park's government was one cause of the violent student demonstrations against Park in Seoul and other South Korea cities last week.

The president also ordered an investigation of a scandals charged to his government by the demonstrators. They included a government-financed apartment construction project and price rigging of flour, cement and sugar.

New trouble for Park's government could come from the death Sunday of Lee Yoon-shik, 20, a university freshman injured last Wednesday in the rioting.

Lee was in a group of students who clashed with police during the Capitol and the presidential mansion in Seoul. It was not known how he was injured. His was the first death reported as a result of the rioting.

A student's death during student demonstrations four years ago touched off a widespread violence that ultimately forced President Syman Rhee into exile. No new demonstrations had developed up to 1 p.m. today but Lee's death was not widely known because of press censorship imposed along with martial law in Seoul last week.

Rips Cast From Arm to Save Son

CLINTON, Ont. (CP)— Truck driver James Waller, 40, wrenched a plaster and steel cast from his mangled right arm and leaped into the Maitland River near here Sunday to save his 11-year-old son Robin from drowning.

Mr. Waller, 40, was picnicking with his family here, some 90 miles northwest of Stratford, after being released for the weekend from the Workmen's Compensation Board Hospital in Toronto.

His grandson Allan Harkness, of London, Ont., was camping with his family nearby and ran to the scene when he heard shouts. He found Mr. Waller and Robin lying exhausted on the bank.

He said Sunday night that from what he could understand, Robin suffered stomach cramps while swimming to about 24 feet of water.

TORE OFF CAST

Mr. Waller tore his cast from his arm and swam in. He managed to keep his son's head above water while he struggled to swim to shore with his good arm.

Mr. Harkness said: "My stepfather's arm was badly smashed in an accident that he has been in and out of hospital since March last year. At one time it was going to be amputated . . . he's supposed to have another operation on it next month . . . he can't even open a package of cigarettes with it."

Mr. Waller and Robin were shaken but unhurt in the incident.

Who Is Surrendering?

The Liberals are said to have made some changes in the structure of their party, to make possible a merger with the New Democrats if this should eventually be considered desirable by both parties.

If these two parties are really considering an amalgamation, one or other of them, or perhaps both, is giving up too easily.

It is not yet certain that social security cannot be provided in the framework of the free enterprise system, so that for the Liberals to accept the government controls of business advocated by the New Democrats would be to capitulate too readily.

On the other hand, despite the evident impossibility of an unarmed mob seizing power in a modern state and despite the enormous handicaps hampering a party of the "have-nots" in an affluent society, it is not yet proven that it is impossible for socialists to convert, eventually, the influential and win a peaceful transformation of the economy. Thus, for the New Democrats to forswear socialism and join with the Liberals would be indicative of a lack of courage and persistence.

There is only one plausible rebuttal for this contention. It is that the New Democrats never looked on socialism as more than a tool, a means to an end, and that if they can find more promising means they are entitled to make the change without exciting criticism.

The trouble with this rebuttal is that economic developments are emphasizing the radical differences between a socialist and a capitalistic economy and are posing for the latter a whole new series of problems.

The struggle between socialism and capitalism as outlined by Marx has already produced a decision and that decision is clearly in favor of capitalism. It can produce more abundantly and can distribute that abundance equitably enough to provide a better life for practically everybody than would be provided by socialism —under existing conditions.

But conditions are changing. Capitalism has won the fight in an economy of scarcity, by producing abundance. It now faces a new problem, of proving its ability to distribute goods in the economy of abundance which it has produced, under conditions where not goods but jobs will be scarce. Can it solve this problem?

If it cannot, then some form of socialism, probably heavily disguised, will be inevitable, for though it may be less efficient in producing goods socialism would encounter no difficulties in distributing them, were they sufficiently abundant.

There is, therefore, a strong case for the existence of a socialist party in any industrialized society, if only to provide the believers in free enterprise with ideas which can be utilized in avoiding socialism.

Of course, the New Democrats may not be the ideal people to fill this role. Unlike the CCF, which had its hard core of convinced socialists, it seems to consist mainly of pragmatic opportunitists, a type of thinking which fits admirably with the philosophy of the modern liberal.

Perhaps the CCF needs to be revived to tend the flickering flame of socialist conviction, lest we find we need a light in tomorrow's computer-run world of employee-free factories.

Suggested Compromise

Gerald Wishart, chairman of the Bay of Quinte District High School Board, presented to the Ontario Rural Urban Trustees Association a resolution which would have sought to bar teachers from sitting on school boards.

Teachers are already forbidden to sit on the board which employs them, but they are free to serve on other boards.

Mr. Wishart's motion appears reasonable, but other trustees present argued that the experience of a teacher is often an asset to school boards, proving that there are two sides to almost every argument.

The Association set Mr. Wishart's resolution aside for consideration by a committee, which would appear to be a wise move.

We have a suggestion. Instead of barring teachers in all instances, why not make the ban applicable only to boards to which trustees are appointed? In cases where trustees are chosen by votes of the ratepayers, it ought to be safe to permit the voters to exercise their discretion. If they want a teacher on the board, because they believe him or her the best person available, they ought to be free to make such a choice. After all, they pay the bills.

How Many Standing Ovations

Stratford Beacon-Herald

By Ed Reed

"I just sold the car, dear . . . got three cents a pound for it."

OFF THE RECORD

If the young fellow says he is the most humbled girl in the world", the girl may believe it, or may at any rate believe that he means it. She is strongly tempted in that direction, of course, by wanting to believe that he means it.

The first girl he says it to, that is.

When he says to the next girl, "You're the most beautiful girl in the world," he may not sound even more convincing. He has had practice, and may deliver the lines better. She may believe it, too.

It can't go on indefinitely, though. It's very convincing. You know what the girls do. They get together and compare notes. "He said that to you, too, did he? That's what he said to me and Nancy says that's exactly what he said to her." But after now, off in the corner with that dumpy little thing in the red dress, I wonder if he's swallowing the line?"

That's about the way we are getting to feel about the standing ovation. It's fine the first time, and very convincing the second time, but somehow by the third time it can get threadbare.

The Festival operatics start five weeks from next Monday. Right now the actors, not long enough from their summering but triumphant trip to Chichester, are being lashed through 16-hour days of exhausting rehearsals to get ready for the target date of June 16. Then on the three massive night, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday in the third week of June they will present the opening performances of three plays.

We look forward with pleasure to most aspects of the 1924 Festival season. We expect to enjoy some of the plays but probably not all of them. We expect to enjoy some more than others. We expect to enjoy the bustle and activity, and the ever-changing crowds.

We also expect some standing ovations which we fear are getting to be a routine. This will be unfortunate, because when they are established as routine, they become meaningless. A few people jump to their feet, for reasons known only to themselves. A few more uncertainly stand up, because it seems to be the thing to do. Then the rest of the audience get up out of sympathyless, because they are afraid they would look conspicuous sitting down.

If it's done for every opening night, it gets to be as spontaneous and heart-warming as paying off on a parking ticket.

We suspect that the actors themselves would be happy to have the standing ovations come rarely and therefore mean something.

Terrorists Criminals

Montreal Gazette

It is reported that those now being held in prison, sentenced for terrorist acts, have demanded that they be treated not simply as criminals but as "political prisoners." As political prisoners, they have asked for special treatment in many ways, beyond the treatment given to other prisoners.

It is difficult to see on what basis they could claim to be political prisoners. They live in a democracy. They are free, as anyone is, to express their political ideas and to seek support for them. They are in prison because of what they have done to themselves: for they have made themselves criminals.

An answer to the claim of the "political prisoners" is in the words of Mr. Ramsay Cowper, "Quebec is, and must remain, a democratic society. It has freedom of thought and speech, freely elected administrations and due process of law. . . . In this country, because of the physical violence and the method of terrorism, it has both criminal and stupid. Their use only reveals lack of courage along with lack of sense."

What it does require is a rather degrading absence of human dignity, contempt for human life, and the weakness of minds who have so little confidence in their own ideas that are afraid to fight for them democratically. . . .

"Fortunately . . . they are no more than a very small fringe of unbalanced people, who command no real support. In fact they are basically "aliens" — they've come from terrorism elsewhere, without any real knowledge of the situations that brought it to birth, and they have absolutely nothing in common with our own."

There is no basis for the claim of being "political prisoners". The tragedy of these persons is not what they have done to others; it is also the destruction they have brought into their own lives and the pain they have often given their families.

It may be hoped that all who may have such tendencies toward needless violence may turn their enthusiasm into better channels and that right in the open in which no man is, or need be, afraid to be a "political prisoner".

Many Uses For Papers

Sault Ste. Marie Star

In Detroit the other day a member of the United Auto Workers Union was sent home by his employer because he appeared on the job with a newspaper sticking out of his hip pocket.

The company which appears only has a rule that workers are supposed to keep papers out of sight, claimed that the employee had violated the worse rules when he refused to remove the newspaper and refused to submit grievance through the proper channels.

Next day, at 8 a.m. sharp, newspapers suddenly appeared in the pockets of 105 union members and company supervisors wrote disciplinary notices for the whole "paper-pocket" bunch and sent them home.

Who won in the dispute? We never did find out, but we do know that the publisher of the newspaper that was gracing all those pockets was pretty happy.

Actually, we're just using this illustration to show — in a rather sneaky way — the obvious uses that imaginative readers can find for newspapers, in this case using some to precipitate a strike.

Though this is the first time that we can remember newspapers being used in that fashion they were in Detroit; we have heard of newspapers being used to make all manner of symbols and objects, when mixed with paste and wire, and the ingenious party-goer can usually cut paper dolls and trees to relieve any dull moments if there's a newspaper handy.

It one is sitting in the sun over a lengthy period a newspaper is fine as a sun shade, and it's just a fine shower of rain a newspaper can serve as a convenient makeshift umbrella.

You can, with a few sorts of things in a newspaper — we shudder at the thought, but some people prefer to read newspapers — and you can use newspapers under the mats to keep the floor clean.

In England a fellow would be considered balmy if he didn't eat his fish and chips out of a greasy newspaper.

Oh yes, and there are quite a few people who read and enjoy, and are informed and enlightened and amused and stimulated by newspapers.

Is Not Fined So Complains

Kitchener-Waterloo Record

A clergyman has voiced disapproval of what he considers favoritism shown to ministers by traffic patrol officers.

Rev. Harold Oxley of Scarborough said that he has been stopped for speeding on two occasions and never once been given a ticket.

His experience will be the subject of envy among laymen who have not been so fortunate. They will appreciate the comment that he, and other clergymen of his acquaintance, feel this sort of discrimination is improper.

Special treatment for the clergy has a long history and it covers things like extra discounts in stores and other considerations which reduce purchasing costs.

The background of this attitude was formed many years ago when clergymen were paid very little cash but usually got the difference in kind.

It was a needed and homely touch that remained well with pioneer settlements. But obviously it is out of place in a jet age and must be a source of some discomfort to many gentlemen of the cloth.

Traffic tickets, of course, are one thing. Store discounts are another. Considering the public view that it is legitimate to get it wholesale, if possible, discounts to religious leaders probably do not bulk any larger for them than anyone else.

Smash and grab robbers were active in Belleville early Saturday morning when the show window at the Edie Jewellers was shattered and jewelry valued at over $50 was stolen. The same store was robbed and in the identical same manner about a year ago. The robbers used a large stone with which to break the side show window, and then dropping the stone reached inside and grabbed a waterproof watch and a birthstone ring. No attempt was made to steal several diamond rings that were situated at the front of the store window. The stone used to break the window was found at the scene of the robbery.

Strictly Personal Roman Writer's Statement Still Holds True

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Who said "A woman is always buying something!"? Ovid, the Roman writer, said it, and he lived in the time of Jesus. Nothing that has happened in the whole Christian era has made a dent in that statement.

Second question: Why is a woman always buying something? This can only be answered with another question, one propounded by Sigmund Freud in a letter to a colleague. Freud wrote:

"The great question that has never been answered, and which I have not yet been able to answer despite my thirty years of research into the feminine soul is: What does a woman want?"

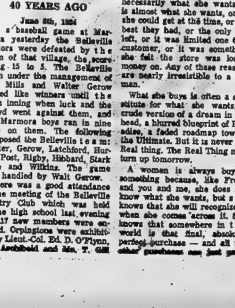
Freud knew, and we know, that what a woman buys is not necessarily what she wants. It is almost what she wants, or all she could get at the time, or the best thing offered, or the only one left, or it was limited cost to a customer, or it was something she felt she ought to have, being money on. Any of these reasons are nearly irresistible to a woman.

What she buys is often a substitute for what she wants, a crude version of a dream in her head, a blurred blueprint of Paradise, a faded roadmap toward the Ultimate. But it is never the Real thing. The Real Thing may turn up tomorrow.

A woman is always buying something because, like Freud and you and me, she does not know what she wants, but she knows that she will recognize it when she comes across it. She knows that somewhere in the world is that final, absolute, perfect purchase — and all the other purchases are just guesstimates of it.

After-Dinner Naps Unwise

Halifax Herald - Chronicle



It was enjoyable while it lasted, but we, in the wake of experiments, it appears that the after-dinner nap is not the friend of the individual which many have assumed it to be.

It is admittedly a poor pun but old wisdom, "Have a nap after your meals," has been debunked.

To Your Good Health

Heart Surgery Result of Experiments With Dogs

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Skimming through the little magazine "Medicine at Work," I happened upon the quotation of a remark by Prof. Paul B. Sears, of Yale, as follows:

"We have a large number of ridiculs at research projects which seem unrelated to practical life. Around 1915 the lieutenant in a field day over a thesis at John Hopkins entitled, "A Proper Diet for White Mice."

The folksmitte used to have a lot of fun with Albert Einstein's abstruse theories, albeit with a certain measure of respect underlying them, but I haven't heard any since atomic power came out of his theories.

A scientist for whom I worked as a young man used to tell about the ridicule heaped on public health inspectors who went around getting samples of water from community pumps. Sometimes they had to sneak up to the pumps at night because of public outcry against them. But that was the day of stopping typhoid.

Quite the other day an outstanding surgeon explained how some of the modern heart operations were performed and how they were developed. He quipped the phrase, "Another result of experimenting with dogs." That's where all of this came from.

Doubtless, if anyone with a taste for ridiculing such things, had noticed it at the time, they might have been some smartaleck jokes about the U. S. A. spent in learning how to grow chicken pot germs. "What do they learn from them" somebody might have asked.

Well, learning to grow chicken pox germs showed how to grow polio virus, too, and that was a vital step in making it possible to make polio vaccine. (The "Chicken pox growers" won a Nobel prize for their work.)

I suppose there are some worthless research projects — but not if it can be helped by public reward money for these projects. They try, naturally, to be sure that every project is potentially valuable.

It is true that a lot of projects "fail" in the sense of not achieving a "cure" or a full explanation of some fact or other.

Dear Dr. Molner: There is a solution containing aluminum chloride to prevent perspiration. What are the ingredients? — W. S.

It is a 10 to 25 percent solution of aluminum chloride in water. Pat the liquid onto the skin and let it dry. The stronger solution may be irritating. The weaker one will be less so and still be effective.

Dear Dr. Molner: My son has rheumatic fever. I found out about it several years ago. His tonsils and adenoids have been removed since then. He is now 15 years old. Do you agree with this treatment? — L. L.

Yes, absolutely. This is the combined treatment and it's a good effect has been thoroughly proved. The penicillin may be given once a week in shot form, or injected once a month, using a larger dose in a form which will be absorbed slowly.

The purpose is to prevent new attacks of rheumatic fever and thus the great secondary heart damage if such attacks do recur.

Note to Mrs. R. D. D.: While I don't recommend eating sugar as a habit (it's a habit-forming drug, and bad for the teeth) there's nothing unusual about it. No different from eating candy.

gastroenterologist Dr. G. Volkheimer outlined what are described as remarkable results of investigations of the causes of sudden death after heavy, high-fat meals.

Years of research led the German doctor to new insight into the mechanism of metabolism. He found, it is reported, that an important factor in the bodily assimilation of nutrients is the movement of the digestive tract, the pulsation of the aorta, and the other "thrust mechanisms."

Where there is a lack of physical movement, such as takes place during the after - dinner nap, the mechanisms may stagnate. Reversal of the body's movements at the conclusion of the rest period then may permit dangerous fat particles to pass into the blood circulation.

All of which is weltcsigh incomprehensible to a layman. What it appears to mean however is that meals poor in fat permit a safe rest afterwards. But the other kind, physical quiet after a rich meal can be deadly.

That much, then for another traditional comfort.

URGES INVESTIGATION

Gen. Vanier, with his wife is sponsoring the conference, said delegates must investigate honestly and realistically those factors that endanger family life.

"It is time for men with serious responsibilities in society to take stock together of the problems facing us. The future is in our hands."

At several points in his eight-page address Gen. Vanier spoke of the importance of spiritual values to family life and to a nation.

"Today, as in times gone by and perhaps the more so because of the gravity of our situation, our country needs citizens prepared to sacrifice their personal interest.

"Canada has an honorable heritage and a prodigious destiny. We are not a powerful country. We cannot be one of the great military powers. But we can and must find our true vocation in the best sense, as a country opposed to pure materialism. To achieve this we must reconquer and resume our spiritual heritage."

Speaking "not as a philosopher but as the father of a family," Gen. Vanier said that the best and surest way of giving the community men and women who were well-balanced and conscious of their responsibilities to their country was to protect the family.

"For the family is capable of giving to the universe the human beings who are prepared to put justice and truth before their own personal interests."

Prime Minister Pearson took part in the 50-minute religious ceremony opening the conference. He led more than 1,500 guests assembled on the Government House lawn in a prayer for the success of the meeting.

Former governor - general Vincent Massey was a silent but interested spectator both at the Conference's opening ceremony and the first working session at Carleton University Sunday night.

What was believed to be the largest gathering of heads of Canadian religious denominations also played a part in the conference opening. Nineteen religious representatives attended the ecumenical service.

Remember When?

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Nobody knows what the future may offer, but we all are cumbered by what the past has brought.

You've come quite a distance along this world's roadways if you can look back and remember when—

Every girl dreamed of dancing with the Prince of Wales or riding off on a white horse into the desert with Rudolph Valentino.

An ambitious lad could always get into the circus free by helping water the elephants.

The world was divided into two classes—those who thought Mary Pickford should have kept her long curls, and those who thought she looked every bit as pretty with her hair bobbed.

If the dish didn't have gravy on it, you didn't think you were getting much of a meal.

After Sunday dinner, dad always stretched out and took a long nap—and you could hear him snoring even when you sat out on the front porch.

WRITE A VERSE

If you were a pleasant feeling of immortality to write in a high school classmate's memory book. "Leaves may wither, flowers may die, friends may forsake you, but never shall I!"

Everybody would run out on the sidewalk and look up when an airplane flew by.

Little boys always had holes in their long black stockings from kneeling to play marbles.

A child's idea of prosperity was to be born into a family that could afford two sleds.

If you asked a bartender for a martini he thought you were either kidding him or trying to show off.

Your favorite uncle was the one who could take a deep puff on his cigarette, swallow a glass of water—and then blow smoke out his nose.

Every neighborhood had at least one bully.

The business leaders in a small town always went home for lunch. . . . And if your had a rolltop desk of your own in your office, you were making your mark in the world.

You never got orange juice without castor oil in it except as a special treat when you had the chicken pox or the measles.

A man who bought a suit with only one pair of pants to it was put down as a spendthrift.

Those were the days. Remember?

Three honor rings were presented to girls in the Diocese, with Miss Dianne Geen of St. Paul's, G. A. Roslin receiving one, for being outstanding in her work for Christ, in her church, community and Diocese.

The afternoon program topic was "Girls Here and There", with the many G. A. groups from the Diocese of Ontario each representing a different country, which made an interesting program of songs, folk dancing, and games.

CUPS PRESENTED

The two silver cups which are competed for annually were presented for outstanding work, with Roslin G.A. winning both, one for the best sewing and handicraft; also the cup for being the most progressive group in the Diocese.

Not Wrong to Want Small Keepsake of Dead Sister

DEAR DORIS — A dear sister who was very close to me passed away in March. A nurse took charge of all arrangements as the husband was very upset and I was unable to get out through illness at the time.

The nurse asked my sister (who was there) if she wanted anything for a remembrance and she said no, as she could never stand to go near the husband and felt he was unfair to her.

I never had one word from there, so I wrote for a few little things I admired of my late sister's. Do you feel I did wrong? I now wonder. — WANTING A KEEPSAKE.

DORIS CLARE

DEAR WANTING — Wrong! No, even an imperfect husband can appreciate a sister's longing for a remembrance. Write again, and register your letter, if the reply is too long in coming. People can be careless about these things, I'm sorry to say.

DEAR DORIS — I am in love with this one very special boy and I know he loves me. For some reason his brother doesn't want it that way. He told his mother that I am a tramp and a number of other things, so she forbads my boy friend to see me again.

Finally we started going over the river drinking. We both knew it would only lead to trouble, but it was the only place where we could go and not be seen. Eventually she found out about that too and changed the whole thing again last night.

I love him so much that it just can't possibly let him go. I've heard of so many similar situations where the girls did give in and had to settle for second best. I don't want that to happen to me. — HELP ME.

DEAR HELP ME — Have you tried to get to know the family? Or do you see yourself as stealing their son and brother away? Why not try proving you aren't the tramp they think you are?

There's something wrong if he can't face introducing you. Talk it over.

DEAR DORIS — You wrote "Guidance" that you never heard of anyone carrying artificial flowers at a wedding.

Last November I got married and I had a bouquet of plastic orchids with dropping streamers on my white Bible. My matron of honor and bridesmaid had corsages of white orchids (plastic). The only live flowers at my wedding were red roses in a vase which had to be placed farther back than usual.

The minister agreed that artificial flowers were just fine. He said it was permissible for the bride to cry but not sneeze. You see, the minister, my bridesmaid and I all have hay fever.

No one knew they were artificial flowers until they came close. My bouquet will last for the rest of my life in the original condition. — MRS. O.

DEAR MRS. O. — A triumph for plastic! I take back what I said. Obviously artificial wedding flowers can be a real boon when the chief performers are subject to hay fever.

(There are two sides to just about every human problem. Let Doris give you a new perspective on yours.)

Spring Tea Much Enjoyed

A delightful spring tea was held on Thursday last at the home of Mrs. Larry VanNorman, Donald Street, sponsored by the Women's Auxiliary of the 13th Belleville Cubs and Scouts.

Guests were greeted at the door by the hostess, Mrs. Joan VanNorman and the vice-president, Mrs. Eileen Goegan. Tickets were taken by Mrs. Marylou Enright. Mrs. Barbara Lyons invited the guests to the tea room which was tastefully decorated. The tea table was in keeping with the decor with a centre piece of peonies and spirea, tall white candles in crystal candelabra and the silver tea services.

Those who poured tea during the afternoon were Mrs. Olive VanNorman, Mrs. Teresa Hogan and Mrs. Barbara Lyon whose husband is 13th Pack Akela. Several other ladies of the group assisted in the serving and replenishing of the tasty refreshments, with Mrs. Doris Joudwa in charge of arranging the plates.

The homebaking table was as usual most popular with its tempting array of homemade bread, buns, pies, tarts and cookies, which was under the supervision of Mrs. Irene Smith and Mrs. Loretta McIlvee.

Tickets were sold on a basket containing all the necessities for a complete dinner jointly donated by local grocery and meat stores, with Mrs. Bonnadette Kelly in charge of ticket sales.

At the conclusion of the afternoon the draw for the door prizes was made by Mrs Effie McCabe and little Larry VanNorman respectively. A necklace was won by Randy VanNorman and a jewelry set by Mrs. Gerald Stordy and the grocerie by Patti Reid.

The mothers of the 13th Belleville Cubs and Scouts were most appreciative to all the ladies who assisted in any way and to all those who attended in helping make the spring tea a success.

Co-Ed Pyjama Parties Are A Part of Campus Life

ANN LANDERS

DEAR READERS — Remember the letter from the college girl who wrote home that she had been invited to a co-ed pyjama party, sponsored by her sorority? The family was shocked and so was I. But, of course, I attended college back around the time earth's crust cooled and much has changed since then.

I invited the current crop of college students to cite me. They did. By the thousands. I was told that co-ed pyjama parties are very much a part of campus life and I must be as square as a chair or I'd have known all about these gay romps — complete with mattresses.

Have a look at the mail:

Dear Ann Landers — Please do not print the name of my city or sorority. Two years ago our Greek group threw a pyjama party. We removed all the furniture and put mattresses down on the floor which is the custom. We also put a bed in the corner and hired a professional photographer to take pictures of the couples in bed. We thought our parents would get a boot out of the snapshots. We were wrong. Unfortunately some parents have no sense of humor. They sent up a howl that was heard in the Dean's office. That was the end of pyjama parties on our campus and I think it's a shame. They were the best parties of all.

From Lexington, Ky. — As a Kappa Alpha Theta I can tell you that no sorority here sponsors pyjama parties. The fraternities put them on. Everyone wears underwear and nobody has ever gotten into trouble at a pyjama party — so far as I know. It's the social parties that are dynamite.

San Bernardino, Calif. — Here at Valley College we have pyjama parties and they are approved by the administration so you know they are O.K. Some nut is always trying to push things too far, which happened last year. A freshman girl showed up in a black sheer nightgown with a matching negligee. She was asked to leave. I'm sorry to say three fellows left with her.

Chicago — At Northwestern the pyjama parties are Yawnsville compared with the Evanston beach parties. I've been to both and boin-o-ng — there is no comparison.

Terre Haute, Ind. — At state college the pyjama parties sponsored by the fraternities and sororities are 100 per cent pure. All Greek letter societies are subject to the rules of the Panhellenic Council and if they weren't decent they'd be axed.

Baltimore — At Johnny Hopkins we have an annual Pyjama Ball. Most of the kids wear flannel nightshirts or granny-type nightgowns. They aren't the least bit sexy. You know perfectly well that nothing serious is going to happen when kids are laughing — and these get-ups are side-splitters.

Davenport, Iowa — I went to Morningside College in Sioux City, Iowa, when you did (Class of '40) and maybe we didn't have pyjama parties but those hay rides and barn parties were pretty swingin' little socials. Remember. — WHITEY.

DEAR WHITEY — Speak for yourself, Buster. I don't remember a thing.

Ann Arbor, Mich. — At the University of Michigan pyjama parties are out-moded. The Roman toga parties are in. We wear bedsheets and sandals.

Ithica, N.Y. — Relax, Ann, our P.J. parties are time. Come to Cornell and see for yourself, and please bring your own mattress.

Peoria, Ill. — Here at Bradley we do have co-ed pyjama parties and they are like a Sunday School picnic.

Torrance, Calif. — I never got into trouble at a pyjama party. It was at a picnic that I met my Waterloo.

Too many starry-eyed lovers do not know the difference. Do you? Send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Before You Marry — Is It Love Or Sex?", enclosing with your request 25c in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

HARBOUR GRACE, Nfld. (CP) — Margaret Bath, the widow of a policeman, sets the pattern for one of the most educationminded families in Newfoundland.

And each of her five children, ranging in age from seven to 26, is at some stage of learning.

Juniors Present Music Festival

FRANKFORD — An enjoyable and entertaining evening was enjoyed by parents and friends at the Frankford Community Hall when the pupils from Grades 1-4 of Frankford Public School gave their annual music festival.

Opening songs were by Grade 4 pupils, followed by the four grades doing several action songs individually. Gregory Montgomery, Debbie Lemiry and Alfreda Hamilton did solo class played individual actions.

Solos were given by Kent Lewis, Wendy Beach, Debbie Rogers, Karen Adams and Timmy Leitch of the Grade 2 class. Kenny Syke of Grade 1 played one action part.

Two short piano renditions were given during the evening, one a solo played by Miss Kathy Reid who was later accompanied by Miss Loreen Wickson in a duet.

The evening ended on a Southern note when the Grade 3 pupils presented "Advice and Uncle Remus". Uncle Remus was played by Lester Sykes while solos were given by John Horan, Danny Chase, Robert Gilmour, Shelley Palmer, Kristy Rankin, Robby Branch. Lester Sykes sang the final verse and the class was accompanied them in the chorus.

Th eprincipal, Mr. George McLaughlin introduced and thanked Mrs. Reilly, the music teacher, Mrs. Coombes, Mrs. Woodbeck and Mrs. Pringle, teachers of the other grades were also on hand to assist the pupils.

Later this week Grades 5 to 8 will hold their annual music festival in the Frankford Community Hall.

JUST AN OCELOT

Doll Doctor Getting Lots Of Work

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — Most girls outgrow dolls but Mrs. Norman Hieminus grew up before she discovered them. Her friends and associates know her as the doll doctor, and her operating room is the dining room of her neat little house.

She has been repairing dolls for four years, mostly for people who want their childhood dolls restored as keepsakes.

"Any doll more than 25 years old is considered an antique," she says, adding that some are valued at $150 to $200.

A pair of Eaton dolls made in 1925 were her prize restoration job. They belonged to a Kitchener woman and they now are in as good condition as they were when new. At that time they sold for $1 each. Now they're insured for $1,000. They have a bisque head and wooden bodies with joints at the neck, elbows, wrists, hips, knees and ankles. Their hair is real.

"It's funny how all this work started," says Mrs. Hieminus. "When I was a little girl I was a real tomboy—I never played with dolls."

SPEAKING of MANNERS

PATRICIA LEWIS

PACK COURTESY WITH YOUR CAMERA

A tourist without a camera is almost as rare as a tourist without flat-heeled shoes.

During the summer, no matter where you go, you're almost bound to trip over a tourist, camera in hand, snapping away at everything in sight to capture a film record for his memory book. And, unfortunately, some are not too polite about it.

On a visit to virtually any place or monument that has a scenic or historic significance, some camera fans don't care how they go about getting the prized shot or footage, even if they have to stand on your shoulders to do it.

Camera fans have been known to clamber all over revered sites in quest of the right angle and light and, at times, to be disrespectful of the significance involved in order to get the picture they want. If a few more reverent sight-seers get in the way, they simply shove them aside so the camera-bug can get a clear sweep.

It's a shame it's fun to record your trip every inch of the way, but remember you can get your photographs and be courteous, too.

When you're on a guided tour of an historic site, for instance, you can continue snapping away but try to do it quietly, without making so much fuss that others can't hear the guide as he gives his informative discourse. And make an extra effort to be neat about it.

BRING CONTAINERS

Bring along some sort of bag to use for discarded film wrappers and containers as well as used flash bulbs. At the end of a busy tourist day, many historic sites are very sights, due to litter left behind by thoughtless sight seers, so make sure your hobby doesn't contribute to this sad scene.

If other tourists are in the way of a good shot, politely move aside, instead of elbowing your way up front. Most are camera fans, also, and are only too happy to oblige when a member of the cult makes his photographic needs known.

Possibly you want to get a shot from an area that's enclosed and off-limits to the public. Instead of climbing over the fence, it's sometimes possible to obtain permission to enter from a protective guard. Ask first, so you won't appear disrespectful.

Getting good angles and interesting composition is always a challenge to a photographer. But when you're in a crowd, or in a group, remember to be considerate of the rights of others and of the history and background of the site, itself. You can still get a good picture — and project a good picture of yourself — by being thoughtful and courteous as you pursue your camera hobby.

Three Indian Doctors Going Home

SHERBROOKE, Que. (CP)—Three colorful, sari-clad women who gave the residents of Sherbrooke a glimpse of the Far East during the last year are about to say farewell.

Jyotsna Shah, Usha Ghamande and Gitaben Manlar—their names mean moonlight, queen of dawn and Gita, a religious book—spent the last year interning at the Sherbrooke Hospital.

Hoping to see North America and to study the diseases on this continent, the three Indian women doctors applied to hospitals and were accepted here.

Although they went unprepared for long Canadian winters, they found living generally easy. They mostly stayed indoors.

"The women are co-operative and friendly and make one feel at home," said Dr. Ghamande.

When off duty, the women wear saris, which they say are no more complicated to wear than an ordinary dress. The sari is a length of silk wrapped around the body and worn over a contrasting colored blouse.

Dr. Ghamande and her husband, who also is a doctor at the hospital, lived with their infant son in the interns' residence.

Dr. Shah and Manar lived in the nurses' residence.

They usually prepared their own food because, being vegetarians, their diet was mainly rice and vegetables.

Tasty Variation Of Croquettes

by Mary Moore

For months I have been trying to find time and space for this croquette method.

You see, I had some leftover ground and frozen at zero temperature. It was to be drawn on roast turkey meat which I in an emergency — which did not arise for nearly 2 months. We were invited out to dinner, but the host phoned to say our hostess was sick. So I turned the table and asked Ben and the children here. Happily his wife recovered enough to come too!

So I had to hustle and start from scratch.

MONDAY

Dinner Menu

Cheese Souffle; Tomato Sauce; Baked Potatoes; Fresh Asparagus; Rhubarb Pie; Cheddar Cheese; Coffee.

CRUSTY OVEN CROQUETTES:

3 cups ground cold cooked turkey or chicken meat, 6 tablespoons flour, 6 tablespoons butter or margarine, 2 teaspoons salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, 1¾ cups hot rich milk, 1 tablespoon green onion flakes, ½ cup finely chopped walnuts, ¾ cup fine dry sifted bread or cracker crumbs, 1 egg, 1 tablespoon water, 2 tablespoons butter.

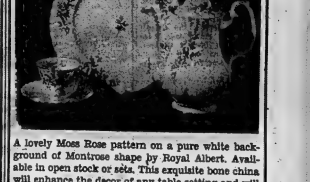
Make a thick white sauce by melting the 6 tablespoons butter or margarine and stirring in the flour, salt and pepper to blend, then the hot milk until very thick. Stir in ground turkey or chicken meat and chill at least 1 hour. (Note: Ground cooked pork or veal or ham may be used instead of turkey or chicken.)

When croquette mixture is chilled through mark into 8 sections with knife. With a moistened silver serving tablespoon, pick up ⅛ of mixture and drop into egg beaten a little with the 1 tablespoon water. Turn it over to coat with egg. In a shallow bowl mix together the chopped walnuts and breadcrumbs. Drop egg-covered croquette into coating crumbs and with a dry spoon turn it over to cover. Now pick up the croquette in your hands and shape it into a smooth cylinder. Have ready a large shallow baking dish (which may be carried to table) in which you have melted the 2 tablespoons butter. Drop croquette in and turn it over to coat with butter. Proceed with remainder of croquette mixture, making 8 cylindrical egg-and-crumb coated croquettes in all. (Note: These amounts of egg and crumbs are exactly right, leaving no leftovers.)

Bake at 450 deg. Fahr. for 10 minutes or until golden. (Note: Do not bake these at a lower temperature or they tend to spread and lose their cylindrical shape.) Serve from dish in which they are baked.

With these I served creamed broccoli and glazed carrots. The crunchy crust on the croquettes is delicious.

NOTE:



Of course this croquette mixture may be made up into small-ier shapes and fried in deep fat at 375 deg. Fahr. if desired.

SPECIALIZED TRAINING

WINNIPEG (CP)—Mrs. Nadine Childley, director of special education for the Winnipeg school division, says Manitoba's mentally retarded children aren't receiving the attention they warrant because of a shortage of qualified teachers. She says a school for special education should be set up at the University of Manitoba to train interested teachers in the specialized field of teaching retarded, slow - learning, physically handicapped children.

The Picton Majorettes, capably led by their teacher Miss Iris Lohnes of Belleville drew hearty applause for their work with the batons. Some of the girls could not be over 3 years old, and they were terrific.

The Oddfellows band played music throughout the evening, which was greatly enjoyed by those present. County Warden Ken Hicks officially opened the show. He was escorted around the arena by three riders on beautiful palomino horses, each rider carrying a flag.

Cubs, Scouts Parade for Church Service

Cubs and Scouts from packs and troupes all over Prince Edward County, paraded from the Cenotaph through the downtown streets directly to the Regent Theatre where the Drumhead Service was conducted by various Cub and Scoutmasters and leaders.

At this service the Gilwell Neckerchief and Beads were presented to District Commissioner William Gassiza of Wellington by Douglas Allenbrach, M.P.

The Gilwell Neckerchief and Beads, designates that the wearer is eligible to teach Cubbing and Scouting in all of their many affections, anywhere in the world where they are now known, and this takes in every civilized country in the world with the exception of Russia, and word is that even there, there is a movement afoot to consider Scouting for the young men of that nation.

When, and if, the officials of Russia decide to go along and allow their young people to become part of the Scouting movement, it will take a giant step toward world peace.

At the conclusion of the Cubs' Field Day at Camp Picton on Saturday afternoon, Assistant District Commissioner William Strachan presented the Gilwell Neckerchief and Beads to District Cubmaster Mrs. Lena Thompson, of Picton.

We also would like to thank Mrs. Cook and her daughter for allowing us to use their Regent Theatre for the Drumhead Service, Mr. Strachan added.

White Chapel Church Observes 155th Birthday

PICTON (Staff) — Old hymns popular during the heyday of Methodism in this county wafted from the door, windows and chinks of the historic and quaint White Chapel near here Sunday.

It was the service commemorating the 155th anniversary of this pioneer church, erected in 1809, the only Sunday of the year when people have a chance to worship in the church where the forefathers of some of the residents here once worshipped.

With music supplied by A. A. Benvie on an old fashioned pump organ, the small but enthusiastic congregation sang such once-popular hymns as "I Love to Tell the Story" and "Rescue the Perishing."

A responsive reading from Psalm 15 included such suitable Scriptural references as, "Lord, Thou has been our dwelling place in all generations. For a thousand years in Thy sight are but as yesterday when it is past," and "Let Thy work appear unto Thy servants, and Thy glory unto their children."

The second historic church in this district, the old St. Mary Magdalene Church at the corner of Church and Union Streets, will be opened to the public for an anniversary service on June 28.

162 Cubs Pass Athletic Tests Without Flaw

PICTON (Staff) — The Cubs of eight packs in Prince Edward County, took part in a huge Field Day at Camp Picton on Saturday afternoon, when 162 Cubs tried for their coveted Athletic Badge.

This was not a competition, rather the day consisted of various programs designed to test the physical fitness of each Cub. For instance, there were seven different things a Cub could try, for example: a sprint of 50 yards in 10 seconds, or a broad jump of 6 feet, or a climb a rope or pole 20 feet, or throw a baseball 60 feet. Things like that.

The tests were in two classes, "A" and "B", the A class would be for Cubs from 8 to 9½ with the B class 9½ to 11 years. If a Cub in the lower class was big enough, he could go up into the higher classification.

Proof positive that the Cub Leaders have done their work well, lies in the fact that not one of the 162 Cubs failed to win their athletic badge.

The Scout movement is now stressing physical fitness, and this entire Field Day was designed for the Cubs with this objective in mind, so that when the Cubs "go up" to Scouts, they will be better prepared to "Be Prepared."

William Strachan, Assistant District Commissioner, told The Ontario Intelligencer, "We are grateful for the wonderful leadership shown by all Cub Leaders in Picton, Camp Picton, Bloomfield and Wellington. Without their help, this successful day would not have been possible.

"In my eight years as Assistant District Commissioner, I have had less to do this year than any other, and I really am grateful," he added.

"I would be very remiss if I did not thank, publicly, the Ladies' Auxiliary at Camp Picton for the lunch they served to the Cubs and Leaders during this Field Day, "it was simply wonderful," he concluded.

Fighting German Iris Pests

By FLORA M. SAVILLE

German iris have few serious enemies but they are not completely immune to disease and pests. Knowing what to look for and early diagnosis can keep trouble from getting out of hand.

Bacterial soft rot — this can be easily recognized by the foul smell of the rhizome (bulbous root). The rot gains entrance through wounds in young leaves. These are often caused by the larvae of the iris borer. Once into the tissues of the leaves the bacteria multiplies rapidly leaving a water soaked appearance around the hole. Leaves are destroyed as the bacteria works down to the root.

The first indication noticed may be the collapsing of leaves on what looked like a healthy plant, but water soaked streaks are an earlier sign of trouble that may go unnoticed. The borer attacks the youngest and most tender leaves and this may go unnoticed until the disease is well advanced.

FIRST STEP

Control of the borer is the first step in treatment. The moth matures in August or September, and deposits eggs in old leaves or debris near the plants. Where leaves are used as a mulch rake and burn all debris from the area to destroy the eggs. Cut or pull dead iris leaves and burn them. Cutting back tops to six or eight inches in October as well as cleaning the area around plants will keep the plants free of borers.

When burning of leaves and rubbish has been delayed until young leaves are six to eight inches high it will be necessary to spray with DDT, three tablespoons of 50 percent wettable powder to one gallon of water, or dust with 5 percent dust. Repeat each week until flower stocks show.

Rotenone, pyrethrum, malathion and thimet also provide good control. Use once a week until flower stocks reach twelve inches.

When the rot is noticed on the leaf or leaves it can be prevented from reaching the root by cutting off the leaf below the water soaked area. Dip shears in 70 percent denatured alcohol to disinfect them. Disinfect trowel or spade used for digging. Rotted roots must be dug up and destroyed.

DISINFECT SOIL

Disinfect soil with a solution of semesan one ounce (two tablespoons) to three gallons water. Pour this into soil where plant has been removed. Allow solution to drain away. Iris may then be replanted in this place.

When valuable plants are not wholly destroyed the rotted parts can be cut away and the healthy portion soaked in semesan, or other mercury solution, for from one to two hours.

Do not plant rhizomes too deep. Prepare soil making a little hill for each plant. Lay rhizome on hill with thread-like roots down the sides. Cover side roots and firm soil around them, leaving a little of the surface of the rhizome exposed to the sun and air. Sun will kill many bacteria on or near the surface.

Bacterial leaf spot — semi-transparent spots of irregular shape. These spots run together and cover the whole leaf in time. Control—remove spotted leaves early in the season. Remove and burn tops in the fall.

Types of iris fungi will be discussed next week.

world. There is no ministry of human survival in any government that I know of."

The meeting was told that 36 members of Parliament—including three cabinet ministers—and 18 members of the Senate belong to the World Federalists of Canada, which promotes the idea of world law and government.

Executive director H. W. Hoppener said they belong to the Parliamentary Association of World Federalists, organized last November with an initial membership of 28. He said total membership in the movement is about 2,000. Cabinet ministers in the organization are Agriculture Minister Harry Hays, Northern Affairs Minister Arthur Laing and Yvon Dupuis, minister without portfolio.

The chairman of the non-partisan group is Pauline Jewett, Liberal member for Northumberland, and honorary chairman Senator A. W. Roebuck.

NEEDS SUPPORT

James E. Brown, Liberal member of Parliament for Brantford, said the United Nations must have "the unqualified support of the Canadian people."

A recent delegate to the UN General Assembly, Mr. Brown said the work of the assembly's legal committee has brought men closer to "recognition of an absolute rule of law among nations of the world.

"Slowly but surely across the world there is being recognized the necessity of clearer definition of rules of international law and conduct between nations."

If the committee's work continues at the same speed "we shall soon be standing at the threshold of a world rule of law that will have to be respected and adhered to by the nations."

The 112 delegates re-elected Professor C. S. Burchill of Royal Roads College, Esquimalt, B.C., as president of the World Federalists of Canada.

In the keynote address to the meeting Saturday, Norman Cousins, editor of The Saturday Review, New York, said men have to devise a body of law for the UN to enforce and give it the means to enforce it.

"Old Soldiers Never Die"—and a lot of them haven't faded away if the weekend reunion of the 14th Field Regiment hosted by the 34th Battery, RCA Association is a criterion.

Joining their wartime comrades of the 34th Battery were the ex-gunners from the 66th Battery, Montreal, and the 31st Battery, Shawinigan Falls, Quebec.

For many it was the "first time in years" for others, the first time since Canadian troops swarmed ashore on the beaches of Normandy on the now famous "D-Day."

The reunion was a heartening success from the Saturday registration to the reluctant Sunday afternoon farewells.

So much so, the former gunners unanimously voted to hold another one next year—this time in Gananoque, home of the "famous Sergeant, now councillor, W. J. 'Bill' Nalon. The motion was endorsed by former gunners Captain Ken Dowsley, and C. W. Randall.

Many colorful characters of the former wartime units were here. Among them were "Slim" Allen, Regimental Sergeant Major, WO.1; Jack Valle, now of the RCHA, Petawawa, and the well known RSM's, "Shick" Holtom, also of Petawawa.

Then there was the usual father-and-son act, who served with the regiment. George "Pappy" Hepburn of the 66th Battery, Montreal, and his gunner son. "Pappy," is 66 years of age.

There were 110 of them gathered in the spacious auditorium of the ANAF Branch 201, here for reminiscing and banquet get-together. They heard a highly entertaining address, enjoyed entertainment and on Sunday morning listened to an inspiring D-Day sermon.

ATTEND BANQUET

Over 100 sat down to a delectable banquet catered by the ladies auxiliary of the ANAF Branch here on Saturday night.

A high - ranking official of the Dominion Command ANAF and a former gunner, Jack C. Lundberg chaired the dinner.

With lights dimmed and a spotlight showing on a white cross flanked by the Union Jack and the Red Ensign, the ex - gunners paid silent tribute to former comrades "who never came back". Armand Duffy's touching rendion of "Last Post" and "Reveille" brought the tribute to a close.

Head table guests included the speaker of the evening, Major A. S. McConnell, MBE, CD., His Worship Mayor Jack Elliot, Lieut. Col. R. Black, commanding officer, Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment; Captain Geo. H. Carver, former second-in-command of the 34th Battery RCA (Reserve); Captain Dowsley; association president Pat Boyle; BSM Holtom; and Douglas Stork, director.

Mayor Ellis extended a warm official welcome to the gunners particularly to those coming from Montreal and Shawinigan Falls. Chairman Landford added his tribute to the battery and comrades stating they "had set a fine example to the communities."

Captain Carver proposed the toast to the 34th Battery, which was responded to by Lieut. Col. Black. BSM Holton proposed the toast to the regiment with response expressed by Captain Dowsley.

Major McConnell was introduced by director Stork and the former gunner had his gunner listeners almost in the aisles with story and anecdote of World War Two.

"I am among my own now," he said "and can talk your language."

In serious vein he said the Canadian soldier was the greatest ambassador-at-large the country ever sent overseas.

"True, he had his faults. All soldiers did but with these we were always proud to be Canadians. There was something about a man from Canada that made him stand out."

"What the Canadian soldier went through at D-Day or other battles, just cannot be a lost memory," said the speaker.

PAYS TRIBUTE

He paid tribute to the field artillery adding that the gunners like other troops came through something that has made a fellowship than can never be broken.

Appreciation of the outstanding address was expressed by Bill Nalon who presented Major McConnell with a handsome lighter as a memento of the occasion.

Headed by the colorful ANAF Pipe Band, the ex-gunners paraded some 100 strong to St. Thomas' Anglican Church for divine service Sunday morning.

Here with a large congregation they heard an inspiring sermon by the rector, Major McConnell.

Several ladies were here with the ex-gunner husbands and were provided with special entertainment. They attended a highly enjoyable dance in the ANAF auditorium Saturday night.

Much of the credit for the success of the reunion goes to president L. A. Boyle, secretary Jim "Snipe" Mathews, treasurer Doug Stork, Jake Brownling, Max Rollins, George Johnson and others.

"THE LAST SHELL?" — 34th Battery Association secretary Jim "Snipe" Mathews holds the cartridge case of the last shell fired in World War Two. With him are battery mates former sergeant Bill Nalon of Gananoque and Wes. Alkenbrack of Napanee.

impartial court "and if necessary to an international court of justice."

It said the Privy Council had given Newfoundland, which now controls Labrador, "a territory of 112,000 square miles considered up to 1927 as belonging to Quebec."

The delegates, who began the meeting Friday, ended it by electing Georges Henri Fortin of Alma as their new president.

But the rush of resolutions captured the spotlight at the gathering, which was made up of men and women representing 200,000 members of the French - language patriotic organization.

The delegates consistently used the term "state" to describe Quebec and in their resolution on federalism they insisted that the provincial government express its statehood by "turning down any formula for equalization payments and withdrawing quickly and completely from any 'joint' federal-provincial plans."

A Quebec radio and television network and a state - subsidized co-operative news agency for the province also were urged by the federation.

SEES FAVORITISM

The federation contended that the provincial government's current scheme of aid to universities favors English - language institutions and so does "a serious injustice" to French-speaking students.

It demanded a new scheme of payments that would end the "burden of under - development" which it said is being carried by the French-language universities.

The federal government, the delegates said in another resolution, should get out of the field of student aid.

They urged the creation of a lottery in the province, its revenues to help finance education and health services.

The royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism should investigate "the status of the French language in the armed forces and specially in the air force."

FAVOR DEFENCE CUTS

Two Quebec government economists spoke in favor of decreasing the federal defence budget as the first cut in Ottawa spending to release tax money for provincial needs.

Claude Morin, deputy minister of the federal - provincial affairs department, and Jacques Parizeau, University of Montreal economist serving as secretary of the legislature committee on the constitution, said it would over-simplify the partitioning tax money among federal, provincial and municipal governments by calling it a constitutional problem.

Mr. Morin said there is a lack of correspondence between the needs and resources of the federal and provincial governments and "the necessary readjustment should start by deflation of the national defence budget."

Canada is undergoing a "sensational revolution" of economic equilibrium as Quebec and Ontario take their positions as economic powers of the first order, Mr. Parizeau said.

"Such a reversal which has led to these provinces dealing with the federal government on an equal footing could not be done except in an atmosphere of tears and the gritting of teeth," he said.

Two Canadian women broke down in tears as the children moved in to drape the back of the monument with a blanket of blossoms.

The guard of honor for the event was made up of 100 men from the Canadian Army brigade nuclear rocket unit at Soest, West Germany, plus smaller contingents of British, French and U.S. soldiers.

A band of the Black Watch regiment, also from Soest, played for the ceremony and the prayers were led by Capt. K. A. Minchin of Edmonton, Protestant chaplain, and Capt. C. H. Belanger of Ottawa, Roman Catholic chaplain.

Teillet and Triboulet spoke briefly to the assembly, recalling the youth and the courage of the men who fought and died in Normandy.

AMONG 1,000,000

Teillet, speaking in both French and English, said the Canadians buried here were "part of the 1,000,000 men and women of Canada who voluntarily placed their lives at the disposal of their country during the 1939-1945 war—1 000,000 out of a total of about 11,000,000 when the war began."

Triboulet, who stood in for Gen. de Gaulle at all the main D-Day ceremonies, emphasized the "material and spiritual union" that links France and "New France," as he termed Quebec.

Earlier in the day Le Regiment de la Chaudiere, with headquarters in Levis, Que., unveiled a blue granite battle monument at Berniers where the unit pressed ashore 20 years ago. It was erected near an older monument which marks the spot where Toronto's Queen's Own Rifles came ashore.

The Royal Winnipeg Rifles unveiled a teak - and - granite memorial shaft on the beach at Courseulles. The latter monument contains the names of 497 unit men who died either in the initial assault or later in the war.

"We don't even have to tell them anymore," one salesgirl in a supermarket said. "They just take the negative approach and say 'don't suppose you'll have any of this or that until the strike is over.'"

Stenographer at Coffin Inquest Copied Answers, Not Questions Board Told

PERCE, Que. (CP) — The Quebec royal commission investigating the case of Wilbert Coffin left this Gaspe resort Sunday after hearing 62 witnesses in one week, winding up with evidence about an inquest in 1953 at which he testified.

It was the only time Coffin ever testified publicly — he was hanged Feb. 10, 1956, for the murder of one of three slain American hunters, after futile efforts to get a second trial at which he could testify.

But Dr. Lionel Rioux, coroner, told the royal commission Saturday an "inept stenographer" at the second phase of the inquest at which Coffin talked copied only answers and not questions.

Dr. Rioux himself was told by Mr. Justice Roger Brossard, the commissioner, that documents he had put together at the inquest were "worth nothing."

The slender, 47-year-old coroner had said he had asked witnesses to sign blank statements and later he had their testimony typed above them.

WAS IN THREE PARTS

The inquiry into the slayings of the three hunters was run off in three phases and Coffin himself was cleared of complicity in the killings in the second phase. A month later, a jury under Dr. Rioux found him criminally responsible for the shootings of Richard Lindsey, 17, and Frederic Clasz, 20, both of Hollidaysburg, Pa. It could not be determined whether Eugene Lindsey, 47, had been shot, as his head and a portion of his body were never found.

The Gaspe prospector wasn't present at this phase and Dr. Rioux told the commission Crown Prosecutor Noel Dorion had told him not to call Coffin as a witness.

He was then confronted with a document in which Mr. Dorion instructed him not only to call Coffin, but to explain to witnesses they could testify under the Canada Evidence Act as a protection.

The jury members testified they at first felt Coffin should be charged with theft, not murder.

WOULDN'T MATTER

Owen Patterson, 43, a Gaspe bank manager who served on the jury, said that while they were deliberating, they were told that no matter what their verdict, Coffin would be charged with murder.

With 62 witnesses crammed into the overcrowding shack that included two night sittings, some witnesses mumbled, others forgot, a few were deaf or illiterate.

One result was Mr. Justice Roger Brossard's order that contradictory testimony by Regis Quirion, 40, a lumberjack, be looked into "to determine the feasibility of charging him."

"With perjury . . ." said Crown Porsecutor Maurice Dussault of Gaspe, who will carry out the order.

With whatever was appropriate, the commissioner said.

43 Fatalities Across Canada During Weekend

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

At least 43 persons met accidental deaths across Canada during the weekend—38 in traffic accidents, eight in drownings, seven in assorted accidents and five in fires.

A survey by The Canadian Press from 6 p.m. Friday to midnight Sunday local times showed that Quebec had 21 accidental deaths, including seven in road accidents, six drownings, five fire deaths and three in other accidents.

Ontario had 12 deaths, including seven on the highways, four in miscellaneous accidents and one drowning.

British Columbia had four traffic deaths, while Manitoba had one death on the highways and one drowning, Alberta had two traffic deaths.

Nova Scotia and New Brunswick had one traffic fatality each.

Newfoundland, Prince Edward Island and Saskatchewan were free from accidental deaths.

The survey does not include known suicides, slayings or industrial deaths.

REVEAL ESTATE

DUBLIN (AP)—Brendan Behan, the Irish playwright and author who died March 20 at the age of 41, left an estate valued at possibly more than $200,000, an associate of the colorful literary figure said Saturday. Behan left two unpublished manuscripts and their publication is expected to add considerably to his estate.

Little Girl Gets Budgie From Judy

PORT ERIE, Ont. (CP)—Judy LaMarsh, Canada's sharp - tongued minister of health and welfare, won the heart of an eight-year-old girl Saturday night.

Miss LaMarsh, attending a service club trade fair in draw door prizes, was told by Kristin Albers that she hoped the minister would draw her ticket for a budgie and a bird cage.

The health minister drew another ticket. Then, as tears welled in the girl's eyes, she left the stage, went to a booth that had birds on sale and bought Kristin a budgie and cage.

'Employables' Now on Social Aid in Sask. May Be Asked To Work for Their Relief

REGINA (CP) — A plan to channel "employables" now on social aid into a program that would compel them to work for relief has been revealed by Saskatchewan's new minister on social welfare and rehabilitation.

Dave Boldt said in a weekend interview the scheme, if implemented, would take such persons off the department's roster within two weeks. It also ultimately would require other recipients to work at special projects for any relief benefits they receive.

"We're looking forward to seeing every able-bodied man off the relief roll in the next two weeks," he said. "The employment situation is such that anyone who wants a job should be able to get one."

Mr. Boldt said the plan would be parallel to social aid and would be financed through a fund made available from federal, provincial and municipal governments.

It couples with the government's thinking of work for people on relief, he said. "We certainly don't want anybody receiving something for nothing."

The minister said: "We are trying to convince the federal government these projects should be shared on a similar basis to social aid."

He suggested the municipal governments contribute seven per cent, the provincial government 42 or 43 per cent and the federal government the remainder.

Mr. Boldt said social aid recipients cannot be asked to work for what they receive at present.

"We hope that legislation will be changed by the federal government where this would be possible."

His department will still see that those who need aid get it as they have in the past, he added.

The work program would be geared for projects that would not normally be undertaken by municipal governments such as improvement of parks, cleanups and painting.

Mr. Boldt said 80 per cent of social aid recipients are unemployable. Another 25 per cent can be employed on a day-to-day basis and the other 25 per cent are capable of working.

"The thinking within the department is that social aid benefits should be based on need rather than eligibility. Our aim is to give every employable person in the province off social aid."

Department officials estimate five per cent of the 25,000 Saskatchewan residents on relief could be cut from rosters completely, said Mr. Boldt.

FOUND IN CONCRETE

SABREVOIS, Que. (CP)—Provincial police launched an investigation after the body of a woman with a concrete block weight around her feet was pulled from the Richelieu River near this community 35 miles southeast of Montreal. They said the woman's hands had been tied and that the body had been in the water for "more than a week."

Girl Guides Attend Annual Church Service

"I promise to do my duty to God and, then, to others." That the way Mrs. Major Raymond Homewood told the approximately 1,000 Belleville Division Girl Guide members to think of the Guide promise as they assembled at the B.C.I. auditorium Sunday afternoon for the annual Guide's own service.

Mrs. Homewood, Area Commissioner for the Salvation Army Girl Guides, used illustrations and objects to convey her message to the girls: "what is your purpose in life?"

Aiding in the non-denominational services were: Bronwen Karen Speigal who said the opening prayer; psalms were read by Guide Lynn Neil, with Scripture reading by Ranger Fat Howe and the Benediction pronounced by Rev. C. W. Coleman, minister of Holloway Street United Church.

The parade was organized at St. Michael's Church parking lot by District Commissioners Mrs. G. Brenton and Mrs. H. Hunter with Mrs. T. Colden and Mrs. A. Bannon in charge of placing the colors inside the collegiate. Rangers passed out programs and acted as ushers.

As the parade marched along Church Street, to the music of the Salvation Army band Mrs. D. Stewart, Belleville, Division Commissioner flanked by Mrs. Homewood took the salute.

In case of mishap ladies from the St. John Ambulance and a group of their girl cadets were on duty.

German Dog Executed By Mistake

TORONTO (CP)—Bobo, a big German shepherd dog whose eyes once melted the heart of a magistrate, has been executed by mistake.

Bobo, the pride and joy of owner Ralph Hayden of Toronto, hit the headlines earlier this year when a policeman accused her of leaping on him. Magistrate Robert Taylor took one look at her big brown eyes and dismissed the charge.

Recently Mr. Hayden suffered a bad fall and had to be taken to hospital. Because there was no one else to look after Bobo and her four nine - month-old pups, Mr. Hayden's sister called the Toronto Humane Society.

Under the mistaken impression that she could pick up the pets later, Mrs. D. J. McDevitt signed the dogs over to the society.

When she called to check on them later that same day, Mrs. McDevitt was told all five had been destroyed, the pups because they were unruly — and Bobo because the society considered her "too old for a home to be found for her."

Scientists Say Epilepsy Not Disease But Neurological Disorder and Can Be Cured

It has victimized such men as St. Paul, Julius Caesar, Napoleon, Alexander the Great, Lord Byron and Handel.

More than 2,000,000 North Americans suffer from it, and they often what the epilepsy foundation calls "a lonely and frightened minority."

Four out of five epileptics do not even seek treatment. They hide their condition, either through fear or because they don't know treatment is available.

But help is available and the Epilepsy Foundation has launched a campaign for "better understanding of epilepsy and the person with epilepsy."

The foundation says most-epileptics are capable of normal lives, but ignorance, superstition and "cruelly archaic" laws increase their difficulties. In some states, epileptics may not marry or obtain driving permits, may be subject to sterilization and cannot obtain jobs or education.

Scientists say epilepsy is not a disease but a neurological disorder marked by seizures arising from abnormal "firing" in the brain's normal electricity.

Up to 80 per cent of epileptics can have their seizures well-controlled by anti - convulsant drugs; a small percentage can be cured by removal of the affected brain areas. But all the drugs have certain drawbacks, so doctors are constantly trying to find improved ones. And they'd like to find more safely expanding the surgical approach.

But the scientists caution that while greater strides have been made against epilepsy in the last 25 years than in the previous 2,500 years—and further progress is being made each year—victory over it is far from won.

Take it from Dr. J. Preston Robb. He's a neurologist from McGill University, Montreal, who is now working at the U.S. National Institute of Neurological ailments, including epilepsy. He says:

"Although we treat epilepsy reasonably well, and know a great deal more about it than we once did, there are many crucial, unanswered questions that require further study—both at the laboratory level and through careful study of patients themselves.

"For example, what are the factors in the developing brain that relate to seizures? What are the specific chemical reactions that take place (in brain cells) during seizures? What is it that starts a seizure in the first place—electrically, that is —and what enables it to spread the way it sometimes does, sometimes involving the whole brain?

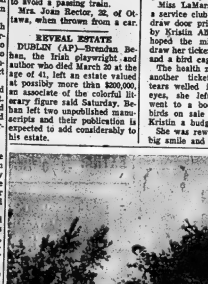
"And how do the anti-convulsant drugs actually work? We think they work by preventing the spread of a seizure from one area of the brain to other areas. But we'd like to find out how they might actually prevent a seizure from developing at all."

Dr. Robb says that despite their benefits, drugs and surgery are not enough. He says doctors and society in general should also consider the general well-being of the patient—the environment in which he lives, his educational problems, his ability to work.

The patient who is well-adjusted and happy is always easier to control than the maladjusted individual who is not working.

"That's why it's important (for doctors) to consider the patient as a person—not just a number to whom you are giving pills."

Ottawa Mayor Champions Role Of Spinsters



OTTAWA (CP) — The spinster's role in society was championed by Mayor Charlotte Whitton in welcoming 350 delegates to the Canadian Conference on the Family Sunday.

Mayor Whitton said she spoke as one of "that half million or more Canadian women, who, quite contrary to a widely held assumption, are imperfectly voluntary celibacy."

She told the researchers here to study the problems of family life, not to forget the contribution of single career teachers, nurses and social workers. These groups often have more influence on children than their parents.

"In their tens of thousands, elder sisters and the maiden aunts have rescued hundreds of thousands of perishing families . . . to say nothing of the marriages . . .

"The spinsters should not be deemed outside the pale of this conference."

COOLING OFF the hard way, an unidentified Belleville teen-ager jumps from the top of Lazier's Dam over a waterfall into a pool in the Moira River. The dam is a popular place in hot weather, attracting swimmers, fishermen and sunbathers.

Soviet Press Minimizes Allied D-Day Landings

John Best, 35-year-old Canadian with 13 years newspaper experience, arrived in Moscow a week ago to become the first resident correspondent of The Canadian Press in the Soviet Union. This is his first story.

By JOHN BEST

MOSCOW (CP) — The Soviet press Sunday continued its campaign to minimize the Western allied wartime landings in Normandy, representing them as a subsidiary operation by comparison with the advance of the Red Army.

Articles downgrading the D-Day landings 20 years ago appeared in the Communist party newspaper Pravda and in Komsomolskaya Pravda, organ of the Communist Youth League, following similar commentaries Saturday in Izvestia and Red Star. Saturday was the anniversary of the landings.

In Pravda, V. Ozerov wrote that while the Normandy assault undoubtedly accelerated the downfall of Nazi Germany, it came when the back of the German army had already been broken by Soviet forces advancing from the east. It could not therefore have exerted a decisive influence on the course of the war as a whole.

Komsomolskaya Pravda carries a report from the Novosti press agency's Paris correspondent saying D-Day ceremonies in Normandy boiled down to the assertion that the landings marked a turning point in world history and confirmed the need for Western unity, now embodied in NATO.

The correspondent complained that nobody said a single word at the ceremonies about the crossing of the Dniester River by The Red Army in June, 1944.

ATTACK IS SHARPEST

Saturday's sharpest attack appeared in Red Star, organ of the Soviet defence minister, under the name of Col. V. Anilov.

He asserted that the Western allies opened the second front "only when the result of the war was already pre-determined and anxiety had emerged in the ruling circles of the United States and England that the Soviet Army might very soon liberate the people of Europe from fascism by itself."

He accused the U.S. and Britain of delaying the landings in the hope that the Soviet Union and the fascist Germany would destroy each other. He said the Germans had 228 divisions and 23 brigades on the eastern front but only 60 "inadequately trained and equipped" divisions in the West, some of which were sent for the fight of the Soviet offensive.

Anilov said the western front inflicted definite losses on the Germans and thereby brought closer their defeat.

"However, the decisive role belongs to the Soviet people who accomplished by their gigantic fight the greatest exploits of the Second World War."

The Izvestia article, like today's Pravda article, was from Paris and complained that no one at the ceremonies in France was paying tribute to the Soviet people and Red Army. It did, however, concede heroism to the American, British and Canadian troops who landed in France. The Red Star article made no mention of the Canadian troops at Normandy.

Royal Family Escapes Injury In Collision

LONDON (AP) — A limousine driven by Prince Philip with Queen Elizabeth riding in the back seat collided Saturday night with a small auto. The Royal couple escaped injury, as did the driver of the other car.

The accident occurred near Maidenhead, Berkshire, on the road from Twyford to Windsor Castle, where the Royal couple was spending the weekend.

William Henry Cooper, 32, the other driver told a reporter:

"There was a bang. I was not hurt. I got out and I saw Prince Philip and Mr. Perkins. Mr. Perkins said the Queen was in the rear of the car.

"Prince Philip said to me: 'Are you hurt?' and I said no, I was all right. Then he left Mr. Perkins to talk with me while he returned to the Queen. Mr. Perkins then went away to telephone."

If you can shoot seven-below-par golf or score 280 over the 54 holes of the Ontario Open Championship staged this year at Islington Golf Club—you stand an excellent chance of copping the glory and what goes with it.

Defending champion Moe Norman says he expects it will require a 289 total or seven under par to win the 1964 tournament scheduled for June 25-27.

To date 113 other professionals and amateur golfers have submitted applications to play in the 1964 Open. The field in the three-day event is limited to 150.

The professionals are playing for a total purse of $5,000 and the Carling Trophy. In addition the three low scorers will qualify for the Carling World Open being played for the firs time at Oakland Hills Golf Club near Detroit this August 27-30.

Norman won the Ontario Open last year at Pine Valley. Perhaps one of the country's most colorful players, he is also one of its most excellent golfers, consistently shooting below par scores.

He started playing golf when he was 12 years of age and is a product of the Lloyd Tucker Alumni from Kitchener-Rockway. Moe says: "Lloyd really kept an eye on us, and if he caught us on the practice tee or green making a mistake in our swings, he would come out of his pro-shop and twist our ears until we learned it properly."

As a result of this teaching—and the fact he used to shoot more practice shots in a day than any other three golfers put together—Moe developed a strong game that saw him set 14 golf records.

These include a 59 over the par 70 Rockway, and a 63 at Brantford where par is 71. Just four years ago in the PGA Championship at Victoria Golf Club in Winnipeg, he shot a 10 under par in the practice round.

At London Hunt in 1954, playing for Canada in the American Golf Club, Moe was drawn against Big Bill Campbell of Huntington, West Virginia, in one of the 36 hole singles matches. At the 18th hole in the afternoon round, Moe was one down to the long hitting, calm Campbell. On this par three hole, Campbell put his tee shot up against the flag for an almost certain birdie two.

Moe, playing his usual quick-hitting game said "nice shot" and proceeded to sink his shot for an ace to tie the match. The tie remained to the end of the 36 holes, but Moe beat Campbell in the first hole of the extra round.

He won the Canadian Amateur in 1955 at Calgary and retained the championship in the Maritimes when he played a long golf course at Edmundston with a 25 under par for the week.

As a professional he won the Ontario Open in 1958 at Cataraqui and last year at Pine Valley. Last year he also won the Saskatchewan Open, the Ontario PGA Championship and the Hunt Trophy for the low scoring average —70.5.

OFF-BEAT

Ever wonder just how fast a golf ball is travelling when one of those big-hitters gets hold of a full drive? Research experts report it moves at more than 296-feet per-second, meaning approximately 136 miles an hour, a good reason for not crowding the tees during a tournament.

Ajax Hands Cannifton 13-7 Loss

Ajax got more than a full share of revenge for an earlier Eastern Ontario Baseball Association defeat yesterday by whipping a shorthanded Cannifton crew 13-7 in Ajax.

Cannifton mustered only 11 players for the trip — and one of these refused to go into the ball game when asked—according to team manager Harold Griffin. His team fell behind 5-1 after two frames and Ajax piled up 13-2 score after six before the losers struck back for five in the last two innings. The rally was far too late and too little.

A. Pope was the winning pitcher, with relief help from M. Godfrey in the eighth. They gave up seven hits, struck out 11 and walked seven.

Keith Dickey was tagged with the defeat, Harry Cole coming in in the eighth frame. They allowed 13 hits overall. Dickey struck out ten but handed out nine free passes. Four errors also hurt the cause.

Bob Tripp carried a big stick for Ajax, combing the Cannifton offerings for two home runs and a single. A. Pope hit a double and single while R. Dase poked a couple of one-baggers.

Ross Empey paced the Cannifton attack with two doubles. Rod Urch and Butch Clapp each hit a triple with singles going to Hugh Petrie, Pat O'Connor and Gerald Brennan.

Cowan Wins Tournament

JOHNSTOWN, Pa. (AP)—Canadian Gary Cowan, the 1963 world amateur golf champion, fired a three-under-par 32 on the back nine Sunday for a 280 total and nosed out early leader Bill Hyndman III for the title in the annual Sunnehanna Amateur tournament for champions.

Cowan, a 25-year-old life insurance salesman from Kitchener, was tied for third three strokes behind Hyndman going into Sunday's fourth and final round and at the par 35-35—70 Sunnehanna Country Club course.

Hyndman, Huntingdon Valley, Pa., golfer who led the field after Friday and Saturday competition, wound up with a 74 for a 281 total. Bob Reilly of Pittsburgh, second at the start of the final round, finished with a 72 and 281 total, tying him with Hyndman for second.

Cheesemen, City Hotel Are Winners

Black Diamond Cheese upset Lightfoot Construction 6-3 while City Hotel downed Ter-Haar Daubers 7-3 in a pair of postponed Commercial softball league tilts played last night.

The Cheesemen jumped into a 5-0 lead before Lightfoots ever got to the plate and went on to victory behind Fred Howard's five-hit hurling. He struck out nine and passed three. Harry Powers was tagged for ten hits in defeat, whiffing one and walking four.

Bob Cruickshank cracked a triple and single to mark the winners, while Jack Gilby contributed two singles. Other base hits went to Bob Jones, Terry Kelly, F. Howard, Clapp, Fred Lewis and Harold Douglas. Lightfoot hits went to Bill Dickey, with a double, Dick Hurst with two singles, Rusty Garvin and Jack Whiting each one apiece.

City Hotel also won with a five-run explosion, coming in the fourth to erase a 1-0 Ter-Haar lead.

Moe Hawkins pitched the victory, allowing six hits, fanning one and walking two. Ron Feltzer gave up seven hits in defeat, striking out two and passing one.

Doug Hull belted a double and single for City Hotel, while G. Smith had a brace of singles. D. Moreau, E. Donovan and H. Redquest one each. "Plucky" Ethier collected three Ter-Haar safeties with the others going to Moore, H. Fulster and R. Wickett.

'Northern Dancer' Third In Belmont

By KEN PRITCHARD

NEW YORK (CP) — Racing's triple crown for three-year-olds eluded Canadian-bred Northern Dancer Saturday when Paul Mellon's Quadrangle, honed to the peak of condition, won the Belmont Stakes, covering the 1½ miles in a modest 2:28 2-5.

The Dancer, odds-on favorite of the record Belmont crowd of 61,316 hoping for a great victories in the Kentucky Derby and the Preakness, had to be satisfied with third place when the smallest starter in the race, Roman Brother, spurted past him in the stretch to take second.

FOUL DENIED

Shoemaker, who could have ridden the Dancer in all three of the three-year-old classics but chose the bigger Bill Rise as a more likely money-maker, cried foul" as soon as the race was over, but lost again, this time to the track stewards. They decided Hartack's ride had been crowded by Northern Dancer at the three-eighths pole was not cause for altering the results of the race.

Big, strong Quadrangle, third choice of the bettors, paid $15.10, $6.80 and $3.70. Roman Brother, fourth most heavily backed, returned $8.10 and $5.90 and Northern Dancer was $3.10 to show.

Quadrangle's victory, which stunned a good proportion of crowd as well as millions who saw the race on television, was attributed by his handsome, 40-year-old trainer, Elliott Burch, to a good workout and the smart riding of Manuel Ycaza, 27-year-old Panamanian jockey. The robust colt from Mellon's Rokeby Stable in Virginia finished two lengths ahead of Roman Brother, a little bulding weighing less than 900 pounds. Another four lengths back was the Dancer.

All eight colts and geldings in the race carried 126 pounds, and this was their first test at more than 1¼ miles.

Explaining the defeat of Taylor's little sprinter, Hartack said: "He just wasn't fast enough at a mile and a half." Trainer Horacio Laure, the Argentine trainer of Northern Dancer, and Taylor had other ideas. Taylor thought Hartack paid too much attention to Shoemaker on Hill Rise, and made his victory bid too late.

Laro said Hartack made an "involuntary mistake" in not stepping up the early pace, which he declared was much too slow.

Quadrangle, out of the money in the Derby and the Preakness, ran with blinkers for the first time in the Belmont. He won for his stable $110,850, biggest first-place purse in the history of this $125,000-added race.

Northern Dancer added $12,500 to his career earnings, which now total $331,572, 48th on the list of all-time money winners.

Hill Rise garnered $6,250 for George Pope Jr.'s El Peco Ranch in California.

Many in the record crowd were at Aqueduct primarily to see Northern Dancer complete a triple-crown sweep, a feat accomplished by only eight horses in American racing history.

The first such winner was Sir Barton, a Kentucky-bred owned by Cmdr. J. K. L. Ross of Montreal, which swept the boards in 1919. The last was Citation in 1948.

The fans took well-filled wallets with them to the track and poured $803,948 into the mutuel machines for the Belmont Stakes, an all-time record for one race. They put $803,798 of the total on the Dancer's boy nose, sending him off a 4-to-5 favorite. The previous one-race betting record was the $633,173 raked on the Metropolitan Handicap at Aqueduct in 1960.

The customers also set a betting record for one card, putting down $5,834,896 on their choices in the nine races. The old mark of $5,569,946 was set at Aqueduct Sept. 2, 1963, by a much-bigger Labor Day crowd.

A photo finish that saw the winner take the nod by a nose and had to have camera proof highlighted the second Saturday night meet of the Quinte Driving and Riding Club.

It was a rip-roaring finish in the sixth heat with four horses bunched closely. Ed. Stanburn managed to push Irene Han to the front to win by a whisker from Miss Cheer Gratton. A quarter-length behind were Irish Lane Lassie and Miss Atomic Bomb.

It was the best racing of the young season with a large crowd and weatherman co-operation.

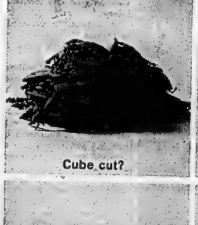
Mr. Spudkey paid the best price of the night, his backers collecting $14.90 to win in the second race. Irene Han was next with a win ticket in the photo finish heat being worth $14.70. She paid $12.50 to show and $10.60 to place. Miss Cheer Gratton paid $6.90 and $4.30.

The daily double of Star Magic and Mr. Spudkey paid $25.50.

Star Magic won the first and fifth races throwing back the challenge of Dominion K. Abbey in both events.

Mr. Spudkey won the second race from Irish Lane Lassie but finished a poor fifth in the fifth heat.

Magic Millie took both the third and seventh races finishing in front of Red Gun in the second and Double Star in the seventh.



Last driven by G. Dolly of Cobourg had little trouble winning the fourth and eighth races. The horse paying $2.50 showed its heels to favored Hal Pence in both heats. Frosty Magic finished in fourth and third positions.

New Zealander Wins Sports Car '200'

Record Crowd

By JOHN TRACY

OKONO, Ont. (CP) — Like a ring Sunday driver with the new- family sedan, New Zealander Bruce McLaren burned his racer through 80 laps at Mosport Park Saturday to win the Player's 200-mile race for sports cars.

The biggest crowd in Canadian sports history watched him set a track record.

The 36 - year - old driver let faster cars lead through most of the two 100-mile heats but each time he flashed across the finish line with his competition in the pits. When the over-all figures were compiled he had travelled at an average of 91.51 miles an hour with elapsed time of two hours, seven minutes, 42.2 seconds.

The Canadian Racing Drivers Association, race organizers, announced paid attendance at 41,224. That was well ahead of the previously best - attended sports event in Canada, the Edmonton-Montreal Grey Cup game in 1959 when 39,451 packed into Exhibition Stadium in Vancouver. CRDA said 8,500 children — those under 12—who didn't have to pay there admissions counted and 2,500 pass-holders swelled the total to 52,224.

Hall in a Chaparral powered by a mighty 4.6-litre Chev V-8 led most the way through both heats. Penske in another Chaparral and Foyt in a scarab with an even bigger Chev engine were usually right behind Hall.

The pay - off for McLaren came in the second heat. Penske lost time when he went into the pits for gas on the 21st lap. Foyt came in on the 33rd, but he'd rear tire shredded. Then with two laps remaining, the New Zealander passed Hall, spite the efforts of squads of whose blown engine was spurt- provincial police.

McLaren beat the track record set a year ago by Chuck Dolph of Long Beach, Calif., who drove a Cooper to 19 through the 100 in two hours, nine minutes, 36.6 seconds.

Augie Pabst of the Milwaukee brewing family placed second in his Lotus-powered Lola timed at 2:08:45.2 for 79 laps. Bill Wuestholf, Milwaukee car dealer, had 2:09:36.0 for 78 laps in his Elva Porsche.

Top Canadian and fourth-place winner was Ludwig Heimrath of Toronto who went through 77 laps in 2:01:05.3 in his Cooper Ford.

Here are the placings of other Canadian and Commonwealth drivers:

Dr. Phil Smyth, Winnipeg, Ford-powered Lotus 23, 12th; Hugh Dibly, London, Porsche Carrera, 13th; Vic Yachuk, Kingston, Ont., Lotus 19, 19th; Bob McLean, Vancouver, Lotus 23B 21st.

The New Zealander, ranked sixth last year in international standings, won $3,100 in cash in the Player's Cup for his performance.

He was hitting up to 150 miles an hour in the back straight as he threaded his way through the leaders. In the first heat, he let his motor out to as many as 7,000 rpm but in the second heat he eased back to an engine-turning pace while the leaders almost threw their machines into the ground.

In the second heat, I just tried to finish, and didn't use the full engine revs," he said.

He spent a weekend relevely for thousands of fans who camped overnight in the 50-acre infield enclosed by the track. For thousands of others it was a 40-mile trip eastward from Toronto that took upwards of two hours through long traffic-ups which occurred de-

Twins Whip Orioles

Chisox Sweep Pair, Take Over Top

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Staff Writer

Gaylo Stargeze Stephens, who made a living in the '50s as Ted Williams' caddy in the Boston Red Sox outfield, earns his paycheck these days with the bat.

Stephens' pinch single in the eighth inning drove in the winning run Sunday as Chicago White Sox nipped Detroit Tigers 2-1 and completed a double-header sweep.

When Williams retired in 1960 Stephens had to come up with more than a good glove to keep his job.

Stephens drifted down to Indianapolis. In 1963 he discovered his bat. A .304 average earned him a chance with the White Sox at the end of last season he hit seven for 18 with them.

The White Sox took Sunday's opener 8-3 but were trailing 1-0 when Stephens had to come up with the game. The Sox led it up in the eighth on an error, a balk, a sacrifice and a single by Ron Hansen. Another single by Hansen in scoring position and Stephens' clutch hit.

SUPPLIES WINNING RUN

He singled to left, delivering Hansen with the winning run.

The double victory coupled with Minnesota Twins' 5-2 victory over Baltimore Orioles put the White Sox in first place, a half-game in front of the Orioles. Elsewhere in the AL, New York Yankees whacked Los Angeles 9-3, Boston and Kansas City split with the Red Sox winning the first 9-3 and the Athletics the second 8-6, and Cleveland Indians split a pair with Washington Senators, winning the first 3-2 in 15 innings and losing the nightcap 5-3.

In Saturday action, Cleveland downed Washington 6-4, Baltimore edge Minnesota 2-1, Detroit defeated Chicago 4-3, Boston outslugged Kansas City 8-6 and New York shut out Los Angeles 2-0.

Stephens' hit made a winner to Joe Horlen, who threw a strong three-hitter, retiring 20 of the last 21 batters he faced. Dave Nicholson crashed a Ward delivered a clutch single to win the opener.

Whitey Ford won his seventh straight for the Yankees with home run support from Tony Trash and Elston Howard. Ken McBridge lost it for the Angels, his 10th setback in 11 decisions.

HIT 11 HOMERS

The Red Sox and Athletics had a home run duel with 11 balls soaring into Municipal Stadium's seats. Dick Stuart and Carl Yastrzemski drove in three runs apiece in Boston's first-game victory as both homered. Yastrzemski got another three-bagger. Dick Williams homered twice for Boston in the second game and Jim Gentile drove in five runs with two homers for Kansas City in the nightcap.

The Athletics scored all their runs in the opener on—homers by Charlie Carts and Bill Ryan each connecting with a man on the pitcher Orlando Pena adding a solo shot. Tony Conigliaro had a two-run homer for the Red Sox.

The Twins batted rookie Wally Bunker's winning streak at six games and dropped the Orioles into second place. Baltimore grabbed a quick 2-0 lead as Harmon Killebrew's 13th homer and evened things in the second. Tony Oliva and pitcher Camilo Pascual, who won his eighth, drove in runs to give Minnesota the lead and Bernie Allen's fifth homer closed the scoring.

Bob Chance clubbed two homers for Cleveland but the Indians struggled into the 16th inning before winning the first game against Washington. Al Smith singled Leon Wagner home to break it up after a walk and a throwing error had put the winning run on third.

Chuck Hinton homered and added two other hits as Washington came back to take the nightcap. Al Koch won it, scattering eight hits including John Romano's seventh homer.

Brewer Wins Over Morland

TORONTO (CP) — Bruce Brewer of the Whitevale golf club shot a one-under-par 71 to win the Morland North Bay for the Whitevale Invitational golf championship Saturday.

Morland, with a 72, finished second in the 180-man field.

It was the second victory in as many starts this season for Brewer who last week edged Morland in the Eager Beaver tournament.

Maracle Wins Third

Trenton Clips Trudeaus

By GARRY ALEXANDER
(Staff Sportswriter)

TRENTON — Snapping a first-place deadlock with the victory, Trenton Commercial Printer clipped Trudeau Motors 3-1 in a B. and D. game at Belleville and District Softball League game postponed earlier last week.

The Printers made the most of a couple of key hits and a Trudeau error to gain the decision after spotting the visitors a 1-0 lead. Trenton, now two points up on Tottenham, have a chance to add to the lead when they visit Tweed for a 6.45 game tonight.

Trudeaus moved ahead in the second inning when Ralph Plane led off on a Pat Maracle offering and blasted a long, towering home run to right field. Later Plane was ejected from the game by plate umpire "Dusty" Miller for throwing his bat after striking out in the seventh frame.

The Printers lost little time in tying the score when Taylor banged an infield scratch hit opening the third, moved to second on Maracle's sacrifice bunt and scored on D. Cole's double.

The winning run was scored without a hit in the fourth frame. Mowatt walked and took second on a passed ball. On L. Wannamaker's ground ball to third, Bob Wannamaker held the runner, fired to first and got his man but Duggan gunned the ball back too late and too low to get the runner coming in from second. The ball got past third and it was a 2-1 game at the corner.

Maracle was nicked on the arm by a pitch, advanced on Taylor's sacrifice and scored on another clutch double, this one by Dick Cole, in the seventh.

Pat Maracle ran his record to 3-0 on the Trenton hilltop, outdoing the losers' Doug Ellis. Maracle scattered five hits, struck out nine, walked one and got tougher as the game progressed.

Ellis, allowed seven hits, whiffed nine, walked one and hit another. Two of the hits were infield scratches.

Roger Drake collected two doubles and Don Cole one for Trenton winners. Gordie Simmons, Will Kennedy, Al Beaugrand and Ron Taylor added singles.

Al Zakis rapped a pair of singles for Trudeaus, Plane had his homer, Frank "Shiner" Mowatt and Billy McGuire one hit apiece. The losers had only ten players at the game and pitcher Bob Green was forced to play the outfield when Plane was tossed out. Locke moving in to shortstop.

Giants Shade Phillies In 'In-And-Outer'

Reds Outslug Cardinals

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

For a while it looked as though San Francisco Giants and Philadelphia Phillies were playing a strategy instead of baseball.

It started in the first inning Sunday as the first-place Giants edged the second-place Phillies 4-3 in 10 innings.

Giants' starter Bob Hendley, a lefty, started it by hitting Tony Taylor with a pitch, walking Cookie Rojas and giving up a run-scoring single to Johnny Callison. Out came manager Al Dark and in came reliever Bob Bolin, a righthander.

Ritchie Allen drew a walk, loading the bases, and Danny Cater, a righthanded batter, headed for the plate. Out came Phillies' manager Gene Mauch and out went Cater in favor of Wes Covington, a lefthanded batter.

MacKenzie got Covington on a pop to Dark, then brought in Gaylord Perry, a righthander. Roy Sievers lined a sacrifice fly that brought a run and Clay Triandos struck out.

The game got quieted down after that. Dark only brought in three more pitchers the rest of the way.

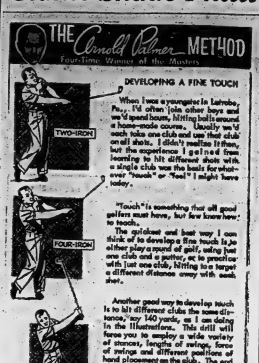
REDS WHIP CARDS

Elsewhere in the National League, Cincinnati Reds outslugged St. Louis Cardinals 11-6, Chicago Cubs overpowered Milwaukee Braves 8-2, Pittsburgh Pirates whipped Houston 6-1 after losing a first game to the Colts 6-3 and Los Angeles Dodgers romped New York Mets 6-1, then played to a 1-1 tie in a game washed out by rain after five innings.

In Saturday action, San Francisco downed Philadelphia 4-2, Los Angeles thumped New York 9-2, Milwaukee edged Chicago 6-5, Cincinnati blanked St. Louis 3-0 and the Houston-Pittsburgh game was postponed because of wet grounds.

Although Mauch might have won the strategy battle, Dark won the scoring the war. Down 3-0, the Giants rallied in the ninth on Duke Snider's two-run homer and Jim Hart's solo blast. They won it in the 10th as Chris Short walked Tom Haller with the bases loaded, forcing in Chuck Hiller.

Baron Johnson belted five hits in five times at bat and John Edwards clouted a grand slam homer in the first inning for the Reds. Johnson rapped three singles, a double and a home run. Pete Rodriguez also homered for the Reds while Junior Javier hit two and Dick Groat one for the Cardinals.



CUBS BLAST BRAVES

The Cubs knocked down the Braves for the first time this season. Ernie Banks and Billy Williams each connected with one on and Andre Rodgers hit a three-run blast. Hank Aaron slammed a two-run homer for the Braves.

Vernon Law scattered seven hits as he won his third game against two defeats for the Pirates. He was supported by Bill Mazeroski's three - run inside-the-park homer in the second.

The Colts won the first game with a five-run rally in the ninth. Billy Bryan drove in the tying and winning runs with a bases-loaded single while John Buzhardt went the route for the Colts. Pat Putil the ninth, Pirates' starter Bob Veale had a three-hitter. He struck out 11.

Don Drysdale pitched and batted the Dodgers over the Mets in the opener, allowing six hits and driving in two runs with a homer in the third and a single in the fifth for the fourth win. He also singled. Charlie Smith homered by the Mets. Jim Hickman hit a home run in the fifth gave the Mets a 1-1 tie in the nightcap.

Beats Souchak By Stroke

Lema Wins Thunderbird

RYE, N.Y. (AP) — "I saw my wife standing there in the rain on the 18th and I said: "Honey, I sure made this thing interesting, didn't I?"

There was Tony Lema, going down in flames in the final round of the Thunderbird golf tournament Sunday. First he held a seven-stroke lead over Mike Souchak, then he was a stroke behind with four holes to play.

Inside the Westchester Country Club, head waiter Frank Devito set aside the champagne and wondered whether he shouldn't put some lemonade on ice, just in case.

He needn't have worried. Lema redeemed his pledge to treat the press to champagne when he trapped in a pressure eight-foot putt on the 18th hole for his second straight birdie and the $20,000 top prize.

The birdie four gave him a final round of 71, one under par for the course and a 72-hole total of 276.

SOUCHAK HAS 277

Souchak finished with 69 for 277 and $12,000 for second place.

Jerry Magee of Toronto, who held the lead after the first round with a 66 but faltered to 73, on the second, finished far down the list of money winners with a 288 total. His rounds of 74 Saturday and 73 Sunday won him $625—$200 more than he made on the pro tour throughout 1963.

Two other Toronto golfers, George Knudson and Al Balding, failed to survive the cut. Knudson went out after the second round, Balding after the third.—

Quinte Trap, Gun Club

Other high scores were: Doug Johnston 23, Art Rutter 22, Gary Gow 21 and Bob Peake 21.

Yesterday's Stars

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Batting — Deron Johnson, Cincinnati, belted five hits — three singles, a double, and a home run—in five times at bat as the Reds outslugged St. Louis Cardinals 11-6.

Pitching — Joel Horlen, White Sox, allowed Detroit only three hits, one after the first inning, as Chicago nipped the Tigers 2-1 and completed a sweep of their doubleheader.

Suns Within Half-Game Of Leafs

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Jacksonville Suns, completing a four-game sweep against Columbus Jets, wrapped up a doubleheader Sunday 7-3 and 5-1 to pull within a half game of Toronto Maple Leafs at the top of the International League standings.

The Leafs salvaged the final game of their four-game home set with Syracuse by edging the Chiefs 3-2 in the second game of Sunday's doubleheader after dropping the opener 7-4.

In Saturday's action, Syracuse thumped Toronto 6-0, Buffalo edged Rochester 5-3, Richmond defeated Atlanta 6-4 and Jacksonville downed the Jets 4-1.

Bobby Del Greco's scowring homer with two aboard won the second game for Toronto in the sixth. Ray Oyler's solo clout in the same inning was the winning blow for the Chiefs in the opener.

Curt Blefary and Dave Johnson smashed homers in a seven-run fifth inning for Rochester in the second game that proved too much for Buffalo. Blefary and Earl Robinson homered for Rochester in the opener and Joe Hicks got one for the Bisons.

Kingston Driver Killed In Race

WATERTOWN, N.Y. (AP)—A Canadian stock-car driver was killed Saturday when his car skidded on an oil slick and overturned three times during a race at Jefferson County Fair Grounds.

He was Charles (Woody) Van Order, 23, of Kingston, Ont.

Van Order was killed after the motor in the car ahead of his exploded, showering oil over the track. The Canadian's car skidded, flipped over and was struck by another car.

FIND EVIDENCE

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. government officials said Monday and Friday definite evidence of bullet damage in the Pacific Air plane that carried President Sukarno, Calif., May 7, killing 22 persons. The FBI notified the Civil Aeronautics Board that laboratory examination showed that fragments found in a piece of tubing from the plane's seat was produced by a bullet.

Foyt Wins, Has Three Close Ones

MILWAUKEE (AP) — A. J. Foyt drove away from three close scrapes, including a fiery crash that left Jim Hurtubise critically burned, to win Sunday night's 150-lap car test by a half-lap—by this one, I might consider—margin.

Foyt, the winner of the 500-Mile Memorial Day race at Indianapolis, now has won all four events in the new U.S. Auto Club season. He was first in two earlier 100-milers.

Foyt, whose purse was $9,830, averaged 100.365 miles an hour on the one-mile paved track. His time was 59 minutes, 47.561 seconds for the 100 miles. 28 of them under the caution flag.

The Tracks

NEW YORK (CP)—Stretch-running Mustard Platter came with a rush in the final furlong to capture the $30,000 Californian at Hollywood Park Saturday as Keico finished out of the money in second differentiating performance as the favorite..

There was an inquiry for the runner-up position but the outcome was held up pending the stewards' study of the race.

The inquiry involved no fault and the officials ruled that Keico, Canadian, the second choice of the betting, finished second, with Colorado King, fifth, South African five-year-old third in the field of 10.

Long shot Mustard Platter, a Kentucky-bred five-year - old, paid $30.20, $10 and $6 across the board.

Mr. Consistency paid $4.60 and $3.40, and Colorado King returned $8.20. Time for the 1 1-16-mile feature was 1:42 3/5.

Kelso, the second leading money winning horse in thoroughbred history and four times named horse of the year, ran in retirement.

Cap Size was clocked in a mile in 1:36 1-5, and returned $26.80, $10.60 and $7.40.

Glen Park, paid $5.80 and $4.20. Demigod returned $11.60 to show.

At Stanton, Del., Calmet farm's Kentucky Jug captured the $30,100 Kent, 1 1-16-mile event for three-year-olds.

The winner earned $19,555 and paid $7, $3 and $2.80. Knightly Manner returned $3 and $2.60, with Bueber's Court $2.80 to show. Running time was 1:45 4-5.

WAITED ON BRIDE

The term bridegroom comes from Saxon England—the husband, waiting on his bride at the wedding feast, was called the groom, or servitor.

Will Vote To Accept Records

MONTREAL (CP) — Mr. A. (Pete) Beach of Toronto said Saturday he is certain that Canada's national track and field body will vote at the annual meeting in August to accept records set on non-traditional tracks.

Beach is national track and field chairman of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada. His group's annual meeting this year coincides with the Olympic trials at suburban St. Lazare Aug. 7-8.

The meeting, and the trials, take on special significance because of St. Lambert's decision to install an asphalt mixture (granulex) instead of the traditional cinder on the new $100,000 Seaway Park track. The International Amateur Athletic Federation, world governing body for track and field, does not accept records set on asphalt tracks such as St. Lambert will have.

Maroons Out As World Team

WINNIPEG (CP)—Winnipeg Maroons, 1964 Allan Cup champions, will not be a world team this year under the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association's proposed scheme for a national team.

CAHA secretary - treasurer Gordon Juckes said Sunday, the Canadian representative in the 1965 world championships at Helsinki will be drawn from three sources: this year's Maroon team, the Dave Bauer's 1964 Olympic team and a pool of new faces.

The team will be a foundation for the club which will go to the 1968 Olympics, Juckes said.

He outlined the proposed 1968 Canadian team at a press conference.

Juckes said Maroons' coach Gord Simpson would coach the national team with Father Bauer acting in a part-time advisory capacity.

To prepare for the 1966 tournament, the team will play about 40 exhibition games in North America and Europe.

Juckes said the CAHA will finance the team and estimated cost at about $110,000.

Negro End Wants Back In Canada

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Art Powell, a Negro end who made the American Football League's all-star team last season, has asked to be traded to Buffalo from the Oakland Raiders in order to move to, or near Toronto. Powell lives in nearby Richmond, Calif. with his wife, Betty, and daughters, Terry, 4, and Tracy, 2. Mrs. Powell is white and her home was in Toronto, where Powell played in 1962 and 1963.

Powell emphatically denied reports of trouble with neighbors in Berkeley that just want to return to Canada," he said.

Cookie Gilchrist, star fullback for Buffalo, and another veteran of Canadian football has said he wants to be traded to Oakland.

NHL Opens Annual Meeting

Few Rules Changes Expected

MONTREAL (CP) — The National Hockey League starts its annual meeting today with a look at the rules and probably some preliminary probes into possible player deals or drafts.

The rules committee holds the immediate spotlight but few changes are expected.

The Montreal Canadiens, however, have a couple of changes they'd like to see. One would be to have the rule under which a player serving a minor penalty returns to ice after a goal has been scored against his team.

A second change would be to make spearing an automatic major penalty. At present, the referee can decide whether spearing will be assessed as a major or a minor.

Trade talk was at a minimum as representatives of NHL clubs drifted in Sunday for the meetings.

King Clancy, assistant manager-coach of Toronto Maple Leafs said all clubs in the National Stanley Cup champion team will be protected against the draft.

"But if somebody makes us a real offer ..."

SOME MAY GO

The Canadiens are reported to feel they have some expendable players, including goalie Lorne (Gump) Worsley who came here from New York Rangers a year ago and ended the season with Quebec Aces of the American Hockey League after being injured.

There has been talk Detroit Red Wings are interested and Montreal forwards Billy Hicke and Red Berenson and that Canadiens may make them available.

Regardless of any deals that may be swung during the meetings, the business of drafting opens Tuesday when the NHL takes players from the three Hockey League and the Central Professional Hockey League, newest of the minor circuits.

The WHL and the American Hockey League beat the whistle meeting, believed to have been an exploratory session aimed at discussing their future. Some clubs in the two circuit foresee an amalgamation of the two leagues into a major league.

There was little immediate comment on the wedding, but few concrete developments were expected in the near future.

Planes Blank Foxboro 8-0

Plane's Concrete whitewashed Foxboro by an 8-0 count in a South Hastings Baseball League game played at Cannifton Saturday night.

The winners jumped into a 6-0 lead in the opening frame and added another pair in the fifth. The game was of six-innings duration.

Bob Beacher failed to last through the first inning for Foxboro, giving way to Ford Campbell, who completed the chore. They gave up seven hits. Campbell struck out five.

Don Forsythe had a pair of hits for the Concrete crew while one each went to Ron Urch, Ross Empey, Hugh Petrie, Harry Cole and Les Harvey.

Wants '500' Track Rules Tightened

Indianapolis, Ind. (AP) — The Indianapolis 500 - mile race should tighten its safety rules, the head of the association of car owners' entered in the event suggested Saturday.

Milwaukee businessman Robert Wilke recommended a minimum weight for cars, a ban on racing gasoline, a limit of the final loads, and a rule that rookie drivers automatically start at the back of the 33-car field.

Rookie Dave MacDonald, 26, of Mineola, Calif., spun on the second lap on the race last Saturday, triggering a seven-car pileup which claimed his life and that of Eddie Sachs of Detroit, as exploding gasoline touched off a holocaust which engulfed the width of track.

Top Tiger Blasts Rider Brass

HAMILTON (CP) — J. G. (Jake) Gaudaur, president and general manager of Hamilton Tiger - Cats of the Canadian Football League, Saturday angrily blasted Ottawa Rough Riders' attempts to have import rules changed.

He also said Montreal Alouettes' part of the drive-again aimed directly at Hamilton and Vancouver Lions because other clubs have "no gate" and hence are too strong for the league.

According to Gaudaur, Ottawa is spearheading a crusade aimed directly at Hamilton and Vancouver, contending that these teams are too powerful because they have more U.S.-trained players.

Sydney Hailey, CFL commissioner, said early this year the league would discuss proposals to limit the number of naturalized Canadians on club rosters. Gaudaur charged the CFL was attempting to "break up" the Tiger-Cats.

Television Good to Viewers Who Like Their Dramas Real

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

There was Friday night's 90-minute CBS Reports in which Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower returned to the places where the allied forces invaded Europe 20 years ago and remi1sced about the day.

Sunday, there was ABC's live coverage of the exciting Thunderbird golf tournament, where Tony Lema won top prize money on his last putt.

And finally, Sunday night on NBC, there was a meticulous- and painful—account of the illegal return to life of a young woman whose broken and horribly burned body was pulled from a plane wreck on Nantucket six years ago.

WENT TO NORMANDY

Last summer, Eisenhower, accompanied by Walter Cronkite and a camera crew, returned to the coast of Normandy.

The former president, then commander of the allied invasion forces, sometimes spoke with a crisp clinical detachment as he surveyed the huge operation. Then he would shift to a more personal vein, recalling an anecdote or explaining his own emotions.

The film showed the general strolling along the sandy beach, Mandy beach inspecting a crumbling German gun emplacement, and sitting in the war room preserved in an English countryside. It was an important historical document.

NBC's Patient in Room 601 used new films taken at the time of the Nantucket crash in August, 1958, and then used an interviewing technique, covering many persons involved in the story, to tell about plucky Lita Lerius who has undergone more than 40 operations, lost all her fingers, but is launched on a painting career.

The most moving portions were when the girl—she now is 9—told of her terrible ordeal, often with a touch of wry humor.

Parsons Blank Smith's Falls

Two of three Belleville-area clubs chalked up victories in Kingston and District Soccer League matches played over the weekend.

—Belleville Parsons' Cleaners blanked Smith Falls 4-0.

INVOKED FERTILITY

Throwing handfuls of rice at the bride and groom is an age-old custom—grain was used in pagan wedding ceremonies to invoke fertility.

Mrs. Way and Legionnaire Kirby

Mother and Daughter Will Visit Grave in Holland

Mrs. Pearl Way, 36 Centre Street, and her daughter, Mrs. Mary Van Dusen, 292 Pinnacle Street, will visit the grave of a son and brother buried in Holland.

Lionel Way was killed in action and is buried in Grosbeek Cemetery, Holland, where several other Canadian dead are resting.

Mrs. Way will be the guest of employees of a Dutch industrial firm who contribute part of their wages to a fund that enables Canadian parents of war dead, unable to finance the trip, to visit the graves of their relatives.

Mrs. Way leaves Montreal today on the flight to Holland. Mrs. Van Dusen, unfortunately, was unable to obtain passage on the same flight as her mother, but will leave Montreal tomorrow.

Royal Canadian Legion officials here and in Kingston, came to the help of Mrs. Van-Dusen, who is paying her own expenses.

Branch No. 99 secretary, L. M. Smith, wrote to Ottawa and secured Mrs. Van Dusen's passport in time for her to follow her mother overseas.

A Kingston Legion branch official, Ivan Gilchrist, who visited Grosbeek cemetery a few years ago, took the names of district men buried there. He came across the name of "Way" and got in touch with Belleville Legion officials.

Mrs. Way's flight expenses from Montreal to Amsterdam will be paid by the Dutch Committee. At Amsterdam the pilgrimage will be met and taken to Nymegan, thence to Grosbeek cemetery.

Spark Knock, Ping, May Be Easily Cured

By EUGENE B. MILMOE

When the combustible mixture of gas and air burns much too quickly, it sets up an excessive engine vibration. The resultant sharp pinging noise is commonly known as spark knock or ping. A badly overheated engine can bring on this too-rapid combustion, but very often there's another reason.

Ignition timing may be too advanced or low octane fuel may be used in a high compression engine.

Carbon formation in the combustion chambers or faulty exhaust valves can also be responsible for spark ping. They bring on a condition called pre-ignition. In brief, pre-ignition is the premature igniting of the combustible mixture by a very hot carbon deposit or exhaust valve before the spark actually takes place. Usually, pre-ignition is the correct diagnosis when the spark knock develops gradually rather than suddenly.

P. C. asks: "If plugs, points, carburetor and choke are clean, adjusted correctly and working O.K., then what could be causing rough idle?"

Air leakage at the carburetor base or intake manifold or just one slightly loose plug can do it.

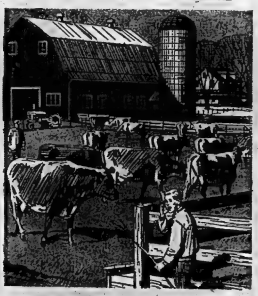
From M. L.: What causes a buzzing noise to occur for some time after the engine is turned off? It seems to come from the radiator. Boiling water, perhaps?"

The buzzing is due to steam escaping from the radiator and causing the pressure cap valve to vibrate.

W. S. writes: "I've never had the carburetor air cleaner serviced on my car — a 1959 sedan, and I average 18 miles to the gallon, so I can't believe that a dirty cleaner really affects gas mileage."

You will, after you clean it and start getting 19 mpg.

From C.P.: "Since I've had the engine oil and filter changed, the dash gauge shows higher oil pressure than before. Could this have anything to do with the brand of oil?"



Not the brand, but the grade. Heavy oil will mean higher pressure.

Armed Forces Of Greece On Alert

New Fears Turkey May Stage Cyprus Invasion

'We Are on Eve of War' Says Greek Spokesman

ATHENS (AP) — The armed forces of Greece have been placed on the alert again amid new fears that Turkey is about to stage its long-threatened invasion of Cyprus.

"We are on the eve of an outbreak of war," said a high Greek government source.

The invasion port of Iskenderun in southeast Turkey, home base of the Turkish standby force, reported no unusual activity.

Both Greece and the Greek-Cypriot government of Cyprus ordered an alert during the weekend, but pressure from the United States was said to have averted any Turkish move.

The Greek government source said the new alert was ordered after information was received that "Turkey is prepared to invade the island of Cyprus tonight or early tomorrow." He declared Greece would "defend Cyprus in the event of aggression."

RECESS ON NOTE

In Ankara, the Turkish capital, a high source said the Turkish government was sending a note to President Johnson asserting that the sole aim of a Turkish landing on Cyprus would be to preserve the present constitution and not to enforce partition of the island between the rival Cypriot factions. The constitution gives the Turkish - Cypriot minority a veto over major legislation and the Greek - Cypriot government needs to exercise the veto out of the constitution.

The informant said the note would say that Britain and Greece, the other guarantors of the constitution under the 1960 agreement setting up the Cypriot republic, do not appear to be fulfilling their obligations and have forced Turkey into action.

Teen-Age Marriages Under Fire

By BRENDA LARGE

OTTAWA (CP)—A brief under discussion at the Canadian conference on the family today recommends that the minimum marriage age in all provinces be raised to halt the increasing number of teen-age marriages.

The brief, prepared for the conference by the marriage preparation service of the Roman Catholic diocese of Montreal, says that at present both civil and ecclesiastical laws seem concerned only with the physical capability of marriage. They disregarded psychological and emotional maturity.

Present minimum marriage ages in the provinces range from 12 years for girls and 14 years for boys in New Brunswick, Newfoundland, Quebec and Nova Scotia to 18 years for girls and 21 years for boys in Prince Edward Island. All provinces will allow marriages below their minimum ages if the girl is pregnant.

The brief notes the growing support for extension of compulsory education to the age of 18 and says the minimum marriage age should at least be set in accordance with compulsory educational requirements.

YOUNG TAKE PART

Tonight, five young people will have their say on the problems of youth within the family.

The family conference, held under the sponsorship of the Governor-General and Madame Vanier, is being attended by about 300 sociologists, welfare workers, psychiatrists and psychologists from across Canada. Its purpose is to study the problems of the family in modern Cloudy cooler weather will prevail over all of Ontario on Wednesday with showers widely scattered in the southern sections of Ontario but more frequent in the north.

Debate On New Flag Thursday

By KEN KELLY

OTTAWA (CP) — The government unveils plans for the parliamentary debate on the proposed maple leaf flag today.

Justice Minister Favreau, government leader in the Commons, told the House Monday the government expects the debate to get under way Thursday.

But, he said, more definite plans would be given today.

His statement arose out of demands by Opposition Leader Diefenbaker to know whether the government wants to deal with the two parts of the flag resolution separately.

The flag resolution calls for the maple leaf flag to be Canada's national flag and adds that the Union Jack may continue to be flown as a symbol of Canada's ties to a wealth membership.

At the same time, Mr. Diefenbaker fired questions at Mr. Favreau and Acting Prime Minister Paul Martin over reports last weekend quoting a spokesman in the prime minister's office about modifications of the maple leaf design.

QUOTES REPORT

He quoted a report which said the centre vertical blue bars at the borders of the proposed flag are to be widened and made a deeper blue and the three red leaves on the white ground are to be made smaller and closer to scarlet in color.

Mr. Diefenbaker called it the "new model flag" and said Parliament apparently isn't to be given this information.

Mr. Martin denied the flag design was being changed and that parliament was being denied any information. He argued that the time to discuss the flag details was Thursday when the flag resolution is up for debate.

Mr. Diefenbaker referred to the "two-flag" resolution at one point and drew a retort from Mr. Favreau that the government has no plans for "introducing debate on any two-flag resolutions."

Gilles Gregoire (Creditiste—Lapointe) asked whether the government would be combined with one proposing O Canada as the national anthem and God Save the Queen as the "Royal anthem," producing two resolutions—one covering the maple leaf flag and O Canada and a second covering the Union Jack and God save the Queen.

He was not successful that Mr. Diefenbaker in getting the debate put off Tuesday and Mr. Martin maintained the time for debate would be announced today. The text of the substitute would be dealt with in the debate.

OTTAWA (CP) — The central twin problem of East-West relations — European security and German reunification—is expected to get a thorough airing during the two-day visit here of Chancellor Ludwig Erhard of West Germany.

Dr. Erhard arrives today and will swing into the first of a series of talks with Prime Minister Pearson almost immediately.

Shastri Is Sworn in Today As India's Prime Minister

NEW DELHI (Reuters)—Lal Bahadur Shastri, 56, was formally sworn in today as prime minister to succeed the late Jawaharlal Nehru.

His 16-member cabinet also was sworn in to rule over India's 470,000,000 people.

Shastri, who became the second man to rule modern India, earlier submitted his cabinet list to President Sarvepalli Radhakrishnan.

The three top posts in the new government went to Gulzarilal Nanda, home minister, Tiruvallur T. Krishnamachari, finance minister; and Mrs. Indira Gandhi, daughter of Nehru, minister of information and broadcasting.

Shastri also retained the external affairs portfolio for himself, as did Nehru.

LONDON (Reuters) — Lord Beaverbrook, Canadian - born British newspaper tycoon, died today at his country home at the age of 85.

Beaverbrook, who was born Max Aitken, died only a few hours after newspaper men from around the world gathered to pay him homage on the occasion of his 85th birthday.

Pearson on U.S. Election

World Listens With Hope or Anxiety

BALTIMORE (CP) — Prime Minister Pearson said Monday calmly on the November United States presidential fight today when he said that the world listens with deep hope or anxiety to American leaders "especially when the decisions when politicians can use words in the best of campaign that send cold shudders down the backbone of appreciation to the people who are affected by everything you do—and that is everybody."

Addressing the graduating class of Johns Hopkins University, Pearson said the U.S. has been called on to give world leadership at a critical time in history."

"In this leadership the U.S. will need strength and steadiness, wisdom and patience," he said.

"I hasten to add that your political system is no different from those in any other democracy, including my own. But in the U.S. they have more power than others over man's destiny once they are elected.

"You should not be surprised than when we listen to them so carefully when they are trying to get elected."

Pearson spoke after having received an honorary law degree.

Pearson noted that Canada and the U.S. have the largest trade of any two countries in the world but there was a matter of greater importance in cooperative friendship between them.

That should be as an example to the rest of the world of how two free and separate nations of great disparity in power and wealth can work together without fear on the part of the smaller or force on the part of the larger."

"Let me put it another way," Pearson said. "If U.S. co-operation with Canada did not continue to be close and friendly, with whom could you co-operate? How could you persuade Asia and Africa and Latin America of the benevolence and wisdom of your policies and attitudes if you were not to persuade us, your neighbors, who we touch like you in so many ways?

But if Canada was of important use to the U.S., he said, it must be said quickly "that you are of very obvious and often of overwhelming importance to us."

Canada shared a difference of viewpoint from the U.S. in common with other smaller countries but the distinction was "that we also are North American and we are closer to you than any other country."

That closeness and friendship would remain, he said.

Public Housing Debated

By STEWART MacLEOD

OTTAWA (CP) — In a debate largely pruned of party politics, the government was swamped in the Commons Monday with suggestions on how to deal with public housing.

From the lack of sewers in the Yukon to the slum problem in Toronto, MPs skipped over the scaffolding of a variety of house-building questions.

One exception, Reid Scott (NDP — Toronto Danforth), laid the foundation for a complete overhaul of the government's approach to housing.

Another, Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson, suggested that the capital made available by government for houses should be considered as money for social development needs and interest rates should be far lower than at present.

"We are obsessed in Canada with single family ownership," ... said Mr. Scott. Canadians must be made more housing-conscious and "realize that public housing is perfectly respectable and subsidized housing is economically sound."

As a first step, he suggested the government appoint a full-time minister of housing to carry the message to the provinces, municipalities and the public.

Under debate was a bill to amend the National Housing

Waterton Lakes Residents Taken To High Grounds

Floods Caused by Week Of Torrential Rains

WATERTON LAKES, Alta. (AP)—Rampaging water turned this peaceful tourist resort into a disaster area and caused an estimated $500,000 damage Monday as creeks and lakes spilled over their banks after a weekend of torrential rain.

Between 125 and 150 residents were evacuated to the posh Prince of Wales Hotel on a knoll at the north end of the lake.

There was no report of injury or personal hardship.

Fred Bruning, Waterton Lakes National Park superintendent declared the town a disaster area during the afternoon as water in the Waterton Lakes rose five feet.

He estimated damage at $500,000 although some residents placed the figure nearer $1,000,000.

Waterton Lakes is a 12-mile long body of water that straddles the international boundary in southwestern Alberta.

Several homes and businesses were flooded at nearby Cardston when a creek spilled its banks.

Waterton roads were washed out, cars overturned and some buildings wrenched from their foundations by the deluge of water that tumbled out of Cameron Creek into the south end of the town.

A road grader, being used to rescue Mrs. Paul Madge and her two children from their home, tipped over but the operator wasn't injured. Motel owner Frank Goble drove near the house with a four - wheel drive vehicle, tied a rope around his waist, and rescued the children, three and four years old.

Sewer lines and water lines stopped functioning in mid-afternoon and park officials were preparing to use water from the swimming pool — which was filled and chlorinated Sunday—to provide drinking water for persons staying in the hotel.

Up to 8.5 inches of rain fell in the area during the weekend in what residents described as the worst rainstorm in local history. The rain stopped falling Monday.

Walter Frost, a farm agency official at Lethbridge, said the flooding resulted from a combination of the heavy downpour and a late runoff. He said the snow in the eastern Rockies, 85 per cent higher than average, was just ready to melt when the rain began falling.

The Prince of Wales hotel, which can hold up to 300 persons, was well stocked for its scheduled re-opening of the season on Wednesday when it was to be the headquarters for a convention.

Montana Floods Kill 8, Many Residents Isolated

GREAT FALLS, Mont. (AP) Floods described as the worst in memory swept out of Montana's northwestern mountains Monday, killing at least eight persons including a Canadian motorist, sweeping away dams and bridges and leaving hundreds of residents isolated.

Damage estimates ran into millions of dollars as rain pelted the area for the fifth straight day.

The Canadian casualty was Stanford Creighton, 46, of Carston, Alta. His car plunged into the raging Kennedy Creek north of Babb. Most of the dead drowned, authorities said he died of exposure.

Authorities said the death toll included five members of one Blackfoot Indian family.

Rescue workers struggled to enter the area but were blocked by mud slides and washed out bridges and long stretches of inundated highway. At least 20 bridges and four earthen dams were carried away by the pounding water of streams and rivers.

Despite poor flying weather, one helicopter and several fixed seven persons from perches ranging from tree limbs to roof tops. One woman was taken from a roof just as it started to go under water.

In the hard-hit community of Choteau, all 2,000 residents left their homes to seek shelter overnight in the schools and country club on higher ground.

Nearly 1,000 persons were housed in emergency reception centers in Great Falls, including schools.

Typhoid vaccine was dispatched to a number of cities where community drinking water was polluted by floodwaters. Many dams high in the Cascade and East Glacier held city water supplies.

Townspeople Inoculated As Floods Sweep In

MAYO, Y.T. (CP)—The Yukon communities of Mayo and Dawson City remained on 36-hour alert Monday as rivers there flooded their banks in the wake of a rapid spring runoff in warm weather.

Parts of each community were under water but there were no reports of injury or serious damage.

Townspeople were inoculated against typhoid as swollen rivers caused sewers to overflow.

One quarter of Mayo, a community of 350 persons 1,100 miles northwest of Edmonton, by water and overland trails as the Mayo and Stewart rivers reached their highest levels recorded.

Inoculations were administered to 222 persons and more serum was ordered from Edmonton.

At Dawson City, 110 miles northwest of Mayo, one-quarter of the community's 800 residents were vaccinated by Monday night.

About 175 persons were evacuated from Mayo and were being in tents, trailers, cars and trucks at the Mayo airport, 10 miles from the community.

Some patients were ordered evacuated from the Mayo Hospital and schools were closed.

At Dawson City, eight families were taken from their homes when water from sewer boxes flooded part of the low-lying area of the town.

WON'T STOCKPILE

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal government does not intend to stockpile uranium in the Beaverlodge, Ont., area to keep the Cardiff mine in operation. This information was given in the Commons Monday by Jean-Luc Pepin, parliamentary secretary to Trade Minister Sharp, in reply to Charles Lamb (PC—Victoria).

Pass Hospital Estimates Including Sum of $581,753 For Capital Expenditures

Early Start In Planning Is Needed

An early start in planning for the over-all social welfare and recreational requirements is necessary if the needs of the community are to be met.

This is the opinion of city Alderman Donald Williams, who last week attended the annual meeting of the Canadian Social Welfare Council in Hamilton.

Last night Alderman Williams reported to council on the conference.

"Little does one realize the extent of Social Welfare in Canada and in the local community," said Ald. Williams. "In attending this meeting, I was only able to grasp a meagre portion of the complex situation as regard to Social Welfare.

"We must start to plan now for all the Social Welfare and recreation that exists in this city and this planning must be done through the co-operation of Social Welfare Agencies, Government, Service Clubs, churches, etc., if we are going to meet the needs of this community. If this planning is not done successfully, we will be in a very vulnerable position.

"A Social Welfare Council for this city is only the beginning of planning Social Welfare and recreation that will meet the needs of this community. It will be necessary to have as much co-operation as possible from people in all walks of life, especially the city council."

SUN AGES SKIN

Sunlight has a definite aging effect on the skin, causing dry cess and wrinkling.

The 1964 estimates for Belleville General Hospital, including an amount of $581,753 for capital expenditures, were approved yesterday by city council, but not before a complaint was registered that insufficient detail had been provided by the hospital Board of Governors.

The $581,753 capital expenditure is in connection with preliminary work necessary for the proposed new hospital addition but councillors felt there should be more detail placed before them.

Alderman Ross Bailey moved that the report be tabled for two weeks to allow for further detail.

But Mayor Jack Ellis and Ald. George Wishart, council representatives on the Hospital Board felt the estimates should be approved without delay.

Alderman Frank Murray said the motion to table should be defeated and the estimates passed as an expression of confidence in the hospital board.

COULD GET INFORMATION

Mayor Ellis said he was not able immediately to provide the detailed detail thought necessary but would do so within half an hour.

When the statement before council was agreed on by the hospital board, but if you want more information I can get it," he said.

The question of when actual construction of the hospital addition would get underway was asked. Mayor Ellis replied that it was hoped soon to get tentative approval of plans and following this detailed plans would be drawn and tenders called.

Plans for fixing in the new addition to the existing hospital was causing some of the delay, he said.

When actual construction would commence was in the hands of the Ontario Hospital Services Commission, the mayor said.

SAID UNWISE STATEMENT

"I was hoping that someone would suggest a brand new hospital on a new site," commented Ald. Jack Ellis.

"That was a very unwise statement," returned Mayor Ellis. Alderman Wishart said the hospital site question had been discussed at length by the hospital board.

Alderman Bailey withdrew his motion to table the report but still pressed that he had turned in a report like that submitted by the hospital board they would be laughed at.

CLAIMS BIGGEST SALE

LONDON (Reuters) — The Daily Mirror announced today its average circulation last month topped the 5,000,000 mark—giving it "the highest daily sale . . . in the Western world." In a front-page story headlined "The Mirror Tops 5,000,000," the newspaper said its average sale in May reached an all-time record of 5,018,000 copies.

No Welfare Committee Will Be Formed

No welfare committee will be formed this summer by the Belleville and District Labor Council, but the council's executive will be able to act as welfare problems arise. No committee will be formed because Labor Council President Gerald Cunningham had been advised from last night's general meeting, and there will be no general meetings of the council during July or August.

The council did hear Ontario Federation of Labor executive secretary Henry Wisbaick explain, however, on the organization and function of a labor welfare committee. Mr. Wisbaick, who attended the meeting with O.F. of L. Welfare Director Nelson Craigs, said a labor welfare committee should work in co-operation with established welfare organizations, and should help union members in their dealings with established welfare organizations. Nonunion labor should be helped as much as possible too, he said, as the welfare is "good public relations" for labor.

He said a labor welfare committee should be familiar with provincial welfare regulations, with workmen's compensation regulations, with insurance regulations, and with the constitution of the United Appeal. (Belleville and District Labor Council is already familiar with the Belleville United Appeal. Labor Council President Gerald Cunningham is also president of the United Appeal and Gordon Hutchinson of the Labor Council also sits on the United Appeal's campaign committee).

USE TRUCK QUESTIONS CLAIM

Mr. Wisbaick told the council that a welfare committee's work would include appeals of decisions by the Unemployment Insurance Commission. Commissioners employment offices centres, he said, have been using "trick" questions to disqualify applicants, and he said a labor welfare committee could assist in appeals of those decisions. Describing one of the "trick" questions, Mr. Wisbaick said that U.I.C. officials ask an applicant what his wages were on the last job, and what he hopes to make on a new job. "In most areas," he said, "if the applicant says he has received the same wages he had before, the officials disqualify him claiming that he is thinking that the job he will accept." "The only acceptable answer to that question is 'fair wages,' " he said, to ask for "the regular wages for the job."

Other fields in which labor welfare committees could help are in dealings with the Ontario Hospital Services Commission, Mr. Wisbaick said. He said, also, that Craigs emphasized, that the O.F. of L. welfare department is ready and willing to help to form a local labor welfare committee.

The Belleville and District Labor Council welfare service will help with the local labor welfare problems through the summer, and may be formed in September. The committee should be formed, the meeting decided, in time to help with the Belleville United Appeal.

Must Negotiate Relief Vouchers Within City

Relief vouchers issued by the welfare department are expected to be spent in the city and not at stores outside the corporation limits.

This is the feeling of city councillors who yesterday warned that merchants outside the city cannot be negotiable anywhere within the counties of Hastings and Prince Edward.

According to Ben Corke relief vouchers are not valid outside the city but said "this had been going on for some time."

Alderman Don Jose said it should be compulsory that city vouchers be spent within the city and Ald. Ross Bailey felt it should stay.

"A lot of Belleville business-men feel that welfare recipients should not be purchasing people not paying taxes in the city," he said.

"Passing this resolution would leave the door open," he said.

Mayor Jack Ellis didn't see how council could restrict the spending of relief money in the city and pointed out that the province pays 80 per cent of welfare costs.

Rotarians Hear Classification Talk on N. E.

A compliment was paid to Rotarian Donald Southcott at the regular dinner meeting of Rotary on Monday.

President Ronald Cass pointed out to Rotarians that Mr. Southcott had a choice. Either they could go to the Rotary convention being held in Toronto this week and hear the Honorable Lester B. Pearson speak — or they could remain in Belleville and hear Rotarian's own Don Southcott speak.

The compliment — over three quarters of the membership was present on Monday for the regular meeting.

Mr. Southcott's talk was a classification address. He is employed with the General Sales Division of the Northern Electric Company.

The speaker said that while the Northern Electric plant on Sidney Street manufacturers the products, it is his job to sell them. He described them as being electrical appliances, wires and cables for a wide range of uses, plus a vast field of communication systems.

The speaker was introduced by Rotarian Glynn Reynolds and thanked on behalf of the club by Rotarian Denton Taylor.

A report on the Easter Seal Campaign was given by chairman of the Easter Seal Committee, Bill McCormick. Mr. McCormick said total receipts to date amounted to $6,061.22. He stated the drive was now weeks ahead of previous years in reaching its objective of $8,000. Mr. McCormick said there were still further contributions to be received by the committee, putting the total over what was expected.

Railway week announcements in Belleville on June 22nd and on that day, Rotarians will board a train at the station in order to bring them down Pinnacle Street to the entrance of the Quinte Hotel where they will hold their regular luncheon meeting.

A club assembly is to be held on June 25th in the Prince Edward Suite of the Hotel at 7.30 in the evening.

Ladies' Night will be held on June 30th. The event will take place at the Golf and Country Club on the Trent Road.

Traffic Group To Meet Labor About Lights

Belleville and District Labor Council learned last night that the city's traffic committee is "willing to discuss" the Labor Council's request for traffic lights at Coleman and West Moira Streets. The committee has several times in the past refused the request.

A letter read at the council's general meeting last night by vice-president Leo Lacoste suggested a meeting between the traffic committee and a committee of the Labor Council at 4 p.m. on June 29. "They're bound to make it an inconvenient a time as they can," one member commented from the floor.

The council appointed Gordon Hutchinson, Maxwell Cooney and Leo Lacoste to represent it before the traffic committee. The men will be remembered by the Labor Council for any time they lose from work, and alternate committeemen will be appointed if the appointees are unable to attend the meeting.

Want Entire Cost Paid by Ontario Govt.

Belleville city council yesterday endorsed in a city of London resolution asking that the entire cost of administration of justice, including the cost of buildings and maintenance of court houses, be assumed by the Ontario government.

The resolution pointed out that while under existing legislation local municipalities are required to provide jails and lock - up facilities, to provide courts and pay jail grants, only a small part of these facilities are of service to local taxpayers or the municipality.

The Ontario government was asked to note these inequities and take whatever steps considered necessary to assist municipalities by removing administration of justice costs.

Letters Filed Without Comment

Provincial minimum wage laws are not intended to provide a living wage, Belleville and District Labor Council council heard last night. The council had written Premier Robarts to protest the basic wages outlined in the legislation and last night the council's general meeting heard excerpts from Robarts' reply from provincial Minister of Labor, R. L. Rowntree.

Robarts' reply said only that the letter had been referred to the Minister of Labor. Rowntree's reply said the minimum wages were just that — minimum wages — and that he expects employers to pay well above the base levels for most jobs. He also said that the minimum rates had resulted from a survey made by his department, and that in his department's opinion, the province cannot afford higher base wages. He said the base rates would rise as the economy of the province improves.

The minister's letter was filed without comment.

Rejuvenation Of City Hall Is Suggested

The city Parks Board has been requested to submit plans for its Zwick's Island Centennial project to council, but it will not be until after a meeting scheduled for later this month.

Thursday local Parks Board officials are meeting with Centennial committee officials in an effort to determine what type and project might be adopted for Zwick's Island.

In the meantime the Belleville Parks Board and the Community Planning Association, feels that rejuvenation of the city hall and revitalizing the surrounding area might be a more worthwhile Centennial project if nothing suitable for Zwick's Island was decided upon.

The Community Planning Association feels that another plan of more central importance than a park on the outskirts would be the acquisition and development of the Moira River as a whole from Zwick's Island to 401 Highway.

Walks, Paving Approved by City Council

City council yesterday approved the paving of Dundas Street, west from Coleman Street to the Bay Bridge Road at an estimated cost of $7,500.

City engineer Wilbur Purcell said today the work would be done as soon as department of highways approval was secured this being expected within a month or six weeks. Seventy five per cent of the cost would be paid by the provinces under their connecting link agreement with the municipality.

Council also voted to construct a four - foot sidewalk on the east side of Sidney Street from Catherine to Moira at an estimated cost of $7,000, the work to be done under Section 8 of the Local Improvement Act.

Council also approved a petition for a five - foot walk on the south side of Victoria Ave. from Herchimer to the new YMCA building with the city to assume 50 per cent of the owner's normal share of the cost.

Airman Killed Near RCAF Station Trenton

A 45-year-old Airman died instantly in a two-car crash on Highway 2 at RCAF Station Trenton late last night.

Killed was Corporal George Ritter, Regina Crescent, Middleton Park.

Two other airmen were injured in the crash, just west of the station's main gates.

Corporal Victor Corrigan, a passenger in O'Hara's car, suffered internal injuries and was immediately transferred to the military hospital at Kingston.

LAC Raymond Gillis, driver of the second car, was treated for cuts and bruises and other minor injuries.

Police said O'Hara's car was westbound and collided head-on with the Gillis' vehicle in the eastbound lane.

Visitors' Dock In Harbor To Be Repaired

It isn't known who will finally bear the cost, but city council yesterday voted to spend an estimated $1,000 to repair the disintegrated visitors' dock in Belleville harbor on the east side of Victoria Park.

For the moment the cost will be charged to the city's contingency fund, but it is felt that either the Harbor Commission or the Parks Board has responsibility for repairing.

It is hoped that the broken dock can be repaired in time for Railway Days celebrations commencing June 22.

Plans also call for a new exterior paint job, but a city hall but doubts were expressed that this could be done in time for the celebrations being held to mark the removal of the tracks from Pinnacle St.

Council Concurs In Resolution

City council yesterday concurred in a city of London resolution asking that the levying of special sewer rates on high rise apartment buildings be approved in principle and that legislation be passed allowing municipalities to make such levies.

The reason for the request by municipalities is that in some instances where large multi-unit apartment buildings are constructed, a larger sewer system would otherwise be necessary, is required.

Hence it is felt that the apartment owners should bear the cost of the larger sized sewer necessary.

Youth Remanded For Examination

Magistrate T. Y. Wills today ordered psychiatric examination for a Belleville youth charged with indecent assault of a 2½-year-old baby girl.

He remanded Patrick R. Marshall, aged 16, for a week, and asked that a psychiatric report be meantime prepared for the court.

"What do you plan on doing — getting my head tested or what?" Marshall asked.

"You could call it that, yes," replied the magistrate.

Marshall was arrested early Saturday morning after the child's mother, who had left her with a baby-sitter, returned home to find her daughter alone and apparently injured.

Supervising Principal Tells Board of Need for School

TRENTON — Trenton's supervising principal of public schools, V. S. Carswell has warned the Trenton Board of Education against procrastination in getting plans underway to build a third school in east Trenton. It is imperative to have this school completed and ready for occupancy by Sept., 1966.

In a written memorandum to the board, Mr. Carswell points out that he had warned the board several months ago of a school population explosion in east Trenton. Now, he says, it is apparent that school accommodation will be crowded this coming September. It will be necessary to set up a double kindergarten at Queen Elizabeth School and the auditorium will have to be used to house two classes. A partition will have to be erected, desks and equipment bought, and washrooms constructed . . . all to be ready by the opening day of school in September. At Glen Miller Public School, 18 students will be moving out to senior public school, while 60 will be moved into the school at kindergarten and Grade One. In 1965, it is anticipated that 44 will move out and another 90 or so move in.

"Where are the children to be placed?" asks Mr. Carswell, adding "my report of February gave the board this information but thus far, not a thing has been done except to have Central Tin-Can on which the building if to be put (in the North Bypass Grade Area)."

"Gentlemen," Mr. Carswell goes on, "steps should be taken at once to get approval from the department of education for such a school to be built as recommended. It takes all of six months to get the necessary approval, and that leaves a little better than six months to get the bluiding up. If there is a delay in any one of these steps being approved, the board will be in a fix. Two months ago, an application was made to town council for money to build a needed addition onto North Trenton Public School, and very recently, the town clerk-manager (O. W. Larry) stated he couldn't get the money now to meet to pass the necessary approval.

Is town council stalling on purpose? What is behind this delay? I urge you in the interests of education to do something about these matters."

(Monday afternoon, clerk-comptroller O. W. Larry told The Ontario Intelligencer that he had submitted an application for approval of the board's addition to North Trenton school to the Ontario Municipal Board, last Friday. Mr. Larry said that he had been unable to get a council committee together to pass the necessary approval for submitting the application to the OMB, but had sent in the application himself.)

To Examine Pupils

TRENTON — Dr. G. W. Telfer was last night appointed by the Board of Education to examine candidates for opportunity classes in a physical sense, to make sure that any "slowness" in learning was not due to some physical defect. The children are then examined by educationists experts in the field, who rule on their eligibility for the special classes.

Rotary Parley To Debate Move To Admit Women

TORONTO (CP) — Delegates to Rotary International's 55th convention were to debate today a British proposal to changes the bylaws governing British independence within the organization.

Also scheduled for decusion was a resolution by the Rotary Club of Mount Lavinia, Ceylon, to permit women to join the club, and an Indian proposal to allow honorary memberships to women.

All three proposals have been rejected by the international's executive committee, legislation, but some 14,000 delegates can reverse the decisions in a plenary session.

William C. Cuffer, president of Rotarians in Great Britain and Ireland, said Monday that whatever the final decision there was no chance British members would recede from Rotary International.

"The British felt we have enjoyed constitutional rights for more than 40 years. Our view is that we don't have an obligation to pay per-capita dues although, in fact, we do pay voluntarily. The view of the parent body is that dues are obligatory."

SAYS NOT IMPORTANT

A. A. Baker of Cleveland, chairman of the committee on legislation, said friction with the British was "merely an administrative matter of the collection of dues. I don't think it is all important as some individuals make it seem."

The proposals for women's membership, if passed, would reverse a policy of male-only membership to which the service organization has adhered since its inception 59 years ago. Inception 59 years ago.

Prime Minister Pearson Monday presented Canada's International Co-Operation Medal to the president of Rotary International, Carl P. Miller of Los Angeles.

The only other recipient of the medal so far has been U Thant, secretary-general of the United Nations.

Dame Fonteyn's Husband Hit By 3 Bullets

By LUIS NOLI

PANAMA CITY (AP) — Roberto (Tito) Arias was given a chance to get away while police sought a disappointed party associate who pumped three bullets into the colorful, controversial Panamanian politician.

Arias' wife, British ballerina Dame Margot Fonteyn, said in Bath, England, her brother-in-law. Harmodio Arias telephoned her that the wound was "out of danger."

But Dr. Antonio Gonzales Revilla, who headed a team of neurosurgeons in a 2½-hour operation on Arias, said it would be 72 hours before he could say whether his 45-year-old patient would live or whether he would be paralyzed.

Replaces A. Davis

TRENTON — S/L. Mark Henry was last night introduced to the members of the Trenton Board of Education as the liaison officer between the board and the RCAF who will replace S/L. A. Davis, who has been transferred.

S/L. Davis told the board members he had "thoroughly enjoyed his tour on the board," and he would be able to go pointed should he return to Trenton.

Want Action On Addition To School

TRENTON — A deputation of three persons from North Trenton came before the Trenton Board of Education last night to complain that nothing is being done about an addition to the public school in that area.

Board chairman T. S. Ketcheson explained the board had announced plans for expansion of the Jamieson Park year, subsequent to this, approval for the $90,000 addition had been gained from the public school superintendent, C. E. McMullen, and on March 9, the board voted to have the addition ready for use by September. March 17, the board applied to the Ontario Municipal Board for approval before it could start the delay."

"That was over two months ago," said the chairman, "I fail to understand the delay."

One deputation member asked if a similar appeal to council would do some good and was assured that it could do no harm.

Request Board Buy Sweaters

TRENTON — The members of the Dufferin Ave. Public School Home and School Association have written to the board of Education to request that sports' sweaters be bought for the school team out of the board's large contingency fund."

The home and school group has offered to pay half the cost of the sweaters out of its "means" funds.

Board chairman T. S. Ketcheson said that a considerable amount of money had been spent on Dufferin in the past few years for painting and a new furnace to mention a few items.

School members were agreed that the auxiliary services committee should discuss buying sports' sweaters for all-weather school teams, but that nothing should be done about this specific item.

However, E. M. Parker Jr. said that he felt it was time one of the several teams be replaced as they looked as if they were the refuseme ones worn by school teams and were unsuitable for all-weather school teams, but that nothing should be done about this specific item.

Delay Garbage Dumping Until Further Study

TRENTON — No meeting was held last night between members of town council and residents of Stanley Heights subdivision, for the purpose of discussing pros and cons of the gravel pit in the development being filled by the sanitary landfill method.

However, Mayor James MacDonald announced late in the day that no garbage deliveries to the pit would take place until council has a chance to reconsider the issue and make up its mind whether or not to go ahead with the method proposed by the committee of public works.

"I'm not promising that there will be no garbage put in the pit but saying how long this post-pit," said the mayor, "and I'm positive it will last. But there won't be any garbage deliveries to the pit tomorrow."

Meanwhile, the general feeling in the coffee shops seem to be that if Bay street residents gathered from the public school hall to express their feelings about a west-end landfill that he was prepared to accept the fact of the present date. If it were filled . . . and the park board members aren't going to change the path of the meeting by suggesting the sanitary landfill method . . . the board would be wise to accept the resulting level space and build up a park.

SAND NUISANCE

Meanwhile, a certain few Stanley Heights residents claim that the open pit slows (literally) tons of sand into their living rooms . . . when a west wind is blowing. They, presumably, would be for filling the pit, no matter what method was used.

However, their voices are lost in the general hue and cry of their neighbors . . . "we don't want garbage dumped in the pit. It will lead to odors, (with a prevailing westerly wind),

Attend Convention

TRENTON — A number of Trenton Lodges, including president Robert J. Patrick, president-elect Thomas Hetherington and secretary A. J. C. Ward are attending the Rotary International convention in Toronto this week.

Many Factors Cause Cut In Attendance

TRENTON — This year, German measles, chicken pox, whooping cough and polio will have cut down public school attendance for the month of May, a month generally free from attendance troubles. One day last week, at Queen Elizabeth Public School, only 16 students were present for the day in each room of the school.

rat infestation and a general running down of the whole neighborhood. Property values will be lowered."

If council does go ahead with filling the pit with garbage . . . with or without incident . . . a number of residents have announced their intention of petitioning the Ontario Municipal for a lowering of assessment. Since the application for Court of Appeal appearances don't have to be in until around November, the pit could be level land by then.

Meanwhile, another suggestion that town council actually needs the pit for park and playground. The sanitary landfill section of the community gardens area, is rapidly filling up and there are long - range plans afoot to make a waterfront park out of this area.

As to the pit itself, some persons have already jumped the gun and several parcels of hazardly wrapped garbage nestle at the bottom of the pit.

A Reasonable Resolution

The Consumers' Association of Canada is to be congratulated for producing a highly reasonable resolution dealing with a "cooling off" period following the signing of time-payment contracts.

Almost everybody, at some time or another, has been talked into making a purchase against his or her better judgment, and regretted the decision later. There is thus a natural sympathy, in most people who do not have to make their living by selling, for the proposition that a purchaser ought to have the right to change his or her mind, within a reasonable period of time.

More careful consideration, though, forces one to the realization that a general application of a "cooling-off" period would almost certainly add to the cost of goods. A salesman's time is valuable, it is costly to his employer, and if this time is wasted somebody has to foot the bill. There are many people who find it so difficult to make up their minds that they waste a lot of salesman's time as it is. If, once they had been "sold" they received 24 hours, or 48 hours to think things over, they would become real pests.

The Consumers' Association got around this objection neatly. Its resolution asks for a 72-hour cooling-off period only for time-payment contracts signed at "off-store" locations. This is eminently fair. If a customer goes into a store, it is reasonable to presume that at that time he or she was considering making a purchase. If a salesman can convince the customer of the wisdom of purchasing, then the sale should be binding. The very fact that the customer entered the store is a clear indication he has not given way to a sudden impulse, such as may result in a sale when a door-to-door salesman calls.

If the Association's resolution results in legislation of the type sought, this may reduce the number of door-to-door salesmen. Few people would regret such a development. Meanwhile, established merchants would be protected from the annoyances and the expense of having customers cancel orders which they had deliberately entered a store to place.

Liston's Faux Pas

There's a never-never-land aura surrounding boxing which is delightful.

For instance, the World Boxing Association has just released its June ratings.

A gentleman by the name of Sonny Liston, late heavyweight champion of the world, is not even listed amongst the top eleven in his weight division.

This is not the result of his failure to display much armament in a meeting with one Cassius Clay, the Louisville Lip, but rather results from him carrying too much armament, concealed at that, during a recent meeting with a peace officer.

Failure to name Mr. Liston amongst the world's better boxers is something like dropping a gent named Will Shakespeare from a writer's band-wagon, because his spelling was sometimes a little shaky by modern standards.

As far as we know, organized baseball never dropped Babe Ruth off the home-run list when he took a beer too many, which is said to have happened upon occasion, while Rocket Richard could cause a riot at Montreal Forum without anybody denying him a spot amongst hockey's prolific goal scorers.

But boxing is so lily white that a little argument with a constable over one's driving habits automatically makes one a cream-puff and a chump, although one was recently a hard-rock and a champ.

We hope the man responsible for drafting the World Boxing Association ratings does not have to justify his choices the hard way—by seeing ten fast rounds with Sissy Liston. With a murder rap hanging over him, Sonny would probably find the records revised to show that Mr. Clay was the gentleman who dethroned Floyd Patterson.

"The British, it is said, eat nearly twice as much fish in a year as the French. Each Frenchman, the statisticians reckon, eats only about fifteen pounds of fresh fish a year; whereas, just to confuse the issue, he is a real beef-eater, way ahead of other European countries. The average Frenchman eats a fun-dredweight and a quarter of meat a year."—Peter Raleigh, BBC Paris correspondent.

Dief and Mike's Pitched Battles Fascinate Parliament

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The most fascinating thing about these political days is not the continuing uproar over the flag, the near paralysis of the business of the Government nor the dogged determination to fight every last inch of the way through this frenzied Session.

Rather, it is the personal struggle between Prime Minister Pearson and Conservative Leader Diefenbaker.

It now amounts almost to a vendetta.

And it explains everything that has been happening—or not happening—in this frantic Parliament.

The two men detest each other. Despise is perhaps the better word to more accurately pinpoint their mutual feeling of utter distaste all often openly displayed contempt.

Dief is the flamboyant politician. Loud. Colorful. Full of flash and fire and sometimes fury. A lawyer trained, in a lifetime of law and politics, to use words as knives, or clubs or bullet spreaders. Listening to Dief, you never have to wonder what he is saying. His words are plain. Blunt. They hit hard like hammers.

SOFT WORDS

Dief doesn't like being called Dief. Associates, colleagues, friends, political foes and even Commonwealth Canadians have known him familiarly, for years, as Dief. But it still irks him. Deeply.

Odd thing, that, in a man so otherwise plain-spoken and down-to-earth, so lacking in protocol and even formality.

Now Mike—and the prime minister does like to be called Mike—Pearson, in the House of Commons, spent a lifetime learning in the delicate art of diplomacy where fighting words, working rule is never, never, never to use a hard word if a soft one can possibly be found.

The diplomat lives—and often dies—by protocol, and spends his working day talking quietly behind closed doors or chatting cheerfully at interstate little cocktail parties. Verbiage he usually calls on eggbeiks. Ever so carefully.

For a man to emerge from this hushed world of the whispered word and the soft answer, in fact, that he has only showed signs of recovering from it in the past month or two.

So from the very outset, these two protagonists in the continuing political drama of Parliament were simply incapable of understanding each other.

And in the six years they have faced each other across the floor of the Commons they have become more, rather than apart in comprehension.

To see them these days is to watch a fight to the finish—not what must be the ultimate death politically of one or the other.

NOW A MATCH

There was the time when Dief, almost at will, could confuse, confound, embarrass and humiliate Lester B. Pearson, completely out of his element, with his verbosity, less and at the mercy of Diefenbaker.

He'd just sit there and squirm, red-faced, unable to defend himself, much less strike back.

But not any more.

They've become pretty much of a match. And when the Commons opens each day, and the prime minister and the Opposition Leader rise for the ritual ordeal of the Question Period, you never can be sure who is going to draw blood.

It is the greatest serialized cliffhanger since Flash Gibbs.

Dief still roars, a thunderhead of a man, exploding with indignation at the barbarities and machinations of the Prime Minister and his wicked Liberal ways.

And Mike sometimes still equals.

But not always.

More and more he has somehow adopted the skills of diplomacy to coping with Dief. He still uses the soft word, but often in a quiet and odd deadly way.

Strangely he contrives — by the simple process of appearing to be so quietly reasonable — to make Dief look a little ridiculous. It almost seems that he treats him as he might a spoiled child, a bad-tempered brat, condescendingly.

The other day, astoundingly, he waved Dief down as a school marm might a naughty boy. And astonishingly, Dief sank to his seat, looking for all the world like a Grade Four student who had his knuckles rapped.

But it isn't always like that, either.

It's a real duel, going this way, then the other, with the changing fortunes of the political day in the Commons. A great show. Be sure to catch it when you come to the Capital.

Defends Way Seals Killed

Montreal Gazette

Many have written to Hon. H. J. Robichaud, the Minister of Fisheries, protesting about the slaughter of seals, especially baby seals, and the manner in which it is being done. Not many, however, have been greatly heartened by the Minister of Fisheries' reply.

Mr. Robichaud says there is little danger of the seal herds being exterminated. The coats of the hunt are heavy. If the number of seals is not large enough to justify the expense, the hunt will cease and the seals will be saved.

As for killing the baby seals, the Minister says that it is better to kill them than a young mature animal. Because of death from natural causes, it takes several pups to result in one mature female. Moreover, pups, on the average, have proved over the years more valuable on the market.

As for the method of killing, Mr. Robichaud says: "It is the opinion of our experts that the method presently used is effective when properly executed and the animals are not subjected to undue pain or indignity. I would not say that there are not some abuses and such inappropriate may be attempted partly at least though not excusable, the conditions under which the sealers work.

"I would suggest, however, that in this industry, as in others where the slaughter of animals is involved, there is a duty bound to be public concern. Killing of animals is at best not for the sensitive and most of us would probably not enjoy our steaks or chops immediately after visiting a slaughter house."

Mr. Robichaud says that the matter is under serious consideration and "it is expected that before the opening of the 1965 sealing season more restrictive regulations will be in effect which I hope will take care of the situation."

But many have been left wondering what "more restrictive" will really mean.

Got Warning In 650 B.C.

Portland Oregonian

We got a warning some 2,600 years ago about the danger on the ths free - ways and the way drivers act, but it seems that we are slow to realize its importance or to take all the steps necessary to deal with it.

It was around 650 B.C. or thereabouts that the prophet Nahum foresaw the situation and described it as best he could a time long before automobiles motors and automobiles had been invented. If you doubt this, read the book of Nahum, turn to Nahum 2:4 for this picture of what happens on our streets and highways today:

"The chariots shall rage in the street, they shall justle one against another in the broad ways: they shall seem like torches, they shall run like the lightnings."

Showing a high degree of interest in their newly formed organization, members of the Men's Club of Tabernacle United Church adjourned for the summer season following their second meeting held last Friday evening. The club will again resume activities in September with present enthusiasm of the members indicating a successful future for the organization. Guest speaker for Friday evening's meeting was Mr. C. Owen Hearth with vocal entertainment being afforded by Belleville Male Quartette composed of Messrs. Bankier, Grant, Mowbray and Thompson. Leo Riggs acted as accompanist for the vocal numbers and Mrs. Mowbray with piano instrumentals. Approximately 40 members were in attendance.

Believing that it is important that the people of Trenton and district are helping to make better use of their leisure time and attendance. Therefore, it is a duty of this paper to keep the interests of this fair, informed on what is going on from time to time. The Ontario Intelligencer reports that Belleville Fair Board has unanimously voted 25 percent of the net profit from the 1943 Fair to four patriotic organizations carrying on work in the battle zones. The organizations to benefit are Canadian Red Cross, Canadian Army Huts Y.M.C.A. and the Salvation Army. The Fair will be held again this year — September 18, 19, 20 — and plans have already been made to make the buildings and grounds at the exhibition park more attractive than ever.

When this was a lumber town many years ago, thousands of logs came down the Moira River from the north country and were sorted at a boom in the Harbor. Several of the old timers kept the logs moving from where they were dumped into the water until they reached here. When the drive was over the old logs sorted according to the owners' marks and then there was an accumulation of logs in the river, but it did not remain so many people in town gathered the logs and made excellent fuel. An item from the old log copy at this time in 1894 reminded us of the old days. It ran as reads: "The harvesting of bark from the swamps is now in progress."

Snails Fire Love-Darts

BBC London Letter

"When it comes to the field of romance, the majority of animals leave the human race standing," said the well-known zoologist, writer and broadcaster, Gerald Durrell in a talk broadcast in the BBC "Women and the World" program. Their romances are as extraordinary as anything you'll find recorded in the more flamboyant Sunday newspapers. Indeed, their love affairs are so utterly romances can be dangerous, as in the case of the praying mantis, where the female eats her self his seduction the female calmly leans over her shoulder and proceeds to eat him. Then, the honeymoon becomes a funeral and the male is used as a wedding breakfast.

"Further down the scale of life there is the astonishing sex life of the snail. Every year a snail is both male and female so that in the perfect example of how to have your cake and eat it. Each snail carries about with it a tiny quiverfull of tiny barbed arrows, made out of a calcium-like substance. Each arrow is attached to a long cord and when one small meets another he shoots out one of these little love-darts which sinks into the flesh of the other snail and rapidly dissolves, producing a stimulating sexual sensation. The snail hauls itself alongside its chosen girl or boy friend with the aid of the cord that was attached to the arrow. Then mating takes place."

Poliomyelitis Commonest Cause of Spinal Curvature

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am 37 years old and have a curvature of the spine. Now not that it is starting to show, and each year it gets a little worse. Will this leave me a cripple? — Mrs. J. M.

The commonest cause of spinal curvature (lateral, or scoliosis) is poliomyelitis. At least that has been true so far. If immunization can be made sufficiently universal, and not allowed to lapse, there should be substantially less scoliosis.

The polio cases causing this are usually so mild as to be unrecognized at the time, yet they leave weakness in one set of muscles.

Our muscles work in opposing sets. We move by simultaneously contracting one set of them and relaxing the other, which pulls in the opposite direction.

But when a set of muscles becomes weakened and its opposing set remains normal, there is a steady extra tension exerted in one direction. Hence the curvature.

When polio is the cause, this is most likely to occur around puberty, give or take a few years.

At 37 the bones of your spine should be rather well fixed. If the trouble appears to be progressing, X-rays should be taken and examinations made to look for other possible causes.

It is reasonable to assume that you will not become crippled, but naturally I have no way of knowing whether some other factor may be at work. Further examination and probably subsequent check - ups should establish whether you have anything to worry about, and whether your curvature is likely to become worse or whether it is becoming stabilized.

Dear Dr. Molner: What about taking flash photos of young children? Last night we stopped our daughter from taking a flash picture of her baby from the distance of about five feet. Now am I an old spoil-sport — R. R.

I don't see any harm in photos, since with the films being used now only a rather small flash is required. (I would, however be sure that the flash bulb had a plastic cover for safety on the off chance that it might shatter.)

Dear Dr. Molner: My husband has RH positive blood and mine is RH negative. I have been told that there is danger of our children being born anemic. However we have had three perfectly normal, healthy ones. I have also lost three babies prematurely. I have often wondered whether there could be any connection with the RH factor. — Mrs. A.

Such a difference in RH factor can indeed cause stillbirths or miscarriages, but there can be other causes, too.

The miscarriages usually does not affect the first one or two babies. Later the mother becomes sensitized, and develops antibodies which, on subsequent exposure to the opposite Rh factor, can cause trouble.

You are aware, I presume, that in quite a few cases it is necessary to make a complete blood change and withdraw the baby's blood and replace it with new blood — to protect the child from critical danger right after birth. Improved techniques and equipment for this rather drastic procedure have been developed, and thousands of babies are being saved, or protected from great peril each year.

Impulses Motivate Big Movement

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Perhaps the greatest impediment to human progress is the depressing psychological fact that people are never as motivated by positive factors as by negative ones.

Over the last 30 years of writing a column, I have received hundreds upon hundreds of letters all beginning the same way. The writers seem blissfully unconscious of what they are revealing about themselves.

"Dear Mr. Harris," this familiar letter begins, "I have read and enjoyed your column for many years, and most of the time I agree with it. However, on yesterday's paper, you said something I can't agree with, and I am forced to take violent issue with. . ."

It never occurs to these people that if was the one article they disagreed with that motivated them to sit down and write a letter to me, the positive feelings of agreement ever moved them to action as much as this one negative feeling of disagreement.

This seems to be the way we are made. Politicians know that the "anti" letters will always outweigh the "pro" letters, because it is only when voters are stirred to anger or resentment or contradiction that they will take the time or trouble to express their feelings.

A crusade that is "against" something can always recruit more volunteers than one that is for something. This is largely because people are much more clear about the things they are against than the things they are for, just as it is much easier to demolish a building than to put one up.

Almost all mass-movements in history have been motivated by negative impulses: getting rid of this group, killing off that group, imprisoning another group, expropriating still another group. Yet, oddly enough, when the groups have been eliminated, we always have been found that the problems remained, although perhaps in some different form.

You never see a mob rushing across the street to save some shirts for Jiffy," observed Josh Billings. What arouses people are anger, disputation and aggressiveness.

Arguing over national forests, for instance — and the whole crucial question of conservation — has attracted relatively few followers, despite its importance, because it does not appeal to any of our "anti" instincts. It is simply good and constructive in itself.

There are millions of Americans who are for stiffer prison sentences and harsher parole limitations — but only a handful care about rehabilitating prisoners and finding jobs for them. Yet, if we don't do the latter, the prisons will continue to be filled with sullen resentful men, human animal fated to commit suicide at the hands of his own negative impulses?

Toronto Stocks

TORONTO (CP)—Prices were lower in all sections of the stock market in routine trading today.

Leitch and Highland-Bell sold off in active dealings. Leitch gave up 20 cents to $6.05 and Highland-Bell 60 cents to $7.30. Other speculative issues were quiet and mostly lower.

In senior mines, Inco dipped ¼ to 82⅛ and Falconbridge ⅛ to 70¼. Rio Algom continued to move lower, losing 50 cents to $9.50.

Losses outnumbered gains by a good margin in the main list. Interprovincial Pipe Line was down 1¼ to 84 and Harding Carpets dipped ⅛ to 18¼. Algoma Steel and Imperial Bank of Commerce were each clipped for ¼ to 67¼ and 63¼ respectively. Dome gave up ¼ to 29½ among golds.

On index, industrials were down .26 to 132.63, golds .18 to 126.24, base metals .20 to 62.09, western oils .38 to 95.85 and the Exchange index .28 to 142.55. Volume at 11 a.m. was 1,145,000 shares compared with 1,091,000 shares at the same time Monday.

The stocks swung in a wide range as investors and speculators attempted to evaluate the implications of a writ filed by Leitch and Mestodon-Highland Bell, a subsidiary of Highland-Bell, claiming that they jointly own mineral rights to the land on which Texas Gulf Sulphur Co. made its rich base metals discovery near Timmins.

The writ, filed Friday, was described by Texas Gulf President Claude Stephens as "completely without merit."

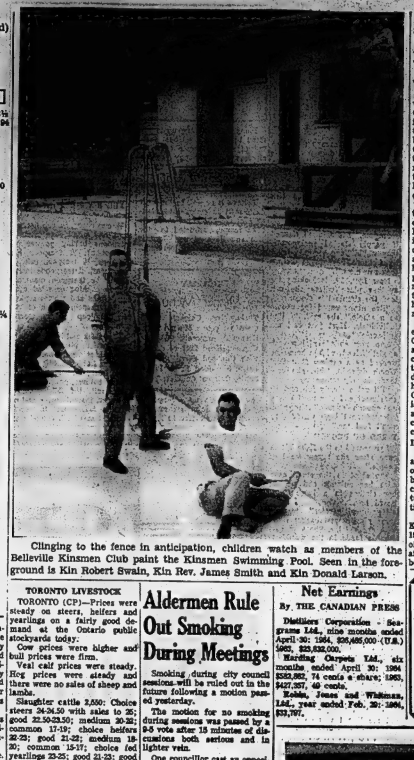
But investors were not sure. After the opening of both stocks was delayed, Highland - Bell opened at $8, sold off to $7.30 and rallied to close with a 65-cent gain at $7.80.

Leitch—the real star of the day—opened at $7.50, slipped sharply to $5.50 and closed up 40 cents to $6.55. It traded a whopping 300,999 shares.

OTHERS FOLLOW

Other speculative issues were also higher, although not by the same margin. Genex and United Comstock lode tracked on five cents each at 34 cents and 38 cents respectively. Base Metals and Cusco each gained 3½ cents both at 17 cents.

Of the senior metals, Inco was off 1¼ to 83 and Rio Algom 1¼ to 10.



Dome climbed 1¼ to 29¾ as golds were stronger.

Industrials were lower although losses were counted in fractions. Consolidated paper led losers with a dip of ¾ to 41. Algoma Steel backed off ¾ to 67½.

On index, industrials were down .77 to 152.80, base metals .85 to 62.29, western oils .21 to 96.81 and the exchange index .72 to 142.83. Golds were ahead 1.77 to 126.42.

Volume for the day was 4,802,000 shares compared with the 4,742,000 traded Friday.

Said Garbage Collectors Beating Gun

Local garbage collectors are getting out early these mornings with the result that they are jumping the seven o'clock starting gun.

At least that is the report heard in city council yesterday from Alderman Don Whalen, who said residents on the east hill were complaining that the garbage collectors were starting their rounds too early.

He asked that the city manager check the complaints and that action be taken if the city by-law was being contravened.

Aldermen Rule Out Smoking During Meetings

Smoking during city council sessions will be ruled out in the future following a motion passed yesterday.

The motion for no smoking during sessions was passed by a 9-5 vote after 15 minutes of discussions both serious and in lighter vein.

One councillor cast an opposition vote because he didn't approve of council interfering with personal liberties.

Smoking will be out in the future but councillors yesterday had their final fling as they lit up cigars presented for the occasion.

Alderman Ben Corke who introduced the motion for no smoking pointed out that senior governments do not allow smoking in chambers while neither was smoking permitted in courts or at Hastings county council.

BIT OF HUMOR

"City council is a historic institution and I do not think smoking should be allowed, if only out of courtesy to the non-smokers."

Alderman Douglas Boyle supported the motion interjecting a bit of humor into the proceedings as he quoted from the book "Smoking and Health" listing the health dangers and psychological aspects of smoking.

But Alderman Jack Allin declared the motion was an infringement on personal liberties and in support of cigar smokers generally tried to have the motion changed to refer only to cigarette smoking. He didn't get a seconder.

Alderman George Wishart, a non-smoker, opposed the motion on the grounds that the rights of individuals were being challenged.

"Why don't they just quit smoking!" he asked.

Loses Appeal to Court, Escapes, Recaptured Here

A 31-year-old Toronto convict, Norman Douglas McCand, escaped here while being returned by taxi from Ottawa, where he had appeared before the Supreme Court of Canada in an unsuccessful attempt to persuade the court to reverse a ruling by the National Parole Board, revoking his parole. He was recaptured less than an hour later.

McCand escaped when his two guards and the taxi driver stopped in Belleville for lunch at the Belvedere Hotel in Belleville. McCaud, according to available accounts, asked the waitress to direct him to the men's room. She pointed to the door of the men's lounge. McCand headed that way, and that was the last his guards saw of him for nearly an hour.

When they realized he had escaped, the guards phoned Ontario Provincial Police and alerted a Central taxi-driver, cruising the street in front of the hotel. The taxi-driver radioed dispatcher Frank Mulvihill, who turn phoned Checker taxi and the city police. Passengers in an estimated thirty taxis around the city heard the warning broadcast to taxi-drivers.

HE RECAPTURED

McCaud was recaptured at about 6.25 p.m. at the corner of Bridge and Octavia Streets, by guards riding in one of the city's cruisers. He was returned to the city police station after a struggle.

McCaud was released from Kingston Penitentiary Oct. 16, 1961, after serving about half of his 10-year sentence imposed after he was convicted of robbery.

On June 6, 1963, McCaud's parole was revoked and he was arrested and charged with conspiracy in connection with worthless cheques.

He was convicted on this charge and sentenced to another 10-year prison term. This conviction now is being appealed before the Ontario appeal court.

McCaud's main complaint was that he was never informed of the reason why his parole was revoked and that he was given no opportunity to be present at a hearing held to oppose the revocation. He said that his rights under the Canadian Bill of Rights had been infringed.

However, the supreme court said the bill does not apply to the question of the revocation of McCoud's parole.

It said it agrees with an earlier decision in this case by Mr. Justice W. F. Spence of the Supreme Court that the board may revoke any parole at its own discretion.

Ann Landers

Greatness Has Never Been Proof of Being Adjusted

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Thanks for straightening me out. I always thought Winston Churchill and the late General Douglas MacArthur were great men, but after reading the column in which you O.K.'d the sucky theory that smoking is an adult is what a pacifier is to an infant I have changed my mind. According to your theory these men were actually grown-up babies.

ANN LANDERS

The person who wrote said small children can suck their thumbs and drag a dirty blanket around but adults would be led off to the loony bin if they did such things, so smoking is their substitute.

It's difficult to understand how grown-up babies could become world leaders. Since you are so dogpone smart I'd appreciate your explanation.

Thanks for reading this letter, which I'm sure will get no further than the wastebasket. — JHP OF RICHMOND.

DEAR JHP — Mental capacity and leadership qualities do not equate with emotional stability. (Hitler, Mussolini, Stalin, Castro.) Many leaders in the fields of science, art, medicine, and finance were, and are, brilliant thinkers but at the personal level their lives were and are, a mess.

History is replete with examples of accomplished people who were so poorly adjusted that they eventually killed themselves with the help of a high window, a gun, a bottle or the gas pipe.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Recently you printed a letter from a teen-ager who said she had a million freckles and hated every one of them. You told her about sandpaper surgery, warned against quacks and so on. Will you please print this letter and perhaps wake up some of these foolish kids?

What in the world is wrong with freckles? The lovely woman to whom I have been married for over 15 years has a million freckles and I love every one of them. In fact, her freckles are what attracted me when we met at an Epworth League picnic 20 years ago.

Freckles are part of a girl's personality. They give her that natural, sun-kissed look. Freckles are wholesome, out-doorish, frank and honest. Any girl who would bleach a freckle, attempt to cover it with heavy make-up or, heaven forbid, resort to surgery has rocks in her head. — VOICE OF DISSENT.

DEAR VOICE — Thanks for the greatest testimonial for freckles since Doris Day hugged her first million dollars to the bank. Several men (no women) wrote to express the same point of view, but you did it most convincingly.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — That letter from the woman who was mad at her rich aunt who shopped in August for Christmas gifts and then ended up giving faded, shop-worn, marked-down "bargains" made me laugh. I have a friend who does something similar. It used to burn me up, but after reading that letter I see the humor in my own situation and feel a great deal better about it.

My friend is a grand dame of considerable means. She no longer drives her own car so I frequently take her to the beauty shop, to club meetings and to church. Every Christmas it's the same old story. With tears in her eyes she says, "I love you dearly to insult you with a commercial gift. I want you to have something of sentimental value." She then hands me an old snuff box her grandfather used, or a piece of needlepoint that has been sitting around for 100 years. Everyone of her gifts has gone into the attic or the trash can.

Your column is a great deal more than entertainment. It helps people get a fresh perspective. Thank you for it. — AVID FAN.

MAIL CALL

Question: My daughter is having a sweet-sixteen party and is about to send out the invitations. Her guests are all in the same age group. In addressing the envelopes, are the girls addressed as "Miss" or "Mistress?" I think the boys should be addressed as "Master," but she thinks they should be addressed as "Mr." Would you settle this problem for us? — Mrs. V. A., Philadelphia, Pa.

Answer: Girls are always addressed as "Miss." Boys are addressed as "Master" until age 12. Between 13 and 18, a boy is addressed simply as "John Smith," without a title. "Mr." is used after a boy turns 18.

Question: I had accepted an invitation to a dinner for my husband and myself without consulting with him first. Unfortunately, he had a business engagement for the same date, so I had to call back and refuse after all. The hostess was understanding, but I heard later that she thought I had broken the engagement because we had something better to do. I have not heard from her since, so I was wondering if I should send her a written note of apology explaining it really was business that prevented our attending. What would you suggest? — Mrs. S. J., Peekskill, N.Y.

Answer: Since you have explained and apologized already, an additional note wouldn't make her feel better or rest her suspicions. The most courteous thing to do would be to invite the couple to your home as soon as possible, to show that you are sincere in wanting to continue friendly association.

Brunette Wants To Lead Simple Life and Alone

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP)— Lyn Anderson is a tall, shapely brunette who prefers animals to people and caves to houses. But the people won't let her have it that way.

She tried to escape from the civilization that does not understand her—and that she does not seem to understand — by moving to a cave on a shore of Lake Worth.

For company she had two dogs and a cat. Then police found her and made her move.

"I knew they would find me sometime," she said. "I figured if people started seeing me they would hang around. But I lived there 2½ weeks before they ran me off."

Now Lyn, 19, is looking for another place where she can lead the simple life alone.

"I've never cared for people as a whole," she said. "I like individuals. Most just call me antisocial."

Lyn now spends nights with a girl friend with whom she worked at a car-hop at a Fort Worth drive-in. Her only contends, is only temporary.

"I'll get a ready job and an apartment and stay until I save up enough money," she said. "Next time I'll go where they won't find me."

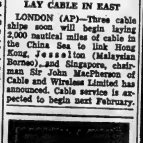
TIRED OF PEOPLE

Lyn moved to the Lake Worth cave after she "grew tired of people."

She slept in the small cave with her animals and packed her clothes in a large cardboard box.

Her "refrigerator" was a large plastic wastebasket filled with crushed ice. She kept perishable foods in the wastebasket.

When she ran out of food, she would return to work for a day at the drive-in. Lyn said the money she earned went only for food for herself and her dogs and cat.



She decided to air her blankets and left them hanging on the rocks when she went to work. Lake Worth officers spotted the blankets and confiscated them along with the rest of her belongings.

Lyn went to the police station to claim her belongings.

"I don't understand what the big deal is," she said. "When I went in town, people looked at me like I was on exhibit."

Chocolate Cake With Mint Icing

Plans were shaping up in my mind to do some serious testing of new chocolate cake recipes, when, by happy coincidence, my friend Margaret Duddy in Victoria, wrote, giving me her newest chocolate cake triumph.

Believe it or not, in the next day's mail an enthusiastic reader sent me her moist chocolate cake recipe, adjusted to the size and likes of her family. Chocolate cakes are perennial favorites.

MARGARET DUDDY'S DIFFERENT CHOCOLATE CAKE:

Pile 3 x 8 x 2" pan to perfection.

½ cup cocoa, ¾ cup hot water, 1 cup sifted cake flour, 3 teaspoons baking powder (1 tablespoon), ½ teaspoon baking soda, ½ teaspoon salt, 2-3 cup sugar, 3 teaspoons instant coffee, ¾ teaspoon cinnamon, ½ cup cooking or salad oil, 2 eggs, yolks and whites separated, ½ teaspoon cream of tartar, 1-3 cup sugar (second amount).

Stir cocoa and hot water over heat until blended. Remove from heat and beat until smooth. Let cool. Sift together into a large bowl sifted cake flour, baking powder, baking soda, 2-3 cup-amount of sugar, instant coffee and cinnamon. Make well in centre and add salad oil, cooled cocoa mixture and egg yolks. Beat until batter is smooth. Add cream of tartar to egg whites and beat until foamy. Gradually add 1-3 cup-sugar amount and beat until whites are very stiff and will stand in stiff peaks. Fold into batter evenly. Pour into 8 x 8 x 2" well greased and floured pan. Bake at 325 deg. Fahr. for 30 minutes at centre of oven. Let rest on pan for 5 minutes, then turn out on rack, peel off paper and let cool.

When cool, if desired spread over sides and top this Mint Frosting: To tablespoons butter, 2 cups icing sugar, 3½ tablespoons evaporated milk or table cream, 2 drops green food coloring (optional), ½ teaspoon peppermint extract, shake of salt. Beat until of spreading consistency. When spread on cake, if desired, sprinkle top with chocolate shot.

Cherney's FURNITURE WORLD

Wing Commander C. S. Olsen shows some of the pictures of his recent trip to Hong Kong where he visited Wai Kwong Leung, a nine-year-old Chinese boy who is being supported by the children of the Bridge Street United Church Sunday School. Admiring the photographs are the Sunday School superintendent L. McQuaid and Miss Joy Nicholls, Missionary secretary.

Sunday School Children Of Bridge St. Church Told of Their Adopted Chinese Boy

Children of the Bridge Street United Church Sunday School in Belleville were recently given a real treat.

Wing Commander OS Stuart Olsen brought back pictures and information of his personal visit with Wai Kwong Loeung, a nine-year-old Chinese boy living in Hong Kong whom the Belleville children have "adopted."

Their foster friend in Hong Kong is supported through special donations made by the children.

The children have been educated to the need of others and the pleasure of giving through their contribution envelopes which are two sided — one side marked "for ourselves," the other "for others".

Miss Joy Nichols has been for the past twenty-five of her seven-ty years, the Mission's Superintendent of the Sunday Church School. Once a month Miss Nicholls meets with the Junior and Intermediate Department assembly to tell the children about mission work around the world.

Miss Nichols introduced the idea that perhaps the children's sense of helping others could be made more intimate and real to them if the group were to undertake the support of some child in need.

The children accepted the idea enthusiastically and on Jan. 1st 1963 they adopted Wai Kwong Leung through the Foster Parents Plan.

PICTURE IN SCHOOL

The Foster Plan provided the group with background information on Wai Kwong and a picture of him which the class has hung in the Sunday School corridor. Once a month a letter is received through the Hong Kong office and once a month children of the school send Wai Kwong a letter.

Letters in and out of the Hong Kong office are translated before being forwarded and this work alone keeps the staff of translators busy at their work for long hours each day.

Wing Commander Olsen who admitted to the children at Bridge Street United Church that he too was a school principal being the officer commanding the Air Transport Command Operational Training Unit at Trenton. He went on to remark that few of his pupils failed in their work as their graduation exercise was a trip around the world, and the training flight of the OTU Yukon aircraft in this case carried freight from Canada to Manville and medical supplies to the Canadians serving with the International Truce Commission in Saigon before continuing its flight to Hong Kong, Wake Island, Honolulu, Vancouver and then back to Trenton.

BUILT BY GOVERNMENT

While in Hong Kong W-C Olsen, in company with a translator from the Hong Kong office of the Foster Plan, visited Wai Kwong and his mother and sister at their home in a massive block of resettlement "cubicles."

These large tenements are built by the Hong Kong governments and selected families are given accommodation for a very nominal monthly fee. The cubicles measure 10 feet by 12 feet and each cubicle must house at least five people. The flats are built in the form of a "U" four or five stories high. Ablution and communal cooking facilities are provided across the base of the "U" with both arms of the "U" being made up entirely of living quarters.

Young Wai Kwong was home from school by special permission to meet and speak with W-C Olsen. School is held on the ground floor of each of the block of flats. School is not free in Hong Kong so only those children with outside help or whose parents are reasonably well fixed can attend school.

Education is desperately sought after by the greater majority of children in Hong Kong and it is a rather distressing sight to see crowds of young Chinese boys and girls sitting near the entrance to the school areas waiting for the chance to fill the seat of a student who might fail to attend classes for one reason or another.

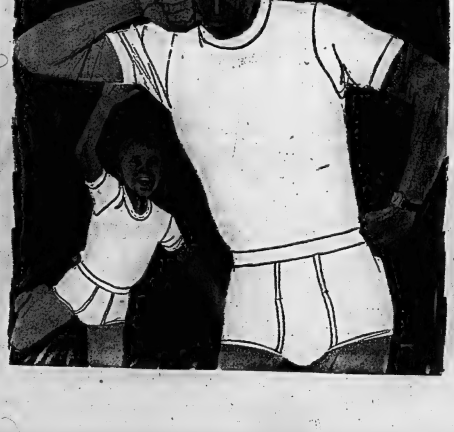
GIVEN LITTLE EXTRA

Mr. George Ross, the Hong Kong Foster Plan Director, has been in the Orient for seven years. He explained that Foster Plan money at present maintains five thousand children in Hong Kong. The children must come to the centre at least once a month for interview and to get their monthly allowance of $45 (Hong Kong dollars.) Each child must be accompanied by a parent. "In this way," said Mr. Ross, "we here at the centre can influence and encourage the whole family group. Roughly speaking this means we have contact with nearly 30,000 persons through the Plan."

Foster children families are given some little "extra" on each visit to the centre, bars of soap, some cloth, cleaning materials or cans of food.

The usual annual fee of $180 per child provides free medical care for the family unit. $45 (Hong Kong dollars) a month which is paid to the parent or guardian until the child is 12 years of age, schooling for the foster child and clothing.

It was an inspiring experience said W-C Olsen speaking about his visit. "Young Wai Kwong demonstrated his scholarly talents. He showed us his homework and read to us in English from a school primary. He understands very little English right now but he is a healthy handsome and intelligent young fellow. His mother and sister were at home when we arrived and they offered us tea. Wai Kwong was quite taken with all the attention and presents. When we went to take his picture his mother gave him a sparkling clean shirt to put on."



W-C Olsen emphatically stated "after actually visiting a Foster Plan family and seeing just how much good is done with so little money I am convinced that everyone who can afford it would get a great deal of satisfaction out of helping a less fortunate fellow man through this plan or any other."

NOT MANDATORY

Total adoption is not mandatory where it can be seen the children plans. Children can be adopted and supported or lesser sums can be forwarded and then go to help other children without specific "parents" in Canada or the U.S. supporting them.

To quote Mr. Ross, "Help given to a child means the eventual rehabilitation of the family group."

Here then is an opportunity for us all to give a helping hand to our less fortunate fellows through any one of the many children assistance plans such as the Foster Parents Plan, P O Box 66, Station B, Montreal for Save The Children Fund, in Toronto or any one of the five or six other organizations who cater to this type of assistance.

Goldwater Confident Ike Won't Upset Presidential Bid

CLEVELAND (AP) — Senator Barry Goldwater says he is convinced that former president Eisenhower will not upset his bid for the Republican presidential nomination next month in San Francisco.

The Arizona Conservative said in an interview here Monday night: "I think President Eisenhower is neutral in this situation as he has been in the past. I do not think he has changed his position and I do not expect him to take any action that would be aimed at blocking me."

Goldwater talked briefly with Eisenhower and other party leaders while table - hopping, then flew back to Washington.

Goldwater said that in the absence of any expressed opposition from Eisenhower—the only man who could hurt his drive toward the 655 delegate votes needed for the nomination—he is confident he will win it at San Francisco in mid-July. He added that he thinks he has a "good chance" of defeating President Johnson in November.

"Wait until the people begin to assess Johnson's stand on this civil rights question and come to realize that his spending policies are out of line," the senator said. "Then we'll see whether we Republicans can beat him."

Eisenhower conferred with 15 of the 16 Republican governors on the political situation.

Governor John Anderson Jr. of Kansas, conference chairman, said he and his colleagues "agree that the Republican party and Republicans nationally are bigger than any individual."

This seemed to signal the general recognition that Goldwater is close to having the nomination in his pocket.

The Republican governors worked on a statement of principles that they felt might influence the San Francisco convention to adopt a platform more liberal than the conservative views expressed by the senator.

Former vice-president Richard M. Nixon, invited to have breakfast with the Republican governors today, predicted that if Goldwater gets the nomination he will accept a platform which will unite the party behind him.

Act and provide a new framework for federal - provincial co-operation in public housing. The measure was given second reading — approval in principle. Clause - by - clause committee study continues today.

Another suggestion by Mr. Scott was that a royal commission be set up to examine and anticipate the housing problems of all citizens over the next 20 years.

Postmaster - General Nicholson, minister temporarily responsible for the housing act, said he would gladly consider the suggestion for a royal commission.

Gerald W. Baldwin (PC — Peace River) said the housing picture is changing so fast that on whatever a royal commission based its recommendations, many of the facts would be entirely changed by the time a report would be published.

Erik Nielsen (PC — Yukon) asked Mr. Nicholson to think about changing regulations so northern communities can get the advantages of the National Housing Act.

To qualify for NHA mortgages, certain standards had to be met and at present these were inflexible. The requirements for sewers and water supplies could be relaxed to the benefit of northerners, and the requirements for down payments could also be relaxed to offset the high cost of construction in the north. Building costs were about 40 per cent higher than in the south.

Eric Winkler (PC — Grey-Bruce) asked that NHA mortgages be made available for older homes, and that the interest payments on mortgages be deductible from income tax.

Bert Leboe (SC — Cariboo) proposed a fixed interest rate on government - guaranteed housing loans. There should be a revolving fund to finance housing at an interest rate of 1½ to two per cent.

Mr. Thompson said that at the present rate of 6% per cent over 25 years, interest amounts to more than half of total payments.

Reynold Rapp (PC — Humboldt - Melfort - Tisdale) asked that CMHC be permitted to give consideration to housing loan applications in one-industry communities when there are no long-term guarantees from the only employer in the town.

Lloyd Francis (L — Carleton) said that while existing provisions have helped the establishment of modern subdivisions, these areas have not attracted an adequate cross-section of the population and certain services, such as schools, have become strained. Public housing could play a greater part in balancing the population.

'Dean of Public Service' To Represent Australia

By ROBERT COLEMAN
Canadian Press Correspondent

CANBERRA (CP) — Australia's new high commissioner to Canada is a short, wiry lawyer with an international reputation who has been called the dean of Australian public servants.

Sir Kenneth Bailey, 65, has been solicitor-general of Australia for almost two decades. He also represented his government at the United Nations and on other international bodies.

He will take up his new post in Ottawa in July, succeeding David O. Hay, who drops one half of his dual post as ambassador to Ottawa and to the United Nations.

Sir Kenneth says he and his wife are "looking forward tremendously" to the new job.

"We are fortunate to have many friends in Canada, particularly in government and university circles.

"It will be entirely our own fault if the next few years are not the most rewarding of our lives."

MANY CAREERS

Sir Kenneth, still more active than most men 10 years younger, enters full-time diplomacy after distinguished careers as a lawyer, teacher and administrator.

As solicitor-general since 1946, he has prepared almost every important act of the Australian Parliament and is credited with making an important contribution to the country's constitutional and legal development in the post-war years.

He entered government service in 1943 at the urging of Dr. H. V. Evatt, former labor party leader, as one of a group of "outside" experts recruited under pressure of war. His first post was as consultant to the attorney-general's department.

He also has held the post of secretary to the attorney-general's department, in addition to his job as solicitor-general.

From 1946 he was one of Evatt's principle aides at the San Francisco conference that drafted the United Nations charter.

Sir Kenneth was born Nov. 3, 1896, at Canterbury, a suburb of Melbourne. He was educated at Wesley College, Melbourne, and Melbourne University.

WAS RHODES SCHOLAR

After First World War service with the Australian field artillery he studied at Oxford as a Rhodes scholar.

He was called to the English bar in 1924 and later the same year returned to Melbourne University, first as professor of jurisprudence and later as professor of public law.

He was Australian delegate to the League of Nations Assembly in 1937.

After attending the UN preparatory commission meetings in 1945 he was a delegate to the UN General Assembly in 1946, 1947 and 1948. He also led the Australian delegation to the UN conferences on law of the sea at Geneva in 1958 and 1960.

Sir Kenneth and Lady Bailey were married in 1925 and have three sons. Sir Kenneth was awarded the CBE in 1953 and was knighted in 1958.

Soviet attempts to neutralize West Germany, Russian - Chinese relations, proposed disarmament measures such as a non-clear-free zone in central Europe and observation posts to verify any agreements designed to prevent surprise attack, and East-West trading relations.

Authorities said the chancellor and Mr. Pearson are unlikely to deal with such bilateral and specific matters as the future of the Canadian brigade group and air division in West Germany.

The German embassy is particularly anxious that the visit go smoothly because it finds anti-German feeling more prevalent in Canada than in such countries as Belgium and The Netherlands which were invaded by Hitler during the Second World War.

There will be further talks Wednesday after the initial round following Dr. Erhard's arrival.

Dr. Erhard will also place a wreath at the National War Memorial Wednesday, attend a luncheon given by Conmont Speaker Alan Macnaughton and a dinner by Mr. Pearson.

He is scheduled to leave for Washington Thursday.

Announce New Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids... and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissues.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved . . . actual reductions or retraction (shrinking) took place.

Among these case histories were a variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. Relief even occurred in cases of long standing, and most impressive of all, results were so thorough that this improvement was maintained over a period of many months.

This was accomplished with a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a principal cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator).

Nothing Wrong With Bride Carrying Wood-Fibre Roses

DEAR DORIS — A girl wanted to know if red artificial roses on a white Bible were suitable; you answered that you'd never heard of artificial flowers carried at a wedding.

Well, I carried pale blue roses on a white Bible, and my three bridesmaids carried orange and rust bouquets also of wood-fibre flowers. We were married in the fall in a spot where flowers were very expensive and artificial ones very practical, inexpensive and beautiful. (They can be kept for years.) — SEPT. BRIDE.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR SEPT. BRIDE — So now we add wood fibre to plastic! Who's to say you aren't just as much married as the gal with a live bouquet! And you still have the flowers to prove it!

DEAR DORIS — I was married when I was 17. (Had to.) My husband of six years has a very hot temper. He takes the belt to the children when they are bad.

One time he beat me. I went to the doctor next day and had a check-up and put in black and white all the bruises and broken bones. Then I put it in a locked box. If he puts a hand on me again he goes to court. This was three years ago. He hasn't lifted a hand to me since.

He goes out nights, comes home at all hours. I am up here with the four children and no car and nobody I know to talk to. When he takes me out (which is seldom) he just sits there and groans and says, "I'm tired." This goes on all evening.

He thinks he could do all my housework in half an hour. I can't reason with him. I still love him very much and wonder why. — UNHAPPY MOTHER OF FOUR.

society, and to stimulate further research in this field.

The brief from the diocese of Montreal recommends greater efforts at counselling in order to forestall early marriages. It also cautions Roman Catholic priests to resist pressures to perform marriages among the young, regardless of whether the girl is pregnant.

Main causes of early marriages were said to be early dating and going steady, pregnancy, unhappy homes, and the hyper-sexuality of modern society.

Some teen-agers marry to attain status, the brief adds. Their early marriages resulted from failure of society to grant the adolescent a stature and respect in his own right.

ARMY MAKES ATTACK

Teen-age marriages and sexual immorality among the young were also assailed by the Salvation Army of Canada in a brief to the conference.

The army's brief said the "open and unchecked" sale of contraceptives must be halted if Canadians are to combat a serious deterioration of sexual values among young people.

It urged that communities and colleges organize "anti-illicit sex" groups, and recommended an intensive campaign to educate parents on the best methods of guiding their children and preserving disciplins in the home.

The two briefs dealing with adolescent marriage are among 40 Canadian reports dealing with a wide variety of welfare problems associated with the family.

A brief in French, prepared by the Farm Women's Circle of Quebec has strong criticism for middle class families who, it says, are "little concerned with their self-preservation."

All 40 briefs are under discussion at closed workshops throughout the family conference which is being held at Carleton University. It ends Wednesday.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Taciturn Maurice "Rocket" Richard who wanders over the countryside billboarding the Montreal Canadiens believes his beloved Habs will win several Stanley Cups before another decade rolls by.

The Rocket was down Windsor way recently and spoke to newsmen between sets of that city's minor-hockey-association-sponsored circus.

Richard's optimistic attitude over the future of the Canadiens seems reasonable.

A young crob, one that rose to the top of the league standing only to miss a Stanley Cup berth by a whisker last year.

The Montreal club, he said, hasn't a player on the current roster older than 32—and that one is one of the hottest pedancers on the ice lanes, Jean Beliveau. That's not counting Lorne Worsley, who went to Quebec after Charlie Hodge beat him out of the job. "And I doubt if the Gump will be back."

Richard figures the youngest members of the cast as standouts next year. They are Yvon Cournoyer and Alcide Boudrias, two standouts of last year's Montreal Canadiens' junior "A" club.

"Cournoyer and Boudrias have good chances of making the jump this year," Richard told a Windsor newspaperman. "They're both great scorers and good skaters. The former has a great shot and is smart around the net. He's not too big, about 165 pounds, and stands five feet seven inches."

The Rocket said that Cournoyer might well be the fellow to replace Beam-Boom Geoffrion, who has retired. "He'll not have the season Geoffrion had because not many fellows can fire nine of the winning goals in a seasonal production of 20."

Richard said he couldn't understand why the Boom-Boom retired at a coaching berth although he had a tough season last year and has been hard hit by injuries.

The former star said about Geoffrion's prospects as a coach: "I don't know whether he will make a good one or not but it's something he wanted and it's something he got for better or for worse."

Speaking about Dickie Moore and his planned comeback, "the Rocket was of the opinion Moore is serious but whether he will be back depends entirely on the doctor's report regarding his legs. If he gets an O.K. then the Canadiens will likely protect him in the draft.

Asked about Moore playing for another club, the Rocket said: "Yeah, he said that but if we don't protect him and since he wants to return another club picks him up, who knows, anything may happen. Many players have said they would play for another club but when a contract is dangled it's a different matter. You just can't afford to gamble on a fellow with Moore's ability."

"If Moore comes back to the Canadiens he'll be the oldest fellow on the club, a few months older than Beliveau. But that's no problem," the Rocket said, "he's only 33."

The former Canadiens' star did not think his old club would be interested in signing "Red" Kelly if the Maple Leafs did not protect him. "It's not likely we would be concerned over Kelly. Considering his age (36) and his duties in parliament, he's only got one or two seasons left at best, so it's hardly worth while to pick him up under those conditions."

And Richard thinks there is a possibility young goalie, Ernie Wakely, with Omaha last year, may give Hodge and Worsley a jolt or two. "He's a comer," the Rocket says.

Open Qualifying Tests

Denver Pro Shoots 133

NEW YORK (AP) — Bill Bisdorf, a Denver golf pro, shot the lowest score in sectional qualifying tests Monday for the U.S. Open, with a 36-hole total of 67-66—133 as survivors of local qualifying tests began the final fight for berths.

Bisdorf had by far the best score of the day as golfers played at eight sites for 25 berths in the Open, scheduled for the Congressional Country Club in Washington, D.C., June 18-20.

Few name golfers were involved in Monday's play, and no Canadians. Most of the players on the pro circuit will try to qualify today when there are 94 places at stake at five sites.

The 129 sectional qualifiers will join 21 exempt players, including defender Julius Boros and big guns Arnold Palmer and Jack Nicklaus, in the open field.

Could Be Revolutionary Says Campbell ★ ★ ★ ★

Clean Faceoffs, Spear Means Fine-NHL

By JOE DUFUIS

MONTREAL (CP) — A couple of rules have been adopted by the National Hockey League to restore some of the skill in the game and remove some of the theatrics.

To Clarence Campbell, the NHL's president, both rules could be revolutionary.

One eliminates body - contact from face-offs.

The other assesses a $25 fine to a player who makes a gesture—even though out of striking range—of wanting to spear an opponent with his stick. If he gestures, and then injures a player with his stick, he could wind up with $50 in fines.

The busy opening day of the league's four-day annual meeting talked—but did little else—about other rules.

Meanwhile, the first player trades were announced.

Chicago Black Hawks dealt off two seasoned leftwingers, Ab McDonald and Reg Fleming, both 28, to Boston Bruins, presumably because the Hawks feel they have a sufficient stock of up-and-coming left wingers.

HAWKS GET MOHNS

In exchange, the Hawks got the Bruins' Doug Mohns, 30, the kind of rushing defenceman Chicago presumably can use to bolster its defensive unit. No cash was involved in the trade.

Campbell said the new penalty-killing strength to the Bruins while Winnipeg-born McDonald who has scored 95 goals and 143 assists in his 402 NHL games, enhances Boston's 20-20 scoring attack. Mohns had been with the Bruins since the 1953-54 season.

In a minor trade, Detroit Red Wings gave up defenceman Barclay Plager, 23, an all-star with Omaha of the Central Pro League last season, to Montreal Canadiens for the $20,000 waiver price.

Campbell described the new faceoff regulation as one of the most drastic rule changes in years. Unanimously, the league's rules committee adopted the ruling that faceoffs would be stick-to-stick with no body contact whatsoever. A minor penalty will be imposed for an infraction.

"The faceoff has been one of the most unsatisfactory features throughout the history of hockey," Campbell said. Rules regarding faceoffs have been changed five or six times within the last few years, and "it's a matter of some doubt if we improved it one iota," he said.

"This tactic of tying-up the man in the faceoff has always been wrong," Campbell said. Tying-up the man, permissible under the old rule, had the effect "of nullifying faceoffs."

MUST BE CLEAN

"Now, it has got to be a clean stick-to-stick faceoff and nothing else. This will restore some of the skill to the game, and we hope get this problem solved once and for all."

Campbell said the league was also pretty emphatic about eliminating the spearing gesture.

"A great deal of the trouble arose from the gesture rather than the actual spearing itself," he said. He said the public wanted to see the end of spearing, and the players did too.

Jack Riley, of Rochester, N.Y., president of the American Hockey League, suggested that a $25 fine wouldn't put a stop to the spearing motion, but that a major penalty would.

Campbell said the rules committee had discussed this aspect of it, but decided that the crime of gesturing—didn't the punishment that a major penalty would impose.

A motion by Montreal Canadiens to end the current rule by which a player returns immediately from a minor penalty if a goal is scored against his team was defeated.

CLEAN UP

Clarification was made to some rules. A minor penalty will be imposed if the goalie, while out of his crease, holds the puck against the side or back of the net or against the boards. Similarly, a minor penalty will follow if he drops the puck on top of the net in an effort to bring it ball in play.

A penalty shot would still be awarded on a delayed call even if the regulation line of a period has run out.

Delegates cited an example where this would apply from the last Stanley Cup playoff. Bob Pulford of Toronto scored against Detroit with two seconds remaining. Had Gordie Howe of Detroit pulled Pulford down—he was in a position to do so—the time buzzer probably would have sounded before the penalty could have been called.

The NHL rejected a proposal by the Western Hockey League for general adoption of a red-line rule used in the WHL for years.

The rule makes a player at the centre ice red line onside for an end zone pass. He can even overtake the puck after it has crossed the red line. The NHL ruled if offside when the puck crosses two lines.

TANGLES WITH LAYCOE

Spirited exchanges developed between Campbell and Hal Laycoe of the WHL during discussion of the rule changes between coaches, including the Canadiens' Toe Blake, favored the NHL version.

Campbell said the rule would result in too much bad play with a player lingering in centre ice for a possible pass-out. Laycoe, a former NHL performer and general-manager of Portland in the WHL, charged that Campbell was stressing the disadvantages rather than the advantages.

Earlier, the WHL completed an agreement with the NHL entrusting Carl Voss, NHL referee-in-chief, with assigning its referees, in the interests of conformity, the WHL will revert to the NHL rule on the two-line offside.

Crackers Give Leafs 6-3 Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Southern hospitality helped the faltering Toronto Maple Leafs protect their International League lead Monday night.

Atlanta Crackers presented them with four unearned runs in the course of dropping a 6-3 decision while Jacksonville Suns, who trailed the Leafs by only half a game at the start of the evening, blew a 4-3 verdict to Buffalo Bisons and dropped into third place.

Syracuse Chiefs blasted the slumping Columbus Jets 8-2 and moved past the Suns but they were two games behind Toronto. Rochester Red Wings rounded out the schedule by defeating Richmond Virginians 5-3.

Home runs by Ossie Virgil and Ken Retzer, the latter with two on, helped the Leafs capitalize on errors by George Banks and Russ Snyder at Atlanta. The Crackers routed Bog Piche with a three-run rally in the ninth but the right hander from Verdun, Que., gained his fifth victory in six decisions when reliever Chi Chi Olivo retired Banks for the final out.

Pumpsie Green delivered a clutch single with the bases loaded in the ninth inning to give the Bisons their victory after Duke Carmedy and Norm Sherry had hit earlier home runs. Joe Morgan's two - run double was the most damaging blow for the Suns.

SOIL SURVEY

STE. ROSE, Man. (CP) — Manitoba soil survey crews will cover about 800,000 acres in this area of northern Manitoba this summer. They will gather details on soil distribution and agricultural capability.

Will Stop Nullifying Manpower

NHL Will Consider New Ice Rule

MONTREAL (CP) — Coach Toe Blake of the Montreal Canadiens suggested a new rule Monday that the National Hockey League is going to consider seriously.

The rule would, hopefully, put a stop to a tactic Canadiens' Terry Harper employed in the dying minutes of the seventh Stanley Cup playoff game against Toronto Maple Leafs last April. The situation was broached at the NHL annual meeting by King Clancy, assistant manager - coach of the Leafs.

With 90 seconds to go in the game, Harper received a minor penalty leaving the Canadiens shorthanded.

Clancy said Harper then goaded Toronto's Eddie Shack into a fist fight. Harper got another penalty, a major, but Shack received a minor, thus nullifying the Leafs' man advantage "at a crucial moment." Leafs went on the 2-1 win this time. They went on to win 3-1, scoring on an empty Canadien net.

Blake's idea was to make a new rule so that the referee could enter a second player to serve Harper's second penalty, thus creating a three - man-against-four situation in favor of new rule proposal makes sense."

He said the league would do a rule covering the situation and circulate it to "the people concerned so that it can be studied."

Colts' White Season Surprise

NEW YORK (AP)—In black and white and every other way, Mike White of Houston Colts must be ranked among the major surprises of the 1964 baseball season.

Drafted from the Milwaukee organization for only $2,000, the rookie outfielder is batting .367, a mark that places him second in the National League among the regulars.

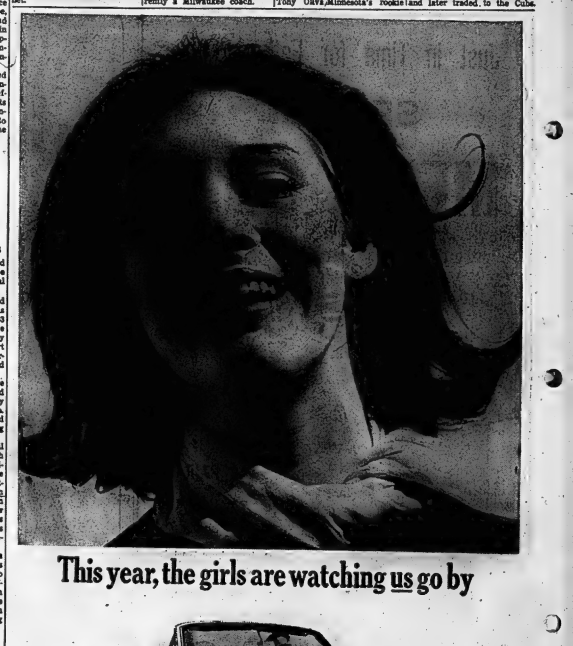
In last week's games, the 25-year-old, who hit .324 for San Antonio of the Texas League last season, had 10 hits in 22 attempts for a .455 mark.

Mike is a nephew of Jo Jo White, former Detroit and Philadelphia Athletics outfielder and currently a Milwaukee coach.

Billy Williams of Chicago Cubs, the league's leading hitter, batted .345 with eight hits in 23 at bats last week. The performance resulted in a six point drop to .406.

Willie Mays of San Francisco Giants moved up two notches to second although he lost seven points to .337. The slugging outfielder had six hits in 20 trips. Mays continues to lead in home runs with 18 and runs batted in with 44.

White was inserted in the starting lineup three weeks ago and with 36 hits in 98 tries he needs only two more times at bat to qualify for the circuit's top 10 batsmen.



In the American League, Tony Oliva, Minnesota's rookie outfielder, held on to first place despite a three-point drop to .330. He had nine hits in 25 times at bat last week.

Chuck Hinton of Washington is the runner-up at .340.

RETURNS TO BRAVES

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Merritt Ranew, a catcher who started his career with Milwaukee Braves in 1957, came back to the Braves Monday from Chicago Cubs to complete last week's deal in which first baseman Lee Gabrielson, was sold to the Cubs. The 25-year-old Ranew was claimed by Houston in the 1961 National League draft and later traded, to the Cubs.

Koufax Misses 2nd No-Hitter In Row

Retires First 12

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

Sandy Koufax, the Los Angeles left hander, took the spell with a second straight no-hitter Monday night and for four innings of a 2-1 Dodger victory over Cincinnati Reds he had statisticians scrambling for their record books.

Koufax retired the first 12 Reds he faced before Deron Johnson broke the spell with a home run. With the pressure off, Koufax gave up three more hits en route to his 100th career victory.

Sandy, who got his third no-hitter against Philadelphia Phillies last week, scored the tying run in the fifth when he forced Chick Tracewsky who had walked, moved up on Maury Wills' single and came in on Willie Davis' hit.

The only pitcher ever to put together back-to-back no-hitters was Johnny VanderMeer, who did it in 1938 while pitching for the Reds and against the Dodgers.

CAPTURES RBI LEAD

Elsewhere in Monday's abbreviated major league schedule, Milwaukee Braves whipped Houston Colts 5-3 as Hank Aaron tagged a two-run homer. Leon Wagner took the major league RBI lead with a two-run homer and a run-producing single as Cleveland Indians topped Los Angeles Angels 6-3, Jim King smashed three-home runs but Washington Senators bowed to Kansas City Athletics 5-4 and Detroit Tigers outslugged Minnesota Twins 10-5.

The St. Louis at San Francisco National League afternoon game was rained out.

Koufax, bringing his record to 7-4 with his third consecutive victory, also was touched for a ninth inning single by Johnson and two hits by Steve Boros.

Boros beat out a bunt in the fifth and stole singled in the eighth. Besides trying for a second straight no-hitter, Koufax could have set a record for striking out 10 or more batters in a single game for the 35th time in his career. The record of 54 is shared by Bob Feller and Rube Waddell. Koufax, however, struck out only nine.

Felipe Alou opened the Braves' first with a double. One out later, Aaron connected off Hal Brown (1-6) and Milwaukee never trailed. Alou collected two doubles and Lee Mays also had two hits while Dave Roberts slammed two doubles and a single for the Colts.

NEEDED ANOTHER RUN

King's three-homer salvo and a pinch-hit homer by Don Zimmer all came with the bases empty. That left the Senators one run short.

The Athletics got a homer from Ed Charles in the first, two more in the fourth and a run eighth - inning uprising. Rocky Colavito singled in two runs before Cookie Rojas wrapped up the rally with a two-run homer. Moe Drabowsky got the victory, his first since April 25, and snapped a seven-game losing streak.

Wagner, who brought his RBI total to 46, and Bob Chance hit back - to - back homers in the eighth after singles by Joe Azcue and Dick Howser around a sacrifice bunt had given the Angels the lead over the Indians. Chance's homer was his fourth in four games.

Don Demeter hit a homer for the Tigers in the first. Then, after the Twins tied it 2-2, Norm Cash hit a three-run shot in the fifth and put Detroit ahead to stay.

Dave Wickersham, tagged for Harmon Killebrew's 18th first homer, won his seventh gave after failing on three previous tries.

Bowman To Coach Baby Habs

MONTREAL (CP) — Scotty Bowman was named coach of the Montreal Junior Canadiens of the Ontario Jr. A. Hockey Association Monday.

The appointment was one of several administrative changes announced by Sam Pollock, general manager of the Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League. Bowman replaces Henry Nadon, who resigned earlier.

Bowman last season divided his coaching time between Omaha Knights of the Central Pro League and the NDG Monarchs of the Montreal Metropolitan League. He is a former coach at the Peterborough Peter.

Albert Trottier was named Canadiens' chief scout after succeeding Frank Selke Jr. Trottier has been with the Canadiens' publicity department for the last seven years.

Pollock also announced the retirements of Bill McNeill as coach at Omaha, and Frank Mario as pilot of the Peterborough Petes.

Bobby Kirk was named to coach the Eagles Pats.

Barriage Landscapers came from behind to defeat Belvedere Hotel 8-3 while Lightfoot Construction thumped Point Anne Inn in Commercial Softball League games last night.

Landscapers spotted Belvedere a 3-1 lead after four frames but came ripping back with seven runs in the last three innings for the win.

The clubs collected five hits apiece, but four errors proved costly to the losers. Joe Harvey batted the victory, striking out two and walking none. Jim Gannon took the loss, relieved by Jack Hughes in the seventh. Neither had a strikeout but Gannon walked six.

Harvey paced his own attack for the winners with a double and single while Jim Sopha hit a triple, Gordie Dutt and Don Wood a single apiece. Eddie Bryant slammed a two-run homer for Belvedere, Moffat had a triple, Hughes and Fox a single apiece.

Lightfoots opened against the Canadiens with three in the first and had their 13-0 lead by the end of the fourth.

George Young spun a five-hitter for the winners and fired third strikes past 15 batters. He walked a pair. Whalen totalled as defeat, tagged for 13 hits. He walked four and passed four and the club committed three errors.

Bill Dickey crashed a two-run homer and a pair of singles to lead the Lightfoot hit parade. Doug Rose had a double and single, Jim Sheridan tied Jack Whiting's two singles each, Rusty Garvin, Don Dolan and Ken Brooks a double apiece and George Young a single.

Healey-Butterfield Duel

Trenton Blanks Tweed 4-0

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Sportswriter

TWEED — Trenton's Bob Butterfield and Tweed's Blaine Healey hooked up in a replay of their earlier pitching duel here last night, but the outcome was the same. Healey got the strikeouts but Butterfield got the win.

Trenton scored all their runs in the seventh and eighth inning to blank Tweed 4-0, increasing the winner's first-place margin in the B and D. Softball League standings.

The two Belleville teams, Hillis Janitors and Trudeau Motors, hook up in a 8:45 tilt at the CNRA Park tonight.

Butterfield tossed his second straight two-hitter at the Lounbanks squad. He struck out six and issued one walk, getting good support afield.

Healey allowed seven hits over the route but set a season's al high strikeout record for the loop by whiffing 19 Trenton swingers. He did not walk a man and four of the hits he allowed were of the Infield variety. He hit one batter.

Trenton snapped the scoreless tie with a single and sacrifice marker in the seventh. Beaugrand blooped a single to right-centre, advanced on Kennedy's sacrifice and raced home on a throwing error.

Taylor and Drake got infield hits in the eighth and with one out Mowatt laced a screaming double to left-centre. The hit scored one and the relay was missed at the plate, allowing Drake to come in for a 3-0 score. Mowatt ended up at third and came home later on Kennedy grounded out.

Butterfield faced only 29 batters over the nine innings, giving up single to Eldon Gray in the fifth and an infield hit to Rich Morton in the sixth. An error in the fourth and a walk in the seventh accounted for two other Tweed runners but Trenton came up with heads-up double plays on both occasions.

Roger Drake and Ron Traylor picked up a pair of singles each for the Commercial Printers but Lan Mowatt's double was the most damaging blow. Al Beaugrand and Don Cole added a single apiece.

Plane's Beat Deseronto 10-2

Plane's Concrete broke up a no-hit bid by D. Fox in the fifth inning and went on to defeat Deseronto 10-2 in a South Hastings Baseball League game last night.

The winners scored three runs in the fifth and kept going from there, collecting six hits in all off Fox, who struck out seven. Half a dozen Deseronto errors also hurt the losers' cause while Plane's played good ball to preserve their lead in the late innings.

D. Dafoe hurled the victory, also allowing six hits. He had six strikeouts. The winners were charged with three errors.

Yesterday's Stars

Pitching — Sandy Koufax, Dodgers, followed up his no-hitter with a four-hitter, winning his 100th game of his major league career as Los Angeles edged Cincinnati Reds 2-1.

Batting—Jim King, Senators, became the first American Leaguer this season to hit three homers in a single game, bringing his total for the year to nine in Washington's 5-4 loss to Kansas City Athletics.

Body Wants Universal Age Draft

MONTREAL (CP)—The Canadian Amateur Hockey Association which frowns on the proposed drafting junior players at even 16-year-old for rights to their future services, has asked National Hockey League consideration of its proposal for a "universal overage draft."

The CAHA at a body and the NHL agreed to set up study committees. They will meet at some future date but no immediate action is expected.

The CAHA wants the right-draft delayed until after an amateur passes his 20th birthday. Up to that time he would be free of any commitments to a pro club.

Hootenanny Program Will Be Dropped by ABC in Fall

BY CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—Although the major television networks have been proclaiming for some time that their fall program schedules are "rocked up," somebody at ABC has kept the key.

In a sudden change of plans, ABC announced Monday it would drop Hootenanny, a Saturday night folk-song program, and replace it with The Outer Limits, a science fiction series.

The move undoubtedly is popular with the Outer Limits people, because it had been pitted next season against both The Beverly Hillbillies and The Dick Van Dyke Show, two of TV's most popular shows.

Into that Wednesday evening spot dominated by the CBS comedy shows, ABC has placed Shindig, a new musical aimed at teen-agers, and Mickey, a sitcom comedy starring Mickey Rooney pulled out of its Friday night lineup. Mickey's replacement will be a comedy series called Valentine's Day, starring Tony Francisos.

The changes do little to change the general composition of next season's Saturday night programming.

At long last CBS' Ed Sullivan has finally succeeded booking one of British rock 'n' roll groups, although the situation makes you wonder why these teen-age female screamers in his studio audiences will spend Sunday evenings.

"Tom Jones Lauded by N.Y. Critics and 4 Academy Awards

The year 1964 was hardly a day old when it became evident that this was to be the year of great honors for Tony Richardson's Eastmancolor triumph "Tom Jones," the hilarious comedy from Henry Fielding's humorous novel, now playing an unlimited engagement at the Belle Theatre in Belleville.

A Woodfall production for United Artists, this picture achieved the unique distinction of being voted the Best Picture of The Year (1963) by all ten reviewer's participating in the famous New York Film Critics' poll, regarded by many as important as the Academy Awards themselves.

In addition, its star, Albert Finney, who plays the title role, was also voted Best Actor of the year, and its producer-director, Tony Richardson, was voted Best Director.

"Tom Jones" was also named Best Picture of the Year by the National Board of Review, and the Academy of Arts and Sciences, equivalent to the Academy Awards.

The Finney-Richardson team has been highly honored in legitimate theatre circles because of the Broadway success "Luther" in which the former appears in the title role and the latter directed.

The motion picture "Tom Jones" was adapted for the screen from the Fielding original by Osborne, and its brilliant cast also includes Susannah York, Hugh Griffith, Dame Edith Evans and Joan Greenwood. It was filmed almost in its entirety in English village and countryside which have changed very little from the country in which Fielding envisioned it some 200 years ago.

Skier Faces Charges Of Homicide

MUNICH, Germany (AP) — Willy Bogner Jr., one of West Germany's top skiers, was charged Monday with neglectful homicide in April's Swiss avalanche disaster that killed his Olympic teammate, Barbi Henneberger, and Wallace (Bud) Werner of the United States.

Dr. Karl Weber, lawyer for Bogner, told reporters the charges were filed by the prosecutor at Chur, Switzerland. The trial date has not been set.

Bogner, 27, son of a Munich ski clothes manufacturer, was directing a documentary film with Miss Henneberger, Werner and other skiers near St. Moritz, Switzerland, when the avalanche occurred April 21.

Weber said there had been no avalanche warning signs put up in the climbing area at the time and that Bogner and his camera crew thus could not be blamed for ignoring safety regulations.

Brigitte Bardot Gets High Praise From Jimmy Stewart

BY BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The blinking beck of the days way Jimmy Stewart talks it, he was sitting at the feet of Brigitte Bardot as they had drinks in her Paris apartment.

The French beauty gave a tiers of her blonde hair and smiled at him. "I simply love the kind of man who sits on the floor," she said.

And where was Mrs. Stewart at this time?

"Oh, she was sitting on the other side of Brigitte," the actor said. "It was a small room, and the floor was the only place I could find to sit. Me, a floor-sitter? I had never done it in my life before. It's too far for guys like me to get down there."

But Jimmy appreciated the compliment from B.B., and he has nothing but praise for her as an actress. He recently returned from filming a five-minute sequence with her in Paris for Eastman with Preckler, her first American film. She plays Brigitte Bardot.

"Man, she was great," said Stewart, who is not given to easy enthusiasm. "She was on time, she knew her lines, even though she is unfamiliar with English, and she delivered them with skill. And sexy! She's really got it.

"She has that quality that all the great ones had, and I'm learning back to the days of Jean Harlow. They start with great physical appeal, but they learn their business, too. They all turn out to be good actresses."

Henry Koster, who is directing and producing Brasmne with Preckles, confirmed the French charmer's acting skill.

"We had no trouble at all with her," he said. "We shot the 11 pages of dialogue in three days."

The director said he didn't know what Bardot was paid "but I imagine it was a fortune." Reports here indicate that it was about $500,000, fair pay for a three-day chore.

For June 10

Aries (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): Affairs connected with family, home and security demand priority. Speak up — offer definite program. You will obtain needed co-operation. Not wise to argue about money.

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20): Relative may ask advice about personal possession or purchase. Try not to commit yourself. Remain neutral. You may step out of family disputes. Key is sympathy, diplomacy.

Gemini (May 21 to June 20): Remember that recreation is as necessary as work. Check what you have and don't consider what "could have been." Cycle high. Good time to make fresh start, enlarge circles of contacts.

Cancer (June 21 to July 22): Be forthright. Place cards on table — face up. State your desires, needs . . . you'll get what you go after! Important to review basic programs, plans for advancement.

Leo (July 23 to Aug. 22): Harmony is key. Make minor concessions. Your viewpoint clearer in day or so. Stick to immediate issues. Utilize fine sense of showmanship. Member of opposite sex can be impressed.

Virgo (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22): Friendships very important. Don't rock boat of good will. One close to you needs sympathetic ear. Be understanding. Many of your wishes are close to fulfillment. Avoid extremes.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Some pressure indicated in connection with honors, reputation. Tendency is to be impatient . . . but wise course calls for patience. Analyze. Weigh one factor against another.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Fine lunar aspect points up ability to perceive trends. Speak, write, spread ideas. Gain indicated from written word. Day to enlarge. Avoid petty actions, persons. Adhere to ideals.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Avoid rash conclusions, actions. Applies especially to money as it affects business or marriage partner. Creative instincts at peak. Hobby, special interest could prove lucrative.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19): Fine for appointments which broaden horizons. Not so good for flirting with chance. Don't play high card just yet. Best to stick to what you know . . . remain on familiar ground.

Aquarius (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18): Especially good for making friends with fellow workers, those who serve you. Your policies should be clarified. In personal life, loved one confides in you. Provide moral support.

Pisces (Feb. 19 to Mar. 20): Fine for activity in connection with schools, hobbies. Touch of originality means much. Break from routine. Express thoughts in creative manner. Be polite but firm. Put across ideas.

If today is your birthday . . . you are independent in thought, action — you are completing major project this year. And soon you will embark upon new, adventurous course.

General Tendencies: Cycle high for Cancer. Special word to Capricorn: One who "flirts" can cause trouble.

Ford Dealership Opened By R. Stevenson in City

There's a new Ford dealership in Belleville.

It's the Stevenson Ford Sales, Ltd., at 331 North Front Street, now open for business and carrying a full line of Ford products.

President and general manager of the new Ford dealership is Roy Stevenson, formerly with Elliott Motors and well experienced in all phases of the motor car business.

Situated on the east side of North Front Street on the property known as the Charles Scott homestead, the new Ford dealership is starting with an open lot but by late summer a new showroom and garage, offering complete servicing and a full range of Ford parts will be ready.

ROY STEVENSON

USE HOUSE AS OFFICE

Plans for the new showroom and garage have been prepared and tenders are now out. The new showroom will have display space for five cars in the meantime the former Scott residence will be used as an office.

In the motor business since 1940 Mr. Stevenson started in the parts department at Pigden's garage at Eldorado. The following year he moved to Belleville with Bateman Motors and in 1952 went to Edgar Brothers in Port Hope.

Ten years ago he returned to Belleville to be with Elliott Motors where he was progressively wholesale parts salesman, service manager. A commission salesman used car sales manager for two years and finally assistant sales manager specializing in the truck and bus field.

CARRY FULL LINE

"We are carrying a full line for Fords, ranging from the Galaxie and Thunderbird models through the Ford custom, the Mustang, Fairlane and Falcon as well as Ford trucks," Mr. Stevenson said.

Mr. Stevenson, with Ernest Gowsell will head up a five-man sales staff. Lee Bradshaw will head up the service department.

Married to the former Vivian Welbourn, Mr. Stevenson has two small daughters, Kimberly Dawn, 2 and Shelley Elizabeth, 8 months. Mr. and Mrs. Stevenson attend the Wesleyan Methodist Church in Belleville.

World Tributes Mark Death Of Beaverbrook

Press Baron, Imperialist Dies at Country Estate

By ALAN WALKER

LONDON (CP)—Fleet Street gave Lord Beaverbrook press baron and champion of the British Empire, a page one farewell today, and tributes on his death Tuesday just 15 days after his 85th birthday came from all over the world.

Troubled by gout and sciatica, Lord Beaverbrook died peacefully at his country estate, Cherkley Court, in the wooded valley of Mickleham, Surrey, 17 miles from London. His family was at his bedside. No cause of death was announced.

Funeral arrangements were not yet complete early this morning.

Lord Beaverbrook died just as his thundering Evening Standard presses were completing a late edition.

Then someone lowered the Union Jack over The Daily Express office to half-staff and men of his mighty newspaper sadly began assembling an issue the big board would be worthy of the master they had lost.

Today The Daily Express gave much of six of its 14 pages to his life and death. And its masthead emblem, a crusader in full armor, appeared in black instead of the usual red.

DIED PEACEFULLY

His son, Max Aitken, who now becomes the second Baron Beaverbrook and will run the family empire, said his father died "peacefully" Tuesday afternoon.

Dusk had just settled over the gleaming black - glass Fleet Street headquarters when trickles of messages pouring in from the Queen, Sir Winston Churchill, the Duke of Windsor and countless other dignitaries began to reach and respected the Canadian-born millionaire publisher who had added a full life and a long quest for power in press and politics.

The Duke of Windsor, whose abdication from the throne Lord Beaverbrook defended, said: "Lord Beaverbrook lived in Canada, where he was born, in Britain and throughout the world. His many influential friends had always been his first concern."

Winston Churchill said of his work: "He roared through the industry like a flame, burning out all evil dross and entangled controversy going straight through to the objective—more planes in the sky."

Beaverbrook knew nothing about newspaper work when he took over the Daily Express in 1916. But he learned fast and was soon teaching his tutors. He cascaded record from him.

WAS TOUGH

Percy Cudlip recalled some years ago:

"Editing for Beaverbrook in the 1930s was merry hell. His energies, physical and mental, were boundless. He drove his teams unmercifully. His anger was frequent, and shattering. But he switched from harshness to humor with astonishing suddenness."

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: The forecast for today is for sunny but cool weather in the north country but over the rest of Ontario skies will be variable and there will be some showers. Afternoon temperatures will be about 15 degrees lower than they were Tuesday and range from the 50s in the north to the 70s in the south. Generally sunny weather is expected on Thursday with a warming trend in the north country.

17 Greeks, Spaniard Being Held

TORONTO (CP)—John Thomadakis, 21, serving a five month sentence for illegal entry to Canada, was released Tuesday after his lawyer filed notice of appeal and posted bail bond of $500.

Thomadakis' release came four hours after he signed a document saying he would appear for trial if summoned. But instead of being released immediately, he was taken back to cell.

Four hours later he was freed.

Rev. John Koulouras, one of the men who posted bail for the sailor, announced Thomadakis' release from jail. He said Thomadakis reported a man had gone to his cell, told him to get dressed and escorted him to a car in which he was driven to Father Koulouras' Greek Orthodox Church.

Jail officials confirmed that Thomadakis was released but would not elaborate.

HOLD 18

I. R. Sterling, regional administrator for the immigration department, said earlier that 17 Greeks and one Spaniard are being held in the Don Jail on immigration matters.

One of these men, Petros Vemakaris, a Greek, is the only one who has not been sentenced by the court for illegal entry, Mr. Sterling said in an interview. He has been remanded until until June 12 on a charge of illegal entry.

Rev. John Koulouras of St. George's Greek Orthodox Church said in an interview Tuesday the wives of six of the 17 Greek sailors being held are pregnant.

Father Koulouras sent a letter to Immigration Minister Tremblay Monday night asking for a review of these cases, particularly one involving a woman pregnant and they worried of when their husbands were deported at the end of their jail terms.

DON'T NEED JAIL

Mr. Sterling said more than half the deportation cases handled by the immigration department do not require jailing. Most are released on bond.

He denied that any are not told of their rights and said persons under deportation period orders are denied release only if it is thought they might abscond.

One of the Greeks being held, John Thomadakis, has written the Ontario Supreme Court declaiming he was held in custody for 30 days without a court appearance and was never advised of his right to counsel after his March 3 arrest.

Loans Will Help Farmers

That about sums up the criticism from opposition benches Tuesday of the government's farm credit amendments which put up another $200,000,000 in lending power for the Farm Credit Corporation.

The bill received approval in principle and today, clause-by-clause committee study is planned.

The bill doubles current loan ceilings to $40,000 and $55,000 and provides that the corporation may collect higher interest rates than the present five-per-cent. However, the lower rate still applies on loans up to $7,500.

Stanley Knowlan (PC-Macleanzie) struck the first note in the critical chorus, quoting figures in support of the contention that smaller farmers have been the chief borrowers to date for loans in the category under $20,000.

"It seems to me that from now on the taggers who will benefit will be those who have larger holdings. They will benefit at the expense of the small farmer."

His view was echoed and recorded.

Arnold Peters (NDP—Timiskaming) said that getting the

To Form Research Group

OTTAWA (CP) — A research foundation to stimulate new studies on the problems of the modern family is expected to be set up today at closing sessions of the Canadian Conference on the Family.

Conference sources said the merchant from the foundation or the research centre might take in not just Ottawa, but it is expected to become a clearing house for collection of existing sociological data on families in addition to stimulating new research.

Most of the 350 delegates from across Canada who have been meeting at Carleton University since Sunday feel they have only scratched the surface of the total problem.

They are expected to put forward a statement today regarding the necessity for more research and better co-ordination of existing studies on the family.

2,000 Chased Out Of Homes At Great Falls

Air Force Rescues 200 From Rural Districts

By BURL OSBORNE

GREAT FALLS, Mont. (AP) Flood waters chased at least 2,000 persons from their homes here Tuesday night after leaving 30 or more dead and hundreds homeless upstream.

Governor Tim Babcock estimated damage from the flood, Montana's worst, at $10,000,000, and President Johnson declared seven northwestern counties a disaster area.

In the northwest, hit first by the three-day flood, waters receded Tuesday night and rescue teams started mopping up.

The Sun River crested 11 feet over its flood stage of 12 feet at midnight in this city of 70,000. A spokesman for the air force and national guard's rescue operations estimated 2,000 to 2,500 persons were evacuated from homes here and in the flooded areas to the west and north.

Tom Sullivan, manager of a Red Cross station, said he had made rewards of about 1,300 persons evacuated from homes west of Great Falls and from an exclusive residential area surrounding a country club and golf course. The shelter is in a high school where more than 300 residents slept last night.

Bridges Impassable

And bridge in Great Falls held fast despite a pounding by heavy water, trees, parts of farm buildings and other debris.

Air force teams said they rescued at least 300 persons from rural areas. The air force was using Malmstrom Air Force Base at Great Falls for a headquarters for 11 helicopters and other craft.

At least 400 were homeless in the northwest counties designated for federal disaster relief Sunday after the Blackfoot Indian reservation.

Defence Plan Is Approved

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP) — Defence Minister Hellyer left today for a visit to Canadian troops in Cyprus, 10 hours after the Commons defence committee approved without amendment the government's bill to replace the three armed forces chiefs of staff with a single defence chief.

The bill still requires third and final reading in the Commons itself and approval by the Senate. Names of the men who will occupy the top positions on the defence staff are expected to be announced later this week.

Meanwhile, a source close to the cabinet said the government has no immediate plans for withdrawal of the 1,100-man Canadian contingent from Cyprus in event of a Turkish invasion of the island.

A senior military source appended, this note, however: The military would have plans for any contingency, indicating contingency plans exist for any necessary withdrawal.

Mr. Hellyer, who will also visit Canadian troops in West Germany, France and Egypt, indicated to the committee that the position of associate defence minister, now occupied by Lucien Cardin, Liberal MP for Richelieu-Verchères, will eventually be abolished.

He said the permanent members of the defence staff, the senior policy-making body in the defence department, will be the minister, associate minister, deputy minister, chief and vice-chief of defence staff, chairman of the Defence Research Board —and a parliamentary secretary to the minister if one is appointed.

There was no immediate indication still questions Mr. Lucien Cardin might assume in event his present post is abolished.

Thinking is the defence department is that an associate minister was required when the Liberals took office to counter pressure of work in the department, but that one minister soon will be able to handle the job alone.

Gen. Hellyer appeared before the committee Tuesday night in a final rebuttal to the three chiefs of staff and the government's bill: former conservative defence minister Douglas Harkness, Calgary, publisher of the Winnipeg Free Press and a wartime brigadier, and retired Air Marshal W. A. Curtis, former chief of air staff.

Senate Chokes Off Filibuster On Civil Rights

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate voted today, in a history-making move, to choke off the 75-day southern filibuster against the civil rights bill.

The vote to apply the Senate's debate - limiting closure rule was 71 to 29. This was four more votes than the required two-thirds majority.

Each senator's time to debate the bill and all amendments now will be limited to one hour. This appears to assure Senate passage of the far-reaching bill, possibly before the end of next week.

The House of Representatives passed the bill Feb. 10 by a vote of 290 to 130. The Senate has been battling over it since March 9, with southern opponents mounting a record-breaking filibuster against it.

The Beaver Was There!

Staccato Style Gave Sense of Drama

LONDON (CP)—Short, stabbing, staccato sentences; lavish use of exclamation marks; an urgent, feverish sense of drama.

These were among the journalistic qualities that made Lord Beaverbrook an unforgettable figure on Fleet Street and won remarkable praise for his books on contemporary history. He wrote with an irresistible relish.

Disclaiming literary graces but pinpointing all the telling details, Beaverbrook drew on personal memories. In his book Men and Power 1917-18, published in 1956, he wrote:

"It may be asked: 'Were you there?' I was there!"

The source material for his books was hard to beat. They included his own first-hand experience, the 1,000 boxes of Lloyd George papers; the records of his close friend, Canadian-born Bonar Law; and of two former Canadian prime ministers, Sir Robert Borden and R. B. Bennett, later a viscount.

Beaverbrook won tributes for his graphic histories but it was in his own newspapers that he finally turned on the heat.

Two weeks before his death, The Daily Express carried a stinging indictment of the British government for allowing a fine meat to be exported to France while Englishmen went without.

Put a levy on beef," exhorted the editorial.

"Tax the foreigner.

"Make him take his hands off our food.

"That is what the government must do!"

Nobody was in doubt about the author of the editorial.

The Beaverbrook success story in journalism started slowly.

One day in 1910, a young millionaire newly arrived from Canada, the Beaver met on the French Riviera a British editor named Ralph Blumenfeld, whose Daily Express newspaper was in financial difficulties. Beaverbrook loaned Blumenfeld £25,000. By 1917 the paper was virtually bankrupt. The Beaver cut a deal for 1,000 tons of newsprint and took close personal control. He moved into a flat atop No. 8 Shoe Lane, just off Fleet Street, and began the day-and-night task of breathing life into the paper.

A Beaverbrook editor, John Gordon, recalled:

"Through endless hours, often till long after midnight, he sat with his staff creating, devising and putting into large words to have something new, something different, something exciting."

His grand - daughter, Lady Jean Campbell, was a Beaverbrook correspondent and a Beaverbrook pupil. She said his lessons were:

"Put the best strawberry on top of the basket.

"Write short sentences. Cut, cut, cut.

"Always interview people face to face."

In his last speech May 30 Beaverbrook distilled the basics of a lifetime:

"The code of a good journalist should be written within himself alone. It should not be written in parchment, but on his heart. First he must be true to himself. The man who is not true to himself is no journalist. . . He must also, I believe, be a man of optimism He has no business to be a doctor of gloom and despondency."

Says Daylight Saving Time Great Strain on Family Life

OTTAWA (CP) — A Woodstock woman has sent a telegram to the Canadian Conference on the Family saying the present daylight saving time family life is changing to and from daylight time.

Mrs. Reine E. Burman said Tuesday in a wire to Conference President A. D. P. Heeney of Ottawa:

"In twenty years of child-raising I have found greatest stress on our family is that imposed from outside by yearly change to daylight saving time.

"I beg you to consider violence done to peace of home and nerves of mother and system of sleep and waking of all by (this) cruel practice.

"If Governor - General and good wife were to speak out against it they would earn lifelong gratitude of thousands of parents and children in areas afflicted by daylight saving across Canada."

Mr. Heeney said he acknowledged the telegram but pointed out to Mrs. Burman that the conference is not set up to entertain resolutions calling for action of this kind.

Highway Safety Crusader Wants Prince Philip Charged

LONDON (AP)—A crusader for highway safety says he will bring court action against Prince Philip and the other driver in the weekend royal collision unless the police prosecute both men.

Retired Navy Lt. - Cmdr. William Boaks, 60, had notice of his intent served on the Queen's husband, the other driver, William Cooper, and the chief constable of Berkshire County, where the collision occurred Saturday.

Boaks said he would file a private prosecution unless the police start proceedings within six months.

"If Cooper only is prosecuted I will go to court and ask them to summon Prince Philip as well," Boaks said. "If they refuse, I will go to the High Court."

Drivers involved in accidents should be brought before the court, regardless of their position, he added.

The prince was driving and Queen Elizabeth was riding in the back seat of the Rover sedan when it and Cooper's Ford collided.

Elliott Motors Ltd. to Hold Three-Day House-Warming To Mark Move to New Home

Elliott Motors Ltd. have moved in their new location on North Front Street.

And to celebrate the occasion they are holding a gala three-day opening, complete with refreshments, gifts for all visitors and a big free dance in the service garage on Saturday night.

The official opening will be held Thursday, Friday and Saturday. You can make the new location at 366 North Front Street, just a quarter mile south of the 401 cloverleaf on No. 14 Highway.

Rated as one of the largest auto dealerships between Toronto and Montreal, Elliott's have spared no expense to provide the last word in sales and service facilities at their new location.

PREMISES SPACIOUS

The premises stretch nearly 400 feet along North Front St. and 25,000 square feet of floor space has been provided in the imposing new structure.

Fronted by a glass enclosed showroom with an eight vehicle capacity the new Elliott's has a service garage of nearly 9,000 square feet with sixteen service bays.

In addition there are two used car reconditioning bays, a tandem lubrication bay and a wash bay with capacity for washing up to three cars.

Elliott's have taken on the distributorship for General Tires with a special tire servicing and sales department, headed by Douglas Cooke, who has 15 years experience in the tire business.

Texaco gasoline and lubricants are used exclusively at Elliott's.

The service department remains open until three in the morning, except Saturdays and Sundays, while a 24-hour towing service is provided.

A feature of Elliott's service department is a 4-truck frame straightening unit with a 40-tonne pressure capacity, the only one of its kind between Toronto and Montreal.

Until the former Elliott building on Dundas St. was sold, the firm's body shop will remain at the old location.

NEW CARS AVAILABLE

Elliott's have a large stock of General Motors parts and accessories and have two wholesale parts vehicles serving the surrounding counties on a weekly basis.

Walter T. Elliott, president of Elliott Motors Ltd., has been in the automotive field since 1942 when he set up a Buick and Pontiac agency in Stirling.

BIG VARIETY

Over 100 new models are carried at all times to give the customer a good selection from which to choose. Last year, 600 new units were sold, in addition to hundreds of Goodwill used cars and trucks.

But a customer doesn't necessarily have to buy a car at Elliott's.

They'll lease either cars or trucks on a short or long-term basis. At the moment, 40 units are out on long-term lease, while six units are kept on hand daily for weekly rentals.

Bruce Philp, as sales manager, heads a staff of 14 salesmen, some holders of the master sales award for up to seven years and including specialists in the heavy duty truck field.

MODERN HEATING

A feature of Elliott's service garage is the ceiling-height gas fired infra-red radiant heaters.

This same feature is carried out of doors to the covered, open-all, gasoline service area. Even in winter weather attendants will be able to service cars in comfort and without heavy jackets.

It's ultra-modern radiant heaters in the shop area, but oil fired baseboard radiators heat the showroom and general office area.

And there is a lot of office space. There are no less than eight different offices for use by company officials and salesmen. In addition on a mezzanine floor are the present and accounting offices and company board room.

Watson and Wiegand were architects for the new Elliott auto sales and service complex, with construction being supervised by company employee Roy Brooks.

Loyalists Will Hold Service at Adolphustown

The United Empire Loyalists' annual memorial church service is being held on Sunday, June 14th, at 2.30 p.m. in the church of St. Alban the Martyr, Anglican, Adolphustown. Adolphustown which is, for those not familiar with this area, just about two miles east of the Glenora Ferry on Highway 33.

The Rev. D. F. Dunning, formerly of Belleville, is the new incumbent of the parish of Adolphustown, to which he was appointed only three weeks ago after having served as assistant curate at St. George's Church, Trenton, for two years.

It is hoped that many descendants of the United Empire Loyalists and others who share in honoring those determined settlers who carved new homes out of the wilderness here 180 years ago, will attend this service of commemoration.

Lawrence Kells Special Speaker

"While the idea is sometimes not well accepted, all pupils in one classroom or grade are not able to work with facility and satisfaction with identical problems," said L. A. Kells as he addressed the regular luncheon meeting of the Kiwanis Club of Belleville on Tuesday.

Mr. Kells picked as his topic, "A Changing View of Mathematics for Our Schools". He continued, "there is probably some truth that by the time an item of change has found acceptance in our school systems, it is ready for discard.

"In arithmetic another important principle faces educators in addition to curriculum changes; the necessity of implementing approaches and understandings that have long been known to be desirable; the right of the world of change in science and mathematics, he stated.

He went on to say that "while most people know or suspect that mathematics has a history and a meaningful structure and that arithmetic forms an elementary branch of this structure, much of the instruction in this subject has taken little account of this common knowledge."

The speaker continued by saying that thinking and discovering as exercises and procedures will give new light and life, enabling children to give thoughtful responses rather than automatic answers.

In conclusion Mr. Kells said "a great deal is going on in arithmetic. Most of it will directly affect all of us, and most certainly our teachers and their pupils. The next decade will be a challenging one for teachers who believe that arithmetic learning can be creative and rewarding for children".

The speaker was introduced by B. McKenna.

Blood Donors Are Requested

The Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans of Belleville are making an appeal for blood donors.

Clinic will be held tomorrow at the Kiwanis Centre on East Dundas Street—in the afternoon and at night.

Students Study Past Records of County Council

In a unique experiment, a group of Grade 10 honor students at Moira Secondary School has been doing historical research on century-old documents from the Hastings County Museum archives.

The documents examined were the records of the Hastings County Clerk's office from 1850 to 1870. These records contain the petitions, correspondence, accounts, recommendations and laws dealt with by early councils.

At the conclusion of their two-week study, the students summarized their findings.

First, contrary to a popular belief that people were good writers a century ago, the students found that the writing was "generally hard to read." In fact, good handwriting was the exception rather than the rule. The students suggested that this probably was caused by "the lack of general education facilities."

Moreover, the students found that the documents were hard to read because of a somewhat difficult style, the use of archaic words (for example "shewing") and poor English grammar.

The study showed that county government was well organized and that systematic procedures were used to deal with the variety of matters it was obliged to consider.

It was apparent that county council of the 1850's spent a great deal of time considering roads and bridges. It was also apparent that the roads and bridges weren't very substantial, and they required much repairing.

The common use of English currency in the 1850's was seen in the many accounts submitted to council, and the prices of both labor and materials suggested that money had more value then than it has today.

The impression gained of Belleville was that it was a small, sparsely settled town possessing more than one newspaper, and departing for part of its prosperity on the recently completed Grand Trunk Railroad (1856.)

At the conclusion of their two week study of the county papers, the students were entertained at the Hastings County Museum.

Taking part in the study group were Sandra Clarke, Mary Lou Chisholm, Bob Banting, Peter Bishop, Don Brunet and Gary Dennis.

The study group was supervised by Mr. Gerald Boyce.

USED CONSTANTLY

SASKATOON (CP) — The first cobalt-60 therapy cell established in the Saskatoon cancer clinic of the University of Saskatchewan campus has treated thousands of patients and still is in good shape 14 years after its introduction. The unit is in constant use, says Dr. Charles Burkell, clinic director and head of the university's therapeutic radiology department.

Accident Prevention Group Plans Meet

Only about 50 of the 200 delegates expected Thursday at the annual meeting of the Central Ontario Division of the Industrial Accident Prevention Association in Kingston have bought tickets so far, according to Mrs. M. Karr, secretary of the division. The rest, (and 200 turned out, to the last annual meeting) apparently expect to register at the last minute, Mrs. Kerr said.

The meeting starts at noon, with assorted tours of Collins Bay Penitentiary, The Aluminum Co. of Canada plant and of Fort Henry during the afternoon. Dinner will be at the LaSalle Hotel in Kingston, with C.J.S. (Syl) Apps, M.L.A. for Kingston, as guest speaker.

Tickets for the meeting were to have been ordered by June 8 according to a circular sent out by the I.A.P.A.

Horticultural Planning Bodies Consider Trees

Three executive members of the Horticultural Society met three representatives of the Community Planning Association at the Upper Bridge Monday evening to discuss the planting of trees at that spot.

Old photographs show a considerable row of trees between Station Street and the river, stretching north from the Upper Bridge. Some of the stumps still remain, besides the three cut last month.

There is plenty of space for growing trees between the road and the retaining wall, till it narrows at the bend, and even there, when think as a tempt should be made to plant trees, even at the cost of encroaching slightly on the roadway.

The group that met on Tuesday thought that a dozen trees would do the job.

The group considered a possible set of steps down to the river level, just above the Upper Bridge.

A short stretch of walkway along the foot of the hill could possibly be built another time, so that when water levels are right) people could stroll all along the river bank.

The group agreed that a meeting with the mayor might be useful, to discuss this par-

Builders Get Answers From City Engineer

Mayor Jack Ellis and city engineer Wilbur Bidwell answered questions at the Quinte Home Builders' Association meeting last night, by defence of a city by-law requiring city inspection of sewer laterals, from the street line to the foundations of houses. The mayor, who is also a member of the association, came in his official capacity and brought the engineer in response to an angry letter sent after last month's meeting.

City regulations provide for inspection of all new plumbing, with inspection fees totalling about $9 for the average single family house. The new regulations, passed early in May, require that lateral connections be inspected after they have been laid and bedded, and before the trench is backfilled. The inspection costs an additional two dollars.

The home builders had two complaints. They didn't like the extra two-dollar fee, and they were worried about delays in building, if they had to wait for the inspection.

The inspection is required, Mr. Purcell told the meeting, because too many laterals had failed within a few years of being laid. In most cases, the fault had been in the bedding of the pipe. Even since the inspection has been required, he said, plumbers have sometimes been ready for him, but the builders have never been delayed waiting for the inspector.

Present were Mr. Downing, Mrs. Hyde and Mr. Schlievert, representing the Horticultural Society and Mrs. Cain, Mr. Greig and Mr. Wiegand representing the CPAC.

Lawn Watering Regulations Are Announced

Lawn watering regulations for Belleville are changed for the coming summer. Previous regulations restricted lawn watering to the hours of seven to nine in the morning, and five to nine in the evening, during the hottest months.

The hour-based restrictions remain, for the coming summer, but the Commission decided Friday to lay on additional restrictions, based on days. Houses with even numbers on all streets will be allowed to water lawns Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday each week during the specified hours; odd numbered houses can water lawns Monday, Wednesday and Friday. Anyone can water a lawn on Sunday.

Reason for the limit is that the city just can't pump enough water. Capacity of the pumps at the filter station is a total of 10 million gallons per day, but one million gallons of this is required for backwash, (cleaning the filters). This leaves a rated capacity of 9 million gallons per day. Some days last summer, the filter station pumped more than 11 million gallons.

The lawn watering restrictions are planned to assure constant pressure for all water users in the city, Utilities Commissioner Gerald Ryde said today.

Two Students Bring Honors To School

TRENTON — At Monday night's meeting of the Trenton school board, high school principal John Garrett told the board that two students at the school had recently brought honor to their school and the town by placing at the Ontario sports' meet at Waterloo.

David Barr placed second in the senior pole vault event and Victor Witrlak, fourth in the broad jump.

Mr. Garrett pointed out also that Isobel Williamson had recently been sent on an "Adventure in Citizenship" trip to Ottawa by the Trenton Rotary Club, where she exchanged views about the capital city on a taped interview with Robert Temple. Mr. Fry, Hastings South and Diane Gillespie will visit the United Nations this summer as the guest of district I.O.D.E. and Rebekah lodges.

GOES TO ALBERTA

A 16-year-old Grade 11 student at Trenton High School, Thomas Baker, has been chosen to take part in the Canada Centennial Committee's summer time program of sending students to various parts of Canada for a two weeks' visit.

Tom, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Baker of 67 Herman St. West, will go to Alberta and will be billeted in a private home. The name of the community which he will visit is not known yet, but the community officials will be expected to provide educational and recreational facilities for their guest. Tom will be among a group of 24 students from other parts of Canada and a two-teacher team will chaperone the group. All expenses, including travel by rail, except for pocket money, is to be borne by the Centennial Committee.

Tom was chosen for his character, his scholastic ability, his personality and his athletic progress at the school.

Daniel Senik Named to Commission

TRENTON — Daniel Senik, for three years chairman of the Trenton Community Gardens Commission, was Monday night named to fill out the term of retiring 1964 chairman, Robert Allora, who is leaving Trenton July 1, to take up residence in Montreal in connection with his employment.

A vice-chairman will be named to the commission after town council has appointed another member to fill out the roster.

At Monday's night's meeting, maintenance problems were discussed at length, with the meeting lasting from 7:30 p.m. to 11 p.m.

Board member ex-officio, Councillor Edward Todd will see that gas be done about lowering or lengthening the water intake in the river so that "free" water can be used to cool condensers on the ice-making machinery. When the river level is low, getting water this way is a problem and a switch over to town water is costly. Councillor Todd felt that a pump at the scene might be in order.

Seats in the arena will be painted and repaired, as will dressing room walls and wood-work. Floors in the building will receive attention and the foyer generally revitalized. All this is in order with annual maintenance program, by which the arena is kept in top condition.

Summertime promotions at the gardens includes a Hootenanny on June 12 and the special appearance of a Toronto singing star, Pat Harvey; live bands and a disc jockey program, possibly tied in with TV broadcasts, will alternate as attractions for the Saturday night dances.

FIND OX SKULL

GRANDVIEW, Man. (CP)—A muskox skull believed to be 3,000 to 3,000 years old has been found in a gravel pit, four miles northeast of here.

Swarm of Bees Makes Home in Cedar Hedge

TRENTON — Somebody may have to tell Mrs. Kenneth Shoniker's three - year - old daughter about the birds — but they won't have to bother when it comes to bees. The youngster watched a swarm of them all day long yesterday from her front window.

The busy makers flew into the Shoniker yard early in the day, finally coming to rest on the cedar hedge at the front of the lawn.

Mrs. Shoniker and her neighbors kept the children in the house, hoping the bees would shove off.

A neighbor phoned the CFBQ pet clinic and should have won a prize for the submitting the strangest item to date for the program.

But, in response to a broadcast, Lambert Whaley, a beekeeper from the Wooler Road, showed up at the Shoniker home with a hive baited with honey and in an hour-and-a-half, most of the bees were safely in the hive. Mr. Whaley estimates that there are 22,000 bees to a pound and figures there were five pounds of them, more than 100,000 on the cedar hedge.

Bees generally "leave home" after a new Queen is born and the old Queen decides to leave with her faithful retainers. Mr. Whaley is now engaged in clipping the wings of some of his old Queens, so they won't leave home.

Mrs. Shoniker got stung once yesterday, but she and her family were intrigued at the visit of the bees and mean to watch their habits further.

DUMPING POSTPONED

Garbage dumping in the gravel pit at Stanley Heights, if it is to come, has been postponed until next Tuesday.

Council yesterday met with 12 Stanley Heights residents, Dr. E. W. Dow, MOH and an official from the Ontario Department of Health, and decided to hold further discussions before ordering the trucks to proceed with the filling of the pit.

Residents were dissatisfied with the conclusion of yesterday's meeting and it was decided that an association of residents would be formed.

A meeting will be held to-night in the gravel pit at 7:00 p.m. In the event it rains, the meeting will be postponed until Thursday night.

Remand Man Up for Assault For Examination

TRENTON—Joseph Scicutto, Carrying Place Road, Trenton, charged with assaulting his wife, with intent to wound or disfigure, made a brief appearance in magistrate's court at Trenton yesterday and was remanded for a psychiatric examination.

Robert MacKeller of Sutcliffe Bird., charged with leaving the scene of an accident, was fined $100 and ordered to pay $3.50 court costs, when he was found guilty of failing to stop after backing into a car, owned by Carman Livingstone and parked at the Legion Hall.

Dennis Asselstine, charged with driving while disqualified, was sentenced to seven days in the county jail. The accused testified that he had not been the driver of a car chased by Const. Sidney Vickers on a motorcycle. However, Magistrate T. Y. Wills said that he was satisfied that the constable knew Asselstine by sight sufficiently well to make the identification.

Bringing Up Baby

HINTS COLLECTED BY MRS. DAN GERBER, MOTHER OF 9

The development of a baby's vision is a gradual thing just as all phases of physical and mental development. At birth, he can distinguish only light and dark and his eye work independently. But along about 3 months of age eye muscles are sufficiently developed to focus both eyes at the same time. By this time, too, vision sharpens and he begins to distinguish shapes, responds happily to familiar faces and bright-coloured objects.

Sight-seeing strategy. Eye muscles need exercise to develop. You can encourage baby to exercise his eyes by providing things that will help him on his sight-seeing excursions. A gently swaying mobile ... bright-coloured or glint n' glitter. A gay toy or two attached to his crib ... a balloon tied to playpen bars. And, if you place the crib where he can follow your comings and goings, he'll get plenty of happy eyefuls.

Eye-appeal for a baby meal. We all know that babies react favourably to pleasing flavours but little appetites respond to pleasing colours, too. Gerber Strained Egg Yolks have the sunniest colour that ever lighted on a baby's eye. Add to this a dreamy, creamy texture and a delicious fresh-egg flavour and you've a delicacy fit for a little prince or princess. They provide a good dietary source of vitamin A, iron and protein for excellent nutritional benefits.

Juicy story with nutritional overtones. Gerber Strained Fruit Juices offer your baby sipping pleasure beyond measure plus a good source of vitamin C. Refreshing as you please for baby's "juice breaks" ... a wonderful snack time pick-me-up for toddlers on the go. Five delectable varieties to choose from ... all delightfully mild-to please little palates. Pasteurized, of course, for your baby's protection ... carefully strained for easy feeding. Gerber Baby Foods, Niagara Falls, Canada.

Water Safety Week

This is Red Cross Water Safety Week in Canada.

The Red Cross gives lots of safety tips, but better than any tip is one unassailable rule—always use common-sense when doing anything on, in, under or near the water.

Common-sense, for instance, will save you from taking too seriously the first Red Cross safety tip on water safety: "Ski only from sunrise to one hour after sunset." Anybody who skis an hour after sunset would be dashing about in the dusk at the most dangerous time of the day, just when all the reluctant fishermen and boat enthusiasts who had put off their return until too late were speeding for harbor. If you have got to ski in the dark, which is against the law, do it an hour before sunrise—you won't have so much company on the lake.

The Red Cross comes up with our commonsense rule in other words, "respect water." A lot of novices drown every year—but if a check ster, on the tawny yellow, and there isn't a man in this city cost out of place. He is fit and magnificent. If he'd calm down and endeavor to be polite he would be glad to have him, and on anybody's doorstep he'd cause tourists to stop.

He's afraid of nothing except proximity to man, and the only thing that keeps him away from our buildings is the winter's scarcity of food in the open. These cats are so much at home able if taking care of themselves at all times, which makes them such a problem to the bunch of all the pampered house cats in this world who must be brushed, combed, petted on cakes and dainties, and must have a physician for their boddybye. When a wicked blizzard has subsided, and the sun rises cold in the East, you can look out the window and see cat tracks on the new drifts, where these animals have been the first to stir.

These wild house cats competitors of the country cousins. The game wardens never hesitate when they see one. They, the cats, will destroy birds' nests, devour the young, and will hunt and catch rabbits, pheasant, and quail. They have been known to take new lambs. They are wily, artful hunters, defying the skill of warden or by their past association with man. Around the farm, they will go after chicks and even grown hens; they will glean around the hog trough, and help with the rat problem. They will also do some way to get at household food, and one time I plucked a rooster and left him in a chilly until I could come back and draw him, and I found him on a high beam of the barn with the cat that snarled at me. O, yes.

We haven't had a dog for a couple of years, and this accounts for the present prevalence of cats. A farm dog keeps them at a distance, but any one of these athletic cats could kick a dog in open combat, and a dog is lucky that he never quite catches one. Our own bouse cat, Bubbles, doesn't seem to mind these parasites. She goes and comes, and I've seen her sitting in the middle of a bunch of these cats without any further mixing. Stubbie has a strong hunting nature, and has brought back rabbits and partridge her self. But Stubbie has never stepped over the line, and her tendencies toward the jungle are secondary to her love of good living, home and family.

Yesterday I wanted a length of electric cable that I had coiled and hung over a nail in the barn, and I've looked in the old place and reached up for it. I didn't know this gorgeous sultan of a jet-black cat was sleeping on the timber there, and my hand wasn't ten inches from him when he awoke. He took the wild horses of the thundering herd came pounding down off that perch. He got there in ten feet through the air over my head, with a snarl, that would curdle milk. He hit the floor with a thump that jiggled cobwebs off the rafters. Waking suddenly, he was confused, and as he went around and around the stable he was looking for a way out. At the gratuitous door he caught a glimmer of sunlight and he shot through a propulsion the Space Agency would envy. That's the closest I ever got to one of these cats in my life.

Fish and wildlife biologists tell us there are more wild house cats than ever before. They are not always a tame pussy that has jumped the reservation — they may be several generations removed from domesticity. They breed in the wild, and they raise good-sized families. Whenever a new one shows up around here I inquire in the neighborhood if anybody has lost a cat, and so far I've never located a previous owner. They are all handsome brutes, and if the plain house cat was once a wild, savage beast like these, I should have supposed the first cat-tamer to bring one to bed, and why he ever supposed that he could do it.

Best Praise Often None

Montreal Gazette

The expeditions that Capt. Robert Scott made into the Antarctic sledge brought out the traits of human nature under stress and strain. In the expeditions were those who could play their part well, and those who could not, among rigors, so long as they were repeatedly praised and the courage of others was duly recognized. And there were the others who played their part, saying nothing, but still needing expecting nothing to be said.

These cases of bad behavior led one of Capt. Scott's comrades, Dr. Edward Wilson, to remark: "What he said and done, the best sledger in a man who sees what has to be done and does it — and says nothing about it."

Very close is this to the attitude of Capt. MacWhirr in Joseph Conrad's novel "Typhoon." He was a matter-of-fact, commonposed Scotsman, taking his ship safely through the worst that the sea can do, and doing it in a plain, matter-of-fact way.

During the storm fighting breaks out between decks — a hurricane of fighting coolies. Capt. MacWhirr sends Jukes, his chief mate, down to put a stop to it, while he watches the course of the ship. "Don't have ... fighting ... board ship," he says through the scream of the typhoon, as if were all a reasonable part of a ship's management.

"We have done it, sir," gasps Jukes, when he rejoins him. "Thought you would," says Capt. MacWhirr. Having expressed some better praise, and getting none, Jukes mutters to himself: "By Jove!"

"Wind fell all at once," says MacWhirr, commenting upon the typhoon's change. But Jukes, still resentful, bursts out: "If you think it was an easy job ..." But his captain, clinging to the rail, pays no attention, "According to my book," he remarks, looking out over the sea, "the worst is yet to come."

It was bitterly exasperating. But Capt. MacWhirr was still the sort of man who could keep his ship through a typhoon, and save his crew.

This was much the spirit of Wellington. Those who served under him knew well the high relish of rarely — perhaps never — being commended for what they had done. In the despatches after his battles he most often simply gave the list of his officers according to rank, and spoke with the utmost formality of their valued services. Only he who had really done the work could feel little reward in finding themselves cited with special distinction, among those who had done little, or even fumbled or failed.

After the battle of Badajos in the Peninsula War there was no special praise for the officers of the engineers who had made the victory possible. The artillery was ignored in Wellington's Waterloo despatch. One of his artillery officers could not help saying: "to read the despatch, there might have been no British artillery present at all."

To some, such omissions seemed inexplicably and unjustifiable. Yet they were Wellington's way. He almost compulsively made a man feel commending him at all; for this made clear that he had only done his job and sought no praise.

This attitude appears very clearly in a letter Wellington wrote in the letter part of his life. His war - made popularity had, for the time, passed. To it Duke was hated by many for his ultra-conservatism that was resisting even needed reforms. Once cheered by the crowds in London, he now saw crowds hurling rocks through the windows of his house.

One June morning in 1832 the Duke of Wellington, riding through Holborn, found an ugly crowd choking his way. An attempt was made to drag him from his horse. But a gentleman in a small carriage — a tilbury — came to his rescue.

There was some stone-throwing. But the gentleman in the tilbury never lost his place. His skill in driving was unbounded, and through the menacing crowd, covering the rear, the tilbury had been only watch ahead.

When at last he came through safely, Wellington remembered that gentleman, in what was a sort of despatch after battle. He did not praise the unknown gentleman in the tilbury for driving probably valuable cover in a difficult situation; but it was higher still. The gentleman in the tilbury had earned the Duke's highest esteem for having covered one for any soldier.

It may seem hard. But it was the way of the best sledge-drivers in the Antarctic. It was the spirit of Capt. MacWhirr. He has said only: "Thought you would." Jukes failed to realize that Capt. MacWhirr would have said far less if he had said a word more.

Art on Italian Money

By John Gould in the Christian Science Monitor.

More often than you'd think, somebody's pretty pussy cat reverts to long forgotten savagery and becomes a wild thing again. Maine, to which worldcircuiting ship capitalists returned cats from all over, actually has a problem in this respect. You name a kind of cat, and Maine has it; and while some of them sit on doorsteps and adorn the domestic scene, others roam the wilderness and are just as fierce and untamed as they were in the beginning. I know a place, five miles from any house, where you may see a handsome Siamese cat hunting along the road when you drive through at night. This cat has been there for at least ten years, and she is as wild as any fox, fisher, and raccoon.

I have three such cats who have wintered in or about our buildings. They will move into the woods for the summer, and except at a distance I won't see them until next fall, or again. These cats are not at all like the "alley cats" in the city, which scrounge and forage and either have a knot in their tails or sticky flypaper about their persons.

These wild country cats are smooth and sleek, and almost any of them handsome enough to break up a society cat show. One of my wild cats is a dark ster, on the tawny yellow, and there isn't a mark on him. He is out out of place. He is fit and magnificent. If he'd calm down and endeavor to be polite he would be glad to have him, and on anybody's doorstep he'd cause tourists to stop.

He's afraid of nothing except proximity to man, and the only thing that keeps him away from our buildings is the winter's scarcity of food in the open. These cats are so much at home able if taking care of themselves at all times, which makes them such a problem to the bunch of all the pampered house cats in this world who must be brushed, combed, petted on cakes and dainties, and must have a physician for their boddybye. When a wicked blizzard has subsided, and the sun rises cold in the East, you can look out the window and see cat tracks on the new drifts, where these animals have been the first to stir.

These wild house cats competitors of the country cousins. The game wardens never hesitate when they see one. They, the cats, will destroy birds' nests, devour the young, and will hunt and catch rabbits, pheasant, and quail. They have been known to take new lambs. They are wily, artful hunters, defying the skill of warden or by their past association with man. Around the farm, they will go after chicks and even grown hens; they will glean around the hog trough, and help with the rat problem. They will also do some way to get at household food, and one time I plucked a rooster and left him in a chilly until I could come back and draw him, and I found him on a high beam of the barn with the cat that snarled at me. O, yes.

We haven't had a dog for a couple of years, and this accounts for the present prevalence of cats. A farm dog keeps them at a distance, but any one of these athletic cats could kick a dog in open combat, and a dog is lucky that he never quite catches one. Our own bouse cat, Bubbles, doesn't seem to mind these parasites. She goes and comes, and I've seen her sitting in the middle of a bunch of these cats without any further mixing. Stubbie has a strong hunting nature, and has brought back rabbits and partridge her self. But Stubbie has never stepped over the line, and her tendencies toward the jungle are secondary to her love of good living, home and family.

Yesterday I wanted a length of electric cable that I had coiled and hung over a nail in the barn, and I've looked in the old place and reached up for it. I didn't know this gorgeous sultan of a jet-black cat was sleeping on the timber there, and my hand wasn't ten inches from him when he awoke. He took the wild horses of the thundering herd came pounding down off that perch. He got there in ten feet through the air over my head, with a snarl, that would curdle milk. Sick Civilization

Now it's happened in Canada.

About a month ago, Canadians recoiled in horror from a news story about a New York girl who was raped and robbed and screaming from her shelter. Seventy a hundred bystanders watched, and did nothing, as the attacker caught her again and beat her on the street. A sad aspect of a sick civilization? Yes, but it couldn't happen in Canada, Canadians thought.

But nearly the same thing happened in Toronto Saturday. A gang of five punks beat and kicked a man, his wife and his son in the middle of a shopping plaza. Forty members of a wedding party watched, and did nothing.

The members of the wedding party might have had excuses for not moving, of course. They were probably wearing their best clothes, they might have been fat and clumsy as most Canadians are by the age of 30, and half their number were women. But the fact remains that if a group of forty people, regardless of how fat, clumsy and well dressed that group is, moves in on five punks, the punks will run. All the wedding guests lacked was decency and courage.

Twenty thousand students and citizens, rioted in Seoul in protest against the regime of President Chung Hee Park. They charged Park's government with corruption, indifference to the poverty of the masses and the use of police state methods. These were the same complaints which led to the downfall of former president Syngman Rhee, four years ago. In other words, the trouble is that the government is still Rheesomable.

An increased number of transients seeking sleeping quarters at the cell block at the police station have been noted by police authorities this month. With all the lights having elapsed, already a total of 12 transients and one soldier have been given a night's lodging within the confines of the local police station. The largest number to register in any particular night was on Saturday night last when five knights of the road were accommodated.

Widely recognized throughout Canada as the most outstanding naval organization of its dimension, the navy band of the H.M.C.S. York of Toronto will be heard in Bellevill Jan. 28 to 30 in a been learned. Arrangements for the band's appearance in Belleville was made yesterday by Harry Moorman, manager of the Belleville Municipal Band. Comprised of approximately 55 top - ranking bandsmen, the H.M.C.S. York Naval Band is conducted by a former Belleville man who at one time conducted the Belleville Band. He is Lieut. Commander A. E. Hawley, R.C.N.V.R. the highest ranked naval bandsmaster in Canada.

Apparently some person wanting coal for his own boat, and unable to purchase the same stole them from a power cruiser belonging to Walter Wallbridge of Henry Street, some time during the winter months. Mr. Wallbridge had beached his power cruiser for the winter adjacent to the Wharf Street Boating Club premises on South Front Street. Yesterday when he examined his craft prior to spring launching he found the propeller, propeller shaft, rudder and other removable accessories missing.

Small Print on Soft Drink Bottle Can Be Read 2 Ways

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Should persons on a sugar-free diet drink sugar-free soft drinks? The advertisements state they are good for all, yet on the bottle in small print it says that the drinks are only for those who are required to use a substitute for sugar. — Mrs. E. B.

The small print on the bottle I just looked at reads "artificial sweeteners which should be used only by persons who must restrict intake of ordinary sweets."

This is a bit ambiguous, because you can read it in either of two ways — that only sugar-restricted people should use these artificial sweeteners, or that such people should only use the artificial sweeteners and not sugar.

The latter makes sense.

The other — and wrong — way for avoiding sugar may be nothing but a matter of being overweight, and that can include a great many people.

I know of one instance in which anyone has been harmed by using the artificial sweeteners in any quantity amount.

Since wording like that appears on so many bottles and packages, I assume that it is there because of the pure food laws — letting people know that there is no nutritive value in the product. All it has is flavor. And that, of course, is why it is manufactured.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is there any cure for dandruff? I've tried several remedies but with no effect. — R. G. F.

Tinnitus (ringing sounds in the ears) is a highly prevalent condition, especially as we get up in years. It does not come from any single cause, so no single treatment will correct all cases. (Some of you will be correct, and you just have to put up with the problem.) The most useful methods I know are contained in a small booklet I've written called "Ear Noises, Their Causes and Cures." If you want a copy send 15 cents in coin for printing and handling costs, and a self-addressed envelope to me in care of the Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, P. O. Box 128, Dundee, Ill.

Dear Dr. Molner: Can you furnish any information concerning psoriasis? — Mrs. L. H.

Quite a few readers have asked the same question lately, and frankly there isn't much I can tell you. The cause of psoriasis simply is not known, but the condition isn't contagious and doesn't do any damage except for appearance. And it's itchy. Dermatologists have evolved various treatments which will stop the itching and soften the crusty scaly surface, but it will slough off and leave the skin smooth even though the redness remains. It's mainly from the effect in terms of comfort.

Whether it is "cured" psoriasis is another matter. Psoriasis has the annoying habit of coming and going, unfortunately, so if it happens to disappear after being treated, you never know whether the treatment had anything to do with it.

Dear Dr. Molner: My 4-year-old child was born with adrenal hyperplasia. My mother confuses it with Addison's disease. — Mrs. J. B.

Both are diseases of the adrenal gland, but they are opposites as far as symptoms. Addison's means that the gland is producing excessive amounts of certain hormones, resulting in some premature emergence of sexual characteristics and hair development.

Addison's disease (which as a rule occurs only in older people) is the reverse. Not enough adrenal hormones are produced.

Abuser Is Enemy of Private Goods

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

It may not be true, as Oscar Wilde suggested in his famous ballad, that "each man kills the thing he loves," but it certainly is true that each organized interest tends to kill the thing it is dedicated to preserve.

The legal profession, by shoddy practices and devious procedures, has done more to make the public cynical about the majesty and impartiality of law than any number of criminals could accomplish.

The medical profession, by placing short-term self-interest above the health needs of the nation, will be more responsible for socialized medicine (if it comes) than the most rabid proponent of medicare.

A characteristic example, even slightly instrumental in the recital in St. Michael's Academy last evening. There was a large audience.

At the weekly practice shoot of the members of the Belleville Rifle Club last night the wind was tricky and as a result the score was low. Great credit is due J. W. would have permitted overcrowding, aggravated fire hazards, and made it easier to escape legal penalties for violations — in short, they would have perpetuated the hideous slums that drive people out of the city and benefit no one but slum landlords.

This is far from defending private property; it is the kind of callous disregard for decency and justice that undermines the people's faith in private enterprise and makes them willing to use the government as a policeman. If private interests operate in a moral vacuum, then government moves in to fill that vacuum.

If we genuinely believe that enterprise ought to flourish, to encourage an increase of government intervention, then our beliefs make a hollow mockery unless we are willing to provide the self-control and self-regulation necessary for a free market order. Private interest is willing or able to police itself.

Property owners who really understand and appreciated the virtues of private property ought to be the first to speak up for a strict housing code for the city; as, I am sure, they are the first to speak up in their conference with legislators for a strict enforcement of the zoning laws, if capitalism perishes, its false friends will be as much culpable as its professed enemies.

Toronto Stocks

Base metals were also better although Leitch slipped 25 cents to $5.30 and Highland-Bell 40 cents to $6.65.

In the main list, Interprovincial Pipe Line, a downside leader Tuesday, climbed ½ to 85 Massey-Ferguson and Toronto-Dominion Bank lent support to the rise, gaining ¼ each to 28¾ and 64½.

Senior base metals were led higher by Inco which gained ¼ to 82¾. Rio Algom was ahead 25 cents to 39.75 and Falconbridge ⅛ to 70¾.

Speculative mining issues were quiet. Genex was off two cents to 29 cents.

On index, industrials were up .33 to 153.00, golds .09 to 134.53, base metals .45 to 62.47 and the Exchange index .32 to 142.88. Western oils were down .02 to with 95.90. Volume at 11 a.m. was 975,000 shares compared with 1,140,000 shares at the same time Tuesday.

On Tuesday Leitch and Highland - Bell continued to swing widely on the stock market while industrials took their fifth setback in a row.

Leitch churned through 249,482 shares, selling at a high of $6.45, a low of $5.50 and closing with a loss of 90 cents at $5.65. Highland-Bell closed at $7.05, a loss of 85 cents—after trading in a $7.75 to $6.55 range.

Investors and speculators apparently have yet to assess the implications of the Leitch Mosaic-Highland Bell claim on the Texas Gulf Sulphur Co. property near Timmins.

Industrials were lower on the day although some issues rallied briskly in late afternoon. Delta Acceptance was strong throughout and it gained 2¼ to a high of $21. Banks were stronger, with Nova Scotia gaining ¾ to 72¾. Bell Telephone also returned to favor with a gain of ⅛ to 56¾.

SEVERAL SLIP

Interprovincial Pipe Line slipped 1⅛ to 84¼ in leading the main list lower. Canada Cement dipped 1 to $46, while Great Lakes Paper was down ⅛ to 24¼ as losses went to a wide range of groups.

Senior base metals sagged. Inco gave up ⅛ to 82¼, Denison ⅛ to 12¾, Rio Algom 50 cents to $9.50 and Conwest and Falconbridge ¼ each to 33¼ and 70¼ respectively.

Obituary

JOHN HENRY McINALLY
Frankford

A member of Frankford council, and prominent in Royal Canadian Legion affairs, John Henry McInally, died suddenly of a heart attack on Saturday last. For many years he was caretaker at the public school but of late has been connected with the insurance business.

Mr. McInally was born in Scotland, 56 years ago, being the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Frank McInally and has been a resident of Frankford for the past eighteen years, where he was well known and highly respected. He was a member of the United Church and was a past president of the Royal Canadian Legion Branch No. 397 and Public Relations Officer for the Zone.

He is survived by his wife, the former Nancy Aiken and two sons, John McInally of Trenton and Frank McInally of Frankford. He was the last of his family.

The funeral was held from the Rowe Funeral Home in Frankford on Tuesday to the United Church for service conducted by the Rev. Charles Judd and assisted by the Rev. H. M. Beach. The members of the Legion and the council attended in a body. Interment was in Stockdale cemetery.

The bearers were Stanley Middleton, Frank Watson, John Howard, Milford Mason, William Reynolds and John Gilmour, all members of the Legion branch.

Water Meters May Be Placed Outside House

Belleville water meters may be read from outside the house by next year, the Quinte Home Builders' Association was told last night. Speaking to the association's regular monthly meeting, Mayor Jack Ellis told the home builders that the Belleville Utilities Commission decided last Friday to offer, on an optional basis, water meters which can be read from outside the houses. The new meters will be available July first, at an extra cost of $10 to the customer. At the same meeting, the Commission decided that all new electric meters, starting July first, must be installed outside the house.

There are two types of water meters which can be read from the outside. One, soon to be tested at the B.U.C. office, has the meter inside the house and the dial controlled by a flexible shaft, outside. The other type of meter, for use on new houses only, is built into a special concrete block, which can be included in the house. One disadvantage of this type of meter is that the block containing the meter must be left uninsulated on the inside, to allow house heat out to the meter. Freezing water causes problems for outside water meters in Canada.

The same meeting of the commission also approved a tender for uniforms for the commission's two meter readers. Commissioner Gerald Ryde said today. The decision to uniform the men was made several months ago, he said, and the uniforms should be ready in a few weeks. The uniforms and caps will be clearly marked, "Belleville Utilities Commission — Meter Reader," he said.

Amorous Mood Produces Money From Tight Hubby

DEAR ANN LANDERS — So now I'm a prostitute. According to you, that is. In a recent column you said, "When sex is used by a wife as payment for favors and is withheld as punishment, it places the 'marriage' at the level of prostitution."

Well, what else can a woman do when sex is the only effective weapon she has? I've been married to this character for 18 years and it's the only approach that works.

My husband is a professional man with an income that exceeds $40,000 a year. Almost every woman I know gets an allowance from her husband. But not me. My husband doesn't believe a wife needs an allowance. He says, "What for? You're home all day."

ANN LANDERS

The only way I can get any money out of him is to nail him when he's in an amorous mood. It isn't quite as commercial as it sounds, Ann, but that's about the size of it.

Now, do you blame me? — THE PROFESSIONAL AMATEUR.

DEAR AMATEUR — If this has been going on for 18 years, you aren't going to change it. A man with your husband's twisted concept of married love is not about to be re-trained.

A bouquet of skunk cabbage to him, however, for reducing you to such a level. And my deepest sympathy to you. You've missed it all.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Will you please tell retired relatives to stay home?

Our third daughter was married last year and we converted her room to a library — but there are still two empty bedrooms. We'd like to keep them intact for our children and their families when they come to visit, but if this parade of retired aunts and uncles don't stop, we are going to sell our home and move into an apartment-hotel.

Since last August we have had unlimited guests almost continuously. We wanted to take a vacation in October but couldn't go because we had company.

Is there a way to protect ourselves against free-loading kin without creating hard feelings? — TRAPPED.

DEAR TRAPPED — Probably not, so go ahead and create some hard feelings. You will have lost nothing of value if those people cross you off their travel maps.

Two Chapters of IODE To Attend Citizenship Court

Deaconess Gives Views On Church

VANCOUVER (CP)—A deaconess of the Anglican church says women are just beginning to regain some of the responsibilities the church once fully entrusted to them.

Dr. Hilda Hellaby, 66, says that at one time women headed what today would be called the church's social services. In the Middle Ages they took charge of schools, hospitals and theological training centres.

"But with the coming of the Reformation all the abbeys and convents were closed. There was no more organized work for women."

Dr. Hellaby, who 30 years ago became the first woman in Canada to earn the degree of Licentiate in Theology, says that while women are making progress, their role still varies according to the culture of the place they live in and the reaction of the area's ecclesiastical authorities.

"Personally, I have been fortunate. The bishops and clerics I have worked for have always given me every encouragement in anything I wanted to do. But some women are not so lucky. In England, particularly, some church authorities are dead set against women taking on ministerial responsibility in the church."

Dr. Hellaby is in charge of the joint parishes of St. George, Carmacks and Selly Mission in the Yukon. She has authority to do everything a minister does except pronounce marriages and give holy communion.

MUST BE PATIENT

Although she believes there is a place in the full-time ministry for women, if only in their historical roles as teachers, nurses and guardians, Dr. Hellaby is far from harboring an aggressive, suffragette attitude about women in the church.

"The church's work lies to a great extent among children, and in this field there are more trained women than men."

Dr. Hellaby, who has worked in the Yukon for 13 years and who for 30 years worked with the Provincial Board of Missions to Orientals in Vancouver, admits that the actual ordination of women is a thorny, many-sided problem. It is permitted only in the United Church and some evangelical churches.

"Women should be made full use of in the work of the church, and have a full voice in her councils.

"As to ordination, we women will get best results if we don't push. We should take as many courses as we can to improve our knowledge for the church's benefit.

"For the rest, let's wait and see. Let's wait to be invited."

OLD REPORT CARD

SALCOMBE, England (CP)—A. S. Alexis Brown, who collects old school report cards, has been sent a report dated 1824 it divided the class into first honorary, second or middle and third or disgraceful.

The regular monthly meeting of the Argyll Chapter, I.O.D.E., was held at the dinner home of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Smith. This was a potluck supper and the final meeting until September.

The Regent, Mrs. R. F. Smith declared the meeting open for business.

Mrs. Duffy reported that magazines had been sent to the Frontier College. Books for the Armed Forces Library are most welcome. Plans were completed by Mrs. Birkenshaw for entertaining the chapter's adopted school on June 24th. A number of the members have expressed their co-operation and will assist.

Mrs. Refoose read an interesting article on the I.O.D.E. Reference was made to the Dominion convention being held in Fredericton, N.B., under the sponsorship of the Sir Howard Douglas Chapter, formed in 1906. A membership of 29,000 shows how this organization has grown from a small beginning.

The members were reminded of the invitation extended to the two chapters of the IODE by Judge Anderson to attend the next Citizenship Court, June 25th, at 1.45 p.m. Following court those receiving their citizenship papers and their friends will be entertained in the Officers' Mess at the Armouries.

The date was set for the dessert bridge and fashion show, September 30th, and a notice placed in Coming Events.

Appreciation was expressed by the Regent to Mr. and Mrs. Smith for their kind hospitality, which was enjoyed by all.

DISTRICT WOMEN'S INSTITUTES

RIVER VALLEY W.I.

On Thursday afternoon, June 4th Mrs. Malcom McMillan was hostess for the regular meeting of River Valley Women's Institute, with 18 members and three visitors in attendance.

Mrs. Vernon Harry conducted the opening exercises. Mrs. Ernest Carr and Mrs. J. R. Donohoe gave their reports. The correspondence included a message of thanks and letters from two local groups.

Mrs. Ralph Utman read an article regarding hazards of the summer cottage. Mrs. Roy Tucker read about pilot projects for retarded children. Mrs. Harry Corby gave current events. Mrs. Percy MacMullen, friendship link secretary, said Abbots Leigh Institute in England won a green star in the recent drama festival at Long Ashton. This group was congratulated for putting on the first part of their drama in total darkness. The newspaper clippings included several interesting items.

ACWW PRESIDENT HONORED

For public relations, Mrs. MacMullen synopsized an airmail letter received June 2nd from Mrs. Stella DeGroot, publicity secretary of the Associated Countrywomen of the World. This gave a vivid description of the recent honor bestowed on the president Mrs. Geerda Von Boekhoff. Von Sulms of the Netherlands who has been created an officer of the Order of Oranje-Nassau on Adrian, Netherlands' birthday. This is a high rank given for work in the International field. The decoration is a cross and a golden crown.

Mrs. Von Beckhoff wrote these words, "So here we are with a home full of flowers (27 basketsful arrived) letters and telegrams pouring in, 50 members of the village band with a serenade. I wish I could have all the women of the world here to share the honor and friendliness of our people. I feel proud and happy and very grateful."

Mrs. George Heasman displayed the new Tweedsmuir history book beginning in 1960. This was artistically arranged and contained much valuable information. She also displayed a scrap book of press clippings centred around Institute work and news of general interest.

Mrs. Roy Tucker gave a brief outline of the nine members of honor of A.C.W.W. as recorded in the Countrywoman Magazine. One of these was Mrs. Godfrey Drage, M.B.E., who conceived the idea of pennies for friendship. She died in 1963 at the age of 87.

ASK MILLINERY COURSE

In the business period it was decided to ask for the short course on millinery and creative cookery as second choice. A donation of $5 was made to the presbytery fund, and $6 was alloted as prize money for the ladies' division of Stirling Fair. It was also decided to give the Tweedsmuir history book committee $7 to be applied on expenses incurred.

Mrs. Ralph Utman presided over the program. Mrs. Roy Bush gave a comprehensive report of the recent District annual of Hastings West. She compared various items of interest with those of other years and presented many worthwhile points to remember.

Mrs. Claude Tucker read an article of interest on gardening. The convener conducted a unique contest which was won by Mrs. George Heasman.

Mrs. Ernest Carr voiced appreciative thanks for hospitality, program, District report and refreshments.

Speaking Personally

By Gladys Ward

WEATHER REPORT

It had never happened as far back as anyone could remember, and it seemed so improbable as to be impossible that it would rain on Albert College Convocation day. Miss Jessie Tuite, former Dean of Women there, observed that in the past 35 years she could not recall a rainy convocation afternoon. Sometimes it had rained in the morning, but cleared up before time for the ceremonies. In fact Albert College seemed singularly blessed as far as weather was concerned.

But this year it did rain, and kept it up until evening.

One of the most important events of the day is the panoramic picture taken of the whole school on the steps of the chapel. This has been part of the ritual for years, but this year it could not be done, and the formal picture had to be abandoned and only pictures of the junior and senior graduation classes were taken on the steps of the rotunda indoors.

Cameras were as much a part of the Convocation as the diplomas in previous years, but unless equipped with a flash, they were not in evidence at all. The campus grounds looked as beautiful as usual, the iris and other flowers were in bloom, the lawns were bright green with the rain, but it was no day for outdoor pictures.

So Convocation day set a new record, not a happy one, and one I am sure the officials would not want to see repeated. It seemed like the shattering of tradition.

PRESS A BUTTON

Teaching machines and programmed instructional materials are terms that keep cropping up on the educational scene. The effect of instruction by means of these devices is often impressive.

This specialized means of instruction is a sequences of constructed items or frames leading the student to master a subject with minimal error. Information is given to the student in small units to which he responds in some way, by completing a sentence, working a problem, or answering a question, and at each step he receives immediate confirmation of his response. Items are designed so that the student can make or correct responses while progressing towards more complex material and ultimately building the conceptual framework of a subject area.

The programs are intended to be used in conjunction with regular classes to accelerate progress, to re-establish dropouts, and for children who must study at home in unsupervised situations. All children will not learn from it. Most of the programs require the student to be able to read. Children who have serious reading difficulties probably would not even be able to read through the program. In general, success on the program is highly correlated with school success and intelligence. In some cases programs may be used with youngsters to help them catch up if they are slightly behind in their work.

Dr. Claude Bissell, President of the University of Toronto, speaking of television said last fall in an address to the Etobicoke Public School Principals' Association. "However shamelessly it may be exploited, it is a powerful medium of communication, a mesmerizing teacher that passes out information about our current world that makes youngsters of 12 or 13 in many respects better informed than a college freshman of 20 or 30 years ago. At the same time we have various refinements of the electronic revolution that are crying out to be used on an extensive scale in the classroom.

Dr. Bissell said there is considerable resistance to the use of electronic equipment in schools.

"Our great problem is to make use of these new devices and new techniques to restore the centrality of the individual teacher," he said.

So the times move along at accelerated speeds, but nothing in the world will replace the teacher who is fired with enthusiasm for learning and can give off the spark that will light the mind of a student to make it blaze with intellectual power.

Most educators feel that carefully selected programs will allow students at the top or bottom of any class to work on their own while the teachers concentrate on the average majority. Maths and sciences seem to be the areas where best results are being achieved.

Seniors Present Music Festival

FRANKFORD — The annual senior festival of Frankford Public School took place on June 3, in Frankford Community Hall.

The program commenced with opening songs and a two-part song by Grade 8 students. Carol Branch, Grade 6 students sang two selections, after which an accordion solo was rendered by Tommy Larder. A piano duet by Maribeth Rowe and Kathy Howes followed and the Grade 7 students contributed two selections. Linda Reddick favored with a piano solo and the pupils of Grade 6 entertained with a square dance. Another accordion solo was given by Victor Rabel and the boys' choir gave a number. Robert Rowe and Chris Rose contributed a piano duet. The Grade 8 students sang several selections. Wayne Kemp played a piano solo and the school choir concluded the festival with an appropriate number.

What is an average mother?

The demands of a new baby are heavy and tend to limit a mother's social contact.

Consequently, it is difficult for many mothers to compare themselves with others. So Heinz Baby Foods has tried to find out for you.

Nation-wide survey

We have talked to many Canadian mothers—in cities and in the country. We asked them about the kinds of foods they served their babies. About the number of baby meals they prepare each week. About the age they introduced babies to cereals, to strained foods, to junior foods.

We are not recommending the findings as an 'ideal.' Your doctor will make his own recommendations, because every baby is different.

What mothers are doing

However, the findings will give you some indications of what Canadian mothers are actually doing. They also serve as an interesting basis for comparison with yourself.

The average Canadian mother feeds her baby about 2,250 times during the first two years of its life. That's about 23 times a week—or a little more than 3 times a day.

On the average, Canadian mothers start their babies on cereal when they are about one month old.

Who uses strained food?

More than 90% of mothers give their babies strained foods. The average mother starts when her baby is between the 5th and 6th week.

Of all the strained baby foods available, Heinz is preferred by more than 8 out of 10 Canadian mothers.

Between the 8th and 13th month Canadian mothers introduce their babies to junior foods. Again Heinz is preferred by almost 8 out of 10 Canadian mothers.

Why Heinz is the top-seller

We were quite astounded at this preference for Heinz so we asked mothers why.

Their frank answers included:

The oven consistency and pleasant taste of Heinz Baby Foods. Heinz variety (which, by the way, is the largest in Canada). The absolute dependability and national reputation of Heinz Baby Foods.

From the study we've calculated that more than 400,000 of the almost 500,000 babies born in Canada last year were fed Heinz Baby Foods. So, if you're 'an average mother' you'll prefer Heinz too.

HEINZ BABY FOODS

The good they do your baby now—lasts a lifetime.

OPEN EVENINGS 'TIL 9 AND ALL DAY WED.

By happy chance, when every mail is bringing requests for something different, to serve at showers, along comes Mrs. Frances B. with her treasured recipe, for Toasted Mushroom Rolls.

Another day I will tell you more about the Prince Club's regional conference in May, but this one event was at the home of one of our members and Mrs. Frances B. told her, after we were done discussing the delicious hot asparagus and mushroom rolls and cheese and bacon squares that were being passed made me gravitate to the kitchen where I hung around until the cook had time to speak to me. She generously gave me her mushroom spread recipe and consented to it being given here.

In addition to the Toasted Mushroom Rolls I have a recipe for a tasty little pastry called Mushroom Tricorns. The shower hostesses will welcome these two savory tidbits to add to their files.

Slide a table knife in the space and when you have chosen the one you want below on a flat rod. Cushion clip on without removing flowers.

WEDNESDAY

(Good Enough for Guests)

Pot Roast of Beef; Rich Brown Gravy; Mashed Potatoes; Green Beans; Leaf Lettuce and Cucumber Salad with Sour Cream Dressing; Strawberry Ice Cream; Cocoanut Macaroons; Coffee.

TOASTED MUSHROOM ROLLS (thanks to Mrs. Frances B.):

Important notes: 1) This mushroom filling is sufficient for 60 thin slices of crustless bread from standard sandwich loaves. 2) This mushroom mixture is excellent for spreading thinly on broiled steak about 1 or 2 minutes before it is finished broiling.

Chop or coarsely grind 1 lb. washed and scrubbed mushrooms. Gently saute them in ½ to 1-3 cup butter until wilted and very lightly browned. Remove from heat and stir in one can condensed cream of mushroom soup (undiluted). Add ½ teaspoon salt and ½ teaspoon pepper. Cool and chill. Have your thin slices of crustless bread laid out on your counter. Spread them all with soft butter. Spread it on ½ of the slice only. Spread bread half rather sparingly with the chilled mushroom spread. Roll up, starting on mushroom side. Lay open side down on shallow baking dishes. Spread bread tops lightly with melted butter. Bake at 450 deg. Fahr. until delicately browned top and bottom. Obviously these rolls may be made well in advance if kept carefully covered and chilled. Serve piping hot in napkin-lined server.

MUSHROOM TRICORNS:

2 tablespoons butter or margarine, 1 drop Tabasco, 1 tablespoon flour, ¼ lb. washed and scrubbed and chopped mushrooms, 2 tablespoons cream, 1 teaspoon finely minced onion, 2 wedges (1 oz. each) Gruyere cheese, pastry sufficient for 2-crust pie.

Melt butter; stir in chopped mushrooms and cook until well coated with butter, then add Tabasco and flour. Stir in cream and thickened. Break cheese into small pieces; add. Stir over low heat until cheese melts. Remove from heat. Roll pastry to ⅛" thickness. Cut in 3" circles with cookie cutter. Spoon a scant amount of mushroom mixture on each circle. Bring pastry up around filling and pinch to form a tricorn. Bake at 425 deg. Fahr. for 15 minutes or until golden brown. Serve hot. (Pastries may be made ahead and reheated to serve.) Make about 24 tricorns.

He said in the letter that he was sentenced in court April 10 after an immigration official, acting as interpreter, advised him to plead guilty.

Toronto lawyer, Allan Mintz went to Don Jail Tuesday with a Greek restaurateur and Father Koulouras and posted $500 bail for Thomadakis.

Thomadakis then signed a document verifying that he was aware of his responsibility to appear when summoned to court.

Then he was returned to his cell to sit out the remainder of his sentence.

He was taken back to his cell because of a section of the Immigration Act which puts a deportation hold order on him notwithstanding the fact he was allowed bail, Mr. Mintz said.

PICTON (Staff) — Department of Highways survey crews are working on the Main St. of Bloomfield, which forms a part of Highway 33.

The village council has been negotiating with the department to have the street rebuilt as a connecting link and the present survey is part of the preliminary work.

Council officials are hoping to see the new street completed or at least partially so, this year, probably in the fall.

The village of Wellington is also slated to have its Main St. rebuilt this year under a similar agreement.

TAKES ON ORE

The Black Bay, a C.S.L. boat, is a maximum size lake boat now in her second season. She was captained by Eric George Commodore of the C.S.L. fleet.

Merchants Study Parking Phases

PICTON (Staff) — The Picton Retail Merchants Association held a meeting this week at which time they discussed the parking situation in the Town of Picton and the recent Town Council discussion of this problem.

At a meeting of the association in April 1963 with George Morden, then a councillor and chairman of parking and traffic at which time the council's committee on parking were present, the following suggestions were made by the committee under George Morden.

1. The feasibility of parking meters on King St.
2. Development of area behind the law offices of E. F. Nourse.
3. Development of land behind the Library and Arena.
4. Development of lane and chairmen of parking and traffic parking behind Main St. stores.
5. Two or three-hour parking limit on Main St.
6. Set time for deliveries to Main St. stores.
7. Possibility of a two or three level parking building on the Abramsky lot on Main St.
8. A $10 parking sticker good for one year for travelling etc., good for one day parking, this sticker would be used by any person who used Main St. a lot. They would not be penalized for failure to pay parking meter if this sticker was on the car.

The committee was also asked to look into the amount collected by the Town from the merchants in business taxes and also from the parking meters, and to ascertain where this money went.

The Retail Merchants and Town Committees met and considerable progress was made. It was thought that the recent discussion in council showed a breakdown in the previous liaison of committees and it was moved that a committee composed of the president, the secretary and three members (preferably property owners on the north side of Main St.) meet with the Town Council Parking Committee.

A further motion was passed asking that the Town Council provide proper litter containers for Main St., and to pass an anti-litter by-law.

The members are also considering the organization of a "Loyalist Days" promotion for this summer. This would be similar to the "Old Fashioned Days" and "Old Boys" promotions that have been so successful in other centres.

WORK AT NIGHT

TORONTO (CP)—Excavation for a $125,000,000 office building and shopping plaza in downtown Toronto is being done at night to avoid disrupting traffic or annoying office workers or merchants, a spokesman for the centre said Monday. The project, owned jointly by Toronto-Dominion Bank and Cemp Investments Limited, will include a 55-story office building and a parking and shopping plaza. The tower is to be opened on July 1, 1967.

countries in NATO and a Can-ada sponsored international peacekeeping force.

Dr. Erhard was reported by a Canadian spokesman to have shown much interest in and sympathy for Mr. Pearson's plan for a peacekeeping force which would be held in readi-ness for United Nations duty anywhere in the world.

Dr. Erhard expressed grati-tude for Mr. Martin's May 22 statement in the Commons that Can-ada supports West Germany in every peaceful effort to reunite the country.

Mr. Martin also said at that time that the German problem is at the centre of East-West re-lations and that "its solution could open up real understand-ing with the Communist coun-tries.

Dr. Erhard was accorded the most cordial welcome given any German by a Canadian govern-ment since pre-Hitler days.

Mr. Pearson in an airport greeting referred to the "new" Germany as "democratic and peace-loving."

Dr. Erhard said he hopes his talks here will help to strengthen even further the ties be-tween Canada and Germany.

These ties included common membership in NATO and the Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development, and 1,400,000 Canadian citizens of German origin.

Loans

farmers out on a limb with big loans means the government must also make sure the limb isn't sawed off — by crop failures, disasters, market disruptions or lack of managerial training — be proportionately stronger position extra credit given the big operator.

Douglas Fisher (NDP — Port Arthur) made a plea for credit for the farmer who gets his income from timber cutting. The act should be expended "so that in those areas where farming shades into forestry, there could be a greater opportunity to get credit."

Before turning to the farm credits legislation, the Commons passed through its final stage amendments to the National Housing Act on which MPs spent most of the Monday sitting.

In the brief debate on its final stages, Michael Starr (PC—Ontario) suggested that one change may slow down construction of sewage treatment plants by Municipalities.

The change would extend to March 31, 1967, from March 31, 1965, the cutoff date on which municipalities could qualify for forgiveness of one-quarter of the federal loans and interest for municipal sewage treatment plants.

Mr. Starr said the extension of the cutoff date means such plants do not have to be completed to qualify for the forgiveness and the result may be a slowdown in efforts to complete the work.

Postmaster - General Nicholson, who also is responsible for the government housing policies replied that he sees little danger of slowdown because of the widespread public worry about water pollution. This would prevent any slowdown in building and preparing for sewage treatment facilities.

SPEAKING of MANNERS

PATRICIA LOWN

IF YOU PLAN A VISIT, PHONE FIRST

There goes the doorbell again. Yes, whether you like it or not the drop-in season is in full swing. With the children home from school and pep on vacation, what better way to spend the day than to get in the car and drop in on some dear old friends!

Well, if anyone intends dropping in here with friends and family is low to spend a healthy day in the country, they're about to get their comeuppance. One child is down with mumps, another has a suspected case and I'm sure the other two won't mind sharing a few cold germs with anyone rash enough to cross our threshold without good and sufficient cause, plus a bona fide invitation.

So, if you've planned to visit anyone unannounced, take heed. This is the sort of thing you're liable to run up against. Trust, the hostess you've about to descend on may, at one time, have said "do drop in," but the more or less official translation today means you're welcome — if you phone first and if she's in a position to have company.

EMBARRASSING SITUATIONS

In another household, arriving unannounced may turn up a busy mother taking time out to wash her hair while the youngsters are napping, and you might walk in in the middle of the second sudsing.

Or you might arrive just as husband and wife are settling down to a serious "discussion," shall we say, of why the phone bill wasn't paid when there obviously was enough in the kitty to take care of a new hat and a "nothing" dress.

Or you might walk in just as the hostess is setting the table for dinner for eight, and she can't figure out how she can take care of two more, even if she could remember your name.

Or you might blithely saunter in as the dishwasher goes on the blink and there's water all over the floor and you're just in time to help mop up. So your day in the country turns to Hahwater.

When you take a chance and drop in unannounced, there are infinite situations you risk running into that are equally as uncomfortable for the householders as for yourself.

So be courteous, and, even though you're sure of being greeted with open arms, phone ahead to make sure a visit is agreeable and convenient. Any busy housewife, especially if she's in the midst of coping with an emergency, would rather answer the phone than the doorbell. At least it gives her a fighting chance to stay in command of her own destiny.

Non-Smokers' Association Holds Countrywide Contest

DEAR DORIS — We did not realize that your column is read by so many students and teachers across Canada. Letters are arriving daily which mention you, from Newfoundland to B.C.

You can assure your readers, Doris, that there is still plenty of time to get their entry into the "Why I Don't Smoke" competition. Contestants should be asked to print their return address on top left corner of envelope.

If they give their name, address, age and school — with (scotch-taped) dime in first letter, we will include their Pledge Card along with the application form.

Letters which follow are typical of many. — CYRIL LANGE, Area Chairman, Non-Smokers' Association of Canada, Box 63, Midland, Ontario.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR MR. LARGE — Within the next two weeks we will be conducting an intensive anti-smoking campaign in all our science and health classes. The idea of tying this in with your essay competition would seem worthy of study. I would appreciate details and entry forms. — A TEACHER.

DEAR MR. LARGE — There is a boy in our village, 16, who smokes 50 per cent of the time. I'm no angel, I've tried it before, and I'm 11, but I won't try it again. "Physical fitness" in Canada is one of our supports to our country, and people have proved that it does do physical harm.

If I had your permission to distribute this literature among the school, I am sure our principal would allow it as she is strongly against smoking. — ELEVEN-YEAR-OLD BOY.

DEAR MR. LARGE — Would appreciate details of the essay competition. I do not smoke and think maybe I can help some of the other students at B - - High School, which I attend as junior year. — STUDENT OF A U.S.A. SCHOOL.

DEAR MR. MATHER, MR. LARGE, TEACHERS AND STUDENTS — Seems we have stirred up a good deal of smoke, as it were. Or is it "Non-Smoke"? In answer to Eleven-year-old Boy, I'm told that plans are underway by the Canadian Government to distribute anti-smoking literature.

Readers in Bermuda and in United States are invited to join the competition. Write to Mr. Large for details and a wallet-size "Non-Smokers' Pledge Card," enclosing two cents and name, address, age, telephone number, name of school and teacher.

More power to the campaign! — DORIS.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Whipper Billy Watson returns to mere or less familiar scenes here Friday night and the debonair "Whip" had better look to his laurels.

For he faces a foeman worthy of his ring steel in the Nipponese Professor, Hiro, as accomplished a wrestler as ever showed his wares here. . . .

WHIPPER WATSON

The Professor built on short 'squat lines of the typical Japanese wrestler is no novice at his trade. He graduated years ago and is a past-master of judo and karate with a devastating Judo "chop" a specialty.

But then the Whip is no slouch either. He hasn't been around these years without acquiring some savvy. He has been wrestling around the world for some time now and Time has left no marks on him. He is as quick and agile as ever and his "Commando" and "Avalanche" holds as deadly as in past years.

It does not seem so long ago that the Whip was the main attraction coming out of Frank Tunney's Toronto stable. . The Whip with his agile, energetic showman manager, the late Phil Lawson, drew thousands of fans to bouts all over the country and the U.S.A.

They made Toronto wrestling-conscious and at one time some 12,000 fans poured through the turnstiles to see the Whipper in action. "No wrestler ever had so many fanatic idolizers," was Tunney's tribute.

The Whipper is still the idol of the fan's eye, no matter where he wrestles, in a metropolis or Broken Jaw Corners. He will get a warm reception here Friday evening.

On the other side of the picture, for sheer arch villainy I cannot think of a better-matched pair than the Hardrock from down under, Fred Atkins, and the German terror, Hans Schmidt.

Both have been in the wrestling wars for some time, and are familiar to city fans. Brother, I'd rather see a couple of juiced-up grizzlies coming at me than either of this pair. As for both of them—give me world war three.

But it could be the off-beat tactic of their opposition that could mean the undoing of the ferocious pair. Making their Belleville debut are the "Scuffle' Hillbillies," Rip Collins and Chuck Connell, fresh from the hills of Ole Kaintuck.

If you haven't seen this longhair mountaineer duo on television it must miss their appearance here on Friday. If you don't go home rib-sore you should have your money refunded.

For a pair of lasagaroo kutups they take the cake. They can use their feet with the same ease as they do their arms and what they cannot do with those long, tool-d appendages is one for the book. They are quick, agile and do the least you expect them to do.

Referee Schmidt and Atkins may defeat them but they'll have to catch them first. They come in barefooted in mountaineer garb and "sfeered of nuthin". It should be a howler. Ray Villmer is back for the preliminary with the "Black Destroyer."

"MR. AND MRS."

Speaking of pairs, husbands will team with wives at the annual "Mr. and Mrs." Golf Tournament scheduled for the Bay of Quinte Country Club next Sunday.

Last year the club set a record for events of this nature and present indications point to a new mark being set this season. . At this writing some 50 couples have registered and there will be lots more before the weekend from district and faraway clubs.

Arrangements of the tournament are in good hands. Leading their help are Dan and Madge Cowley, Steve and Joy Bowerman and Fred and Anne Fisher.

Tonight At Fair Grounds

Joyces Srs. Host Oshawa

Belleville Joyces will attempt for the third time to make all home debut in the Eastern Ontario Baseball Association's senior division here tonight as Oshawa Merchants will supply the action in an 8.15 game at Fairgrounds.

The game has been washed out twice, forcing the cancellation of a parade and some other extra opening-day plans. However, the club still plans on passing out free soft drinks to the first 250 fans as well as admitting the city's minor baseball players to the game free of charge tonight.

Plans also call for his Worship Mayor Jack Ellis to participate in opening ceremonies, according to a team spokesman.

The game itself should be a good one. Joyces beat the Merchants 8-5 up west last Friday and the Motor City boys will be out to even the score here tonight. Belleville coach-manager Court Bralley and Gordie St. Louis had not announced their choice for the starting mound assignment at this writing.

A complete senior schedule was drawn up at a meeting here Monday night and should be available shortly. Two dates of interest locally have Joyces visiting Ajax this Sunday while Brockville Bearers are slated to play here one week from tonight.

The schedule is a 16-game affair for Belleville, Oshawa and Ajax, while Brockville, Cornwall and Little Britain will play eight games each, counting four points for a win rather than two.

NHL Drafts 11 Players From Minors

By JOE DUPUIS

MONTREAL (CP) — The big intra-league draft of the National Hockey League takes place today but it may be anti-climactic after Jim Piggery of the Leafs' the American Hockey League's Buffalo Bisons. . In Murphy, the Hawks lost an 11-year NHL veteran who scored 11 goals in 70 games last season.

LEAPS TOOK FOUR

Toronto acquired three players from Denver of the WHL in the record minor league draft. . Leaf officials described it as a bookkeeping affair involving Toronto-owned players. The three were Alex Hicul, Gordon Rochel and Lou Jankowski. . Leafs also drafted Marsh Thomas, who had been owned by the Montreal Canadiens, from Hershey of the AHL.

The Bruins drafted Toronto-owned Jim Mikol and John Gravel from Cleveland of the AHL. Detroit took George (Duke) Harris from St. Louis of the CPL, and Fred Hilts owned by Montreal and under suspension last season for not reporting from Springfield of the AHL.

Montreal drafted Robert Sarber from Pittsburgh and New York took Jimmy Johnson from Baltimore.

INCREASE AWARDS

In other business, an agreement was reached at a meeting of the NHL owners in players' pensions to $500 from $180 a month for a 10-year-man. The pension fund has accumulated a reserve of $1,500,000.

Bob Fulford of Toronto, the players' spokesman at the session with club owners, said he was completely satisfied with the new arrangements.

The method of distributing the increase in league awards will be decided at a meeting of league governors today.

Under the present system, each player on the team winning the league championship receives $1,500. The breakdown for the next three finishers is $750, $500 and $250.

It is these awards that will be increased.

Four Players Named

Choose Seven For Hall Of Fame

MONTREAL (CP)—Selectors for the Hockey Hall of Fame Tuesday announced nagaes of four former players, one former referee and two builders of the game in their annual choice of candidates to enter the hall.

Players named were the late Babe Siebert, star of the Montreal Canadiens and the old Montreal Maroons; Bill Durnan, great goalie with Canadiens in the 1940s and a six-time winner of the Vezina Trophy; Black Jack Stewart, rugged Detroit defenceman; and Doug Bentley, Chicago forward.

The referee named was Bill Chadwick of New York, who refired a few years ago after long service in the NHL.

In the builders category are Angus D. Campbell, named for his work in stabilizing hockey in Northern Ontario, and Frank Dilio, long-time secretary of the Quebec Amateur Hockey Association.

Under the regulations, the selection committee was at first empowered to choose only players who played up to 1939 but Siebert was the only one approved among several nominations. Durnan, Stewart and Bentley were picked from the 1939-46 period.

Honorable mention among players went to Harry Oliver, Marty Barry, Red Horner, Hugh Aird, Flt Lapine and Alex Irvin.

FEWER UNEMPLOYED

Norway had 16,400 registered unemployed at the end of April, 1964—2,800 fewer than at the same time in 1963.

Score Was 11-1

Trudeaus Trounce Jrs.

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Sportswriter

A four-run explosion in the fifth inning broke open a 1-1 contest and sent Trudeau Motors on their way to an 11-1 trouncing of the Ellis Juniors in B. and D. softball action at the CNRA Park last night.

The victory moved Trudeaus to within two points of the front-running Trenton squad and the teams meet in Bay Shore Park tonight at 8.15.

The Juniors opened the game's scoring with their lone run, on Moore's hit, an error, Soule's sacrifice and a wild pitch, in the second, but from then on it was all Trudeaus. The losers fell apart with errors, walks and other mistakes afield helping the winners build their run total.

Trudeaus tied 1-1 in the fourth on Duggan's triple and Zakos' single. An error started the fifth-frame rally with a scratch hit by Locke, Wannamaker's sacrifice and a walk filling the sacks. Faulkner's pop double just back of short scored two to snap the tie. Murray drove in another pair when he tripled in the right-centre field hole.

Ellis' finally got out of the inning, with the bases loaded, and they stranded another trio in the sixth when five walks forced in another pair of runs. A throwing error on a strike-out followed Green's hit, another throwing error and a hit batter for a 10-1 score in the seventh. McGuire was all the way around on twin errors by Malloy for one in the eighth before another hit batter with Locke's triple closed the scoring.

Bobby Green kept five Junior hits well separated while picking the win. He struck out five and walked five, to give him a 3-0 seasonal record.

Bob Ethier was the loser, giving way to Bob Boyle with one out in the sixth. He was charged with six runs off six hits, fanning one and walking six. Boyle gave up two more hits, whiffing three and walking three.

Gary Duggan and Rick Locke paced the Trudeau hitters, each collecting a triple and a single. Frank "Shiner" Murray also tripled, Bert Faulkner doubled, Paul Zakos and Bob Green contributed a single each.

Mike Chatland stroked a double and single in defeat. Pete Weston, Bob Moore and Bob Boyle bagging the other hits.

WORLD'S LARGEST

Hoyt's Butterflies Whip Birds 9-5

Drive Catchers Wacky

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

Don't feel sorry for J. C. Martin. Let Ray Katt, Gus Triandos, Jim Ginsberg and Chuck Jey Lau hand out the sympathy. They know what it's like to try to catch the butterflies Hoyt Wilhelm throws.

Martin had one of those nightmarish evenings that Wilhelm's catchers experience now and then as Chicago While Sox whipped the second-place Baltimore Orioles 9-5 Tuesday and extended their American League lead to 1½ games.

Juan Pizarro was bressing to his seventh victory with a 5-1 lead through seven innings and Martin was taking it easy while Camilo Carreon handled the big mitt.

Three Oriole hits in the eighth brought on Wilhelm. When the veteran reliever got the high sign, it meant Martin had to go to work too.

One of Wilhelm's flutterballs got away and Sam Bowens, who was on third, started for the plate. Martin made a quick recovery and Bowens pulled up short. J. C. fired to third but the ball sailed into left field and the runner scored.

Moments later another Wilhelm knuckler fluttered away and moved Norm Siebern to third. He later scored on Al Wala' throwing error.

In the ninth J. C. allowed two more pitches to get by, setting up the Orioles' final run. In case you haven't been counting, that's three passed balls and a throwing error in two innings.

Dick Radatz saved Boston's victory for Earl Wilson as the Red Sox tagged Al Downing with his second loss. It was Radatz' 59th appearance.

Roger Maris and Bobby Richardson homered for the Yankees.

Don Demeter had three hits including two home runs for five RBI to pace Detroit's attack. Al Kaline also had three hits for the Tigers and raised his average to .296, a jump of 35 points in two weeks.

Bill Freehan also homered for Detroit and Harmon Killebrew tagged his 17th for the Twins.

Minor Softball Results

A full schedule of games was played in the Belleville Minor Softball Association's Peewee division last night.

In the West Hill section, Athletics defeated the Redlegs 17-10, while the Phillies and Mets battled to a 5-5 deadlock. In the East Hill section, the Colts downed the Tigers 20-15, Braves clipped the Pirates 13-11 and Whitesox slipped the Giants 20-18.

Defeat Cheesemen, Daubers

Lightfoots, Hotelmen Win

Lightfoot Construction and City Hotel kept the three-way battle for top spot in the Commercial softball loop close last night, chalking up wins over a couple of the lower-placed squads.

Lightfoots turned back Black Diamond Cheese 6-3 while City Hotel whitewashed Ter-Haar Daubers 8-0. Barrages, Lightfoots and City are bunched at the top of the standings.

The Cheesemen took a 3-0 lead in the second frame before Lightfoots got the win with three in the third and another pair in the fourth. Harry Fowens hurled five-hit ball for the victory, slipping third strikes past four and walking none. M. Haas pitched four frames and lost for Black Diamond, with Douglas taking over in the fifth. They allowed seven hits, all off Haas, while fanning four and passed seven.

All Lightfoot hits were singles with Rusty Garvin rapping three, Harry Fowens two, Don Dolan and Jack "Deacon" Whiting one apiece. M. Haas hit a two-run double, Terry Keller a double and single and Harold Douglas a single in defeat.

City Hotel took a 3-0 lead after three frames and sewed up their win with five runs in the last inning against Ter-Haar.

D. Young pitched three-hit ball and received excellent support afield for the Hotel crew. He struck out three and walked one. G. Benson lasted until the seventh in defeat with R. Pointer getting the final out. They gave up only four hits but nine walks off Benson, plus four errors, proved costly.

Martin starred for the winners at the plate, driving home four runs with a pair of doubles. F. Donovan and Smith contributed singles. H. Pointer Wickett and D. Lucas had the Ter-Haar safeties.

Now Comes 'Tough Years'

Boomer Ends Playing Career

By TED BLACKMAN

MONTREAL (CP) — With a few routine words, the playing career of Bernard (Boom Boom) Geoffrion came to an official end Tuesday.

"Gentlemen," Clarence Campbell told delegates attending the National Hockey League intra-league draft, "there's a correction on the rosters. Change Geoffrion of Montreal from active to the voluntary retired list."

The years of strafing goalies with his lethal slapshot, scoring more than often, the glory that came with it and the agonizing hours of pain that accompanied his dozen or so injuries were over. But the finality of Campbell's announcement brought no tears.

"That's it, that coldest part is over," Geoffrion quipped. "Now comes the tough years. Now I'm a coach."

Geoffrion, coach of the American Hockey League Quebec Aces, was making his first appearance in his new role at the NHL annual meeting. Everyone wanted to talk to him, to slap his back, to shake his hand.

WANTED TO COACH

"This is what I wanted, to stay in hockey. I always wanted to be a coach and I guess I'm lucky that I played under Dick Irvin and Toe Blake. They're the best."

Geoffrion has so much respect for Blake and the late Irvin that his coaching theories are theirs. When he gets to Quebec, he's going to run the show in the same manner.

"I don't know how other teams operate because I've only played for one club," he explains. "But our methods must have been good. How many championships did we win, after all?"

Although the Boomer was a step slower in recent seasons and his shot less deadly, he still had a year or two left. Toronto was even reported ready to trade for him. But he packed it up.

"Last year wasn't my best, but, because we won the title with young guys and old men like me, it was enjoyable. Mr. Selke then called me and offered me this job.

"I thought it over...it was what I wanted."

THE LITTLE WOMAN

"Emily, we've been moved into the new house for five days...when are you going to unpack the kitchen utensils?"

Sadecki Blanks Giants With Six-Hitter

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

Two years ago Ray Sadecki was being called a 10-year-old boy. Now he's 22—and the hottest pitcher on St. Louis Cardinals' staff.

Sadecki gave another indication of his transition Tuesday night, with a six-hit, 1-0 victory over Juan Marichal and the National League-leading San Francisco Giants.

It was the first shutout of the season and the ninth straight victory as starter for the veteline had boy of the Cardinal staff.

Two years and four days before, he had stepped to the mound against Cincinnati Reds and faced just five batters. He was tagged for five runs on two homers, a single and two of his own errors.

St. Louis manager Johnny Keane, flushed with anger, cited Sadecki for acting "like a 10-year-old boy" and said his performance was "the worst exhibition of effort I've ever seen on a major league diamond."

Sadecki countered: "I don't see how I can pitch any more for a guy like this," and said he was quitting the team.

Cooler heads prevailed and Keane and Sadecki wound up shaking hands. Sadecki also wound up in the minors.

Last year Sadecki returned and was 16-10 when he got off to a quick 0-3 start this season. But he hasn't lost since as a starter, his one defeat coming in a relief role. His latest victory snapped a four-game St. Louis losing streak and cut the Giants' league lead to one game over Philadelphia.

The Phillies split, ending a four-game skid with a 4-3 first-game victory before Pittsburgh Pirates' rookie Steve Blass stopped them 4-0 on four hits in the nightcap.

In the only other single game, Cincinnati edged Los Angeles Dodgers 2-1. Houston Colts defeated Milwaukee Braves 6-5 and 4-1 while New York Mets edged Chicago Cubs 8-5 in 12 innings before losing 5-2.

Marichal, now 8-2, had allowed only three hits when the Cardinals finally struck for the game's only run in the ninth. Curt Flood started things with a single, moved up on a sacrifice and raced home on a single by Charley James.

The Phillies broke through in the first game when Richie Allen hit his 20th homer, the first for Philadelphia in 75 innings. Art Mahaffey, however, couldn't hold a 4-0 lead and needed Ed Roebuck's relief help after Jerry Lynch closed the gap with a three-run homer.

Blass pitched his first major league shutout in the nightcap, bringing his record to 3-2 with heavy hitting support by Lynch and Bob Bailey. Lynch smacked a key two-run double for the Pirates and Bailey connected for a homer.

Gordy Coleman's homer in the second—the only hit off Dodger starter Joe Moeller in seven innings—and Marty Keough's eight-inning single procured the Reds' runs. Cincinnati starter Jim O'Toole allowed only two hits in seven innings but went out when Keough batted and the Dodgers scored their run against Sam Ellis.

IMPROVES HIS RECORD

Dick Farrell brought his record to 8-1 for the Colts with his sixth straight victory but needed Hal Woodeshick's ninth-inning relief help. Don Nottebert won his first game after seven losses with a five-hitter in the nightcap.

The Mets won the opener against the Cubs when Jesse Gonder singled with the bases loaded in the 12th inning, capping a two-run rally. Larry Bearnarth pitched 7 1-3 innings of hitless relief ball and wound up the winner, with a six-hit, 10-inning performance.

Lou Burdette, acquired from St. Louis, won his first start for the Cubs in the nightcap. The decisive run came across in the sixth on a double by Billy Williams and Ron Santo's single.

YOUNG "TOM JONES" PRODUCER A NAME ON STAGE, TV TOO

Tall, slim, Tony Richardson has made his mark in television and the screen. And now, with "Tom Jones," which he produced and directed in Eastmancolor for United Artists, it appears that he has made a lasting mark on pictures, too.

For this screen treatment of the Henry Fielding novel which has kept readers laughing for almost 200 years, and is now doing the same for the last six days in Belleville, where "Tom Jones" is being hailed as one of the best things to come out of England cinematically in years, and probably the greatest.

It was at the Royal Court in 1956 that London audiences saw the work of an exciting new talent when Richardson gave them the stage version of John Osborn's "Look Back in Anger" — a play which gave a name to the whole school of "angry" young writers.

Richardson then went on to another stage triumph when he directed Osborn's "The Entertainer." He wrote the screenplay for "Tom Jones."

Wearing his producer's cap, Richardson put together the picture of "Saturday Night and Sunday Morning with Karl Reisz directing. In this picture Albert Finney, who is also playing the lead in "Tom Jones," made his screen debut.

Richardson thereafter went to Hollywood to direct the late William Faulkner's "Sanctuary" for Darryl Zanuck, and then returned to England and the filming (as producer-director) of the award winning "A Taste of Honey."

Richardson turned to the past and chose his personally favorite works. Henry Fielding's "Tom Jones," that is now showing for an unlimited engagement at the Belle Theatre in Belleville.

PLEDGE EYES

HALIFAX (CP) — The Maritime division of registry of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind reports that 600 pledges of eyes were received in 1963. Inclosed were 44 from inmates and staff members of the Maritime Penitentiary at Dorchester, N.B.

AT THE BELLEVILLE DRIVE-IN — A scene from "To Kill A Mockingbird" starring Gregory Peck and Mary Badham, now showing at the Belleville Drive-in theatre. 2nd feature attraction is "The Lawless Breed" in color and stars Rock Hudson and Julie Adams.

AT THE PARK — In this punting scene on the Thames in "Tamahine," opening Thursday at the air conditioned Park Theatre, Nancy Kwan is thinking that if John Fraser doesn't mantic comedy revolves around a Polynesian girl who is brought to a British public school, where she raises havoc with the customs, rules and undergraduates. The new MGM-Seven Arts production was filmed in Cinemascope and Color on locations in England, Paris and the exotic South Seas island of Bora-Bora. On the same program it's the funniest Bob Hope in "A Global Affair". Both MGM hits are first Belleville showings.

Producers Ready to Reap Rewards of Their Adventure

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Last year it was David and Lisa. This year One Potato, Two Potato is the Cinderella movie.

Both films were created by tyro movie makers using unknown actors and authentic backgrounds. Both were treated like orphans until the festival honors stirred interest in their commercial possibilities.

One Potato, Two Potato was made by two veterans of Hollywood television—producer Sam Weston, 36, brother of comedian Jack Weston, and director Larry Peerce, 34, son of tenor Jan Peerce. Yet the film is not of Hollywood, nor does it deal with a subject that the major studios would ordinarily touch.

Its theme is miscegenation. A white midwestern divorcee with a daughter marries a fellow factory worker who is a Negro. Her first husband, who had deserted her, sues for custody of the child. The judge decides in favor of the father.

BASED ON NEWS ITEM

Weston was telling about the two-year ordeal in getting One Potato, Two Potato financed, filmed and booked at:

"Larry and I had done some TV work together and we had always wanted to make a movie. When we read about a court decision that was in the news, we both seized on the idea of doing a film on that theme."

Filming started last August on the script, written by Raphael Hayes. It was shot in 34 days at Painesville, Ohio.

After putting the movie together, Weston and Peerce found they couldn't sell it.

An agent showed the film to British Lion, which bought the world rights. Then came the Cannes Film Festival, where One Potato, Two Potato drew the biggest ovation in nine years and Barbara Barrie was co-winner of the best actress award. Now Weston and Peerce are ready to reap the rewards of their adventure.

The Handguns

Other scores were: Lewis Kulcsar 266; Harold Houting 254; Frank Allin 253; George Taiquette 246; Monty Alves 240; J. Bradley 234; Harry Hodgkinson 230; J. McCallum 205 and Stu Hill 204.

Send Inspector To Investigate Alleged Party

TORONTO (CP) — Provincial Police Commissioner Eric Silk said Tuesday he has sent Chief Inspector Ralph Taylor to Blind River, Ont., to investigate complaints that several of his men and two Toronto police officers were involved in a wild weekend party there.

The complaints were made by a 33-year-old widow and a highway department worker after a Sunday night party at the home of Blind River lawyer.

Staff Inspector Bernard Simmonds of the Metropolitan Toronto police department said he had questioned two detectives and was "quite satisfied our men were not involved in anything wrong."

The widow claims she was forced into a car by three policemen at the party and driven to a motel. When she refused to enter the motel, she was driven back to the party.

When she arrived, she said she found a department of highways workman battered and bleeding. Both are in hospital with cuts and bruises.

Police Chief Walter Etmanski of Blind River said he will question three provincial police officers about the complaints before consulting the Crown attorney about whether he should question two Toronto detectives.

OFFICER RETIRING

OTTAWA (CP)—Maj.-Gen. J. Paul-Emile Bernatchez, 53, one of the Canadian Army's outstanding officers, will retire from the armed forces in the near future to assume a civilian career after handing down senior appointment in the defence department. Associate Defence Minister Cardin, making the announcement, gave no information on the nature of the senior appointment offered to Gen. Bernatchez, who at the moment is the vice-chief of the Canadian general staff, the country's No. 2 soldier.

Canadians Spend Billion Dollars On Liquors

OTTAWA (CP)—For the first time in their history, Canadians spent more than $1,000,000,000 on alcoholic beverages in the 1953-54 fiscal year, the bureau of statistics reported Tuesday.

Ontario and Quebec with $393,963,000 worth far ahead of its nearest rival, Quebec, with $267,127,000 in the year. British Columbia was third with sales worth $159,592,000.

The higher consumption also resulted in record revenues for governments, which takes a bit more than half of the total value.

Combined revenue from taxation and control for the federal and provincial and territorial governments was up eight per cent to $538,979,000 from $492,-127,000 in the previous year.

In terms of retail value, sales of wine increased 31 per cent in the year compared with a seven-per-cent gain for spirits and four per cent for beer. In terms of volume, the gains were five per cent for wine and spirits and 29 and four per cent for beer, more than half of the total value. The value of wine sales was $67,888,000 compared with $51,-338,000 a year earlier. Value of spirits was $468,761,000 compared with $437,051,000, and the value of beer $481,894,000 compared with $452,187,000.

Ontario, Quebec and B.C. combined to account for $742,-884,000 in sales of alcoholic beverages. This was about three-quarters of the $1,018,129,000 total.

The federal government received $257,979,000—about one-quarter of the total value of the alcoholic beverages.

Filibuster Over, Civil Rights Bill Soon To Be Law

Vote at 12-a-Day Clip On 100 Amendments

By JOE HALL

WASHINGTON (AP) — With the southern filibuster broken, Senate leaders predicted today the Senate will pass the civil rights bill by the end of the next week.

Still to be voted on are some 100 amendments. But Senator Hubert Humphrey (Dem. Minn.), the bill's floor manager, figures the Senate should be able to dispose of them at a 12-day clip.

It set to the task Wednesday, beating down two southern amendments and drawing the wrath of the leader of the southern opposition, Richard B. Russell (Dem. Ga.), who shouted that the Senate was acting "in the spirit of a lynch mob".

Daily-dozen progress on the amendments would be a breath-taking change of pace after the 75 days of debate and filibuster which senators voted Wednesday to choke off.

LIMIT DEBATE

The first time the Senate invoked cloture — the limitation on debate—in a civil rights battle. The vote was 71 to 29, four more than the necessary two-thirds majority. All 100 senators swore on hand, including ailing Senator Clair Engle (Dem. Calif.), who cast his vote on closed-circuit TV from a sickbed.

Each senator now is limited to one hour of speaking time on all questions connected with the measure. Leaders said they were certain a substantial part of the 100 hours will not be used.

Humphrey told a reporter he believes the bill will be passed and sent back to the House of Representatives in amended form by Friday of next week. Senator Thomas H. Kuchel, the Republican whip from California, suggested it might be done by Wednesday.

The bill's managers from both the Democratic and Republican parties demonstrated Wednesday they were in full command of the field following the cloture vote.

They beat down 50 to 40 an

Spell Out Pension Benefits

By DON HANRIGHT

OTTAWA (CP) — The benefits that widows, orphans and the disabled would get under the twice-revised federal pension plan were spelled out Wednesday by Prime Minister Pearson.

He told the Commons the constitutional amendment necessary for Ottawa to make such payments has been agreed to by nine provinces.

The Quebec legislature is debating the matter.

Next step will be to get parliamentary approval. Then the British Parliament will be asked to amend the British North America Act.

LISTS BENEFITS

Under Mr. Pearson's proposals Wednesday, this is what would be left for a man's family if he died while contributing to the federal scheme:

1. A $300 maximum death benefit.

2 If he had children, his widow would receive $25 a month plus 37½ per cent of the pension he would have drawn had he been 65. Since his maximum pension would be $104.17 monthly, she would get $64.86 a month.

3 For each dependent child —defined in this plan as one under 18, or between 18 and 25 but still in school—she would also get $25 a month up to a limit for each family of the full pension benefit itself, $104.17.

4 If his widow has no dependent children, she gets the full $64.86 only if she is 45 or older when he died. Otherwise, the payment is reduced by 10 per cent for each year she is short of 45 years of age. This

Lord Thomson's Plan for Rotary Club in Moscow 'Splendid Idea'

TORONTO (CP)—The incoming president of Rotary International thinks Lord Thomson of Fleet has "a splendid idea" in suggesting that the 50-year-old service organization establish itself behind the Iron Curtain, specifically in Moscow.

But Charles W. Pettengill of Greenwich, Conn., quickly touched on the problem of membership qualification.

Rotary members are drawn mainly from business and professional groups, he said Wednesday. Just how such representation could be applied in a Russian club is unknown.

Today's Chuckle

Lady to bank teller: "I'd like to open a joint account with someone who has plenty of money."

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: Fair weather will continue today with sunny skies and temperatures climbing to the 70-degree mark to meet requirements almost normal for this time in June. Friday promises to be a little warmer with a disturbance moving toward central Ontario. Showers are expected to reach the Algoma and White River regions by evening with increasing cloudiness indicated elsewhere.

"I don't know on what theory the (Russian) members would be able to, in terms of the club's bylaws."

However, Mr. Pettengill, who takes office as the 57th international president of the board of directors at the 59th annual international convention here today or next week at international headquarters in Evanston, Ill.

His enthusiasm was shared by many of the other 14,000 delegates to the four-day general meeting winding up today.

Lord Thomson, Canadian-born press magnate and British peer, drew loud applause Wednesday when he told delegates international conditions seemed favorable for establishing a Rotary club in the Soviet Union.

"Premier Khrushchev and the Soviet government have responded favorably to considerations of the establishment of a Rotary club in Moscow," he said.

Lord Thomson visited the Soviet leader last year and his encouraging reception, he said, prompted the idea of extending Rotary into Russia.

"If we want to be friends, we must praise the good things they have done and are doing . . . and these are many." He emphasized that goodwill is the surest way of establishing friendly rapport among countries.

Postpone Debate On Flag

By KEN KELLY

OTTAWA (CP) — Parliament Wednesday put its flags away for another day. They'll be waving in debate next Monday.

A planned start on the parliamentary flag debate today was set aside by Prime Minister Pearson in favor of some priority legislative items.

But he did agree to arrange a test flying of the government's proposed design — three red maple leaves on a white ground with vertical deep blue bars at the edges—from a Parliament Hill flagpole today or Friday.

Meanwhile, a new flag design was run up by the New Democrats. They served notice they'll try to replace the threat leaves on the government's design with a single red leaf.

Their position is that the government is staking its life only on bringing in a distinctive Canadian flag—not on the design details of the proposed resolution.

REPORT INDICATED

Sources close to the government gave some support to this view. Mr. Pearson promised, when asked about it in the Commons, to give his views later.

This flag version was one of several passed over by the cabinet in selecting the three-leaf design favored by Mr. Pearson.

But informants said the government would agree to it if a majority of MPs mark it their preference before the final vote in the parliamentary approval is put on the flag.

Reid Scott (NDP — Toronto Danforth), who has had a one-leaf design favored by Mr. Diefenbaker, said he will move an amendment to the government's flag resolution calling for the alternative.

A statement by Andrew Brewin (NDP — Toronto Greenwood), chairman of the NDP caucus, said the one-leaf design is that party's preference with the single leaf denoting unity.

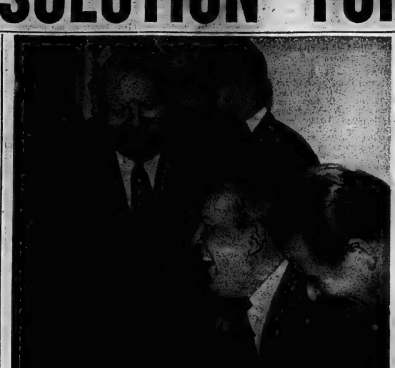
CITES OTHER WORK

The cancellation, plus the flag debate today, Mr. Pearson told the Commons he would like to have completed certain bills for additional farm loan credits and for interim spending authority to pay current government bills.

He also wanted to give priority to constitutional amendments which would permit the Canada Pension Plan to pay benefits sooner.

The provinces had agreed to this step and the government was prepared to move on it by the Quebec legislature.

The government also is being pressed by the NDP to have votes on the double-barrelled flag resolution. This would permit MPs to vote separately on a Canadian flag and on use of the Union Jack — as proposed by the government—to mark Canada's Commonwealth connection.



TAKE UP FARM CREDIT

After setting aside the flag question, MPs resumed debate on a government bill authorizing a total $300,000,000 in loans by the Farm Credit Corporation and higher maximum loans to farmers.

Meanwhile, in the Senate the final parliamentary step was taken in the passage of the Columbia River treaty. The Commons had given formal approval to terms of the pact with the United States for development of the river.

Passage of the treaty gave the government ample time before the Oct. 1 deadline for ratification. All that remains to be done is a formal exchange of notes between the two governments to bring it into force.

The U.S. will pay the British Columbia government $274,000,000 for the electrical power for 30 years and another $80,000,000 for flood-control benefits from storage dams located in Canada.

Canadian-German Relations Cemented by Erhard's Visit

OTTAWA (CP) — A new era in Canadian-German relations —in sum, let bygones be bygones—was heralded here Wednesday by summit talks between Prime Minister Pearson and West German Chancellor Ludwig Erhard.

A joint communique issued after the talks referred to the "tragic events" of Hitlerism which has characterized the development of relations in every field between Canada and Germany in recent years.

"The discussions reflected a close harmony of view on all important questions and strengthened the framework for future co-operation between Canada and Germany."

The atmosphere was apparent from the moment Dr. Erhard's arrival Monday when Mr. Pearson referred to the "new" Germany as "democratic and peace-loving."

The chancellor was given an ovation in the Commons when he watched the start of the sitting from the speaker's gallery. He placed a wreath at the National War Memorial and said at a press conference: "We

Eight on Trial for Treason Convicted in South Africa

PRETORIA (AP) — Eight of nine defendants in South Africa's major treason trial were found guilty today. A white defendant was acquitted.

Among those convicted were Negro nationalist leaders Nelson Mandela, known as the Black Pimpernel for his feats of eluding police, and Walter Sisulu.

The six Negroes, two whites and one Indian had been on trial for eight months. They were charged by the white supremacist government of assisting in acts of sabotage allegedly to prepare for guerrilla warfare and an invasion to overthrow the state.

Judge Quartus de Wet said he would sentence them Friday. All could receive the death penalty.

Only Lionel Bernstein, a white Johannesburg architect, was acquitted but he was immediately arrested again, on a warrant charging alleged offences under the Suppression of Communism Act.

Michigan Hunts 'The Thing' Horror Bleaches Dog's Eyeball

SISTER LAKES, Mich. (AP)—Residents of this southwestern Michigan community have decided it's time to go after "the thing."

The thing is reported as being nine feet tall, weighing approximately 500 pounds, possessed of black leathery face and eyes that glow in the dark.

Undersheriff Ernie Kraus said he and a couple of men would try to locate the monster

Gordon Brown of nearby Dowagiac says he saw the thing standing between a barn and shed.

He called two companions and all three followed it for a short distance before they lost it in the woods, he said.

Deputies Howard Sheline and Daniel Behrman said they found a track Tuesday night measuring 34 inches at the heel and more than six inches across the ball of the foot.

They were unable to explain it.

Mrs. John Utrup claimed she was chased into her house by the monster Tuesday night. She didn't actually see it, she said.

"My dogs chased it one time—but that was the last," she said. "One—a shepherd—came back with his right eye faded into a pale blue ball. But three weeks later, the pupil became visible and now the eye is back to normal. But he's scared now. We know the thing is in the woods back of our house when the dogs start barking and it's getting so that we're afraid to go out of the house."

Turkish Minister Says U.S. Moves Bringing Results

Greece, Turkey Warned U.S. Ready to Be Tough

By HAL McCLURE

ANKARA (AP)—George Ball, U.S. undersecretary of state, discussed the Cyprus crisis today with Turkish Premier Ismet Inonu, who later said "we are on the way to find a solution."

Turkish Foreign Minister Feridun Cemal Erkin told reporters: "The United States has actively intervened in the Cyprus matter and America wants this question to be settled in a peaceful way and according to legitimate interests of Greece and Turkey."

Ball was dispatched on his trouble - shooting mission to Athens and Ankara by President Johnson as the Cyprus crisis appeared to worsen in the wake of reports last week end that Turkey planned military intervention in the troubled Mediterranean island.

The American diplomat talked with Inonu for two hours then took off for Washington. He had met with Greek leaders in Athens Wednesday.

Inonu, reflecting an air of optimism, told reporters: "We are on the way to find a solution. The Allies have made and are making efforts to resolve the question between Greece and Turkey."

Informed sources said earlier Ball brought a warning to both Greece and Turkey that the United States is prepared to take sharp measures to prevent a war over Cyprus that would be disastrous for NATO.

GAVE WARNING

Greek Premier George Papandreou said after his talk with Ball he had warned of the consequences of any Turkish invasion.

"Our target is a peaceful solution and we endeavor to maintain peace," Papandreou said he told Ball.

American sources said the Greeks, alarmed at the prospect of a war with one more powerful armed Turks, had asked the United States to send over high officials.

Ball also carried word that the United States was concerned over reports that President Makarios of Cyprus might seek Soviet arms to fight any Turkish invasion.

Makarios sent messages to all United Nations members Wednesday asking support for their influence to stop what he said were continuing Turkish threats.

CLAIMS MOBILIZATION

The Greek-Cypriot archbishop charged that Turkey had mobilized "great numbers of men by land and air forces ready for an invasion of Cyprus."

A foreign office spokesman in Ankara denied that it plans military intervention in Cyprus.

The Turks have insisted, however, that under the 1960 ac-

Wider Powers Asked

KINGSTON (CP) — Police Chief Edward Tschirhart of Barrie advocated Wednesday that law enforcement officers should have wider powers of arrest, especially in Highway Traffic Act offences.

In a traffic committee report to the annual Ontario Chief Constables Association conference, Chief Tschirhart said officers expected to enforce violations of the traffic act have "very little authority" at present.

"The notion that police officers would take liberties with such powers is ridiculous," he said. "Policemen have powers of arrest in matters far less serious."

He cited cases of persons refusing to produce their driver's licence, ordering officers trying to serve a driver suspension notice off their property and lay charges when refuse to give their names to a policeman as examples of situations in which broader powers of arrest would be advantageous.

POWERS 'NON-EXISTENT'

"The citizen probably knows as well as the officer that the policeman's powers of enforcement as they relate to the act are almost non-existent."

Prof. E. J. Reid of the University of Toronto's electrical engineering department outlined to delegates details of an elaborate teletype network, estimated to cost $190,000 yearly, which will link 127 Ontario municipalities, provincial police detachments and RCMP stations within 12 months.

Chief Reid termed the tap-proof communications system, also to be connected with Quebec police departments as well as the FBI and some New York State and Michigan police headquarters, as unique in the field of police work.

He said each department involved will be supplied with leased dial equipment which will enable operators to send messages to any police station on the network and receive answers in a matter of seconds.

Metropolitan Toronto Police Chief James Mackey said participating municipalities with more than 10,000 population will pay $44,000 in annual

Research Institute Is Formed

By BRENDA LARGE

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Conference on the Family gave birth Wednesday to a new research organization—the Vanier Institute on the Family.

The new institute will bear the name of the Governor-General and his wife in recognition of their initiation of the family conference.

The 350 delegates to the four-day meeting acted scarcely on roots to their homes across the country before the first organizational steps to set up the institute were complete.

Conference President A. D. P. Heeney of Ottawa announced after a meeting of the national conference executive that Rt. Rev. Clarence J. Reed, Anglican bishop of Ottawa, would be the institute's overseer.

Another study is to select a provisional board which will organize the structure, auspices, objectives and constitution of the institute "as soon as possible," Mr. Heeney said.

MOUNTAIN MYTHOLOGY

"The basic purpose of the institute will be to maintain and develop by positive and continuous action the interest in family life mobilized through the conference."

The family conference, which featured both lofty philosophical debates and practical, sociological jargon, came to an emotional conclusion Wednesday.

Governor General Vanier spoke movingly of his delight at the success of the meeting in a closing address.

"My wife and I are very happy. Frankly, we haven't been so happy for a very long time. One of our fondest hopes has been realized."

Rene Vadne, who has five children, did not speak at the conference's closing ceremony but was visibly moved by her husband's words.

TOLD OF HOPE

In a pre-conference interview, she had told a reporter:

"Several years ago we began to think of hope for peace we might leave behind for Canada when we left Government House. We hope that this conference may be followed by something, perhaps the setting up of a foundation or research centre. . ."

Gen. Vanier said in his farewell speech he hoped the meeting would inspire a deeper and more intimate co-operation between the different organizations already existing for the Dogs Used to Repulse White Men Attacking Negro Demonstrators

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla. (AP) Tear gas and police dogs were used to break up an angry crowd of white men attacking racial demonstrators in St. Augustine.

The outbreak of violence Wednesday was the second in as many nights at the Florida east coast city where Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., has vowed to lead a massive assault on segregation.

A similar move was planned in Tuscaloosa, Ala., by leaders of the Negro integration leader who is president of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference.

About 400 persons marched into downtown St. Augustine accompanied by [illegible] armed secret of more than 200 police.

More than 100 white men gathered. Some of them broke away from police lines and attacked demonstrators. Others broke concrete block fixtures in the park and buried chunks of rock and brick.

It was then the police used the tear gas and the dogs. Four white men were arrested.

Tuscaloosa Negroes held a mass meeting Wednesday night and promised their leaders to take part in another demonstration in the Alabama city.

A total of 96 Negroes were arrested during a clash with police outside a church Tuesday. Police warned that other arrests would be made should the protest marches resume.

Many Suggestions, Ideas Advanced for Projects To Honor Centennial Year

A decision on the shape of things to come for Belleville's Centennial Celebration project appears in the offing.

What exactly the project will be has not yet been publicly announced.

However, it moved closer to being resolved after a meeting of interested minds in the city this morning.

Sponsored by the city's Parks and Recreation Committee, an assembly of community groups gathered at the recreation centre this morning to air their ideas.

For the event, the committee also called in some expert advice to help co - ordinate the various proposals into a specific project.

On hand was Mervin G. Kaye, a director of Centennial Celebration Consultants Limited — a group of leading professional men interested in aiding municipalities planning for the 1967 centennial.

The group includes such public personalities as Robert W. Macaulay, who formerly held the portfolios of Economics and Development and Energy Resources in the Ontario government, and journalist and commentator Pierre Berton.

After the recreation centre meeting the group drove to Zwick's Island for a first-hand look at some of the proposals for progress at the site by the parks committee.

It was at the centre however, that the community group presented their own ideas of what a local centennial project should be.

The exchange was as diverse as the ideas were imaginative.

Committee member, William Hurst, mooted the idea of a dike at Zwick's Island to provide a lagoon for swimming and small boats and a community centre.

Representatives of the city's Community Planning Association of Canada, however held out for a project that would reinvigorate downtown Belleville with a renewal of historical sites in the waterfront area. Redevelopment of the Moira River north to Highway 401 (the city limits) and preservation of the city hall property also was discussed.

The city's historical society suggested transforming the Ponton property on West Dundas Street into a museum and park site.

Plans and drawings of a youth centre also were submitted to the meeting.

TO HOLD LUNCHEON

On the march of the debate, a member of the Kiwanis Club reminded the meeting his organization was celebrating its 40th anniversary next year and the local club was seeking a project to mark the occasion.

Later in the day committee members were scheduled to have a luncheon meeting with Mr. Kaye and carry ideas onto firmer ground.

More discussion on the various ideas presented earlier was expected to result in a recommendation to city council. The recommendation, if accepted, would then be the city's official project for the centennial year.

When the recommendation will be forthcoming was not known — no more than was an indication of which proposal will be sifted from the ideas presented.

One guidepost for the general direction it will take may be contained in the terms of reference issued by Mr. Kaye's consulting group:

"We hope that every community in Canada will start now to plan the most carefully integrated and imaginative program of which it is capable — one which will reflect credit on all Canadians and which will tell each citizen something about what he is, where he sprang from and where he is going."

Hold Belleville Man Responsible For Accident

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Five members of a London family injured in a two-vehicle crash five years ago were awarded damages totalling $48,417.46 in an Ontario Supreme Court judgment handed down today by Mr. Justice Gale.

Mrs. Ethel Costello, who had portions of both kneecaps removed as a result of the accident, was awarded $15,000. Her husband, Patrick, who suffered arm cuts and a left foot injury, was awarded $200 general damages and $6,417.84 special damages for out-of-pocket expenses.

Awards of $5,500 went to their daughter, Gloria, 10, who had her right leg and arm broken; $8 000 to a son, Thomas, 12, whose spine was broken, and $1,000 to another son, Martin, who suffered pain and discomfort from chest and abdominal injuries.

Mr. Justice Brooke found John G. Morton of Belleville solely responsible for the accident because he failed to keep his proper lookout.

Mr. Morton was uninsured and the accident occurred when it was agreed by law that no more than $30,000 could be obtained from the province's Unsatisfied Judgment Fund for any single accident.

They rendered two numbers from the show "Annie Get Your Gun," to a drew laughter and loud applause.

Next came Bruce Sills with his fine skill with the musical saw and the ukulele, following this, Mrs. Barton from Cobourg sang a solo, "Home on the Range." Mrs. Wilson, also from Cobourg, a comedienne, kept the gathering laughing heartily with her antics.

Finally, Mr. and Mrs. Robinson, from the Belleville club, presented their fine rendition of the song "When You and I Were Young Maggie."

Group Formed to Stop Fill Of Gravel Pit With Garbage

TRENTON — In spite of his protest that it would be "the kiss of death" to any political aspirations he might have, E. Ed. (Ted) Parker Jr. was prevailed upon by around 80 Stanley Park residents last night to accept the presidency of a citizens' group dedicated to keeping Trenton's garbage dump from becoming a "garbage dump" out of the gravel pit in the subdivision. Mr. Parker is president of the Trenton Progressive - Conservative Association.

At last night's citizens' meeting in the pit itself, a seven-man, two-woman executive was elected to the unnamed association. Vice-president is Dr. R. Flynn; treasurer, Herbert Jimmett; secretary, Mrs. Fred Johns. Other executive members are: Al Greenwell, Mrs. Ted Reid, James Walsh, Harvey Bailey and developer, Stanley Klemstein.

Present at the meeting were an uncountable number of children, dogs, one baby white enamine a tail, a baby in a buggy and a bird flying overhead which circled around Mr. Parker tenatively identified as a vulture.

Mr. Parker made it clear that his sympathies lay with those with the other residents, but said he wondered just how far they could go in their fight with council. He said that a precedent had been established at Zwick's Island in Belleville and since Trenton's MOH, Dr. E. W. Dow, had already ruled council's intention to fill in the pit by the sanitary landfill method was not an "unhealthy" idea, he (Mr. Parker) wouldn't see how the residents could stop garbage being dumped in the pit.

STILL IN FREE COUNTRY

Mr. Simard said that $200 had been collected so far for the purpose of retaining a lawyer to advise the residents on their legal stand.

Mr. Parker said that much had already been spent in lawyers' fees. By calling an official at Toronto, Mr. Parker said he had learned there is nothing dealing specifically with municipal garbage dumping on the books of the legislature.

"We're still in a free country," Mr. Simard announced from a mound just over the edge of the pit he had chosen as a dais to conduct the elections. "we have a right to stop anything in the pit. By putting on night and day pickets if necessary. I can't do too much of it myself, because I have to work. But my wife and three children will picket."

Several of the other gentlemen present offered the services of their wives for picket duty.

At the close of the meeting in the pit, many of the residents came forward, brandishing $20 and $10 bills, council seems to be doing most of its business in the pit and you have only to read the local papers to see what a mess they're making of things. They're in trouble with every other body in town. The school board and the police commission, for instance. And you people know what to do about it when election time comes up next year.

During a panel discussion on firearms, Chief Constable L. G. Lawrence of Hamilton suggested that all sales, trades and loans of rifles and shotguns should be recorded to help police in tracing weapons used in crimes.

He said the gun records, with name, address and signature of gun recipient and a description of the gun, should be available to any officer requesting it.

Mr. Lawrence said there is no provision in the Criminal Code covering rifles or shotguns.

He also suggested that a check be made of persons possessing target rifle licences who use their weapons to hunt or in some way violate the stipulations of their permit.

ASKS LOWER LIMIT

Kapuskasing Chief Constable William Thompson asked that the present air guns or air pistols and ammunition for such weapons be kept by law from children under 18 years of age. The Criminal Code makes it an offence to make these weapons available to children under 14.

Lonsdale Will Be Visited in Walking Tour

The last architectural walking tour in the Historical Society's current series will visit Lonsdale this Sunday, and not much actual walking will be done.

First stop will be at Jack Farrell's Blacksmith Shop, where to find at the corner of the "Shannondale Gravels" road and the fourth concession of Tyendinaga. This shop may disappear soon in the widening of the road, and is about the last still functioning in our area.

Several houses on the fourth are of interest. The group will go through the "Capt. Davis" house, an unusual Regency Cottage of the 1820's, supposedly.

Arriving finally at Lonsdale, notable for its lovely situation and its excellent stone masonry (much finer than Belleville's), the group will see the little church and the mill and several houses including the Cappell house, this last somewhat disguised by modernization.

Mrs. J. English has arranged for the group to enter many of these buildings, and the tour will end at her house on the third, towards four o'clock, for coffee.

Anyone unable to find Mr. Farrell's blacksmith shop, at 2.00 p.m., is advised to come to the Hastings County Museum at once for guidance and transportation.

As always, the public is invited on this tour.

W. McCormick Special Speaker At Convention

Regional Director for Region No. 7 of the Ontario Association of Real Estate Boards, William J. McCormick of the W. J. McCormick Realty Limited of Belleville addressed the annual sale - O - rama convention of the Oshawa District Real Estate Board in Oshawa.

Mr. McCormick addressed the noon luncheon before from 125 to 135 realtors and salesmen from Kitchener to Cornwall. He spoke on harmony and co-operation among individual real estate offices in a community".

He said he felt they should work together to maintain an active real estate board capable of rendering efficient service to the public.

Mr. McCormick added that board members should be ready and willing to assume their responsibility in the community.

He emphasized the importance of the multiple listing service and mentioned the great number of sales completed under this service.

He also stated that there were a great number of satisfied property owners who had used this method of selling, which he said was one of the few advantages of becoming a realtor, by belonging to your local real estate board.

Attending the convention from Belleville was Mrs. Cleo Colling and Mr. John MacGregor from the McCormick Real Estate office.

Horticultural Society Notes

The June meeting of the Belleville Horticultural Society maintained the high calibre of combined entertainment and instruction that has been prevalent at the meetings this year.

With the urge to make Belleville more beautiful still their chief aim, the members were treated to movies in the preparing and the replanting of the flower beds around the Industrial Commission and ushering were advised as to time and place of performance. At the same time the members were advised to look for petunias with soft lush growth, when purchasing them, since the ones already breaking into bloom may be somewhat woody; if so the plant on its way to growing already will not be so inclined to bush out. The result is a poorer showing of bloom on a somewhat lanky plant, with disappointment in store for the gardener.

Against their own better judgment, newcomers are frequently compelled to have plants ready to bloom when they purchase, in order to buy, he wants to see what he is getting. We should be more mature and patient and not demand in the field of horticulture, what the specialists know is not possible.

PEONI DISPLAY

Members were asked for blooms for the coming flower displays to be held during the summer. The spring display is always of particular interest, since the profusion and size of bloom together with the vibrant colors available are most appealing. The rose show coming later is less showy, but certainly no less beautiful. Roses have a charm, a loveliness and a delicacy shared with no other bloom, and dating far, far back into history.

These two displays will be most attractive, and citizens who are not members will be pleased to see them also.

Mr. J. W. Hodgson, local iris expert, had a display of his "specialty" to delight and impress the meeting. For size of bloom and beauty of color his specimens of Elmoh, Snow King, Cascade Splendor, Blue Rhythm, Gold Opal, Ola Kala, and Indigo Bunting will send the members scurrying through their catalogues in search of them. Two lucky ladies were on hand, winners of some of these choice plants at door prize.

With regard to the care of Iris, his advice given was well within the range of the dankest amateur: a clay soil, well drained is preferable to a sandy soil, full sun, feeding with bone meal, not too much water.

CERTIFICATE OF MERIT

A certificate of merit was awarded on behalf of the Society by Dr. J. Hamilton to Miss Ella Rowland. Commenting on her many years of active effort and successful gardening, Dr. Hamilton thanked her for the contribution she had made to horticulture in the city, and for her encouragement and generosity to countless people whose gratitude was expressed in this award made possible by the Ontario Horticultural Society.

GUEST SPEAKER

Mr. Lloyd Syer newly appointed Parks superintendent of the city, introduced the guest speaker of the evening Mr. A. C. Drysdale, public relations officer with Sheridan Nurseries, having recently returned from a trip to Europe and especially to the International Horticultural Exhibition at Hamburg, Germany, the speaker took the members on an illustrated tour of the exhibition which ran for six months and covered an area of 180 acres, organized to transmit new ideas to the people of the western world.

Germany was the ideal spot for its presentation. Having recovered almost completely from the ravages of war, the city presents a modern face to be beautified by the exhibition.

Among the numerous items of information gained, were the use of roses for landscaping on motorways, the mulching of tuberous begonias in sun, keeping them to a minimum of two hours a day in the shade, and the use of clematis as accents against white walls.

HOUR OF CONTINENT

From Hamburg, to Berlin and the Berlin wall is a stark reminder of man's "inhumanity to man," which should be seen by everyone touring the country. Garden architecture and mound gardening in Holland, of England, in France the buildings are currently being restored, providing a beautiful background for many of the famous sights. Prices for such items as nursery stock is considerably higher in Europe than at home.

Yet at any price, beauty is worth it since in the words of the poet: "A thing of beauty is a joy forever".

IF FOR DISABLED

The disability pension will be paid to any person who contributes to the plan but who suffers "medical impairments in which disability is so prolonged and severe that the person is unable to secure substantial gainful employment."

If he meets that degree of disability, he will get a flat-rate benefit of $25 a month plus 75 per cent of what his pension would have been at age 65. If he would have received the maximum pension of $104.17 monthly, his disability pension would work out to $103.18 a month.

One complication is that the pension plan has a 10-year period of build-up to full benefits. It would start in 1967 by paying 10 per cent of benefits, rising by 10 percentage points a year to full benefits in 1977.

If the survivors' benefits were calculated as a percentage of these, the widows and orphans would get next to nothing—as Mr. Pearson put it, "the benefits would be too small to be payable."

The result is that a man's survivors will get benefits only if he has contributed to the pension fund for at least two years, or a third of the total number of years possible for him to contribute.

Disability payments would not start until 1971.

White Cane Club Enjoys Fine Renditions

The White Cane Club held its June meeting at St. Kiwanis Centre Monday evening. Mrs. Helen Wardaugh, president, presided over a meeting of all members and their escorts. Violet Waite who has been confined to hospital for two weeks was given a special welcome and she in turn thanked the members for all their kindness to her while she was ill.

Clarence Morris introduced the entertainers for the evening. Miss Jane MacFarlane rendered two fine violin selections and Miss Gay McFarlane delighted her listeners as she sang two selections. Mrs. M. McFarlane acted as accompanist for her daughters.

Miss Pat Baverstock thanked the artists.

The members were reminded of the annual visit to the Friendship Club in Kingston and were asked to be at the bus terminal by five o'clock on Saturday. The trip to Peterborough to visit the club there will be on June 18. It is hoped that all members with their escorts will make every effort to attend these fine meetings when the blind of the various communities can enjoy fellowship together.

The July meeting will take the form of a picnic to be held at the home of one of the members, Mr. George Zimmele.

Clarence Morris took charge of the entertainment. Pat Baverstock was the winner in the "Pillow Game" and the winners in the "Shake-Up" contest were: Jim Morris, Harvey St. Onge, Ted Rowe, Annie Casement and Vi Waite. George Zimmels won the scrambled word game.

Mickey Macdonald and several Kiwanis ladies served a delicious lunch which was enjoyed by Vi Waite who extended on the same thanks to the drivers of the Lions Club who bring the members to and from their homes. The White Cane Club through the C.N.I.B. is a participating agency of the United Appeal.

HOLIDAY IN SICILY

OSLO (AP)—Coal mining on the bleak Norwegian Spitsbergen archipelago is a hard, cold life, so this year the coal company Norske Kullkompani is starting an inducement for workers' recruitment by sending 19 old hands on a two-week, all-expense-paid vacation to sunny Sicily.

New Display At Museum

The display will be opened officially this Saturday, June 13, 2.00 p.m., when dignitaries will engage in a spike driving contest.

Also Saturday afternoon, special 45-minute walking tours will be conducted to view some of the interesting early buildings in the lower Front Street area. And slide shows at the museum will show the various styles of architecture arriving in Belleville from the 19th century.

The idea of this new museum display is to show by means of maps and pictures the growth of Belleville in the 19th century.

The earliest map shown is the 1816 original survey plan of Belleville showing every building and identifying the owner and use.

This is an outstanding display and the public is cordially invited to attend the official opening ceremonies.

H. R. Tompkins Sells Stirling News Argus

The Stirling News Argus, operated for the past 30 years by Mr. H. R. Tompkins, has been sold.

The new owner of the Stirling weekly is Robert L. Hulin, now working at the News Argus, who will take over the business on July 1st.

Mr. Tompkins has no definite plans for the future, but after 30 years operating his own business feels it is time to take it easy for a while and do a little lawn bowling.

A native of the Kemptville area, Mr. Tompkins started in the newspaper business with the Kemptville Weekly Advance in 1916 and bought the Stirling News Argus in April, 1934, from Gus Dobbie, now editor of the Smiths Falls Record-News.

The new Stirling newspaper owner is a Stirling boy, and toward worker recruitment sending 19 old hands on a two-week, all-expense-paid vacation to sunny Sicily.

have no territorial claims".

The chancellor told reporters in meeting before him and Prime Minister Khrushchev "might be possible and conceivable."

He added that such a meeting would presuppose advance co-ordination of the German position with that of its allies.

Dr. Erhard several times referred to advance co-ordination of policy among Western countries, especially among NATO members.

He suggested there should be such co-ordination on the problem of recognition of Communist China. External Affairs Minister Martin made a similar suggestion at the NATO ministerial meeting last month.

Dr. Erhard said it would be deplorable if the impression gained ground that divided Germany would continue to put up with its "present tragic fate."

He inalienable right of reunification could not be denied.

He declined a direct reply to a question whether his government will renounce the 1938 Munich agreement.

West German transport minister, Hans Seebohm, has called for the return of the Sudetenland, ceded to Germany at the Munich pact and given back to Czechoslovakia after the war.

Dr. Erhard again disagreed with Seebohm's statement. He said he thinks the Munich agreement was torn up by Hitler.

Germany hoped to help the Communist countries of eastern Europe commercially and thereby help remove gradually the "mountains of distrust."

Germany had integrated all its forces into NATO and renounced production of atomic, bacteriological and chemical weapons. It had done all in its power to dispel the mistrust often expressed in Communist Europe.

"There is no room for any German adventures," he said.

Gil Wamboldt Heads Quinte Curling Club

Following this meeting another was held, presided over by the vice-president, Ken Pinder, and the various chairmen for the year were appointed.

Everett Black is the past-president and will assist all committees in their work. Bob Alexander will be chairman of the club's curling section, with Ron Benn again taking charge of ice making and maintenance. Dan Cooley will take over from Ken Pinder as chairman of the canteen, while Bill Gault will be chairman of building, property and sales. Pearson Drops a Hint

Diplomats sometimes manage to tip-toe in where even fools would hesitate to creep, a condition of affairs which must make timid angels shudder. Still, we are all for the practice, if the venturesome intruders can make as good use of their opportunities as did Prime Minister L. B. Pearson at Baltimore the other day.

He virtually told U.S. citizens that their presidential election is everybody's business, that some of the aspirants for the position are talking dangerous nonsense and that this view of the situation is now held by Canada alone but by a host of other nations.

Yet he used words with such delicacy that there was no single phrase to which anyone could take offence and it is extremely difficult to quarrel with a conclusion unless one can criticize some thread in the argument by which it is reached.

Those who heard him relate how the world listened with deep hope and anxiety to U.S. leaders, "especially during elections when politicians can use words in the heat of a campaign that send cold shudders or warm impulses of appreciation to the people who are affected by everything you do," will understand why Johns Hopkins University considered him worthy to receive the honorary degree of doctor of laws.

There is, however, one trouble with delicacy — it always can be misinterpreted.

Still, it would be a rather thick-headed American who really believed that Canadians experience "warm impulses of appreciation" when Senator Barry Goldwater speaks.

Nonsense, Mr. Fisher

John Fisher, who made his reputation as the high priest of tourism, is Canada's Centennial Commissioner and he should prove a good one.

We do wish, though, that he would go about his job of arranging a jolly time for our 1967 visitors and the folks at home without concerning himself with matters outside the scope of his duties, and perhaps, alas, of his comprehension.

He is now on record as pleading that we compose, or conceal, our differences—"at least let's not hang out our dirty washing for all to see."

We have never been able to understand where people who use this phrase got their insight into laundering. Our experience is that when the washing is hung out, it is clean. It may look a little untidy, but this is preferable to continuing to wear dirty linen, or to letting it mildew in the basement because we are too "nice" to dry it in the open air.

Mr. Fisher thinks some newspapers are over-stressing present controversies. Maybe so. But, despite his doubts, we do not think bringing these differences in our own house into the open will "put a damper on the welcome we extend to outside visitors." Very few of them will be interested in anything more serious than the World's Fair at Montreal, Centennial celebrations in other cities, towns and even hamlets, our lakes, streams, forests, beaches and mountains. None of these is likely to suffer from disputes over bi-culturalism, bi-lingualism, the flag or the like.

If we have to wait until after 1967 before attempting to solve these differences by reasoned argument, then our Centennial may well be the death of us.

Living Dangerously

Mrs. Sybil Leek, Britain's top witch, is going to emigrate to the U.S. She says she has been persecuted in Britain, "like a Negro in Alabama."

Negroes in Alabama would probably be quite willing to arrange a cultural exchange program with British witches.

Some witches, on the other hand, may have a longer memory than Mrs. Leek. She plans to establish a witches' group in Boston, Mass. We seem to recall that the last time that was attempted there was a little trouble at Salem.

You can draw any kind of picture you like on a clean slate and indulge your every whim in the wilderness in laying out a New Delhi, Canberra or Brasilia, but when you operate in an over-built metropolis you have to hack your way with a meat axe.—Robert Moses, president of the New York World's Fair.

He who would distinguish the true from the false must have an adequate idea of what is true and false.—Benedict Spinoza.

Ottawa Offbeat

Pearson and Diefenbaker Vie For Oscars in Ottawa Drama

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — . . . more notes on a political war correspondent's cuff from the battlefield of the House of Commons . . .

You get so you can read the telltale signs and know who's drawing blood in this savage day-to-day struggle to what inescapably must be the political death of either Prime Minister Pearson or Opposition Leader Diefenbaker.

For a fight to the dead it has to be . . . for one or the other. They both can't win. Nor can it be a stand-off.

Nothing now seems more certain than that a snap before-it's-allotted-time election is in the making.

For the loser, that will be it. Their parties, Liberal and Conservatives whichever it may be, will dump him.

Both men are approaching 70 and would go, in the normal course of political events, in a very few more years anyway.

But now, under the present peculiar circumstances — of each having been a winner and a loser — it will be sudden political death, in the form of a quick resignation, for the one who fails this time to win power.

LIKE AN ENCORE

And this time — as in 1957 after the Pipeline, and again in '58 after the Cabinet revolt — the fight could be a grim one and lost in the Commons before it ever starts on the hustings.

The stage now is set for that as in the Parliaments that fought and fell before the '57 and '58 elections. It's the same chief ingredient — the difficulty of the Government in getting its Parliamentary business done.

And this time — as in 1957 after the Pipeline, and again in '58 after the Cabinet revolt — the fight could be a grim one and lost in the Commons before it ever starts on the hustings.

The stage now is set for that as in the Parliaments that fought and fell before the '57 and '58 elections. It's the same chief ingredient — the difficulty of the Government in getting its Parliamentary business done.

Before, with the Liberals, it was the Pipeline.

Then, after the Conservatives, it was the Fulton Resolution against the prime minister.

Now it is the Speaker's flag fight, even if both Liberals and Conservatives alike don't care to boil it down to something that basic.

And now, as each time before, there is the opportunity, not just an ordinary, listless, lackluster going-through-the-motions Opposition, but a real fighting Cocky. Sure of itself. Smelling blood.

Both the prime minister and the Opposition leader, of all men in the House, are fully aware of the dangerously explosive situation and what it must mean personally to one or the other.

That is very likely what makes them so mutually hostile.

Watch the OM Warrior, Diefenbaker, rise each day for the fight. Head cocked. Eyes popping out. Other hand on hip. Voice ringing in that tone of insurrection, that reminds one of certain notable sections of Madrid. And a hundred young Falangists (of all people) here and there could be a Cabinet Minister warning that unless the authorities make a determined, more vigorous drive in Spain, there is danger of a widening gulf between the Franco regime and Spanish youth.

There is significance in that reference to Spain and Franco. Perhaps the single greatest factor in helping General Franco to maintain his totalitarian power virtually unchallenged for a quarter of a century has been the memory of the civil war, the suffering and destruction of the civil war. Those who survived that have been willing to pay very much to avoid a repetition of cruel fratricidal strife. But now in Spain a generation is coming to maturity whose knowledge of that trial of the 1930's comes only from hearsay.

Such young people cannot be isolated from the progress and revolutionary trends of the 19-60's. Thus henceforward one can expect more, not less political ferment to splinter through the authoritarian blanket which the Franco regime still tries to hold down over Spain. Recently from within both the Roman Catholic Church and the Falange — neither of which in Spain has been hasty in the past to champion the cause of democracy — have come signs of awareness that reform is needed now to head off upheaval.

The bombs in Madrid are thought to be noisy reminders from the political opposition of how it still is elsewhere.

In Asturas, the miners are actively represented as misled by Communists and other agitators. In fact, they are not misled but are very deliberately protesting against their plight, and apparently demanding the setting up of independent trade unions in the place of those organized by the government. Strikes are illegal in Spain. Consequently, the miners get no strike pay. And so one can but admire the sickness for the courage which accepts such sacrifice.

Young Spain Is Restless

Christian Science Monitor

Royal nuptials and the fantasies of the Carlist pretenders to the Spanish throne have diverted outside attention in recent weeks from internal unrest. The appointment in Spain itself. For the third spring in a row, coal miners are on strike in Asturias. At least nine minor bomb explosions are reported from the busiest streets of fashionable sections of Madrid. And a hundred young Falangists (of all people) have been arrested for a Cabinet Minister warning that unless the authorities make a determined, more vigorous drive in Spain, there is danger of a widening gulf between the Franco regime and Spanish youth.

There is significance in that reference to Spain and Franco. Perhaps the single greatest factor in helping General Franco to maintain his totalitarian power virtually unchallenged for a quarter of a century has been the memory of the civil war, the suffering and destruction of the civil war. Those who survived that have been willing to pay very much to avoid a repetition of cruel fratricidal strife. But now in Spain a generation is coming to maturity whose knowledge of that trial of the 1930's comes only from hearsay.

Wants Cross Retained On Canadian Flag

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer.

It would appear to me that in the consideration of a distinctive Canadian flag one vital point has been left out and that is the cross which is the symbol of Christianity.

The B.N.A. Act states that the Canadian government upholds the Christian faith. The forbearers of our nation planted the flag with the cross. Throughout the world for ages wherever a nation stands for Christianity the cross is on the flag. Whatever a flag is now and worked for freedom it started the flag with the cross. Therefore I believe our government should retain the Canadian Red Ensign, displaying the Christian symbol of the cross which exemplifies love and unity.

If the majority of Canadians wish a change in the flag I am sure the great majority of Canadians would still desire a place in this flag for the Christian cross.

Yours for Christianity and a United Canada,
Rev. R. H. Jones,
Cordova Mines.

Lung Cancer Is Only One Part of Smoking Picture

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Why does a physician recommend no smoking for a heart patient (coronary thrombosis) who has never inhaled? — H. G. M.

Don't think that inhaling is the only way of smoking. Smoking can have an effect on the body. The lung cancer controversy is only one part of the whole picture.

The nicotine itself may, for all we know and suspect, have nothing to do with cancer, but it, and perhaps some ingredients, can be absorbed other than through the lungs — for instance the mucus surfaces of the mouth nose and throat.

Smoking has known effects such as increasing the heart rate and the amount of work the heart is required to do. This may be of little consequence in most cases, but it is not advisable for a patient with coronary disease.

As to "never inhaling", invariably some smoke will be breathed, even though you are not conscious of it.

Dear Dr. Molner: Does emphysema have anything to do with asthma? What relationship is there to the nerves or psychosomatic factors? — Mrs. W.

There is a distinct relationship to asthma — or rather, there can be. The interference with respiration, and the struggling for breath can, in time, contribute to emphysema, which is a breaking-down of the tiny sacs of the lungs where oxygen is transferred to the blood.

Since emotional upsets often trigger attacks of asthma, in susceptible patients, you can say that the nerves have an indirect effect on emphysema. However, sheer nerves do not cause emphysema.

If this isn't wholly clear, you will understand the subject better if you read my booklet on emphysema. (Send 15 cents in coin and a self-addressed envelope to Dr. Molner, in care of this newspaper, Syndicate, P. O. Box 158, Dundee, Ill. and ask for "How to Control Emphysema, which explains how the disease develops, and how it is recognized and what can be done to alleviate it.)

Dear Dr. Molner: I have a floating, or dropped kidney. All I can do about it is to wear a kidney belt. I am working as a domestic and the reaching and stretching leaves me never without pain, on my left side under the ribs. Lately I get back pains too. Can anything be done? — Mrs. E. H.

I'm sorry, but there is very little besides a belt or similar supporting garment, surgery (for suspension of the kidney) is performed in extreme cases in which obstruction of the urine flow has been found.

If you are quite lean, putting on a little weight may help, because a padding of fat can form around the kidney and act as a cushion.

Dear Dr. Molner: My daughter is 20, craves water just about all the time. What she has been so for about three months. — L. W.

Among several possibilities are:

Diabetes mellitus (the most form of diabetes) which would also result in sugar in the urine. Diabetes insipidus, an entirely different disease despite the similarity of name, which does not cause sugar in the urine.

Other conditions — which, however, would be readily noted: Fever, profuse sweating, diarrhea swelling of tissues.

Drugs. Sometimes drugs cause a dryness in the tissues and hence excessive thirst.

Children Do Not Deceive Themselves

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Purely Personal Prejudices: Children may be deceived by others, but they do not deceive themselves; if fantasy accounts for much of the imagination of childhood, then deception about oneself is the disease of adulthood, and the Biblical injunction that we "become as little children" must mean that we should divest ourselves of our accustoming of self deception.

The need to feel superior, in some way, is ineradicable in the human heart; and sociologists report that the smallest town is equal — they are wealthy impotent, equally reduced or clipped in the power of government, equally slaves rather than equally men.

The psychiatrists of old age in our childish culture has reached its ultimate vulgarity in the pathetic term by which we often refer to older people: "Senior Citizens."

Why Shouldn't She Wobble?

Vancouver Sun

We have a bone to pick with our amiable Ann Landers. The other day she was critical of a most mean that we should divest ourselves of our accustoming of self deception.

The need to feel superior, in some way, is ineradicable in the human heart; and sociologists report that the smallest town is equal — they are wealthy impotent, equally reduced or clipped in the power of government, equally slaves rather than equally men.

A UK research foundation attributes a big decrease in drunkenness and convictions in the 18-21 age group on Merseyside home of the Beatles, and in Birmingham and London to the growth in the number of Beatle-style guitar groups. However, convictions of young drinkers in Manchester, 20 miles from the Beatles' home ground, are steeply up.

Toronto Stocks

TORONTO (CP) — Stocks carved out a modest gain on the stock market in moderate morning trading today.

Interprovincial Pipe Line paced industrials higher with a gain of 5 to $90. The directors of the company have approved a stock split. Massey-Ferguson tacked on ⅜ to 29¼.

Bell Telephone, trading ex-dividend 55 cents, was down ¼ to 55¾.

Senior base metals were led higher by a ¼ improvement in Falconbridge to 71¾. Inco added ⅛ to 83¼. In other mining issues, Highland-Bell slipped 15 cents to $8.30 and Leitch 40 cents to $4.60. Genex was the only lively speculative, it gained three cents to 36 cents in heavy dealings.

Golds faded with Giant Yellowknife backing off ⅛ to 11¼.

On index, industrials were up .20 to 153.60, base metals .28 to 62.74, western oils .35 to 97.15 and the Exchange index .30 to 94.55. Golds were down .34 to 105.08. Volume at 11 a.m. was 1,347,000 shares compared with 975,000 shares traded at the same time Wednesday.

On Thursday stocks moved into a higher range behind a strong industrial surge during moderate trading.

Leitch fell 65 cents to 85 on volume of 183,254 shares and Highland-Bell dropped 60 cents to 86.45 on 16,100 shares. Leitch and a Highland-Bell subsidiary have filed a writ in the Supreme Court of Ontario charging that they have a claim to some of the land near Timmins upon which Texas Gulf Sulphur Co. of New York made its mineral find.

Another noteworthy speculative move was that of Hastings Mining, which rose 40 cents to $2.25. The company Thursday declared its first two dividends which amounted to 20 cents a share.

Other speculative activity was dark-horse with little volume and no significant price changes.

The industrial list was led higher by papers and foods generally and by certain selected issues. In papers, Dominion Tar and Consolidated both rose ¼ to 21¾ and 42, respectively, while Abitibi and Great Lakes gained ¼ each to 14¾ and 24¾.

For DOS ADVANCE

Foods featured M. Loeb and Ottawa Wholesale A—the two public IGA wholesalers—ahead ⅛ to 11⅞ and ¼ to 29½, respectively.

Ogilvie at one point during the day touched a new high of 29¾.

Among selected issues, Massey-Ferguson gained ⅜ to 28⅝ on volume of 56,133 shares and was the day's most active industrial stock.

Among losers, Royal Bank and Bank of Montreal fell ¼ and ⅜, to 74¾ and 65, while John Labatt dropped ¼ to 19¾ and Canadian Breweries ⅛ to 10¾.

The senior base metals list was extremely strong. Falconbridge was the largest winner with a gain of ¼ to 71½, while International Nickel rose ⅛ to 82¾. Consolidated Mining and Smelting gained ⅛ to 34.

Gold trading was light and sporadic with few changes of any note. Hollinger fell ¼ to 27¼.

The industrial index gained .72 to 153.39 and the 113-stock exchange index .69 to 143.35. Golds advanced .55 to 125.39, base metals .44 to 62.46, and western oils .65 to 96.57.

Volume was 4,701,000 shares, compared with 4,258,000 traded Wednesday.

The conference had been an example of bilingualism in action. "Both languages have been used indiscriminately and it was comforting to note that at times delegates were helping one another to find the right word to express a thought in a language which was not their own," he said.

GIRL GUIDE and BROWNIE NEWS

TRIP TO OTTAWA

Recently the Guides of the 5th Belleville Co. left at 8 a.m. by bus for Ottawa. The tulip festival had just begun, gardens, parks and boulevards were brilliant in color.

The first stop was at the Parliament Buildings. They toured all the most interesting chambers including the senate, House of Commons, library and Confederation Hall. From there on up to the Peace Tower, where numerous rolls of films were taken. The bus continued on to the Canadian Archives. Here the Guides could see at first hand items, relics and pictures of the great men responsible for the founding of Canada. Down the street, the Guides took in the War Museum, where they reviewed items and souvenirs of World Wars one and two, consisting of light artillery, uniforms, badges and insignias.

VISIT MUSEUM

Between rain showers the Guides moved from the museum and the bus. The next point of interest was a tour of the National Museum where there were numerous displays that held the girls' interest, such as life-like scenes of the Canadian Indian and Eskimo. Realistic settings of Canadian wild life of birds and animals. A display of where and what there is all in this country, and how it is taken out of the ground. There was an impressive collection of rocks, minerals and pre-historic animals.

The final place of interest was a visit to Laurier House. Here the Guides were shown where and how Mackenzie King lived in his time. Points of interest noted by the Guides were photos of Mr. King with presidents Roosevelt and Truman and pictures of Sir Winston Churchill. Among Mr. King's belongings was a collection of walking sticks, Bible chest, a 300-year-old sidetable from Italy and a death mask of president Lincoln's face and hands. From the Laurier House it was homeward bound for 30 tired and slightly dazed Guides.

Despite the weather the girls enjoyed the trip in the spring.

PARENTS' NIGHT

On Wednesday evening the 5th Bayside Pack and Guide Company jointly held a parents' night. Brown Owl, Mrs. S. Hamilton welcomed everyone and introduced the honored guests, Mrs. D. Stewart, Belleville's Division Commissioner; Mrs. G. Brennan, N.E. District Commissioner; Mrs. A. S. Matthews, badge secretary and Mrs. Bell, chairman of the I.A.

An audience of approximately 50 parents witnessed an abbreviated Brownie meeting including the forming of a fairy ring, inspection and the gathering of fairy gold. The Brownies put on a display of songs and dances.

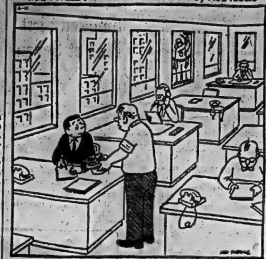
The Sixer ceremony is a highlight for the Brownies. The Guides formed a hexagon at one end of the hall and the Brownies in a fairy ring at the other. Separating the two was an arbor draped in brown, gold and blue, depicting the colors of Brownies and Guides. On the top of the arch an ether side was a sprite and a trefoil, each representing the tenderfoot pins of the respective group. The archway represents the gateway from Brownies to Guides. As each Brownie or Sixer passed between the golden chain of guides she was presented with her wings alternately by Mrs. D. Stewart and Mrs. G. Brennan, Commissioners. As each Brownie passed through the archway she was hailed and challenged by a Patrol Leader, from here she was welcomed by Captain D. Janes and Lieutenant K. Bertrim.

The following Brownies who flew up were: Doreen Semark, Brenda Davidson, Trudy Sloot, Dorothy Le Barre, Pamela Durrant, Barbara Durrant, Jane Douglas, Ann Wilson, Deborah Ingraham, Diann Sipes, Angela Murray and Joan Rice. The Brownies who waited up to Guides were greeted and welcomed in much the same way. Brownie wellings were as follows: Heather Dodge, Georgina Cole, Jacqueline Whiting, Barbara Leahy, and Joan Pixley. On conclusion of the Sixup ceremony, Division Commissioner Mrs. D. Stewart spoke briefly on the responsibilities of the local Association and expressed the need for more leaders.

GUIDE INSPECTION

After a brief intermission the Guiding proceeded with a short meeting at this time District Commissioner Mrs. G. Brennan inspected the Guides and complimented them on their smart appearance. Captain Janes presented a cook's badge to Barbara Fournia and a needlewoman's badge to Ann Gordon. Lieutenant Bertrim presented with a blazer crest for being the best dressed Guide at camp.

Following this the Kingfisher Patrol was announced as being the best all round patrol and each girl received a world pin, two members of this patrol are: Patrol Leader Sandra Gulle, Debbie Bertrim, Beverly Churchill, Arlene Bacchus, Claire Hitchon, Valerie Bell, Barbara Fournia and JoAnn Dodge. The runner up patrol was the Orioles, consisting of Patrol Leader Ann Gordon, Evaleen Pixley, Janet Asbury, Barbara Begley, Jane Foley, Janice Bell and Terry Chamberlain. Each girl received an Ontario Guide badge.



On conclusion of the Guide meeting all the Brownies and Guides enjoyed a game of Chinese puzzles.

At this point of the meeting the parents visited the Patrol Corners, reading posters and items pertaining to the Guide programs and enjoyed coffee, tea and a tasty lunch.

Upon conclusion of the evening a campfire sing-song, directed by Mrs. Bill Sharman was a perfect ending for an important evening and a successful year.

SPEAKING OF MANNERS BY PATRICIA LEWIS

MAIL CALL

Question: My son, age seven, was invited to a classmate's birthday party. I accepted for him, but he could not attend because he came down with the measles the same day. I called the child's mother and explained what had happened. The present I had purchased is still in the closet, and I wonder if I should send it to the child even though his party was held a week ago. What is customarily done when something like this happens? — Mrs. E. D., Boston, Mass.

Answer: A child naturally brings a present to a birthday party when he attends, but it's not necessary to send a gift if something comes up — like the measles — and the youngster is unable to go in an appearance.

Question: I've been invited to attend a church wedding as five in the afternoon, followed by a reception which will include dinner and dancing. I have an official invitation. Dress — almost a beige — which I'd like to wear, but I'd like to check with you about whether it would be correct on two points. First, though neckline is rather low, straps are wide, so the dress is not completely bare shoulders. Would this be suitable for a church ceremony? Also, is it permissible to wear white? A few friends have told me this would not be correct, since only the bride is supposed to be in white. — Mrs. T. M., Stamford, Conn.

Answer: White happens to be a big fashion color this season, so it's hard to cross up among wedding guests regardless of what custom dictates. I'd say it is alright, especially since it's an off shade. The neckline seems a little too daring for a church ceremony, so a stole or scarf, possibly in the same fabric, should be worn, but it may be removed for the dining and dancing later.

Successful Living

Invited Over But Gets No Where With Dates

DEAR DORIS — I am a boy of 18 who has been going with a girl of 15. We went together for three months and then she told me that she was going steady with another boy who lives 140 miles from her and they correspond through letters.

She will not go out with me any more but she asks me over to her place at least three times a week. She likes my company because she has told me often.

I like to be with her. I cannot ask another girl out because I think of no one but her. I would like to have some advice on my feelings. — TROUBLED.

DEAR TROUBLED — It's cockeyed but not smooth. Your gal is DORIS CLARK hoodwinking herself, her so-called steady and you. Whether she dates you at home or by going out somewhere, it's all the same difference!

Put on your thinking cap and decide whether you do, after all, want to be twisted around the finger of a two-timing girl friend.

DEAR DORIS — I would appreciate it very much if you would print this letter in your column, as I once worked as a copy boy on a newspaper. I am a partial paraplegic, age 37 years. I am very interested in the physical education and physical fitness of handicapped people. I also would like to meet other paraplegics.

Could you advise me how I could get into some field of this work? — BOB.

DEAR BOB — There's plenty to do. For ideas and contacts, write to the Canadian Paraplegic Association, 123 Lyndhurst Avenue, Toronto, Ontario.

DEAR DORIS — When I'm out with people, regardless if it's only bowling, or for a swishy evening out, I try to be cheerful and easy to get along with, as that is my nature. But I find that people are resentful of a happy natured person, and I get a cold treatment most of the time, or some sarcastic remark about: "Wal, you're sure in a good mood, aren't you?"

I know that everyone has some trouble or other, we have ours, but I don't believe in going around with a long face. I try to have faith, and feel that these things happen for the best. Why is it that women resent me for this? — MRS. R.S.M.

DEAR MRS. R.S.M. — What old kill-joy has been bursting your bubble? Not everybody responds that way, thank goodness!

Is it possible the resentment comes because you seem oblivious of other people's troubles? Too much of the Pollyanna pose could seem unreal. Let them know you are human, too — but show no intention of letting things get you down.

(Do you wonder why people act as they do? Let Doris, a Canadian counsellor, help you to understand your own situation and do something about it.)

WEDDING

McMURRAY — STALKER

Archdeacon F. C. Mcconnell was the officiating clergyman at the wedding on May 30th of Linda Margaret Stalker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Reginald James Stalker, 194 Victoria Ave., Belleville, to David Colleton McMurray, R. R. 1, Belleville, son of Mr. and Mrs. Elton Blakely McMurray.

St. Thomas' Anglican Church was decorated with white and green gladioli with cream coloured gladioli on the altar. Wedding music was provided by the organist Mr. Donald Davenport.

The bride who was given in marriage by her father wore a white satin floor length gown with high neckline and long sleeves. It was fashioned with an overdress of French lace with scalloped edges and pearl buttons on the bodice. She wore a shoulder length veil, and carried a bouquet of white carnations and ivory coloured roses.

Mrs. Terency Willmott of Kingston was matron of honour, wearing a street length dress of delicate turquoise green chiffon over taffeta with rosebud detail at the back of the skirt. She wore a rosebud headdress.

Miss Brenda Baker, sister of the bride, and Miss Holly McMurray, sister of the bridegroom were bridesmaids. They wore dresses identical to the matron of honor, but pale yellow in color. All carried bouquets of talisman roses surrounded by white baby 'mums.

Mr. Terence Willmott of Kingston was groomsman and the ushers were Mr. Dennis Parsons of Marlborough, and Mr. Allan Brostch, Wooler.

At the reception in St. Thomas' Parish House the bride's table was featured with a three-tiered wedding cake misted about the base with white tulle, pink sweetheart roses and small carnations.

The bride's mother received wearing a pale blue silk linen suit with lace bodice, matching shoes, white hat and gloves, and a white gardenia corsage.

The bridegroom's mother assisted wearing a snow pink silk linen dress with matching hat and shoes, and corsage of a white gardenia.

For a wedding trip to Niagara Falls, Syracuse, and New York World's Fair, the bride chose a pale yellow wool suit with matching white and yellow daisy hat, and a corsage of Talisman roses.

Out of town guests were present from Winnipeg, Toronto, Kingston, Bath and Napanee.

Mr. and Mrs. McMurray will reside at 1420 Lakeshore Rd. E., Port Credit, Ontario.

Before her marriage the bride was honored with a miscellaneous shower given by Mrs. Terence Willmott at the home of her sister Mrs. J. A. McCullough, Middleton Park Trenton.

RETURN TO THE NORTHLAND — Nancy Wickware and her husband John discuss their return to the far north with their youngest child, Kathleen, 11, before leaving Ottawa for Frobisher. The Wickwares are veterans of the Arctic, and though they have tried life in the south, they keep returning to the north. Mrs. Wickware says the north is a fine place to build a life. The family will make its home at Frobisher while Mr. Wickware supervises Eskimo co-operative stores at Cape Dorset and Grise Fiord. (CP Photo)

"Recurring Allure" of Northland Foils Family Settling in South

By BRENDA LARGE

OTTAWA (CP) — Life in the Far North has its drawbacks, especially for the southern housewife, but once experienced it exerts a recurring allure, as Nancy Wickware will attest.

Mrs. Wickware is back in the North again—this time at Frobisher Bay, N.W.T., with her husband John and their youngest child, Kathleen, 11—as she has been on and off for a good part of her 45 years.

The Wickwares have tried life in the south, most recently at Saskatoon for four years, but they keep heeding north again.

"The North is a fine place to build a life," Mrs. Wickware said before heading north from here in May.

"It is quite beautiful—not all the barren wilderness most people imagine it to be."

The return this time resulted from John Wickware's appointment as first permanent field worker for Co-operatives Everywhere, a program of assistance for co-operatives in developing regions sponsored by the Co-operative Union of Canada.

SUPERVISES STORES

The family is making its home at Frobisher while Mr. Wickware supervises Eskimo consumer co-operative stores at Cape Dorset and Grise Fiord.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Wickware are veterans of the Arctic. They met at Aklavik in 1940 when he was a Hudson's Bay Company post manager and she was working for the Anglican mission there.

After marriage, Mrs. Wickware gave up her mission work to join her husband in a new posting to Payne Bay in northern Quebec. Their first child, Robert, now 19, was born at Fort Chimo, Que.

Soon afterwards they moved south and west to Vancouver, where their son Michael was born 17 years ago. But after Michael's birth they returned north, this time to Pangnirtung on Baffin Island, again with the Hudson's Bay Company. Kathleen was born there.

But as the older children approached high-school age, one of the drawbacks became evident — "we decided correspondence courses were not good enough," Mrs. Wickware said.

SOUTH AGAIN

As there were no high schools anywhere near Pangnirtung, the Wickwares moved south again.

But when the opportunity came to move to Frobisher, John and Nancy Wickware jumped at the chance. The older children stayed behind in Saskatchewan to complete their schooling, but Kathy went with her parents.

"We've always wanted to go back and now we'll have a chance to renew many friendships," Mrs. Wickware said.

Many of the drawbacks of the earlier days in the north have now been removed.

"Housekeeping used to be a burden sometimes, with no electricity or running water," Mrs. Wickware said. "But at Frobisher we will have many modern conveniences plus a bowling alley, gymnasium and social club for entertainment."

Church Groups

The regular June meeting of the afternoon auxiliary of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Women's Missionary Society was held with Mrs. W. M. Barlow presiding for the business portion of the meeting. She reported on the W.M.S. Presbyterial held recently at Gananoque and mentioned that the fall executive meeting will be held on November 23nd in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church at Kingston.

The members were reminded that the annual visit of the members of the Missionary Society to the Hastings County Home would be from August 9-16th and asked that as many as possible visit during this time.

The welcome and welfare committee reported 19 hospital calls had been made as well as many visits to homes of church members.

PANEL DISCUSSION

Mrs. V. Weir and her group took charge of the program which was taken from the "Study Book". It consisted of a panel discussion on the subject: "Outreach Through Christianity" which proved interesting and informative. It contained a summary of the work the missionaries are doing in northern India and the changes that have taken place there in recent years.

Mrs. Barlow and Mrs. Mantle sang a beautiful duet accompanied by Mrs. Weir. Mrs. C. Baragar read the Scripture and thoughts for meditation. Mrs. J. Bondy closed the devotions.

Mrs. Barlow thanked the program committee for the interesting portrayal of their subject and wished everyone a happy vacation.

Parents Make Final Exams Despite Babies

VANCOUVER (CP)—It took two babies, a $10,000 deficit and four years, but Lawrence and Margaret Burr, both 26, have graduated from the University of British Columbia—he as a doctor of medicine,and she as a bachelor of music.

Mr Burr was second in his class with a 78.4 average and his wife had a 73 average.

"It worked out pretty well, says Mr. Burr. "We both pitched in to do the work when the going got tough."

Mrs. Burr would drive the older daughter, Monica, 2, to a baby-sitter on the way to school in the morning, then pick her up on the way home at night.

The second baby, Elizabeth, was born two weeks after Mrs. Burr's final exams.

"We knew the baby would be due right around exam time and we hoped and prayed it would wait until I was through," she says.

The Burrs were both students when they were married. They have lived in a $30 - a - month apartment and have run up a $10,000 debt living as cheaply as they could. "We seldom went out—only to the odd student party."

Mr. Burr will intern at the University of Pennsylvania Hospital, and with his $333-a-month intern's salary, he figures they'll go further into debt before they start getting out.

SOCIAL and PERSONAL

A pleasant evening was spent at the 9th Line Orange hall in Roslin on Saturday evening when friends and neighbors gathered to honor Mr. and Mrs. Lee Hart on their recent marriage. Music and dancing were enjoyed.

Mrs. Harvey Goodfellow read an appropriate address to Lee and Nancy, signed on behalf of Clare Davidson, George Scott, Kenneth Tracey and Harvey Goodfellow and they were presented with two step-end tables, a rug and bedspread, also individual gifts from friends.

Lee and Nancy both replied, extending an invitation to visit them at 1338 Princess St., Kingston, where they reside.

Lunch was served, bringing a pleasant evening a close.

EASTMINSTER U.C.W.

The regular monthly meeting of Eastminster United Church Women was held on Monday evening, June 8, with worship in song and music led by Mrs. C. Bell and Mrs. Owen Clarke with Mrs. Ralph Ellis at the piano.

President, Mrs. J. Ham invited the members to a tea, with the former presidents of Eastminster U.C.W. and Federation as honored guests. These included Mrs. J. W. Platt, wife of Rev. J. W. Platt, organizer of Eastminster congregating past presidents Mrs. N. Meldrum, Mrs. J. Kuntze, Mrs. J. Williams, Mrs. G. Maybee and Mrs. S. Armstrong.

Many interesting and humorous happenings were recalled from the organizational meeting held in September 1956, at the home of Rev. and Mrs. Platt to the present day meetings held in the church. Pictures and clippings were displayed and pleasant memories recalled.

The meeting closed with lunch served by Unit -5.

RYLSTONE — The June meeting of Rylstone Women's Institute was held in the Sunday School room of Zion United Church, Petherick's Corners on June 3 with Mrs. Carl Reid as hostess. There was a fair attendance of 15 members.

Mrs. Lindsay Anderson, president, was in charge of the meeting, which was opened in the usual manner. During business it was decided to hold a short course on "Choosing and Using Fabrics" and members are urged to help publicize this endeavor to help get a good attendance from the surrounding communities.

'Lines on Life'

By Dr. Stuart E. Rosenberg

Sentimentalism is a disease of the will. When our will is ineffectual and impaired, we become afraid to face life. The world, as it is actually constituted, seems too hard for us to bear. It is then, with the aid of our imagination, that we create a world of our own, and in that world, seek escape from the hard realities with which we are confronted. But anything that heightens our imagination to an excess, whether it be alcohol, or the reading of lurid, over-imaginative books, can indeed exaggerate our sentiments and serve to remove us more and more from the real world of day-to-day responsibility.

RESPONSIBILITIES

In all sentimentalism, the main motive is the desire to escape — to escape the task of changing ourselves or our environment, to escape the hard and real responsibilities we have as intelligent and rational persons. A sentimentalist contemplates great purposes and ideals in his own mind, but is unwilling to think out and achieve the actual means to these high ends of which he dreams. The young man who lets his imagination roam to the land of the future is a sentimentalist. He may see himself as a successful merchant, with business connections in all parts of the world, residing over a home which abounds in comfort and cheer. Or, he beholds himself as an eloquent pleader for a client whose life and fortunes are at the mercy of a stern judge and jury; or he pictures himself as a physician. But he has to travel a long road before he can attain these ideals. He has to undertake much concentrated application to detailed tasks, hard work, patience, and even self-denial.

LIVING-BY-PROXY

There is another characteristic to sentimentalism — one which is very widespread in our culture. It is the terribly alienating practice of "living by proxy." When we find ourselves unable to achieve these dreams of ours, we often identify ourselves with either actual or fictitious characters who have succeeded where we have failed.

Hundreds of thousands of spectators who go to watch athletic games very often do so because they get a thrill out of identifying themselves with those who have achieved the physical prowess and strength which they, themselves, only dream about. Indeed, this is the basic ingredient in the success of so many movies and television plays and of countless trashy magazines and novels. People, our mass culture dictates, want to be entertained, not educated. They don't like real stories — they have enough of their own. People do not want to learn how to live their own lives — they seek to live by someone else's proxy. Wishing, they think, will make it so!

MUSHY BOG

Sentiment is healthy, positive and constructive. But sentimentalism is a mushy bog in which we slip, slide and fall. And as we descend into its murky bottom we move farther away from the real world we should meet.

The mature and wise man will strive to respect his emotions without becoming emotional, to enjoy his sentiments, without succumbing to them, by becoming sentimental.

Family Party Marks 45th Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Miller Parks, North Front Street, were pleasantly surprised last Thursday evening, when after enjoying a chicken dinner at the home of their son, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Parks, Wallbridge, their family arrived to celebrate their 45th anniversary with them.

After a program of musical selections, singing, readings and contests, a presentation of a chrome kitchen set and rocker was made by a grandson, Stephen Parks.

Both honored guests suitably replied, thanking all for the lovely gifts.

Those present were: Mrs. J. Smith, John and Sylvia, Mr. and Mrs. G. McIntyre, Karen, Ronny and Beverly, Mrs. E. Goodman, sister of Mr. Parks; Mr. and Mrs. J. Conboy, all of Belleville; Mr. and Mrs. J. Gould, Dennis, Barbara and Patricia, Foxboro; Mr. and Mrs. C. Wannamaker, Jane and Roger, West Huntingdon; Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Parks, Deborah, Stephen, Nancy and Leslie Ann, Wallbridge.

Several flash pictures were taken after which dainty refreshments were served.

Serve Press Club Real Gourmet Food

by Mary Moore

It would be selfish of me if I did not sit down and give you an abbreviated account of the Ontario-Quebec Regional Conference of the Canadian Women's Press Club.

Dinner Menu

THURSDAY

Broiled Marinated Lamb Chops; Crumbed Eggplant; Fluffy Rice; Chef's Salad garnished with Tomato Wedges; Rich Vanilla Pudding over Sliced Bananas; Tea.

The menus alone make good reading, but the highlight of the entire conference was our seminars and charming after-dinner speaker, The Honorable Maurice Lamontagne, Secretary of State. Our French Canadian members felt appropriately possessive for he is a great asset to them and to our government. He helped us substantially to understand the French Canadian viewpoint and urged us to make war on the pervading cultural poverty in Canada. Every press girl present was filled with a fervent resolution to join Monsieur Lamontagne's campaign to raise our standards.

The banquet dinner menu: seafood cocktail (shrimp, lobster, crabmeat, flaked arctic char), celery, pickles, olives and radishes, chef's salad, choice of dressings, small filet Monte Carlo, pomme, soufflé, asparagus au beurre, baked Alaska flambee, coffee or tea or milk, rolls and butter.

The luncheon menu which preceded it was melon fruit cup, chicken cordon bleu, shredded carrots, Julienne green beans, French fried potato balls, relish trays: celery, olives, pickles; French vanilla ice cream with whole strawberries, coffee.

A smash hit after this luncheon was Dofasco's male chorus of fifty-four, which included tenor Ed. Johnson who sang a spine-tingling tenor solo part.

The English brunch on Sunday morning was a never-to-be-forgotten meal: fresh frozen orange juice, chilled grapefruit sections, bacon, sausage, scrambled eggs, beef and kidney, kippers, toast, blueberry muffins, marmalade, jam, coffee, bowls of fresh fruits.

The girls were hungry for this brunch for they had been forewarned of its scope, so most of them had only a wake-up cup of coffee beforehand.

I am thinking it would be a welcome idea for prospective brunch or weekend hostesses to make a note of this brunch menu. It serves two purposes. It combines breakfast and lunch; you could then serve an early dinner or supper. It will increase your stature as an experienced hostess.

Following one panel early Sunday afternoon we drove to Brantford and en route stopped at Pauline Johnson's home, Mohawk Chapel, Bell Homestead and Glenhyrst Gardens. Our destination was Florence Buchanan's home on the Grand River where we were given a rousing welcome and among other wonderful goodies the toasted mushroom rolls, recipe for which I gave you yesterday.

Peony Tea Provides Rare Display

Each year Mr. and Mrs. Haanes Smith hold open house for visitors who come to view their display of peony blooms. It is a spectacular sight on a large scale with an acre of flowers, a lovely old home set amid stately trees, and pleasant surroundings.

The farm home is being renovated and the interior is truly beautiful with antiques, oil paintings and mirrors. Mr. and Mrs. Smith are of Finnish extraction and came to the farm in 1940. The house is set at the edge of the woods and the rolling grounds make a very decent backdrop for the brilliant flowers.

Tea will be served on June 13 and 14 from 2 to 5 p.m. at their home, Aura Farms in Dartand on the north side of Carnahan's Bay. The proceeds will be used for the building fund of Lennox and Addington hospital which will start construction in September at Napanee.

WHAT IS "CHIC"?

Most women, whether they know it or not, have absorbed more fashion "know-how" than they realize. The average woman reads the women's press and other media, related specially to her. She watches TV and goes to the movies. She observes fashion displays in store windows and she attends fashion shows. In larger centres, there are make-up classes held right at counter level in some stores. There are what fashion co-ordinators call "quickie fashion shows" held in the fashion stores. These shows usually are informal, lasting 20 minutes before a standing audience. There are demonstrations, illustrated talks, gala evenings and small private showings. The list is endless and the products used and demonstrated may be cosmetics, fabrics, leathers, millinery, fashions, the use of accessories or even the funny side of fashion. Whatever the theme, the end result is an increased knowledge of fashion.

Associated with fashion is the rather mysterious word, "chic". Monday night we were hesitate to use the word, either in connection with themselves or their friends. Borrowed from the French language, it is a public word. The dictionary defines it as: "striking, original in taste, as is dress — pertness, stylishness". I think this is a poor description. How chic is a woman of 50 who wears a dress that makes her look pert? But there are many chic women who are all of 50. How chic is a woman of any age, whose clothes are so striking that she stands out like a decorated Christmas tree? Too stylish is the woman who wears all the latest styles, but still, through her own ignorance of what is becoming for her type, achieves nothing but a stereotyped look?

DEFINITION OF CHIC

Chic can best be described as a happy blending of color, contour, figure and suitability of that costume. It is not arrived at by wearing carnation red if your complexion is florid, nor by adopting a wide-brimmed hat if your height is only five feet, two inches. It is not achieved by bleaching your hair and wearing it a la Bardot, unless you not only look like Bardot, but intend to live as she does.

Chic means having the fashions in your wardrobe when you need them. It is not chic to have to run all over town the day before a party looking for a party dress. It is not chic to assemble a lot of unrelated accessories to go with unrelated outfits. It is not chic to wear high heels if your foot is hard to fit. It is not chic to buy cheap colorful accessories, expect them to last all season and still be in fashion next year.

It is easy enough to list what is not chic, but it is still very difficult to define this strangely, elusive word.

The Experts Say
Man May Be Stronger, But He's Not Smarter

By BRENDA LANE

OTTAWA (CP) — Women always knew it was so, but a Swedish doctor has come right out and said it—the average man may be stronger than the average woman but he is definitely not smarter.

Dr. Sven Forssman, internationally known expert in occupational medicine, told the International Congress on Occupational Health that the maximum physical capacity of adult women is, on the average, 25 to 30 per cent lower than that of men.

But he hastened to add that in respect to mental capacity, intelligence tests had shown no difference between men and women.

Dr. Forssman said the difference in working capacity had influenced legislation in many countries where limits had been placed on permissible loads for women to lift. In other countries, however, women perform heavy manual labor. Such variations underline the fact that there is a wide range of distribution of physical capacity among individuals of both sexes.

The Swedish doctor's paper, dealing mainly with medical problems encountered by working women, was brought to Canada by Mildred Walker, the federal health department's nursing consultant on occupational health, who attended the congress in Madrid last September. It has been reprinted as a special bulletin by the women's bureau of the labor department.

MORE WORKING WOMEN

Quite aside from observations on the mental capacity of the sexes, Dr. Forssman's paper should be of special interest in Canada because of the growing contingent of women are making to the working force.

Some 1,500,000 women were members of Canada's labor force in 1963. This was 38 per cent of the total and represented a four-per-cent increase over 1962. Roughly half (48.7 per cent) of working women were married; 40.3 per cent were single and 10.1 per cent were widowed, separated or divorced.

Dr. Forssman stressed that the working woman who is pregnant requires special consideration. She should not be employed in the period four to six weeks before the birth of her child and for at least the same period afterward. And she shouldn't do work that requires continuous standing.

He cited a report from the United States recommending that the pregnant employee have a rest period of at least 15 minutes during each half of her work shift, a mid-day break long enough to permit some rest and an unhurried meal, and a work week not exceeding five days or 40 hours.

It was essential, too, that pregnant women not be exposed to toxic substances that might damage the liver or kidneys or cause anemia. And exposure to ionizing radiation should be drastically restricted.

HINDERS WORK

Dr. Forssman said painful menstruation (dysmenorrhea) might cause temporary reduction of working capacity and temporary absence from work but its effect tends to be exaggerated.

In a 4-year Swedish study, only six per cent of women examined suffered from dysmenorrhea to the extent that working capacity was affected.

The incidence of painful menstruation was found to be higher among those 16 to 20 years old and was considerably reduced after the first pregnancy.

Discussing the menopause, he said that those symptoms are more emotional and functional than physical, the reduction of working capacity at this time in women's life might be almost wholly prevented by health counselling, with medical treatment when necessary.

One of the doctor's more interesting observations is that the assumption that women are better qualified than men for certain jobs—such as nursing or monotonous work in the assembly line of a factory—is without foundation.

KEEP JUICE

When serving cooked or canned fruits and vegetables, keep the cooking water or juice from the can for use in soups, sauces, aspics and drinks.

"I was going to ask for the lady of the house— but you'll do."

Duplicate Bridge Makes Debut At Country Club

Seasonal duplicate bridge had a highly successful debut at the Bay of Quinte Country Club Monday evening.

Part of the club's planned social events, the bridge saw twelve tables in play and conducted by Mr. Jim Ritchie.

The winners were Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Graham and Mrs. Robert Smith and Mrs. Bruce Miller.

Mr. and Mrs. Graham were north and south winners with Mrs. Smith and Mrs. Miller winning the east and west awards.

The bridge is scheduled to be held on the second Monday of the month, the next tournament being slated for July 13th.

1ST. BELLEVILLE BROWNIE BANQUET

The 1st Belleville Brownie Pack recently held a mother and daughter banquet at Tabernacle United Church. Mrs. B. Bishop was pianist for the opening ceremony.

The Brownies introduced their mothers, after invocation. A delicious turkey dinner was served.

Anne Bishop favored the group with a piano solo.

The toast to the mothers was given by Cassandra Dymock and was replied to by a mother, Mrs. P. Loder.

Mrs. G. Hume thanked the ladies of the church for the delightful dinner and then Mrs. F. Bell, president of the local association for North East District, explained the importance of the association while District Commissioner N. Brennan told all about Camp Waupoos.

The Brownies marched to music and ended by forming the fairy ring while Commissioner N. Brennan, Brown Owl W. Dakins, Tawny Owl R. Hannah presented Golden Bars and Golden Hand badges.

Proficiency badges were won by 41 Brownies this year with 13 going on to Guides.

Club Activities

The Gilmour-Thine and Slims part of Tops Incorporated, had a week's mystery and suspense relieved when Pearl Dafoe (over all queen of last pounds—just over 60 pounds gone forever) was presented with first prize from the Provincial Recognition Day, 8th annual Tops convention held May 22nd and 22nd in King Edward Hotel, Toronto. This was a 15" bridal doll with an extensive wardrobe.

From the thousands who could have won this prize the club is overjoyed to know the winner was one of six members of Gilmour group, Amy who by wish to shed pounds in a sensible way are welcome. Weekly meetings are held at Aileen Spracklett's home each Monday evening. The motto is "See you lighter."

Friends Honor Mother-to-Be

RYLSTONE — A pleasant evening was spent at the home of Mrs. Ralph Heath on Thursday evening when approximately 30 neighbors and friends gathered together for a baby shower in honor of a neighbor, Mrs. Wesley Finch.

Miss Anne Reid was in charge of the entertainment, which included contests and games and winners of these were Carol Heath and Mrs. M. Bateman. An appropriate reading was given by Mrs. Jack Spencer.

Mrs. Finch opened the many lovely gifts and expressed appreciation to everyone for the gifts and the party. She was assisted in opening the gifts by her cousin, Mrs. Charles Stewart.

Dainty refreshments were served by the hostess.

U.C.W. Meeting

SPRINGBROOK U.C.W.

The regular monthly meeting of the Springbrook United Church Women was held at the church on Thursday afternoon with 27 members and several visitors from Stanwood U.C.W. President Mrs. Harold Mason presided for the afternoon and extended a welcome to all. Mrs. Carmon Sine was pianist. The devotional period was conducted by Mrs. George Williams, Mrs. Percy Smith and Mrs. Murney Bateman using as their theme "Agents of Hope".

Mrs. Percy Smith was featured in the second part of the Covenant, "We are attempting to relate the Covenant to our every day. We are called into Covenant with God and with one another through the Church. When Jeremiah looked forward to a new covenant based on love rather than law, written in the hearts of men rather than on their statute-books, he was anticipating something that was not realized until Jesus Christ brought the New Testament."

A film strip on "The Covenant", was shown with commentary by Mrs. George Williams. This was followed by a question and answer period.

The secretary Mrs. Lorne Bailey read the correspondence. Thank-you letters were read for donations sent to Merryvale School of Campbellford and a bale sent to the Fred Victor Mission.

The Springbrook U.C.W. ladies are invited to afternoon teas at Rylstone on June 10 and Carmel on June 11. A donation to Quin-mo-lac camp was made and material for a bale for Overseas Relief will be purchased.

The program consisted of a solo by Mrs. Carmon Sine and a reading by Mrs. Joe Thompson. The meeting was closed by Mrs. Murney Bateman.

New Officers Elected to CGIT Board

The C.G.I.T. Girls' Work Board held their annual dinner meeting on Wednesday evening, with 19 members present.

The ladies of St. Columba Presbyterian Church served a delicious buffet dinner. Appreciation was expressed by Mrs. J. Aitchison, chairman, who also commended the work achieved on building and opening their church last year.

The C.G.I.T. intermediate girls' camp, sponsored by the work board, report that applications may still be accepted for the camp July 25-Aug. 1st at Quin-Mo-Lac, Motra Lake. This is for girls aged 13-14 years and need not be C.G.I.T. members. Miss Lenore Wilkes is registrar.

Mrs. Hudgins reported that 2,550 boxes of C.G.I.T. chocolates had been sold.

The 50th anniversary of the C.G.I.T. will be celebrated from September 1964-65. Plans for this project will be considered further in September.

The Peterborough Girls' Work Board are sponsoring a senior girls' camp at Quin-Mo-Lac, Aug. 26-Sept. 1st.

Mrs. R. Ellis announced that Donna Wannamaker of Hollowway St. United Church would be the C.G.I.T. representative from Belleville to the Ontario Camp Council at Camp Cagiwa, Port Ryerse, Ontario, Aug. 25-Sept. 6th.

Following the regular meeting, annual reports were received, showing splendid assistance and encouragement were given leaders and C.G.I.T. members in several activities.

New Glide of Slenderness Tucks Flow Softly Into Pleats

A Radiant Original

PRINTED PATTERN

SIZES 12½-22½

TUCKS FLOW INTO PLEATS — the all-the-way vertical line does superbly slimming things for figures on the shorter, more mature side. Recognize the mood of this Radiant costume? It's pure flattery — the easy-going, graceful look all fashion lovers this summer. We like the easy line of the hip-length (a most flattering length) jacket. See how lightly it's shaped by princess seaming, how smart it looks over the pleated skirt of the dress. When you take off the jacket, the bodice is equally attractive — stitching and wide, easy-sew tucks add an expensive air. Choose fine cotton broadcloth, Dacron, linen, shantung or tissue crepe for this versatile costume.

Printed Pattern A834 is available in Half Sizes 12½, 14½, 16½, 18½, 20½ and 22½. Size 16½ dress requires 6 yards 35-inch fabric; jacket requires 1¾ yards.

Ann Landers

Good and Bad Modern And Representational Art

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I am a European teen-ager who now lives in Canada. Recently an art gallery committee informed me that they could not accept my paintings in an all-city exhibit because they were not contemporary or impressionistic. It so happens that I do representational art and am not an admirer of the modern slop that seems to be so popular these days.

ANN LANDERS

I am infuriated when I see these monstrosities collecting high praise and winning prizes. Not long ago the winner of the first prize in an important Canadian exhibit confessed to his friends that he smeared his automobile tires with paint, put down the canvas in the driveway and backed over several times.

In your own city of Chicago the Norman Wait Harris Medal Award plus $1,000 was awarded to a woman who entered a solid black canvas. How can people take such garbage seriously? I'm convinced the artists are enjoying the joke privately, and laughing all the way to the bank. Do you agree? — THRILLIA.

DEAR THRILLIA — There is good modern art and there's bad modern art. The same can be said of representational art. Each school has its ardent devotees — and they'd rather fight than switch. So relax.

The "average" to which you refer was Ad Reinhardt's "Abstract Painting—1963-1963." While a great many people who saw it swore it was a solid black canvas, the blue ribbon panel of judges thought they saw something else.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I did a slow burn when I read that letter signed, "Mrs. Contentment." So she's not one of those "easy-does-it" souls. She's proud to be "casual and relaxed" about her housekeeping, is she? Well, la-de-da! How nice that a guest discovered a stale doughnut which had somehow dropped under a sofa cushion and had been there "for at least a month."

I'll bet that slob not only had doughnuts in her sofa, but cockroaches in her kitchen, rats in her cupboard and mice in her basement.

There's a vast difference between "relaxed living" and lazy housekeeping. Ignorant people often get them mixed up. Please print this letter. I've got a few friends who might profit from it. — BEAUTIFUL OHIO.

HELLO BEAUTIFUL — Don't count on it. The sloppy housekeepers never seem to recognize themselves. They prefer to call themselves "casual and relaxed." Remember?

DEAR ANN LANDERS — A very close friend asked my advice about a family problem. I suggested that she write to Ann Landers. Her reply was, "I don't want to write to Ann Landers. She'll tell me to mind my own business.

My friend's sister-in-law is running around with a man. Everyone sees what goes on except her husband. He works the 4:30 p.m. to 1:30 a.m. shift and has no idea that Marion is seeing a boy friend every night, right in their own home, after the children are put to bed.

The relatives are all furious with Martha because she is doing such a slick job of pulling the wool over her husband's eyes. Don't you feel that somebody should tell him? Who is the person to wise him up? — READY TO BOIL OVER.

DEAR READY — There is no "right person" to wise up this husband. He'll wise up by himself one of these days and until then, everybody should mind his own business.

If excessive drinking is wrecking your health or destroying someone you love, send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Help For The Alcoholic," enclosing with your request 20c in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Canadian Guards Move Out In Airlift to Gagetown, N. B.

PICTON (Staff) — The First Battalion, Canadian Guards, number one standby unit in Canada, is taking part in Operation Airlift as of Wednesday morning.

That was the day that the RCAF Air Transport Command, in close co-operation with the Army, is transporting the battalion from Camp Picton to Gagetown, N.B.

This exercise is not merely a transporting of troops from one camp to another. Rather this is a serious exercise, one which could very easily become realistic.

The troops started leaving via Yukon aircraft from Trenton RCAF Station for Goose Bay, Labrador, according to theory, there is trouble at Gagetown, and this entire operation will show just how the armed forces combat such an emergency.

The Guards will disembark at Goose Bay (and it is expected they will have some minor skirmishes there, all pre-arranged). They will then be flown in Hercules aircraft to Fredericton, N.B., from where they will go overland to Camp Gagetown. It is expected they will be given some diversion en route from the time they leave Trenton, until they arrive at Gagetown.

NONE KNOWS PLANS

No one apart from top Army officers will know in what form these diversions will take. That is the whole idea behind this mass movement. These Guards are trained to meet any and all emergencies, and by the time they arrive at Gagetown, they will have had some such emergencies to deal with.

Lieut.-Col. H. William Mulberis, Commanding Officer First Battalion, has left Camp Picton for Camp Gagetown. Along with him he took his Adjutant Capt. John Hayter, his Regimental Sgt.-Major Henry Raynor and a complement of fifty officers and men. They are busy arranging some "surprises" for the Guards from the time they land at Goose Bay until they arrive at Camp Gagetown.

BIG AIRCRAFT USED

The largest aircraft ever built in Canada, the Yukons will take the troops from Trenton to Goose Bay. These aircraft can carry a payload of 27 tons a distance of 2,000 non-stop miles, or a 14-ton payload 4,000 miles. They fly at 370 MPH.

At Goose Bay the Hercules will be used, as it can land and take-off from smaller air fields. These Hercules, slightly smaller than the Yukons carry a 13 ton payload 2,400 miles at 340 miles per hour.

The RCAF is responsible for all loading of men and equipment, with the Army supplying any man power needed. On Wednesday morning the members of the press and radio were taken on a guided tour of one of the huge hangars that house these Yukons. One was being loaded for the trip as we watched, and in just ninety minutes the four jeeps, their trailers some four tons of general cargo were loaded, awaiting the arrival of about 70 guards who will make up the load.

In a general briefing at Camp Picton on Wednesday afternoon, Major William Remple, Senior Major in charge told The Ontario Intelligencer that some 40 tons of supplies, will be moved by air. This would consist of stoves, simulated ammunition and everything needed for a battalion to move with. This does not include the 220 pounds of equipment for each of the 700 Guards.

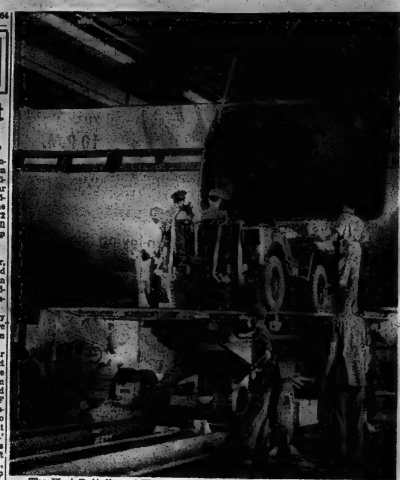
He said also that a total of about 761 men would be involved in the exercise, broken down this would be 673 officers and men in the regular party, plus 26 men in the advance road party and 70 in the rear road party and about 72 men of other services who will be with the guards at Camp Gagetown.

DIFFICULT AIRLIFT

"On March 1964 this year, Army H.Q. at Ottawa named the First Battalion Canadian Guards as number one standby unit in Canada," said Major Rempple.

"On June 3rd this year they launched exercise 'Qui Vive IV' involving over 700 men in the Battalion," he added.

"This is a most difficult air lift as it involves four distinct and different phases, first, the Battalion must move from Camp Picton to the airfield (in this case Trenton RCAF Base), from there we are transported in Yukon Aircraft to Goose Bay, Labrador, to what is known as an 'advance base.' The third phase involves changing to Hercules Aircraft for a trip to Fredericton, N.B., and phase four is the road trip from there to Camp Gagetown," he continued.



"One of the problems of planning such a movement is the problem of having each aircraft loaded in such a manner that unit it is carrying is a self contained unit, in other words, the men in the aircraft are completely equipped with jeeps, trailers, ammunition and supplies, rations, etc., to be operative moments after they land," he added.

LAPSE OF 48 HOURS

After the advance party left Camp Picton, 48 hours elapsed before the main body of troops started their task. It is expected to take four days before the entire battalion will be in readiness at Gagetown. The year party, under Major Remple will leave, in this case by road, for Gagetown after they have—dispatched the entire battalion—closed out all of the accounts and tidied up the camp, in effect, moving out and closing Camp Picton.

In conclusion, Major Rempple said, "This exercise Qui Vive IV is a major exercise and the first full scale test of the capabilities of the First Canadian Guards to perform a task which might be reasonably assigned to us by the government. This will be a tremendous experience for the entire battalion.

"We all take great pride that we have been selected for this task, and I am confident that every man in the battalion is determined to prove that we deserve this 'honor,'" Major Rempple concluded.

The First Battalion of The Canadian Guards, the country's standby unit for UN service, is now being airlifted from Picton, where it has been stationed, to Gagetown, N.B., as an exercise in the type of situation it may have to meet. The Guards yesterday started boarding planes at Trenton. The top picture shows a jeep being lifted into one of the huge Yukon planes. In the bottom picture a Guardsman drives the jeep into place inside the plane.

Accused Given Four Years in Penitentary

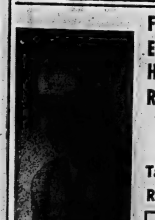
PICTON (Staff) — Ronald F. Woodcock, Belleville, was sentenced to four years in penitentiary by Magistrate T. Y. Wills in court here Wednesday.

Woodcock was found guilty of robbery with violence on the person of Miss Audrey Allen on April 18th. Miss Allen was enroute to her Talbot Street home when the attack took place.

Douglas Kirby, Lake Street, Picton, was fined $50 and costs when he pleaded guilty to having no insurance on the car he was driving. A charge of drunk driving against him was withdrawn.

Demorestville Girl Injured In Accident

PICTON — A 21-year-old Demorestville girl was taken to Kingston General Hospital with a fractured chin and possible other injuries following an accident at Demorestville at noon yesterday.



Police said a station wagon driven by Janice L. Langley, of Demorestville hit a parked pick-up truck owned by Desmond Marcille.

She was transferred to Kingston after preliminary check at Prince Edward County Memorial Hospital.

Damage to the station wagon was estimated at $500.

UN APPEALS

The UN Security Council voted an appeal to South Africa on Tuesday not to hand out death sentences to those who run afoul of its racial policies. The United States, Britain, France and Brazil abstained in the 7-0 vote.

South Africa has rejected such UN appeals by the council and the UN General Assembly, contending its trials are not the world organization's business.

All nine defendants pleaded not guilty. They said they were not directly responsible for the acts of sabotage but admitted preparing for guerrilla warfare.

Mandela admitted he planned violence saying, "There is no other means open to us to relieve our oppression." The accused said they aimed violence at objects, not people, so as to damage the nation's economy.

Thomasburg

THOMASBURG — The pupils of the senior room of the Thomasburg school, and the older pupils of S.S. No. 9, Hungerford, accompanied by Mrs. Grace Thompson, senior teacher of Thomasburg; Mrs. Glenn Vanderwater, teacher of S.S. No. 9, and Mrs. Mildred Fraser visited Upper Canada Village on Friday, June 5. Mr. Frank Brough provided transportation by bus for the group. On their way home they were privileged to go over the Canadian side of the Ivy Lea bridge.

Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Porter of Detroit, Mich., who have been on a tour of the British Isles, reached Montreal on Thursday, June 4, and are at present spending some time at "The Porter House" here.

The frost on Thursday night did considerable damage to early garden crops and flowers.

attempt by Russell to put off until Nov. 15, 1965, the effective date of the public accommodations provision.

Then they smashed, by a 52-25 ally, an amendment of Senator Albert Gore (Dem. Tenn.) to strike from the bill the title authorizing cutoff of federal funds to programs where discrimination is practised.

Many southern senators have said they consider this the most objectionable section of the bill.

Among other things, the bill would open restaurants, theatres, motels and retail shops to Negroes, ending a while only policy practised mainly in the southern states, ease the restrictive educational testing system that keeps many Negroes from voting, and give federal agencies the power to cut off funds from federally - supported projects in which there is hiring discrimination.

Ypres, Ancient Belgian City, Honors Canadian Fighting Men of Two World Wars

YPRES, Belgium (CP) — Canadian fighting men of two world wars were honored by this ancient Belgian city Wednesday.

Although the accent was on the First World War, which began ravaging this battlefield region 50 years ago this year, the central figure at Joint Canadian-Belgian remembrance ceremonies was Lt.-Gen. Guy Simonds, who commanded the 3rd Canadian Corps in Northwest Europe during the Second World War.

Gen. Simonds led the force that liberated Ypres Sept. 6, 1944, during the Canadian drive up the Channel coast from Normandy.

He used the Polish armored division then covering his left flank to take Ypres. He ordered the division to encircle the city and avoid damaging it unless the Germans decided to stand and fight.

Ypres, blown to bits in the 1914-18 war, suffered almost no damage in the 1944 liberation.

The Germans made a bit of a stand on the ridge just outside Ypres but we didn't have any real problems," Gen. Simonds recalled as he chatted with federal and civic officials. He had entered Ypres with the liberating unit.

Wednesday's events began with a formal memorial service under the Menin Gate monument erected to honor the 54,900 Commonwealth soldiers who died in the Ypres battles of 1915-18 and who have no known graves.

The names of these men, 6-

1964 of them Canadian, are engraved on the stone walls of the memorial which arches across one entrance to the city's main square.

Veterans Minister Roger Teillet of Canada, Gen. Simonds and Fred O'Brecht of Durham, Ont., president of the Royal Canadian Legion, placed wreaths.

Following the service, part of a series being conducted in Northwest Europe this month by Canadian government officials, veterans' groups and armed services, Belgian authorities feted the Canadians at a champagne reception and lunch-eon.

Senator G. C. Power, Canadian minister of air during the Second World War, was also in the Canadian government party.

Senator Power fought in this region as a Canadian infantry officer in the First World War, serving with the 3rd Toronto Battalion and later with the Canadian Machine Gun Corps.

Gen. Simonds, who had not been back to Ypres since 1944, was given the citizens flocked to the centre square to welcome the liberators.

He spent some time chatting with F. A. Vandevoorde, a wartime resistance leader and now president of the "Last Post" committee that holds a service at the Menin Gate each night.

This service has been held daily since the end of the First World War, except during the German occupation of Belgium 1940-44.

It was resumed less than two hours after the 1944 liberation.

IRELAND EMERGES — A new feeling of internationalism is emerging in the Republic of Ireland, a largely underdeveloped pastoral land typified by this view of Clifden in County Galway. This new feeling is boosted by economic and social changes designed to equip the country for eventual entrance in the European (CP Photo) Common Market, along with pride in the role Ireland plays in the United Nations.

Economic and Social Change

Ireland Forsaking Its Isolation

By CAROL KENNEDY

DUBLIN (CP)—Ireland is on the move, her vision shifting from the brooding bog of history to the challenging horizons of the 1960s.

This complex, mystical, introspective nation on the western rim of Europe is beginning to crack the protective shell of isolation behind the times.

Today, he feels things are moving though "we're still probably the most conservative people in Europe, about 20 years behind the times."

Several factors combined to boost the new international feeling. The chief, Premier Lemass though now a distant goal, is seen as the main catalyst, working along with the burning national pride in the role non-aligned Ireland plays in the United Nations and a recent influx of Afro-Asian students into Dublin's two universities.

IMPRISONED BY ICE

Opinion really awoke to the challenge of the outside world in 1962, say observers. And in the following summer the memorable event seemed to seal Ireland's ties with the U.S. The joyful three-day visit of President Kennedy in June, 1963, is seen in retrospect as a kind of watershed in national attitudes. For many it symbolized something more than the ultimate Irish - American success story — rather an emergence into the modern world of ideas and a turning-away from nostalgia.

Lemass's political and personal style expressed qualities the Irish have always admired but often felt incapable of instilling into their own political life — vigor, finesse, idealism translated into action, the ability to select priorities and organize.

This nation has had only two authentic heroes in this century," writer Frank O'Connor told this writer. "Michael Collins and John F. Kennedy. The rest were stereotypes."

Collins, the revolutionary leader who fought Eamon de Valera in the civil war over the Anglo-Irish treaty of partition, was cut down in his early 30s, leaving a poignant legacy of unfulfilled promise. Kennedy, a classic pattern of Irish tragedy.

AIRLINE IS SUCCESS

At this moment in her history, poised between two eras, the misty island in the Atlantic presents some strange contradictions.

To some expatriate critics, she is still a repressed society in the grip of authoritarian bishops—yet on the economic scene she is quietly moving to the left. Two-thirds of the Irish economy now is guided by the state, and Ireland's political parties are, if anything, anti-clerical by tradition.

She is still largely an underdeveloped pastoral land—yet in Aer Lingus she has one of Europe's most successful state-run airlines, one that has carved a fat chunk of the transatlantic trade.

The surge of a belated industrial revolution has brought a new look to the capital, long submerged in its own Georgian reflection.

Dublin, with its caressing air and courteous ways, is still one of the most relaxing cities in Europe. Life is touched with a certain grace; there is no hint of the rat-race as businessmen settle in here to savor the rich Irish whisky and their own flood of brogue-burnished talk.

THREE NEW HOTELS

But it can no longer be said that Dublin does not change. There is a quickening of pace—literally so since one-way traffic was introduced a few weeks ago and someone forgot to provide pedestrian crossings at the busiest junctions.

Miniature skyscrapers sprout in the city. The new trades union headquarters, Liberty Hall, lifts 17 angular floors above the pastel vista of the Liffey quays, brashly drawing the eye from what many have called the loveliest building in Ireland, the pillared Customs House with its delicate green dome.

Three new hotels have shot up, symbolizing the surge of income from tourism. The old ones are rapidly going "contemporary," throwing out the chintz and mahogany in favor of black leather and pale Swedish furniture.

James Joyce would recognize few of the pubs today. From pungent dusty retreats with sawdust on the floor, many have turned into bright modern lounges where Dublin talk competes with the seeping strains of taped Jerome Kern.

A new gloss of prosperity—some say flashiness—has accompanied the government's initial burst of modernization. Ireland's fastest period of economic growth this century. It has yet to penetrate deep and many are somewhat cynical about the boom, suspecting that a small section of society is creating an air of pseudo-opulence.

NEW IDEAS FROM TV

"Oh we're very grand with our Dior suits and expense-account lunches," says one, "but the world we're no longer bothrotters," said the wife of a Dublin author with amused scorn.

But the girls on Grafton Street are noticeably smarter in their Irish-made outfits; cars assembled in Irish plants crowd the streets. "Bread and now" where Molly Malone trundled her cockles and mussels; and Irish plants of TV aerials, receiving British and local programs, are channelling daring new ideas into traditional Irish homes.

The measure of progress is, as always, emigration. For more than a century after the dreadful famine of 1847, Ireland's youth poured out in a hemorrhage that enriched the lifeblood of other nations but at times brought the mother country close to dying. Sean Lemass has applied a tourniquet and the flow is being staunched.

You still hear Irish people say "we are an old nation," lamenting late marriages, low birth-rate and the lure of London. But now, for the first time, there are incentives not only for the young to stay home, but for emigrants to return to "the Auld Sod."

Tomorrow: Ireland's economic boom.

Laotian War Has Reached New Turn, U.S. Changes Plan

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The war in Laos has reached a new turn which may indicate the path the United States will finally follow in its whole approach to the crumbling situation in Southeast Asia.

It is the path of intensified military action, aggravated by a breakdown in political negotiation within the Communist and western camps.

While the state department remains silent, reports from Communist China indicate American plans have launched bombing and strafing attacks on Pathet Lao positions on the strategic Ho des Jarres. The reports seem to indicate the planes are being challenged only by ground fire.

The ironic element is that these reported attacks should be launched while a group of countries, including Canada, all in consultation in Vientiane, trying to figure out a way of the recent Pathet Lao advance and what Laotian President Souvanna Phouma should do about it.

In the American view, the Vientiane consultations are nothing more than tragic buffoonery, meaningless in pushing back the Communist advance. Nor is much stock given to the prospect that either a six-country meeting in Geneva or a 14-country conference in Geneva would reverse the Communist thrust in Laos and South Vietnam.

The six-country consultations proposed by Poland have the support of the Soviet Union but not of China. The 14-country talks proposed by the Chinese Communists have the support of France but not the U.S.

And there is concern in this section year that the reconvening of the 14-country Geneva conference, without a voluntary withdrawal of Communist forces from their advanced positions, would merely degenerate into just an attempt to draw the U.S. into a prolonged conference of neutrality.

With the growing prospect that the Republican presidential candidate will be the ultra-conservative Barry Goldwater, President Johnson likely will avoid at all costs the charge that he is soft on Communism while the U.S. position in Southeast Asia is in dire jeopardy.

If American planes do not encounter any great opposition in Northern Laos, the temptation presented to the U.S. is to try the same kind of operation in Communist-held strategic points in North Viet Nam from which the Viet Cong are reported to be directed and controlled.

American strategists have given serious consideration to the risk of enlarging the Vietnam war through northern strikes. As Senator J. William Fulbright, chairman of the Senate foreign relations committee, has stated:

"It is extremely difficult for the United States by negotiation to achieve by diplomacy objectives which it has conspicuously failed to win by warfare."

Prairie Farmers Would Welcome General Rain

OTTAWA (CP) — General rain would be welcome in most Prairie districts to stimulate crop growth, hay and pasture, the bureau of statistics reported Wednesday.

Early - seeded crops have emerged well and are in good condition but recent dry and cool weather has slowed growth. Germination has been uneven in many areas for later crops and stubble fields.

In Quebec, most crops look promising and seeding operations were conducted under favorable conditions. Winter wheat has headed and is growing well but cold weather has delayed pasture and hay crops to some extent.

Haying has begun in some parts of Ontario. Frost damage to some tobacco as well as some early corn, potatoes and strawberries is reported. Most areas need warmer weather and more rain.

In British Columbia temperatures everywhere continue below normal and this has resulted in slow growth. Crop prospects remain generally favorable although early crops appear to be one week to 10 days later than normal.

Cool weather has prevailed throughout the Maritimes in recent weeks. Farmers in Prince Edward Island have completed more than half their seeding and hay prospects are good.

In western Nova Scotia, small fruit and forage crops survived the winter well but elsewhere cold, wet weather has retarded seeding.

In New Brunswick seeding is finished but cold weather has retarded horticultural crops.

Quebec has suffered low temperatures, excessive rain and windy weather since May 1. Frost and hail also have been reported, damaging flue-cured tobacco, fruits, berries and tomatoes.

New Yacht Wins First Trial for America's Cup

OYSTER BAY, N.Y. (AP)—The first round in a series of trials to determine the 1964 America's Cup defender belongs to American Eagle, a brand new 12 - metre yacht owned by the Aurora Syndicate.

Eagle, with Bill Cox of Darien, Conn., at the helm, left Constellation in her wake Wednesday as she won 1964 - built contenders met for the first time in formal competition. The easy victory left Eagle with the loss perfect record after two days of sailing in the four-boat series.

Both Groups Must Retain Identities Urge Speakers

HALIFAX (CP) — An Anglican bishop and an Acadian priest both spoke out Wednesday night for a new Canada in which French-speaking people and immigrants would have cultural opportunities equal to English-speaking residents.

Bishop W. W. Davis of Halifax and Judge Vincent A. Poitier of Halifax County Court addressed an informal meeting of the royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism attended by 150.

"I hope we will regard Canada as a land of great opportunity," said the religious leader.

Both speakers drew long applause when they called on English-speaking Canadians to accept other cultural groups to retain their respective identities.

No single culture possessed all the merit. Canada would be strengthened and enriched when all cultural groups would be encouraged to contribute the best of their traditions to national life.

Poitier said the Acadians have lived in Nova Scotia for about 400 years and most of them were determined to speak both French and English.

He called for expanded French instruction in Nova Scotia schools to give them a better chance of surviving as a distinct group. Nova Scotia has 97,000 residents of French origin but nearly half cannot speak French.

Other speakers urged expanded use in English-language schools and in educational broadcasts on television and radio stations. The use of closed-circuit TV as a teaching aid was suggested as a means of overcoming the shortage of qualified French teachers.

A man who identified himself as Frank Lee created a stir near the end of the meeting.

"This royal commission is a waste of time," he shouted, waving a finger at the members of the commission. "Their report will be filed and be forgotten."

He said French - Canadians are outnumbered by English-speaking Canadians, yet they are like the tail wagging the dog. He would continue to speak Gaelic in the streets of Dublin.

"Nobody's stopping you," Judge Poitier interjected amid applause. Mr. Barrie stalled out of the hall.

CRASH KILLS FOUR

CAMROSE, Alta. (CP)—Four persons were killed Wednesday when a car went out of control and hit an embankment. Those killed were Mrs. Edith Ts, and his wife Effie of Calgary, and Edwin Reynolds, 78, and his wife Alma, 71, of Picture Butte.

Unique, Complicated Plan Being Worked Out to Pay For Columbia River Project

OTTAWA (CP) — A unique and complicated system of sidestepping both the Canadian exchange fund and the U.S. balance of payments in financing the Columbia River project is being devised in Washington and Ottawa.

The two-fold object is to prevent a large, sudden drain on U.S. reserves, and at the same time to avoid a build-up in addition to Canada's reserves — an addition that could cause pressure on the Canadian dollar and be misinterpreted by foreign investors.

This specil deal won't make any difference to the British Columbia government. On Oct. 1, as scheduled under the treaty, it will get the Canadian dollar equivalent of the $254,000,000 due.

The U.S. administration agreed last summer to exempt new Canadian issues from this tax, in return for the understanding that the Canadian government would do nothing to attract more than the normal inflow of U.S. money.

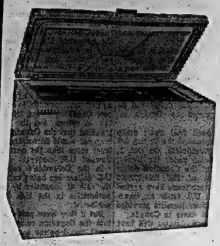
In the Columbia's case, the $275 million being raised by the sale of securities by power authorities in the U.S. Pacific northwest.

But if they were paid directly into the Canadian reserves, the result would be the same—or at least would appear to be—as if Canada had borrowed in the American market.

To get around this, this system is being worked out:

Instead of using the money into the Canadian exchange fund, it will go to Finance Minister Gordon Churchill and invest these funds in U.S. treasury bills, or other short treasury bills, as the exchange fund normally does, but special paper issued to the U.S. treasury for this occasion.

These securities will be for varying terms, but never more longer than U.S. treasury bills —and they will be non-marketable. Thus they will carry a slightly larger rate of interest, helping to reduce Ottawa's overall cost of providing the Canadian dollars to B.C.



As the securities mature, they will be redeemed by the treasury and taken into the exchange reserves, in relatively small amounts compared with the lump-sum Columbia payment.

Because the range of the maturities have not yet been agreed, officials said Wednesday.

From the U.S. standpoint, these special securities will be regarded as debt and will not appear in the American balance of payments.

HEARTHS MAKE GOOD HIDING PLACES — Horace Taylor wears an old street car conductor's hat as he poses with a portion of the treasures he has collected in ten years of hoarding. Horace has objects varying from doorknobs to a Chinese fiddle to swinging saloon doors, all collected since he took up house-wrecking. He claims hearths make excellent hiding places for old coins and documents and treats them with special care. (CP Photo)

Meet "Horace the Hoarder"

VICTORIA (CP) — Horace (The Hoarder) Taylor collects anything.

New vistas of clutter, new paths to proliferation, opened for him 10 years ago when he quit logging and took up house-wrecking.

He has doorknobs, wigs, fireplaces, doorknobs, long-forgotten rallies and doorknobs.

He makes no claim to being an archivist, but he does have a knowing pride in many items. There's a cast-iron fireplace, for instance, made in Scotland with figured tiles and a black mantel. Intended for Dunsmuir Castle, it proved too small and somehow got shipped overseas, ending up in a Victoria home.

Hearths are one item that Horace treats with the care of a watchmaker. As all good hoarders know, there is no hiding place like a fireplace for odd coins and documents.

He has a coin from the SS Beaver, built in 1835 and wrecked in 1892. He has a 50-cent piece dated 1858.

SHORT OF SPACE

Among notes tucked behind mantels was a Christmas hamper list offered by the Hudson's Bay Company in 1916—one bottle of scotch whiskey, one bottle of cognac brandy, one bottle of rye whisky, one bottle of port, six pints of stout, and six pints of beer, all for $4.50.

Every bit of furniture helps Horace store his proud collection. Drawers, boxes, and cabinets are bulging with wigs, old clothes, and of course, doorknobs.

A desk — John from the old Hudson's Bay Company barn, one of the first street car conductor's beds, a pastel drawing, and an old Chinese fiddle are all there—if you can find them as you crawl under a chandelier and squeeze past a love seat.

What is it for?

Horace says: "Oh, I just hoard it.

"If I sold anything I would have to sell only the best, then I would lose interest."

But he has a problem—there isn't room for even one more doorknob.

"I should have kept the old Tolmie house," he said, "then I would have had a place to put all those old things."

It also might have provided a place to hang the swinging doors from the saloon of the Old Charming Inn.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

A very personable young man who has been making a name for himself in secondary school athletics, has been rewarded for his teaching prowess—if you can call additional work, a reward.

He is David Bell, present head of the physical education department at Moira Secondary School, who has added not a few feathers to his cap of achievement since coming here.

Mr. Bell has been appointed coach of the Queen's University wrestling team for the 1964-65 season, succeeding Mr. James Sayler, who is retiring after many years as coach.

DAVID BELL

Although young in years, David Bell is a recognized veteran in the art of teaching wrestling in the secondary schools.

He is responsible, I understand, for the introduction of the sport, or its rejuvenation, in secondary schools and associations in this part of Ontario.

And here is good news for his Moira wrestling proteges, Mr. Bell, although accepting this added position, will continue with his coaching responsibilities at Moira S.S.

Wrestling, thanks to his efforts and co-operation of other physical education directors, is enjoying a good deal of success in the district.

At Moira, Mr. Bell selected a fine group of athletes who have lived up to his ideas of their potential.

In two years of team competition the Moira team has won two Bay of Quinte championships, one COSSA championship; stick place in all-Ontario competition in which 32 schools took part, and an enviable 33-8 dual meet record.

Mr. Bell says that all of this year's team will be back and if as much hard work is again applied, the squad has an excellent chance of bringing Belleville its first OFSAA championship.

Plans are in the making for several meets for the Queen's University team with competitions arranged with Paul Smith College, New York University and McGill University. Mr. Bell hopes that preliminary to all Queen's home meets, the local high schools can participate in dual competitions.

He takes over his first university wrestling coaching position with a wealth of experience background. He has left a trail of success, having coached at three different high schools over a period of eleven years.

Immediately after graduating from McGill University he stimulated interest in the sport by adding it to the physical education curriculum in three Montreal schools.

From 1953 to 1955 while teaching at the Town of Mount Royal, Mr. Bell ran a series of exhibition team meets with two other Montreal schools—Rosemount High and West Hill High School.

From these meets sprung the first Montreal High School Championships in 1955 with Mr. Bell and his Mount Royal squad taking the first title.

The following September Mr. Bell moved to the High School of Montreal, the Island's largest school, to assume the position as head of the physical education department. He introduced wrestling to the school and coached teams to second and third-place finishes during the next three years.

In association with Mr. Allan Turnbull, coach at McGill University, Mr. Bell was responsible for the introduction of an international high school competition. Each year the first two finishers in the Montreal championships wrestled against the top two from the New York States Section VII championships.

Mr. Bell in addition to his wrestling duties has done a lot for track and field at Moira and in the district. It seems to me the Queen's wrestling team this year is in exceptionally good coaching hands.

Pays $40,000 For 'Has-Beens' ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

'Punch Hunch' Gets Moore, Sawchuk

By TED BLACKMAN

MONTREAL (CP) — Punch Imlach, who wheels and deals almost as efficiently as his Toronto Maple Leafs skate and shoot, may have bought himself another Stanley Cup.

The admitted champion of the supposed "has-beens" laid down $40,000 Wednesday for two hockey players with doubtful futures—34-year-old Terry Sawchuk and retired Dickie Moore. But Imlach's record indicates it was money well spent.

The crafty coach and general manager of the Leafs has won three straight Stanley Cups with teams built around players reportedly well past their peak. Rescued by Imlach from the verge of anonymity have been Johnny Bower, Allan Stanley, Red Kelly and Bert Olmstead.

All of them contributed more than their share to the Leafs conquests and Imlach never regretted rescuing them. At Wednesday's NHL draft, he grabbed two more veterans and already there was talk of a powerhouse in Toronto.

"When I draft players," Imlach explained, "I tell them to throw away the medical reports and throw away the birth certificates. We'll start from there."

IMLACH RECEIVES BOOMS

An expected quiet and routine draft meeting suddenly was awakened as Imlach picked Moore from Montreal's unprotected list only days after doctors told the Canadiens that Moore's knees mightn't hold up. Then came the second bombshell as Detroit dropped Sawchuk and Imlach pounced.

"Moore is a great competitor and I'm banking on that fact and that he can make a comeback," Imlach said. "With Sawchuk and Johnny Bower I've got the two goalies from the Stanley Cup finals. What could be better than that?"

Sawchuk was shocked that Detroit gave him up but said he'd report to Toronto although he wouldn't play if sent to the minors. Moore, who spent last season in retirement and faces surgery on his knees, said it would be "doubtful" he'd play.

Seven players were drafted at $30,000 each by all but the claims on Moore and Sawchuk marked the first time players of superstar stature went on the block.

RANGERS TOOK MIKOL

New York took James Mikol of Cleveland from Boston and the surprised Bruins retaliated by grabbing Robert Woytowich of Baltimore from the Rangers. Detroit then took Gary Bergman of Springfield from Montreal and Toronto claimed Moore.

Both Montreal and Chicago passed on each round as expected and all teams passed on the second round except Detroit, who took Murray Hall from Chicago. Toronto surprised observers by taking goalie Gump Worsley from Montreal on the second round.

But Imlach apparently "knew something" and a few minutes later everyone did as the Red Wings claimed goalie George Gardner of Minneapolis from Boston and removed Sawchuk from the protected list. Imlach sprang from his chair and drafted him.

Imlach explained that Bower would likely be his number one goalie with Sawchuk and Don Simmons fighting for the other job. Detroit coach Sid Abel said giving up Sawchuk was a decision made after careful thought.

"We're on a youth movement," Abel said, "and have four young netminders and Roger Crozier was going to start for us anyway. So we had to lose him to protect our youngsters."

Sam Pollock, Canadiens general manager, indicated Detroit's lack of a tested NHL goalie would encourage a trade between the clubs. The Canadiens have been trying to trade Worsley and-or Red Berenson for Larry Jeffrey and another player but the Wings haven't agreed.

"Imlach would have taken Worsley if Sawchuk wasn't coach Toe Blake. "We're lucky on that score. But we had to leave Moore off the protected list because the doctors say his knees aren't good and we would have had to lose a promising youngster on."

Moore, who established several records en route to two NHL scoring championships, said he has hoped to try a comeback "but only in Montreal."

"I'll talk to King Clancy (Leafs assistant manager) but right now I'd say it's extremely doubtful."

Terriers Bow To Kitchener

GALT (CP)—Kitchener Panthers scored seven times in the first three innings Wednesday and went on to post an 8-4 Senior Inter - County Baseball League win over Galt Terriers.

Panthers bumped on starter and loser Ken Lentz and his successor, Fred Gardiner, for seven hits and five walks during their big innings. Larry Lizzgus led the winners with three singles.

Lefthander Gene Zanatta picked up his first win of the season, with relief help from George Valsecnis in the eighth.

Hobbie Beats Giants 2-1

Cards' Hurler Deals Two-Hitter

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

"His fast ball goes like this" and a pair of hands made a quick darting movement.

"His curve ball goes like this" and the pair of hands made a sharp dip.

It's been a long time since the description fit Glen Hobbie, who put the darting, dipping and slanting together Wednesday for his new St. Louis teammates and pitched his finest game this season—a two-hit, 2-1 triumph over San Francisco Giants.

Both hits off Hobbie came in the first inning. The 26-year-old right-hander allowed only one walk the rest of the way, gaining the Cardinals a doubleheader split after the National League leaders had taken the first game 5-4.

Hobbie now has made two appearances since being acquired from Chicago last week in an even swap for Lew Burdette. He had an 8.00 earned run average in 27 1-3 innings with the Cubs, but has a 1.19 mark after permitting only eight hits in 22 1-3 innings for the Cardinals.

Hobbie has been trying for four years to regain the form described by the hands of former Cubs manager Bob Scheffing. Originally purchased for $60,000, Hobbie brought a quick dividend when he posted 15-10 key seasons in 1960 and 1961.

Then he ran into back trouble and was able to win only 19 games over the last three seasons. At the tail end of 1963, Hobbie pitched two shutouts and seemed to be back in form, but he got off to an 0-3 start this year—and got a plane to St. Louis.

REDS EDGE DODGERS

Elsewhere, Cincinnati edged Los Angeles Dodgers 5-4 on Leo Cardenas' run-producing single in the 11th inning and New York Mets walloped the Cubs 9-5 as Charlie Smith and Ed Kranepool accounted for six runs. Houston Colts and Milwaukee Braves were not scheduled.

Hobbie, now 3-3, allowed a run in the first when Harvey Kuenn singled, moved up on a grounder and scored on a single by Willie Mays.

Curt Flood and Bill White then produced the runs Hobbie needed. Flood singled in the fifth, stole second and scored on White's single. In the seventh, Flood walked, stole second and scored the clincher on another White single.

Willie McCovey provided the key hit for the Giants in the opener, a two-run homer off Bob Gibson, 5-3. It was McCovey,

NHL Ups Bonuses; Approves Trophy

Probe TV In U.S.

By W. R. WREATLEY

MONTREAL (CP) — Club owners of the National Hockey League wound up a long meeting Wednesday night, giving approval for increased money to players in connection with season-end finishes and for the playoffs and also authorized $1,000 for an award that will accompany what is to be designated the Conn Smythe Trophy.

During the day the owners also made tentative plans for "heightening the image" of hockey in the United States through special public relations arrangements and investigated the possibility of returning NHL games to television in the U.S.

A number of lesser items were dealt with, ranging from the amateur draft to reduced payments by trainers entering the players' pension fund.

The owners had given approval Tuesday for a $37,000 increase in payments according to season - finish. To this they added Wednesday an extra $9,000 for the Stanley Cup playoffs.

Under the usual allotment of 18 units to each club, the approximate amount for each player on the club finishing first will be $9,250 instead of $1,500.

Second-place finishers will receive $1,750, as against $750; and third-place finishers $750 against $500. Fourth - place money was left unchanged at $250.

For losers in the Stanley Cup semi-finals, the amount is increased from $750 to $1,000. Semi-final winners will continue to get $1,500. No change was made in the $3,000 to cup final winners and $1,000 to losers.

It was announced that the Conn Smythe Trophy will go to the outstanding player in the playoffs. It will be donated by Maple Leaf Gardens.

The owners approved the $1,000 award to go to the winner with the trophy that honors the man who long headed the Leaf organization and has been succeeded by his son, Stafford, as president.

Manner of choosing the winner will be decided later, probably at the league's semi-annual meeting in Toronto next Oct. 10. Players in the semi-finals likely will be considered, as well as those in the final.

The owners also authorized presentation of a signet ring to every living member of the Hockey Hall of Fame. It is a replica of the hall's emblem, and carries a suitable inscription. There now are nearly 60 members.

Steps aimed at enhancing hockey's "image" may be completed shortly. In addition, proposals were laid before the owners by a film firm. Should these be adopted, early steps would be obtaining sponsors for presentation of games or parts of games, via tape, along with educational commentary.

Another possibility — more remote—is that efforts would be made for national live TV in the U.S., should there be ultimate expansion of the league to the West Coast.

A proposal that under - age players—those under 20—be exempt from the draft, whether they have turned professional or not, was defeated.

The junior amateur draft may be conducted before May 1, since the Ontario Hockey Association now sets this date before release of playing certificates, instead of at the NHL annual meeting.

Changes in a player's location after May 1 might lead to confusion in professional rights existing up to that date. Meanwhile, the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association will be asked to look into the matter.

Continued support was approved for next season of the Central Professional Hockey League, the NHL owners saying they were highly satisfied with the CPHL's first year of operations.

The NHL also donated a trophy to be awarded annually to the CPHL playoff champion.

The trophy will be named after J. J. (Jack) Adams of Detroit, member of the Hockey Hall of Fame, and 4 long-time general manager of Detroit Red Wings.

The all-star game was approved for Saturday, Oct. 10, in Toronto. Opening date of the 1964-65 schedule is Oct. 12, Columbus Day in the U.S., when New York plays at Boston.

Two In Eighth Won It

Joyces Snatch 7-5 Victory

By PETER CARVER

Joyce Realty Seniors almost blew their home opener to Oshawa Merchants last night, waiting until the eighth-inning to score two runs to snatch a 7-6 victory.

The game was played at the Fairgrounds before a sparse gallery of local fans. The win was Belleville's second in as many starts, both at Oshawa's expense.

Joyces make their next home appearance Wednesday night against a powerful Brockville Pearse squad.

Although outhit by a staggering margin of 16-6 Oshawa took advantage of the timely Belleville errors to plate their five runs in the first four innings. After that, Gord Vaughan and mates played perfect ball and came up with some fine stretch hitting in the eighth to pull the game out of the fire.

With the game tied 5-5 in the eighth Bob Moon got on by an error and Pete Weston singled with two out. A passed ball and Larry Mavety's solid single plated the winning and clinching markers.

Oshawa drew first blood in the opening frame as a base hit and two Joyce miscues in the infield brought across two runs.

Joyce's free-swinging bats retaliated in their half of the inning when Moon led off with a base hit and advanced on a passed ball. Pat Asselstine promptly singled him home, went to second when the fielder lost the ball. Weston put him on third when the short singles by Hunter and Muirhead brought both runners home and Joyces led 2-2.

Oshawa went ahead 4-2 in the third as Belleville's defence fell apart. Three big innings.

Mayor Jack Ellis opened the game for the Senators by throwing the first ball to catcher Jerry Joyce while Jack Devine tried to solve His Worship's shinks at the plate.

Trudeaus Nip Trenton 6-4

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Sportswriter

TRENTON — Trudeau Motors built an early 5-0 lead then had to scramble hard to clip Trenton Commercial Printers 6-4 in a scrappy, crowd-pleasing 3, and D. softball league battle here last night.

The win for Trudeaus boosted them into a first-place tie with Trenton. Ellis - Juniors and Tweed, with two games in hand on the co-leaders, clash at the CNR in Belleville tonight at 8:45 and in a postponed game at Tweed Sunday.

Trudeaus scored two runs in the second. Duggan doubled down the line and scored on Wright's single to centre. Wright went to second when the ball got through Cole and Ellis' scratch hit through short made it 2-0.

Plane's infield hit ignited a three-run rally in the third. A walk and another infield safety by Faulkner filled the bases. One man was forced at home but Kennedy dropped the ball on another force for a 3-0 score. Wright got the third infield hit of the inning to plate another and a walk to McGuire forced in the fifth run, chasing Trenton starter Howie Cole to the showers.

Trenton got one back in the fourth on a walk and Beangrand's lined triple. A tremendous play, Locke to Faulkner to Murray cut Beangrand down at the plate. It took a great run by Locke and a perfect strike by Faulkner.

The play looked bigger than ever in the fifth when the Printers bagged three more to trail 5-4. Mitts walked and a dropped fly in right with two out scored one. D. Cole followed with a solid home run smash, his third of the year, to put the pressure on Trudeaus.

The winners bagged their insurance marker in the seventh. Faulkner singled and came around on passed balls and a throwing error for the 6-4 score. Trenton loaded the bases in the seventh without scoring.

Doug Ellis gave up eight hits to finally snap his Trenton jinx on the winners' rubber. He struck out seven and walked four.

Howie Cole gave up five runs and eight of the 11 Trudeau hits in 2⅓ innings, fanning one and walking two. Pat Maracle stopped the flood with 13 strikeouts and 4 single walk over the remainder in a great relief chore.

Bert Faulkner paced the winners with three hits, Ab Wright and Rick Locke each getting a pair. Gary Duggan's double and singles by Ralph Plane, Paul Zakos and Doug Ellis completed the attack.

Ron Taylor singled twice, Don Cole homered, Al Beaugrand tripled and base hits went to Roger Drake, Leroy Wannamaker, Lem Mowatt and Will Kennedy for Trenton.

Nip City Hotel, Pointers Win

Lightfoots Top League

Lightfoot Construction took over the Commercial Softball League's top spot with a hard-fought 8-7 win over City Hotel last night in one of two games played.

In the other contest, Point Anne Cementmen turned back Black Diamond Cheese 7-5 in Point Anne.

City and Lightfoots, tied for first entering the game, were still tied 4-4 at the end of the regulation seven innings last night. Lightfoots scored four runs in the top of the eighth, but had to settle for the one-run win when City ripped back with three in the bottom of the frame. City had also scored two in the bottom of the seventh to force the extra inning.

George Young pitched the win, allowing 10 hits, striking out five and walking three. Moe Hawkins tossed the first five and Dave Feeney the final trio for the losers, tagged for 11 hits. They fanned two but walked nine.

Don Dolan, Rusty Garvin, Bill Dickey, George Young and Don Smith had two singles each for Lightfoots, while Jim Sheridan got the other one. Doug Monsees crashed a two-run homer and a single. Doug Hall had a double and two singles and Archer two safeties for City Hotel. Frank Donovan, Ed Donovan and Jack Martin also hit safely.

Veteran Jim Hunter, with relief help from Vern Whalen in the seventh, buried the Pt. Anne victory. They combined for a five-hitter with Hunter getting six strikeouts and one walk. Whalen fanned one of three men he faced.

M. Hass went the route for Black Diamond, allowing eight hits, fanning two and walking three. His seventh-inning homer also chased Hunter.

Mike Cook slammed a pair of doubles for the Cementmen and Vern Whalen clouted a double and a single. His two-bagger, in the sixth, drove in the winner's final two runs. Tom MacDonald also doubled, while Denny Maher, Gerry Maher and Perry Ellis got single.

Backing Hass' homer for the Cheesemen was T. Kellar with a double and single, Cruickshank and Lewis with a base hit each.

Soccer Player Is Suspended

HAMILTON (CP) — Goalkeeper Enore Zanoni of Hamilton Steelers has been suspended for failing to show up for an exhibition game, manager Dunc Bezgid of the Eastern Canada Professional Soccer League club announced Wednesday night.

Playing without Zanoni, the Steelers played to a 1-1 tie with Meidericher of West Germany last week. Beattie said Zanoni probably will be transferred to another club.

Says Ducks Outlook Is Varied

WINNIPEG (CP) — Good water conditions and increased breeding populations are reported for western Manitoba, eastern Saskatchewan and extreme southern Alberta by Ducks Unlimited (Canada).

The private conservation organization, in its June survey, says the outlook is poor for western Saskatchewan and central Alberta.

The over-all picture by provinces shows increased breeding populations in Manitoba with unchanged populations in Saskatchewan and Alberta compared with last year.

Nesting was delayed in Manitoba and Saskatchewan but fine weather should produce a good June hatch. Hatching was almost normal in Alberta, where the first brood was seen May 12. Canada geese show a "marked increase" in Alberta, particularly in the south.

AFRICAN POPULATION

The UN estimates that Africa's population is growing at two per cent a year, with a birth rate of 47 and a death rate of 25 per 1,000.

Gail Harvey Ups Lead In Test

ANCASTER, Ont. (CP)—Gail Harvey of Toronto fired a 76 Wednesday to add 11 points to her lead after the second of seven qualifying tests in the race for the three remaining places on Ontario's interprovincial women's golf team.

Gail had a two-stroke lead over Marlene Streit of Toronto and Betty Cole of Edmonton, tied at 77, and was three strokes ahead of Kay Hellcur of Toronto. Mrs. J. H. McCarter of Toronto shot a 79 to remain in contention for the third team berth.

Each player gets 12 points for matching the course rating Miss Harvey was one over the rating and counted 11 to add to her 13 in the first round at Toronto. Mrs. Streit has an automatic bye on the team.

Mrs. Cole, former Edmonton champion and member of the Alberta team, has 12 points. Miss Hellcur and Mrs. McCarter have 15 and 10, respectively.

Mrs. Fern Irwin, of Oakville, shot an 84.

THE Cundell Palmer METHOD
Four-Time Winner of the Masters

DISTANCE FOR WOMEN

One problem that faced many golfers, in the testimony of Toronto Sun columnist Bob Hesketh on the club during the swing. This problem is especially acute among feminine hackers most of the gals lack a great deal of strength in their hands and forearms.

The normal result of a loose grip will be a loss of club control at the top of the backswing (#1). This not only produces erratic shots, but every effort to correct a loss of distance...

To maintain a firm grip throughout the swing, as shown in #2, I suggest you make sure your left thumb stays pointed against your right palm (see #3). There seems to be a natural groove in the right palm to accommodate this thumb.

A firm hold on the club can and will overcome other swing errors that would normally produce bad shots.

Belts Four, Scores Six

Youngest Angel Beats Tribe In Eleven

By MURRA TCHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Jim Fregosi, who once drove the team station wagon, has steered himself back to the top of the American League batting race.

Fregosi belted four hits and drove in six runs Wednesday night as Los Angeles Angels downed Cleveland Indians 7-4 in 11 innings. The Angels also won the second game of the doubleheader 5-3.

The 21-year-old shortstop's driving experience came while he played for Alpine, Tex., in the Sophomore League. Eight team members travelled in a station wagon, the other 12 in a rented limousine.

To avoid getting leg cramps while sitting in the back, Fregosi volunteered to drive.

He escaped leg trouble then, but he hasn't this season. He pulled a leg muscle against New York Yankees May 23 and missed the next 15 games except for pinch-hitting appearances.

Since returning to the lineup last Sunday, Fregosi has lashed 10 hits in 19 at bats. His performance Wednesday raised his average 15 points to .362, tying him with Minnesota's Tony Oliva for the league lead.

Fregosi's hitting has stood out this season for the Angels, wallowing in ninth place, 13½ games out of first.

Fregosi never has hit .300 in his four-year baseball career. Since coming to the Angels from Boston Red Sox for $75,000 in the expansion draft, he has a major league average of .286.

FELL BEHIND

He led AL batters early this season but soon fell behind the red - hot Oliva. The Twins' rookie, however, went hitless in four times at bat as Detroit nipped Minnesota 5-4 Wednesday night.

In other games, Chicago White Sox edged Baltimore Orioles 2-1. New York outslugged Boston 10-6 after losing 7-6 in 10 innings and Washington Senators stopped Kansas City Athletics 3-1.

Fregosi doubled home two runs in the 11th inning of the opener. The tie-breaking run scored on Sonny Siebert's walk to Tom Satriano. Fregosi belted a run-scoring double in the fourth, then slammed a three-run homer the next inning. He had a hunt single in the eighth.

The Angels sewed up the nightcap with four unearned runs in the fourth. After shortstop Dick Howser threw wildly on Lou Clinton's grounder, Bob Perry drove in two runs with a single and Satriano doubled home another pair.

The White Sox won their 12th game in 19 with the aid of catcher's interference by Baltimore's Dick Brown in the fourth. Pete Ward was given first base on the interference call. Floyd Robinson, who had singled, then scored from second on Ron Hansen's single.

Roger Maris smashed a three-run homer, Tom Tresh a two-run blow and Tony Kubek a solo blast in the Yankees' second-game triumph. Home runs by Tony Conigliaro and Dick Williams gave the Red Sox the opening victory.

Bob Allison drove in three runs for the Twins with a third-inning double and a two-run homer in the eighth. But Mike Hoerner's run-producing single in the seventh proved to be the winning tally for the Tigers.

Wayne Causey contributed three errors to the Senators' attack. Washington scored in the second after a throwing error by the Athletics' shortstop and added two runs in the seventh with the help of his third error.

Quinte Trap, Gun Club

Four shooters shared the limelight at the Quinte Trap and Gun Club's regular mid-week shoot last evening.

Harry Farnell, Doug Johnston, Don Parker and Earl Marvin registered perfect scores of 25.

CHAMPIONS LOSE

TURIN (AP) — Italy's new major-league soccer champion, Bologna, lost 4-1 to Juventus of Turin in a Cup'of Italy quarter-final match Wednesday. Many of the top Bologna stars were not in the champions' lineup.

The Tracks

TORONTO (CP) — Roman Banquet, a five-year-old gelding which doesn't run too often but usually wins when he does, won the $8,770 Jacques Cartier Stakes at Woodbine Wednesday.

Roman Banquet raced head-and-head with E. Day for most of the six furlong distance and pulled away to win by a neck, carrying jockey Nick Shuk to his second victory of the afternoon.

Top Toggery closed ground swiftly in the stretch to defeat with E. Day for second place.

Shuk had Roman Banquet up close right from the start, despite having to start on the extreme outside of the 10-horse field.

Shuk rode Into The Sunset to victory in the second race, thus completing a $30.30 daily double payoff with Yo te's Price, the first race winner.

The quinella of Apache Dancer and Falls Way, in the fifth, returned $30.70.

Crackers Lose 4-3 To Toronto

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Toronto Maple Leafs are still leading the International League but they're having to work hard to stay on top.

The last-place Atlanta Crackers, nobody's patsies in recent weeks, carried the Leafs to the 14th inning before bowing 5-3 Wednesday night while Jacksonville Suns stayed half a game off the pace by blanking Buffalo Bisons 5-0.

The third - place Syracuse Chiefs also needed extra innings to stay in the thick of things, subduing Columbus Jets 7-6 in 11. Richmond Virginians struck a blow for the second division, upsetting the fourth-place Rochester Red Wings 6-5.

Jim McKnight, who had a two-run homer earlier, singled in Larry Osborne with the decisive run at Atlanta and the Leafs added an insurance tally on an infield out. Bobby Del Greco of Toronto and George Banks and Randy Hundley of the Crackers also hit home runs.

Lacrosse

ST. CATHARINES (CP)—St. Catharines Athletics came from behind with five consecutive goals in the final 10 minutes of an Ontario Lacrosse Association senior game Wednesday to defeat Brampton Hillcrests 11-7.

The win moved St. Catharines into a four-way tie for second place, two points behind Brooklyn.

Ronny Roy tied the score 7-7 at 10:40 of the last period with his second goal and Garry Moore's fourth goal of the night, 74 seconds later, proved to be the winner.

Dave Hall added two goals to the St. Catharines total while Pete Bergo, Brian Woods and Gary Hind had one apiece.

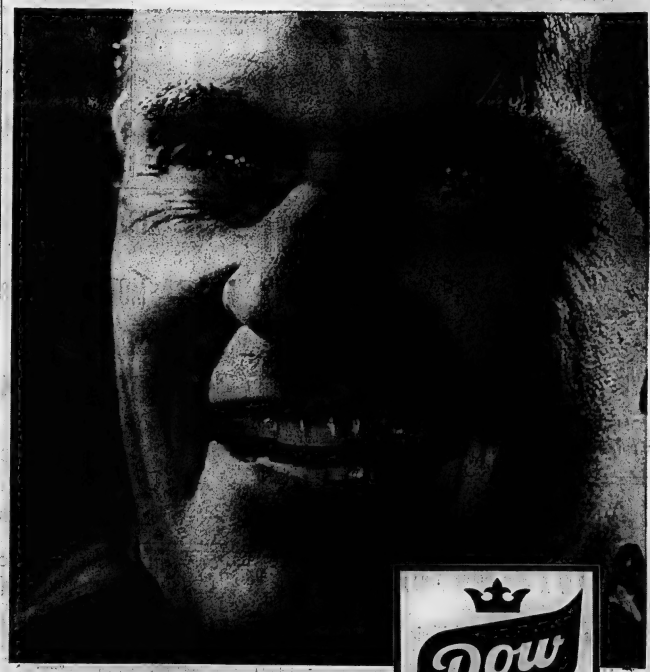
For Brampton, Mike Finnegan and Bob Booth scored two each, and J. D. Cameron, Wayne Thompson and Don Arthur counted the others.

SUNGLOW DIES

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Sunglow, sire of Sword Dancer, died at Meadowrth Farms near Lexington it was reported Wednesday. Sunglow was 17 years old. Sword Dancer, horse of the year in 1959, won $820,610 in three seasons of racing.

Asks Help For World Hockey Team

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Amateur Hockey Association has asked the federal government for financial help in establishing a national amateur hockey team, possibly based in Ottawa.



This information was given in the Commons Wednesday by John Munro, parliamentary secretary to Health Minister LaMarsh, in reply to a question by Eric Winkler, Conservative party whip and MP for Grey-Bruce.

Mr. Munro said the CAHA asked for a grant under the fitness and amateur sport grants. He said Ottawa has been suggested as a possible home for the team but the question is being studied by a CAHA committee.

KEEP POSTMEN HAPPY

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — Argentina's post office is "psycho-probing" its personnel under a new plan designed to keep its postmen happy and to get the mail delivered faster. Key personnel from all sections are encouraged to attend special classes outside working hours to study work problems, meet people they may have worked alongside for years without getting to know and to air their views and ideas.

EXEMPT DIPLOMATS

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP)—The Kuwait parliament has made importing liquor a crime punishable by up to three years in jail, exempting only foreign diplomats. Now, the newspaper Akhbar Al Kuwait reports, there is a movement afoot to require all women, including wives, daughters and secretaries of foreign diplomats, to wear veils when appearing in public.

er's first homer since May 23. Clay Dalrymple slapped a two-run single in the second inning and John Herrnstein slammed a two-run homer in the fourth and that was more than enough for the Phillies. Short, now 4-3, was touched for the Pirates run in the second on a double by Bob Bailey and Bill Mazeroski's single.

The Reds pushed across the winning run in the 11th on a single by Johnny Edwards, a wild pitch by Ron Perranoski and Cardenas' single. The Dodgers had tied it in the fifth when Wally Moon capped a three-run uprising with a two-run homer. Veda Pinson hit a three-run homer for Cincinnati.

Smith hit a three-run homer for the Mets and Kranepool drove in three runs with a pair of singles. Jack Fisher allowed 11 hits as he brought his record to 4-4, but got Billy Williams to ground out four times and trimmed his league-leading batting average to .397.

FENCE OUT PEOPLE

TOKYO (AP)—Japan says its new 131-mile-an-hour electric trains are safe, but to protect pedestrians from sudden surprises a fence is being erected along both sides of a 178-mile stretch of track to ensure that "no trespassing" signs are obeyed. The trains go into service between Tokyo and Osaka Oct. 1. The rest of the 320-mile run is elevated.

Latta Wins Over Foxboro

Latta plated a pair of eighth-inning markers to give the club its first victory of the year in South Hastings Baseball League play last night, a 4-3 decision over Foxboro.

Foxboro opened the scoring with one in the first but Latta pushed in front 2-1 in the second. Foxboro tied the score in the sixth and stayed that way, with strong pitching by both clubs, until the final pair in the eighth.

Meeks tossed a four-hitter over the eight-inning route to chalk up the victory. He struck out eight and walked four.

Campbell hurled six-hit ball for Foxboro, firing third strikes past an even dozen while walking four.

Doug Rollins spearheaded the winners' attack, rapping a double and two singles. The other base hits went to Lorne Cronkright, D. Chisholm and K. Cronkright.

Howard Skelly collected a pair of base knocks for Foxboro with Young hitting a triple and Dickey a single.

A three-man pitching staff of Terry Meagher, Stan Brooks and L. Hughes combined for a three-hitter on the winners' hilltop, claiming 13 strikeouts. M. Burley was their catcher.

Danny Lupenette, Pete Ackerman and Mike Goegan shared the CNR pitching, allowing nine hits and fanning 13. Nolan was their receiver.

M. Burley paced the Little Giants' hit parade with a pair of doubles and a single. Stan Brooks also banged three hits, one of them a triple, while B. Coughlin also tripled and K. Hodgson had a double.

Teddy Eves collected two of the CNR safeties with Smith getting the other.

REMOVING A NUISANCE — Carp netted at the wire mesh screen in the background are tossed on the shore of Lake Manitoba to be trucked to Clandeboye and sold to a fish meal plant. The screen keeps the carp from entering Clandeboye Bay, a marshy area regarded as prime duck habitat which the carp had been spoiling by uprooting the underwater plants.

In Manitoba, It's War on Carp

By IRA DYKEDALE

WINNIPEG (CP) — Tons of carp were pulled from Lake Manitoba this spring in a co-operative venture that has the blessing of conservationists, the Manitoba government and commercial fishermen.

The carp is regarded here as a nuisance fish with little commercial food value because of its muddy taste. In its search for tiny aquatic organisms to eat, the carp uprools acres of underwater plants that provide food for ducks and more palatable fish.

Clandeboye Bay, a marshy area at the southern end of Lake Manitoba joined to the main body of water by a narrow channel, is a prime duck habitat that was being ruined by shoals of mud grubbing carp.

So Ducks Unlimited (Canada), a private conservation organization received government approval to build a wire mesh fence across the channel stop an old timber dam to bar the carp as they migrated to the marshy shallows in the spring.

The carp, in their thousands, harvest into the fence and stifled around aimlessly. The water was "fins and tails" for a quarter-mile out, said Dr. K. H. Doan, chief fisheries biologist with the Manitoba government.

Four fishermen converged on the desolate beach 50 miles northwest of Winnipeg and used seine nets to encircle the carp and drag them ashore.

The catch went into trucks and was hauled to Clandeboye, about 50 miles away. There it was sold to a fish-meal plant for one cent a pound.

In the first two weeks the men landed 60,000 pounds of carp. Pickerel, pike and other game fish were thrown back into the lake. A provincial government supervisor was on the scene.

Despite the initial big catch, Dr. Doan figured enough fish remained on the lake side of the screen to keep fishermen busy for some time. And the Clandeboye Bay trap covered only one of the lake's outlets to marshland.

Dr. Doan said the government would like to see more men get in on the act.

Besides uprooting vegetation, the carp makes the marsh water muddy so that the sun cannot penetrate, and some vegetation dies.

Ducks like marshes thick with underwater plant life. Carp tend to strip that life, and leave the marsh open or clear.

The fish, which average around nine pounds in Manitoba but have been caught at about 30, were not known to Manitoba before 1958.

They slowly made their way into the province along waterways from the south. They are common in southern Manitoba waters now and in lakes Winnipeg, Manitoba and Winnipegosis.

They have reached into eastern Saskatchewan and are common in the Great Lakes and in marshes along the St. Lawrence River.

Actors Rebel Against Movies On Sex, Nudity

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Sex and nudity in the movies are meeting rebellion from the stars.

First Gregory Peck announced that he would not appear in any movies with lurid sex themes.

Now Martin Milner, star of television's Route 66, has turned down a starring role in Fanny Hill, a movie about to be shot in Europe.

He had a commitment to make a movie for producer Albert Zugsmith in Europe but, although announced for the movie, he says he was not told it was to be Fanny Hill.

"This salacious book," says Milner, "is completely unacceptable to me as an actor."

The book is subtitled A Woman of Pleasure.

The Unsinkable Molly Brown Is Excellent Musical Film

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The new movies

gen's a pleasure to report two attractions which the family can attend without boring the adults: The Unsinkable Molly Brown and The World of Henry Orient.

Molly, the second of Meredith Willson's smashing musicals to be filmed, it is the first to be improved in the movie version.

Music Man lost its small-town flavor on film. But Molly, with its rhapsodies to frontier life, was a natural for movies.

The MGM treatment is big-wide, sun - splashed landscape; open-throated singing and inhibited dancing; acting without subtle touches.

Molly is a tour de force for a musical actress, and there was considerable doubt in Hollywood that Debbie Reynolds was up to it. She was and is. She impales the movie along on sheer talent and energy. Debbie could even rack up an academy nomination with this one.

A PAIR OF GIRLS

The World of Henry Orient is mis-filed, leading the movie shopper to believe it might be another Peter Sellers adventure-comedy. In reality, it concerns the Manhattan adventures of a pair of over-privileged, underloved teen-age girls.

The prospect of watching a full-length film about two precocious 14-year-olds sounds forbidding, but the danger has been skirted by directors George Roy Hill. He alternates belly-laughs with tenderness in deft style. Some of the material is a bit sophisticated for impressionable minds, but the viewpoint throughout is moral.

Sellers is capital, as always.

NEED MORE ACREAGE

REGINA (CP) — Within 25 years, 11,000,000 acres of improved pasture and 4,000,000 acres for use in grain production will be needed to carry the additional 6,000,00 head of beef cattle that will be needed in Canada, says Gordon Hazes of the federal agriculture department's economic division in Ottawa.

Tight Regulation Seems To Be Favored in Report

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — The assassination of President Kennedy with a mail order gun focused attention on a serious law enforcement problem. Weapons ranging from pistols to anti-tank guns can be bought by almost anyone, including criminals, lunatics and even children. CBS Reports undertook Wednesday night, to examine both sides of the subject. Those opposed to tight regulation of firearms possession got a chance to state their views but the case for strict regulation, illustrated by some gruesome examples, seemed much stronger.

The program showed how an ex-convict from Kansas bought a gun from a "liquor and sporting goods" store in Arizona. He killed two Los Angeles policemen with the weapon.

The man who sold the gun expressed rather perfunctory regrets about the murders, but shrugged, "there's not a lot you can do about it."

QUICK FOREARTHS

There are 200,000 members of "quick draw clubs" in the United States using real guns and war bullets. "Try to hit the man about in the chest," an instructor told a teen-aged girl learning to shoot at a target.

The position of the National Rifle Association, representing 600,000 hunters and shooting theatists, was explored. While deploring sale to convicts, persons with a history of mental disease or children, it argues that U.S. citizens have a right to own firearms for protection, including the prevention of tyranny.

Of the 18 television programs that rank as tonight's prime time (7:30-11) schedules on the major networks, all but two are reruns.

One rerun, however, is eminently worth a second look. It's ABC's The Making of the President, 1960," winner of this year's Show of the Year Emmy.

Batawa Blanks Parsons 4-0, RCAF Win

Trenton RCAF and Batawa came away with shutout victories in a pair of Kingston District Soccer League games played last night.

The loop-leading RCAF crew blanked Brockville by a 3-0 count in a game played at Kingston.

Meanwhile, fans in Belleville Batawa whitewashed Parsons Cleaners 4-0 in a hard-fought, rugged battle.

Batawa moved ahead 2-0 in the first half and added another pair when Parsons went all out on the attack in the second half.

Meade booted a pair of the Batawa goals. Cleaner, who recently transferred from the Parsons ranks to Batawa, helped down his old mates with one goal and Laurie netted the other.

Planes Shade Read 8-7

Plane's Concrete scored three runs in the top of the fifth and then hanging to edge Read 8-7 in South Hastings baseball played at Read last night.

The winners had led 5-0 at one point but Read moved ahead with five in the third and two in the fourth. The game was shortened by darkness.

Harry Cole pitched the victory, allowing seven hits, fanning three and walking five. Percy Milligan was clubbed for 13 hits on the Read mound. He struck out three and passed two.

Jack Calnan banged three singles, Don Forsythe two doubles and Pat O'Connor two singles in leading the Plane's hitters.

F. Milligan had a double and single, Gerald Brennan a brace of singles, in a losing effort.

Cobourg Rink Captures Trophy At Campbellford

A splendid turnout of 28 mixed rinks was on hand for Wednesday at Campbellford to take part in the Archie Myers tournament and a Cobourg rink of Albert Hoskins and partner won the three - game high score, the bronze and consolation winning prizes. Don Clarke and his partner from Kingston won the second high score with Vern Wilson Fuller with his wife, Ivy of Trenton captured third place.

A Belleville rink of Mrs. and Mrs. Wilfred Price won the two games high score after closing the first game by a close score. The one - game high was won by W. Joyce with his wife, Gladys, of Oshawa, and other Belleville rinks, Ab Wonnacott and Mrs. Grace Clapp, Gordon Fuller and Mrs. Ethel Hall, Gladstone Tice and Mrs. Thelma Fitzgibbon won two of their games, but not by enough count to get into the prize money.

The greens were in fine condition although not quite as fast as is usual at this popular club but they will be fast before the season is over. Angus Putnam conducted the draw and Mr. Meyers a power in the bowling world in this district, for many years, was on hand to present his own trophy. Rinks were present from Trenton, Madoc, Oshawa, Cobourg, Peterborough, Campbellford and Belleville. It was a most enjoyable day despite the cool temperature.

Early Wednesday morning searchers recovered the body of 64-year-old William Edward Brown, Long Branch, drowned while fishing in the Trent River.

Mr. Brown left his cottage on the west bank of the Trent, 7.30 p.m. Tuesday, to go pickerel fishing. He was alone in a 12-foot aluminum boat.

When he failed to return his wife called a neighbor, Mrs. Gordon Sharp, who informed police. OPP constables Earl Berry and Albert Creary and town constable John Kearns, with fireman Mike Walmsley, started probing the river.

His body was found about 5.30 a.m. Wednesday, with his upturned boat nearby.

Famous Woodburner Locomotive To Be on Display Railroad Week

Included among an array of old and new railway equipment which the Canadian National is arranging at Belleville during Railway Week June 22-28 in connection with the lifting of tracks from Pinnacle Street will be the last wood - burning locomotive in Canada. It is "Number 40" which toured the continent many years ago as part of the CN Museum Trafn. The locomotive was built nearly a century ago for the Grand Trunk Railway at Portland, Maine, in 1872, as a standard gauge engine.

Her gauge was changed to broad in 1873 so she could operate in eastern Canada. A short time later, her trucks were changed back to standard width as the four feet eight and a half - inch gauge was standardized on the continent.

Musty old records show that the locomotive operated for many years between Portland, Maine, and White River Junction, Vermont, until 1905 when the GTR sold it to a lumber line near Quebec City. Years later CN "rescued" the locomotive from the scrap heap and used the engine as a roving museum piece both in Canada and the United States.

A wide variety of activities has been arranged by the city during Railway Week. Included are the Tommy Hunter show with Gordie Tapp, and the Hayes Sisters. An appearance by Moe Koffman and his 14-piece orchestra, has been scheduled as well as a giant bootlenanny, western horse show, motorcycle racing, motor boat races and band concerts by the Bandstings and Prince Edward Regimental Band.

A special train hauled by a steam locomotive will go to Peterborough June 27. The following day it will haul a picnic special to Cobourg.

TEST PILOT KILLED

MARIETTA, Ga. (AP) — A vertical takeoff and landing plane crashed and burned Wednesday in the back yard of a suburban residence, killing pilot William J. Ingram, 43. Good Workmanship is our Success

Our Architectural Heritage

By LENNY WILLIAMSON

In 1834, William Hutton decided to improve his family's circumstances by immigrating to Canada from North Ireland. He bought a farm 1½ miles west of Belleville village along the front of Sidney Township.

Fortunately for us, he wrote a description of it to his wife before she came to join him. From his letter, preserved by his grandson, the late Col. William Ponton, we get a fascinating glimpse of life in our county in the 1830's.

Mr. Hutton chose his "166 acres, about 90 clear, at £750 Canada currency" because it had "the most beautiful situation close to one of the best markets in Canada, and a most healthy climate."

The farm had been the property of Dr. Meachum, a pioneer doctor, who bought it in 1816. Mr. Hutton sent a plan of the Meachum house along to his wife. "The house," he wrote, "is not large or handsome, but commodious enough for us. Excellent kitchen and handsome cellar, 8 bedrooms, a good sitting - room about 16 ft. square, but I did not measure."

The back part of the house is stone and the front a frame, and one of the rooms is detached, but will make a good parlour — it is a strange shape, but in good order, and will do us very well."

The cellar is a very important part of a house here. There is also a dairy, and a large wood house for holding firing."

Mr. Hutton predicted Belleville's expansion, although he might not have believed that his farm would one day be annexed by the city. "If Belleville goes on advancing as it has done, the fields on the back which are only a mile from town will soon let for town parts.

I had not the most remote idea this country had approached so far to civilization. The children as well as ladies are most beautifully dressed in silks with their veils and parasols. Do not have the idea that anything will do for Canada. It is quite a country.

It will be too gay for you. The ladies are princesses in their dresses, but I don't think much of their minds."

Despite the frivolity of its women, Canada suited Mr. Hutton and his wife. As their farm prospered they planned the present house at 200 Dundas St. West, to replace their first condemseration of buildings.

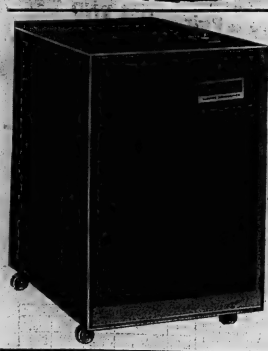
The choice of most British gentleman building in Canada in the 1830's was the Regency cottage, an English style square, 1½ storeys high, hip roofed, with large windows and a wide verandah on all sides.

The Ponton house was a perfect example. Unfortunately, later generations added a Victorian tower and dormer windows, and removed the porches.

Regency builders tried to blend house and landscape into one harmonious unit. To increase the ground-hugging appearance of the house, the Ponton cottage had the one storey above and the half storey below ground level. The bedrooms were in the cellar, the four reception rooms on either side of a centre hall above stairs.

A wide, vine-covered verandah hid the high foundation and tied the house to its surroundings. The "strange - shaped" stone part of the original house was utilized as the kitchen wing.

THE HUTTON - PONTON HOUSE
Located on Dundas Street West



Any small, roughly cube-shaped house of one or one-and-a-half storeys, with a hip or pyramid roof, is a direct descendant of the Regency cottage. Canadian builders copied it in every decade since 1830, altering its trim to suit the prevailing fashion.

All post-war subdivisions are full of Regency-inspired bungalows, landscaped to blend with their site, and often complete with a bedroom in the basement.

Proposed Flag Will Fly On Parliament Hill

Debate on the Issue Will Open on Monday

Indian Princess On Warpath

By STEWART MacLEOD

MONTREAL (CP)—A striking young Indian princess is on the warpath.

Mohawk model Khan-Tineta Horn said Thursday she plans to sue William Wuttunee, chief of the National Indian Council, for firing her from her post as chairman of the Indian centennial committee and dethroning her as Indian princess of Canada.

The Indian beauty told a press conference in her home at the nearby Caughnawaga reserve that Mr. Wuttunee, a Calgary lawyer, is trying to affiliate Canadian Indians with the United States Black Muslim group, a sect that believes in Negro equality with but separation from whites.

She also questioned the use of the council's expenditures.

'AFRAID TO TALK'

"He hangs up on me each time I phones and has returned 13 of my letters unopened," said the black-haired 22-year-old. "He's afraid to talk to me."

She said she was dismissed at an illegal meeting because only six directors were there and others weren't notified. Once $1,000 was spent to gather the directors to be sure that they supported her, she added.

She plans to bring the lawsuit because "he humiliated me."

Miss Horn said she was ousted because she questioned use of government funds for the committee.

AGAINST EXPLOITATION

"I won't stand for anybody exploiting the Indians whether they be white people or other Indians."

She also produced a letter from William Pickard, president of the League of North American Indians, that said Mr. Wuttunee "wanted us to join the Black Muslims" and quoted Mr. Pickard as saying: "I have met Mr. Wuttunee of the national council of Canada. We had a sharp difference of OTTAWA (CP) — The government's proposed maple leaf flag will fly on Parliament Hill today but Conservative spokesmen and particularly Opposition Leader Diefenbaker—have served clear notice they won't salute it.

". . . It looks too much like a trademark," said Mr. Diefenbaker Thursday as the Commons debated another starchy session on flag questions.

In an unauthorized piece of bunting over the parliamentary grounds," declared Gordon Churchill (PC—Winnipeg South Centre).

Lasting only 7 minutes or so, the Thursday edition of the preliminary flag debate—all gradually leading up to Monday's official opening of the issue in the Commons—had as its theme the government's fight, or lack of it, to fly the proposed flag on official property.

What possible justification is there for flying this?" asked Mr. Diefenbaker after Prime Minister Pearson had said that it would be flown at requested by some members of Parliament and others.

"Has there been an order in council passed? If not, it cannot be effective; that is all," Mr. Diefenbaker said.

"There is the same justification as in making available to members a pictorial representation when the resolution was introduced," replied the prime minister. When the flag-flying was requested by New Democratic Party members last week there were no objections, he said.

Since plans to bring the lawsuit because the questioned use of government funds for the committee.

WILL HE LIKE IT

Perhaps, suggested Gerard Chapdelaine (SC — Sherbrooke) Mr. Diefenbaker would like the design once he saw it flying.

". . . May I say so; it looks too much like a trademark," said the Opposition leader.

The flag issue was hoisted Thursday with a bang. Scott (NDP—Toronto Danforth) again moved whether a vote on a design change in the proposed flag would constitute a confidence issue. He said there is growing national support for a design with one maple leaf.

Mr. Pearson said there would be a later reply, but meantime the request of certain members for the government's proposed flag hoisted on Parliament

Swedish Air Force Colonel Given Life for Spying for Communists

STOCKHOLM (AP)—Col. Stig Wennerstrom of the Swedish Air Force was sentenced to life in prison Thursday for spying against Sweden for the Soviet Union.

The sentence, Sweden's most severe in peacetime, was handed down 10 days before Soviet Premier Khrushchev is due in Stockholm on a goodwill visit.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: A disturbance in eastern North Dakota has already spread cloud showers and thunderstowers into extreme northwestern Ontario. This weather system with the associated showers and thunderstowers will move east north eastward across northern sections today and tonight. Increasing cloudiness and scattered showers or thunderstowers are also expected for southern regions tonight and Saturday morning as the southern extension of this weather area in Northern Ontario passes by.

Temperatures on Saturday will be turning cooler as winds shift into the northwest and cloud amounts will be quite variable.

Wennerstrom, 57, was arrested after 14 years of espionage activities in Moscow, Washington and Stockholm.

His activity was mainly directed against the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, he said.

Wennerstrom received notice of the sentence from the central criminal court in a special steel and concrete prison "bunker" in which he has been kept since a suicide attempt.

He will be eligible for parole after 10 years.

The court stripped Wennerstrom of his air force rank and ordered his property—$600,000 in crowns—nearly $100,000—in debts.

According to the prosecution, Wennerstrom started his spy career during the war for the Germans and, switched to the Russians after the Battle of Stalingrad.

Prosecutor Werner Ryhninger said Wennerstrom spied for Russia for "hundreds of thousands of dollars." He accused Wennerstrom of handing over at least 160 top Swedish defense secrets to the Russians.

Throw Match In Haystack

By STEWART MacLEOD

OTTAWA (CP) — After a day of rambling through the intricacies of agricultural credit, someone in the Commons threw a match in the haystack Thursday night by mentioning pateurage.

Until then, the day-long debate on changes in Farm Credit corporation lending facilities had been calm and cool, but the patronage angle provided the sitting with a flaming finish. At one stage half a dozen members were struggled for the floor.

It was Charles-Arthur Gauthier (Portneuf—Soberval) who brought up the subject—he said many farmers in his riding are discouraged for loans because they don't belong to the party in power—but the hottest exchange followed the rejection of legal advisers for the corporation.

Hugh Horner (PC — Jasper-Edson) declared that political patronage is involved in the granting of legal work by the corporation.

Agriculture Minister Hays quickly jumped into that fray. "I have been a member of parliament for a long time, and I've been in power in 1957, he said, they cut off all work for lawyers that were employed by the corporation.

THERE'S NO CHANGE

Mr. Horner, he added, there has been no change in the system.

Mr. Horner shouted back at the minister. "For heaven's sake, that's absolute nonsense, an outrageous statement."

There had been a reduction in the number of lawyers employed, said Mr. Hays, but no change in the system.

David Pugh (PC — Okanagan-Boundary) said Mr. Hays didn't know his aspidistras from hollyhocks.

Meanwhile, the agriculture minister had a full reply ready for the initial charge by Mr. Gauthier.

The 1961 census show there are 1,200 farmers in Mr. Gauthier's riding he said. In the last fiscal year, loans went out to 121 of them. That worked out at a ratio of 1-in-10; in Saskatchewan it was 1-in-40.

Prior to the last two members of the Conservative, New Democratic and Creditiste parties called for speedy implementation of five per cent on all loans granted by the corporation. Under the amendment, which also provides that loans up to $30,000 would be five per cent, and above that the rate would fluctuate.

FORECASTS CHANGES

When Ed Nasserden (PC — Edmonton East) asked whether the government plans to impose a higher interest rate on farm improvement loans made under other legislation, Mr. Hays said that amendments to the farm improvement loans act probably will be brought in within 30 days or so. But he gave no indication whether interest rates would be affected.

Creditiste Leader Real Caouette said the government would propose an amendment providing a

Blasts Rock Munition Dumps In Santo Domingo Suburbs

CP from AP-Reuters

SANTO DOMINGO — Explosions rocked military ammunition dumps across the Osama River from Santo Domingo in the Dominican Republic through the night. Officials said four persons were killed and 112 wounded.

Flames set by the blasts still raged today, preventing firemen, troops and police from getting close to the dumps.

The explosions caused some damage in the city.

Donald Reid Cabral of the government junta said three and possibly five dumps at the army's 27th of February Barracks were destroyed. He said investigators were trying to determine the cause. There was no official report on how fires were started by fire in a powder magazine.

Persons in the area heard several earthing shots just before the first explosions. It was not known if the shots were by sentries giving the alarm by fire.

The junta government put all hospitals and private clinics in the capital on an emergency footing.

Immediately after the first explosions guards were placed around the camp, which can hold up to 1,300 men.

In the downtown section, a mile from the camp, streets were littered with broken plate glass from windows.

Officials would not estimate casualties but the injured were reported arriving at hospitals "in bunches." The camp was only from the camp but from Adjacent civilian homes.

Thousands of residents were affected by the fire which preceded the first explosion.

In central Santo Domingo separated by a river from the camp, dozens of persons were cut by flying glass.

Thunderous explosions of heavy shells and the crackle of small arms ammunition could be heard. Occasionally the sky above the column of flame was illuminated as scores of flares were ignited.

Scranton Plans to Fight Goldwater for Nomination

BALTIMORE (AP) — Pennsylvania Governor William W. Scranton will tell the Maryland Republican state convention here today he will seek the Republican presidential nomination at San Francisco next month, source clost to the governor reported.

Those close to Scranton described him as gaining ground over the leadership trend within the Republican party. The sources said he would tell the Maryland organization he will continue to fight for the nomination until there is a settlement.

Scranton's announcement would pave the way for a confrontation to Senator Barry Goldwater. The Arizona Republican holds a commanding lead in the battle for national convention delegates.

Goldwater, with 543 delegates publicly committed to vote for him at the convention opening July 13 in San Francisco, is driving for the nomination on the first ballot.

The Pennsylvania governor has only 85 delegates, and 656 are needed for nomination.

A key issue in Scranton's decision, sources said, was Goldwater's vote Wednesday against the civil rights bill. Scranton is for it.

Goldwater has indicated he would vote against the civil rights bill if amendments are changed to meet his specifications.

In announcing his candidacy, Scranton would join a field of contenders that includes Goldwater, Nelson A. Rockefeller, Maine Sen-

Mr. K Signs Friendship Pact With East German Regime

MOSCOW (AP) — Premier Khrushchev announced to cheering audience in the Kremlin today that the Soviet Union and East Germany have agreed on a treaty of friendship, cooperation and mutual assistance.

The Kremlin, apparently to soften the impact of the Soviet treaty, had forewarned the governments of the United States, Britain and France.

The three allied governments consulted urgently on the development. The new pact was not to be considered a peace treaty and therefore created no new critical situation.

The Soviet premier, in a voice hoarse from much speaking and conferring, said the treaty would be signed "in a few hours."

He said it reflected the desire of socialist states to work together, and provided for non-interference in the affairs of one another. Khrushchev told a West German friendship meeting in the Kremlin, Khrushchev said: "Normalization of the situation can absolutely unexpectedly provoke a catastrophe. It is hard to avoid it, however, or later statesmen will have to display enough courage to appraise soberly the new and existing situation.

"Normalization of the actually existing situation that has already taken shape is the only point in question. This would not demand any sacrifices or losses from either side."

De-Russification Underway

Romania Turns From Russia to West

BUCHAREST (AP)—Bucharest streets with Russian names are getting new ones. The Russian language is no longer compulsory in Romanian schools. Russian book stores and institutes are being closed or remaindered.

There are hints of bitterness between Soviet Premier Khrushchev and Romania's longtime Communist leader, Gheorghe Gheorhiu-Dej.

Since Romania signed an agreement to increase trade more with the United States, there has been increasing speculation that Romania will follow the Yugoslav model. But they say that disagreements are lesser than at any time since Romania became Communist in 1947.

Romania probably is the richest of all East European Communist countries in raw materials. She has Europe's largest oil production outside the Soviet Union, and also has valuable wood supplies, methane gas, water power, uranium ore and salt.

For years, most of these raw materials went to other Communist countries.

In 1960, Gheorghiu - Dej decided on a large-scale plan of industrialization because Romanians could not get the civilian equipment they needed from the bloc. They started trading their products in the West, and began buying machinery from West Germany, Britain, France and Italy.

Romania's rapid industrialization and its increasing Western trade has not pleased Khrushchev. Since 1962, he has been trying to persuade the Romanian leaders to come back fully into the Communist camp and integrate their economy with Comecon—the economic organization of East European states.

Instead, Gheorghiu - Dej has shunned many Comecon meetings and increased trade with the West. In 1960, Romania's trade with the West was 35 per cent. This year, it may be 40 per cent of all Romania's foreign trade.

In April, when the Communist leaders were attending Khrushchev's 70th birthday celebrations in Moscow, Gheorghiu-Dej stayed home and met with his Romanian Workers' (Communist) Party. In a statement the party declared its "non-interference in the affairs of Communist countries and said:

"Each party is free and cannot solve a parent party and a son party, parties that are superior or subordinate. No party can impose its line and opinions on other parties."

Gheorghiu-Dej then sent his trade mission to the United States. Additionally, Romania has:

1. Inquired about possibilities of joining GATT, the West's General Tariff and Trade Agreement.

2. Considerable relaxed regulations for Western (but not Eastern) tourists to enter the country, obviously to encourage more hard currency from them.

3. Expressed interest in buying two nuclear power plants from Britain or the United States.

4. Quietly cut down Russian influences in schools and culled Russian books.

5. Held nation-wide briefings in which party officials have denounced Russian exploitation of Romania's raw materials in past years.

The Kremlin's reaction also has been angry. There are unpublished reports that Khrushchev tried to use pro-Soviet elements in Romania to overthrow the Dej regime. Another rumor is that Khrushchev held a secret meeting with Dej and pounded the table.

Moscow described the Romanians as "intentionally perfidious."

For all the disagreements, the Romanian party's April declaration made it clear the party supports Moscow in Soviet attitudes toward peaceful coexistence, disarmament, a German peace treaty and other major issues. It regards the Chinese attitude as threatening to split the world Communist movement.

Consider Standard Uniform

KINGSTON (CP) — One distinctive uniform for municipal police forces across the province will be the topic of discussion today at the final session of the annual conference of the Chief Constables Association of Ontario.

The proposal for a basic black uniform, incorporating the traditional piping and insignia of police forces, will be introduced in the form of a resolution by Chief Constable Vincent D. Pierce of Simcoe.

It is the result of a year's research by Chief Pierce, who feels the current varied uniforms worn by municipal police are hard to distinguish from those of milkmen, doormen, bus drivers and others.

The standard uniform theory has already met with the approval of the Commissioner Eric Silk of the provincial police.

"I think it's important to have a police force for all forces which would be universally recognized," Mr. Silk said Thursday.

Shoulder epaulets with a special symbol should be incorporated in the force's police uniform to give it distinction, he said.

REARGEMENT EASED

The whole concept of Chief Pierce's identical uniform carries on the ability of its old parts in the new uniform's parts. Chief Pierce says black is easily matched whereas other colors fade in the sunlight each year and have a great tendency to fade.

The uniform would have a matching cap with ventilated sides, a black peak, watch chain for chief constables and blackened silk braid for chaplains.

For headwear, single-breasted tunics with notched lapels would be wool serge in winter and worsted in summer. They would have four pockets, centre vent and detachable cloth belt with buckle.

Trousers would be single pleated with side and hip pockets, black stripe, watch pocket and scarlet piping.

Insulated boots for winter wear and rubber overshoes with buckled boots over police shoes are also recommended.

Today's discussion will also deal with reports of the traffic committee on a committee and the election of officers.

Thursday, Chief Constable L. L. Lacharity of Sault Ste. Marie advocated that municipal authorities ease some complaints of police officers.

He said in an interview that the issuing of parking tickets is doing untold harm and can be handled by the meter people," he said. "It makes me angry to think some of us have to work for the parking authority when we don't get one cent."

Some parking tickets in Toronto now are being handled out by parking control officers rather than policemen.

Reds On Move, Laos Authorizes U.S. Air Watch

Resumption of Flights Approved by Premier

VIENTIANE (AP)—Premier Souvanna Phouma said today that U.S. reconnaissance flights over central Laos will resume in the next day or two because "important movements" of pro-Communist forces are under way there.

The flights were suspended Wednesday at Souvanna's request.

"Unfortunately," the premier told a press conference, "recent information reaching us shows that important movements of Pathet Lao and Vietminh (North Viet Nam) troops are taking place in these (Communist-controlled) zones.

"The flights will therefore be continued and if the Pathet Lao want them to stop it is up to them to create the necessary conditions."

Souvanna said he has no objection to armed American reconnaissance flights as long as nonassistance planes. He said he himself has no means to protect the flights.

Previously it had been believed that the violent objections from Laos' pro-Red Communist China to the flights, and particularly to the use of armed American planes, had been a big factor in Souvanna's request that the flights be suspended.

ASKED IT HIMSELF

But the premier said today that he requested their suspension because there had been a "lull in the operational zone."

Souvanna made no mention of an air strike Thursday on Pathet Lao headquarters in Royal Laotian Air Force planes.

A Pathet Lao statement quoted by the news agency did not identify the "nationality" of the planes but blamed the attack on "U.S. imperialism and its lackeys."

LAMENTS DAMAGE

The Pathet Lao claimed the centre of Prince Souphanouvong, chief of the Pathet Lao, and the home of Souvanna's cultural mission and many others of "government" functionaries were "bombed and

Jail King For Sit-in In Florida

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla. (AP) The first violent Civil Rights racial demonstration in three nights took place in St. Augustine as a mob estimated 300 policemen and a number of police dogs protecting the 200 marchers.

A state trooper reported he was hit by a bottle of acid Thursday night. His face was splashed, but he washed himself quickly and was not burned seriously.

Police said five white men were arrested on charges of carrying concealed weapons including sling shots and weighted canes.

Georgetown, Ala., was quiet. A Negro leader said the marches there had been suspended until a court could act on a petition to restrain Tuscaloosa police from interfering with what are described as peaceful demonstrations.

In addition, the petition asked the court to order police not to interfere with meetings held in churches and that the more than 100 persons arrested this week be tried in federal court.

KING ARRESTED

Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., integration leader and president of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, was taken into custody during a sit-in at St. Augustine a few hours before the night march started.

King said he was prepared to remain in jail as long as necessary to dramatize the campaign against racial discrimination.

The arrest of King and 17 of his followers apparently affected the size of the latest demonstration. About 400 persons took part in the two previous marches.

The demonstrators walked two abreast from a church to the downtown park where white gangs attacked the marchers on the previous nights. The park was almost clear of white persons and brightly illuminated by floodlights.

Some white spectators yelled threats and two firecrackers exploded. But there were no assaults and no rocks or bricks were thrown.

There was nothing new for King. He has been jailed at

Will Cremate Body of 'The Beaver' At Private Service on Sunday

LONDON (CP)—The cremation of Lord Beaverbrook will take place Sunday at Leatherhead, Surrey, it was learned today.

The ceremony will be a private one at the wish of the family.

Leatherhead, itself a modest, not particularly attractive town, lies in centre of Britain's richest and most beautiful countryside, labelled the "stockbrokers' playground."

Near Leatherhead is Cherkley Court, the big grey house with its acres of green parkland and the two yew trees named John Knox and Winston Churchill, beneath whose branches Beaverbrook often meditated.

The announcement of the date for the cremation of Beaverbrook came after Lord Beaverbrook's Sir Max Aitken, announced that he is renouncing the title his father had borne since 1917.

The title was earned and won by my father," the 24-year-old Sir Max said in a statement. "He brought on it a unique distinction that belongs to him alone."

Although renouncing his peerage, Sir Max is unable to divest himself of his baronetcy. Most British papers refer to him simply as "Max Aitken," but it is understood that he is correctly known as Sir Max.

The lord chancellor's office said the instrument of disclaimer has been received and that the title now remains dormant. It can be revived after the death of Sir Max, unless his son also renounces it.

Sir Max, who was born in Montreal, was formerly Conservative member of Parliament for the London district of Holborn. During the Second World War he served as a fighter pilot and commanded first a night fighter squadron and then a strike wing in Northern Europe.

He married as his third wife in 1960 Lady Violet de Trafford, daughter of Sir Humphrey de Trafford, a racehorse owner-trainer. Lady Beaverbrook was replaced in the June 3 Derby. They are a son and a daughter by his marriage. Sir Max also has two daughters by a previous marriage.

The announcement of Sir Max's disclaimer is not given particular prominence in the British press. The only comment comes from the Manchester Guardian, which says in its London letter column that while others have renounced titles, Sir Max is "unique" in doing so as a tribute to his father.

Future of Nuclear Energy In Canada Seen as Bright

No More Permits For New Hunt Camp Locations

TWEED — As a result of a long term review of existing conditions, including animal life, camps, the Tweed District has been closed to the issuance of any further land use permits for new hunt camp locations.

It is felt that the present camp density, together with the influx of hunters from cottages, private establishments and also the heavy influx of transient hunters precludes the setting up of any further hunt camp establishments on Crown lands.

SUMMER RESORT LANDS

With the early dry spring weather, the cottage minded persons have invaded the district with the result that sales are ahead of last year's total for this time of year.

Increased interest is being shown in lakes where the municipalities have or are putting access roads into the subdivisions from the main lake access road.

Data with respect to lots presently available may be obtained through the district office of the Department of Lands and Forests.

All mainland frontage must be subdivided before a sale will be considered. Only lakes having a public access road will be subdivided.

"Islands may be only sold as one unit where the acreage is ½ to 3 acres in extent. Islands less than ½ acre are automatically reserved. Islands in excess of 3 acres will be subdivided and treated as mainland before any sale can be carried out.

In that part of the Counties of Hastings, Lennox and Addington, Frontenac and Prince Edward, south of Highway No. 7, there is no Crown land available for cottage development due to the fact that less than 32 per cent of the shoreline remains in the Crown. This is automatically withdrawn from disposition and reserved for public use under provisions of the Public Lands Act."

INVESTIGATE ELS

LONDON (CP)—Two government departments are trying to find out how three seals—two alive, one dead—found their way into the waters of the St. Lawrence ministry's offices in south London. A spokesman for the works ministry said the subject of the investigation was to ascertain if the 15-inch seals "got into the system themselves or were put there."

Picture History Of City Opens At Museum

The exhibit group, shown themselves, naturally around three large maps which are in themselves of interest. In the front room of the Museum is the 1816 government survey map, showing the first built buildings, mainly strung along Front street. The owner's name is attached to each lot in the original census. The first pictures are water-colours of the 1830's and show several familiar landmarks.

The 1846 map is unusual. Many towns have such a map to sell. It shows every building and every important garden. Commercial Row, Front street had taken on quite a respectable form by 1845; many of the buildings still stand today. On every side, the map shows new subdivisions being laid out. This is the map of Thomas Moodie, whose descriptions in "Life in the Clearings" supplement the map in many ways.

The earliest photographs in the exhibit are of about 1877. Among the buildings are well preserved, handsome banks had recently been erected, and business was booming. Many were completed. Ottawa had just been chosen over Belleville as capital, and the disappointment was being built and our stately avenues of trees laid out.

The 1890's were prosperous years here, and the 1870's till a depression at the end of 1876. The old high school and the present City Hall were built in the early 1880's, and a splendid opera house on Campbell Square and the (East) Robertson Block and the Bellevue Apartments were all built in 1876.

PHOTOS REQUESTED

There is an aerial drawing of 1874 and a 1875, revised to 1883, is a mine of information. A remarkable amount of public building was done about 1890; perhaps the economy had recovered, but by the 1890's Belleville was taking in summer boarders.

Photographs of by - gone or existing buildings are grouped over the relative "Hugo, where an ingenious visitor to the display can find them. There is plenty of opportunity for additions. Visitors are invited to write down what they know about Belleville's past. Museum Genereous contribute photographs if they can.

The high point of the display is the large collection of patterns for "sampler" work, the "gingerbread" that our grandfathers hung about their eaves and verandahs. In all, 200 samplerns are of wood, and probably date from soon after 1860; they are often called "fret work" on later patterns, of paper, show a sad decline in both elegance and sense of style. The business year-old figure that will have cut out prints and pasted them from these very patterns is on display too.

MANY BUILDERS' BOOKS

Sprinkled throughout the show are builders' books. In some cases pages have been reproduced and displayed on the wall for easy reference. Earliest is "The Young Mechanic's Assistant", printed in 1815 and apparently owned here (though it is hard to see that in any of sophisticated Philadelphia designs were followed). There is a dictionary of Gothic architectural details, first printed in 1846. There is a book of "Construction and the condition of the building was such that it would have to be razed that year.

Actually a new building was required but taking into consideration the city's financial position the estimated $350,000 expenditure was out of the question.

The chief said he recommended the purchase of the "Y" as a police headquarters, stating the building could be converted to fill police department requirements.

"We would welcome a new police building but the cost could not be entertained by the city until at least 1970," he said.

Architect E. M. Zindler said the "Y" building was basically sound and could be renovated for $100,000.

Fire Chief Godwin, first of the three speakers to speak claimed that spending $150,000 for purchase and renovation of the 33-year-old building was neither economical nor good business.

He said the architect in his preliminary report on the condition of the building used indefinite terms. He said the report generally was "vague."

There are too many ifs," he claimed.

He said previous experience in the city had shown that renovation of old buildings usually cost as much as 50 per cent more than the estimated cost.

Neither could Mr. Godwin agree with the chief as to the accessibility of the "Y" site as police station, stating that no provision for parking and additional space would have to be provided, at the purchase.

Mr. J. E. Cassidy objected to the fact that only present police headquarters were being considered in proposed renovations to the "Y," claiming that future police requirements should also be considered.

He urged construction of a new police building on the present market square which he said could be the first phase of a new civic administration centre which ultimately would be required.

Mr. Cassidy termed the proposed new building of about 12,500 square feet would be adequate for the forseeable future. The building of this size at $16 per square foot would cost $200,000, neighborhood of $216,000 which he said on a long term basis would be cheaper than $120,000 over a 30-year period.

Reginald Nix charged the city purchase of the "Y" building would be "misappropriation of funds," and claimed cost of renovation would be at least double, or even triple, the $100,000 estimated.

Following with other objectors, admitted that new police quarters were necessary.

Judge C. O. Anderson agreed to some extent with the desire for a new police building.

ASHAMED

Purchase of the "Y" building was not ideal but in view of the city's financial position it was "second best" to the desired new structure.

He said if the city saved $150,000 in capital cost in selling the "Y" building it afford to discard the building in 20 years.

"We are ashamed to have the police department operate out of the present station," he said.

"The "Y" building is not the best, but it is what is obtainable.

Judge Anderson said it a police commission was unanimous in its thinking "that the "Y" building was the best obtainable under the circumstances.

Alderman John Deacon said that in view of the circumstances, city council had no alternative but to vote for purchase of the "Y".

Mayor Ellis said he was confident that the architect had prepared a good case with respect to renovation cost of the "Y".

"What I might say only adds weight to the city's case," he said.

Answering questions posed by the objectors, Chief McLauchlan held to his previous submission that the "Y" site was accessible for a police station.

He said he would oppose any move to build a new station on the present site, claiming that there was absolutely no parking for police cars or cars owned by force members.

"Our constables are continually getting parking tickets and it is not good for morale," he said.

WILL TAKE POSTS

TORONTO (CP) — Twenty representatives from the top ranks of the conservation industry will assume voluntary posts as area directors for the Conservation Council of Ontario in hopes of reducing the high cost of accidents, it was announced Thursday. Youths Escape Over Jail Wall But Are Soon Again in Custody

Two teenagers yesterday joined the few who have made a successful escape bid from Hastings County Jail.

But the attempted flight of William Graves, 19, and Donald Campoll, 16 - year - old Donald Campoll was short - lived.

They were picked up by city police minutes after their escape over jail walls was discovered.

However, police believe, from statements they have brushed to their re-arrest, they had had to an elderly female relative of Campoll's in the vicinity of Victoria Avenue and changed clothes.

Yesterday morning Campoll and Smith had appeared before Magistrate T. V. Wills on a string of charges, including burglary and on Campoll was sentenced to a year definite and six months indeterminate in the Ontario reformatory. Smith already on parole when sentenced was remanded a week for sentence. Campoll's father, Edward, was also placed on two year's suspended sentence for possession of goods stolen in the burglary of a Read general store.

After their appearances in court, the youths were returned to the adjacent county jail.

OUT FOR EXERCISE

About 6 p.m.— after supper hour — the jail — the pair were among inmates exercising in the prison yard when they made the break.

Details on how they managed to climb the wall were not confirmed. However, it was reported the youths scaled it on using a window ledge on the west wall of the prison and used hydro conduits for the rest of the climb to the top. They then scrambled over the 20 - foot wall over-looking the Hastings county building parking lot and dropped to the ground.

The jail walls are about 18 feet high.

Once on the ground, say police, they threw off their shirts and Campoll, having been sentenced was wearing the prison jail uniform of blue shirt and blue jeans.

They then apparently ran to the house on nearby Victoria Avenue, just north of Front Street, where they changed their shirts and footwear.

Meanwhile, the alarm had been raised and police began combing city streets seeking the escapees.

On Alexander Street Constable William Armstrong and Ralph Golding spotted two youths. Their cruiser approached the pair as they walked on Front Street. However, the officers recognized them and apprehended them without difficulty.

They were returned to their cells shortly after.

Police Chief McLauchlan immediately known what charges would be laid against the escapees.

OMB Reserves Its Decision On 'Y' for Police Station

The Ontario Municipal Board today reserved judgment on the city's application for permission to buy the YMCA building for headquarters for the city police department.

The request sought permission to purchase the building at a cost of $35,000 and to make renovations costing another $100,000 for a total expenditure of $135,000.

After hearing under the chairmanship of O.M.B. member R. W. McGuire, lasted nearly two hours and was attended by three different taxpayers, two of them representing ratepayers' groups on the east and west side of the city.

City Solicitor E. Gus Porter presented the case for the city, calling on Chief of Police J. R. McLauchlan, and architect E. M. Zindler of Peterborough.

Objecting to the purchase of the "Y" as a police building were Mrs. Lucille Phillips of 94 Golfdale Road, J. E. Cassidy, and Reginald Nix appearing for Park-dale Ratepayers' Group.

Hastings County Judges J. C. Anderson, and chairmen of the Belleville Police Commission, Belleville Mayor Jack Ellis and city alderman Jack Deacon also spoke in support of the city's application.

Concluding the hearing Mr. McGuire said he would reserve judgment and said he would submit his report to the city within a "reasonably short period".

Approval of the city's application would mean no vote of the ratepayers would be necessary.

OUTGROWN BUILDING

Police Chief McLauchlan reviewed the history of the city's police building, stating the "Y" building, stating his department had completely outgrown the present accommodation and the condition of the building was such that it would have to be razed that year.

Actually a new building was required but taking into consideration the city's financial position the estimated $350,000 expenditure was out of the question.

The chief said he recommended the purchase of the "Y" as a police headquarters, stating the building could be converted to fill police department requirements.

Appointment Brings Ire Of Opposition

OTTAWA (CP) — Immigration Minister Tremblay sat silent in the Commons Thursday while Opposition questions and insults rained down on him.

Why the Opposition demanded, had Mr. Tremblay appointed Andre Cote to work as his special assistant at $7,500 a year at Baie des Sables, Que.?

What were Mr. Cote's duties? What was the purpose of the appointment?

Mr. Tremblay declined to say anything and Prime Minister Pearson and the rest of the Liberal front bench looked more and more flustered as the Opposition barrage went on.

Later, Mr. Tremblay said outside the Commons that Mr. Cote, a resident of neighboring Hull, Que., works part of the week at immigration headquarters here and part of the week on the minister's constituency business at Baie des Sables.

Privy Council President Mc-Ilraith said a person may be appointed to serve a minister in any area, not only Ottawa.

He said this practice had gone on for a great many years, as Opposition Leader Diefenbaker knew.

AROUSES PEEP

Mr. Diefenbaker was on his feet in a flash.

"I paid for my own office in Prince Albert, out of, my own pocket," he snapped.

Mr. McIlraith said he had not intended any reflection on Mr. Diefenbaker. But colleagues of the former prime minister had assistants in their ridings with the objections of Mr. Diefenbaker.

Mr. Diefenbaker said this remark was without justification.

The Opposition leader then went to work with a will on Mr. Tremblay.

What work did Mr. Cote do? Baie des Sables was not noted as a place where immigrants land. What were Mr. Cote's duties?

"Tell us the facts," he said directly to Mr. Tremblay.

Mr. Tremblay declined to say anything.

Surely, Mr. Diefenbaker said, a minister who spent $7,500 of the taxpayers' money should tell how it was spent.

It looks like a patronage appointment, Mr. Diefenbaker added.

JOHN ATTACK

T. C. Douglas, New Democratic Party leader, and Gilles Gregoire, deputy Creditiste leader, joined in the attack.

Commons Speaker Alan Macnaughton tried to cut off the questioning but was clearly shouted down by an Opposition chorus of "No, no."

Mr. Diefenbaker said Parliament deserved answers from Mr. Tremblay on a few simple questions.

Was Mr. Cote looking after the imprisonment of people in Toronto, Mr. Diefenbaker asked —a reference to deportation of persons held in jail for periods of more than three months awaiting deportation.

Mr. Diefenbaker said "the silent minister spends $7,500 of the taxpayers' money and won't tell us what it is for."

The questions switched to Health Minister Judy LaMarsh, who has appointed Anna Frost as a clerk in the minister's office at Niagara Falls.

FOLLOWS PRACTICE

Miss LaMarsh said she was following the practice of "numerous" members of the former Conservative ministry.

Harold Winch (NDP — Vancouver East) asked whether he could appoint a public relations officer in his riding at public expense.

Miss LaMarsh said it was not her responsibility to determine whether Mr. Winch needed a public relations officer.

She said Mrs. Frost is a widow with two children.

Mr. Winch brought down the House — Liberals excepted — when he asked whether she could appoint a widow with five children.

At another point, a baby in the public gallery let out a wail when Mr. Douglas was making a point of order.

"That's the first intelligible sound today," Mr. Douglas said.

Could Not Say What Money Went to Firm

HAILEYBURY, Ont. (CP) — William Irwin, district office supervisor of the highways branch at New Liskeard, testifying at the fourth day of the fraud trial of Trans Swartman and Mrs. Bridgit Martha O'Hare, estimated the branch spent $3,000,000 a year for road work each of the years 1959, 1960 and 1961.

Mr. Irwin, who was testifying under cross - examination by Swartman's defence counsel, Austin Martin, of Toronto, said about $1,000,000 of this amount was for municipal projects, but he could not show how much of the money for municipal roads went to O'Hare Construction Company.

Swartman and Mrs. O'Hare are being tried for the second time on a charge of defrauding the Ontario government. In a trial last October, the jury was unable to reach a verdict.

At the end of the fourth day of the trial only six witnesses had completed their testimony, although more than 100 exhibits have been entered as evidence.

J. L. Roberts, Niagara Falls, Chief Magistrate

TORONTO (CP) — Magistrate J. L. Roberts of Niagara Falls, Ont., has been appointed chief magistrate of Ontario, with headquarters in Toronto, Attorney-General Wishart announced Thursday.

His position in a new one created by legislation passed at the last session of the legislature.

Magistrate Roberts will assume his new duties July 2.

American Actor Says He Wed Judy Garland

HONG KONG (Reuters)—American actor Mark Herron said today he had married Judy Garland aboard a ship in Hong Kong, but said he couldn't remember the exact date.

He also said he couldn't remember the name of the ship—"it was a fairly big ship"—or the captain who performed the ceremony—"probably a Swede or Norwegian."

After Herron was shown a local newspaper report asking whether Miss Garland was "on honeymoon in Hong Kong," he replied: "I suppose it's true."

Press reports said Herron, who has been Miss Garland's manager and bodyguard during her Far East tour, was in his late 30s.

The 42 - year - old American singer arrived here last month after a concert tour in Australia, where she was booed by a Melbourne audience.

HEARD OF IT

She fell critically ill and was reported to have been in a coma for some hours before a physician said she was suffering from pleurisy and bronchial pneumonia.

She left a hospital here 12 days ago.

Herron said the marriage took place after "word came through from Mexico that Judy had obtained a Mexican divorce from Sid Luft (Miss Garland's producer husband)."

Miss Garland and hired a boat for the wedding," he said. "It was a fairly big ship but I cannot remember its name."

In Hollywood, Miss Garland's manager, Freddie Fields, said the Hong Kong newspaper report of the marriage was "impossible and unbelievable."

A spokesman for the Hong Kong registrar-general said no marriage there has been reported for the couple and no special marriage licence was issued.

All-British Foursome in British Open

GANTON, England (CP-AP) The British amateur golf championship turned into an all-England affair today as defending champion Michael Lunt led four Englishmen into the semi-finals this afternoon.

Lunt ousted three-time champion Joe Carr of Ireland at the 19th hole in the quarter-finals and meets John Hall who defeated Peter Thirwell, former English champion, 1 up.

In the other semi-final Marvyn Wolfenden, British Walker Cupper, meets Gordon Clark. Christmas eliminated the last Scottish hope, Ian Caird, Bob Sweeny, 6 and 5. Clark knocked out Derek Harrison of Scotland 2 up.

Lunt and Carr competed 18 holes of golf under par 70. Both went out in 34 and came back in with the same number of strokes. Carr missed a four-footer at the 18th and at the extra hole Carr missed a putt from about three feet for a 4. Lunt, just off the green in two, rolled his putt up and sank a three-footer for a four and the match.

Will Unveil Historical Plaque At Actinolite Next Monday Eve

TWEED — On Monday, June 22, at 7.30 p.m., an historical plaque commemorating the founding of Actinolite will be unveiled in that community. The ceremony will take place on the grounds of the United Church. This plaque is one of a series being erected throughout the provinces by the Department of Tourism and Information, acting on the advice of the Archaeological and Historic Sites Board of Ontario.

Monday's ceremony is being arranged and sponsored by the Actinolite United Church. Mr. Lloyd Price, clerk-treasurer of Elzevir Township, will act as program chairman. The plaque will be unveiled jointly by Mrs. Alice Parks and Mr. David Lockwood, longtime residents of the village. Also expected to take part in the ceremony are: Mr. Clayton A. McMurray, Reeve of Elzevir Township; Mr. Gerald Boyce, curator of the Hastings County Museum; Dr. G. F. G. Stanley of the Royal Military College, Kingston, a member of the province's Historic Sites Board; Mr. Clarke T. Rollins, M.P.P. (Hastings East), and the Rev. James Payton, Jr., Minister of Actinolite United Church.

FIRST NAMED TROY

In 1823 Billa Flint, an enterprising lumber merchant, began construction of sawmills on the Skootamatta River. The village which sprang up nearby at first received the name of Troy, but was soon renamed Bridgewater. To the sawmills, Flint shortly added a grist mill, a planing mill, a tannery and a hotel of imposing dimensions. Flint represented North Hastings in the Canadian parliament from 1847 to 1851, and South Hastings from 1854-1857. He also represented the Trent Division in the legislative council 1863-67; was elected to assembly, was used in the manufacture of roofing compound. It gave its name to the community, its place of Bridgewater, about 1865.

Bridgewater's misfortunes began when the railway bypassed it in favor of Madoc and Tweed, and it suffered a major disaster in 1880. On May 24 of that year, while most of the villagers were celebrating Queen Victoria's birthday, a fire destroyed much of Bridgewater. The church had to be re - roofed, and the steeple and gallery, also destroyed, were not replaced.

Today the passerby, if he is observant, can see many flat, grass - grown places, where buildings stood before fire or illness claimed them. Actinolite is now a pleasant rural community, though without the industrial stature envisaged by its energetic founder, Billa Flint.

CATTLE SALES DOWN — Canadian farmers collected $638,962,000 on sales of cattle and calves in 1963, a decline of six per cent from the record high returns of $680,355,000 in 1962. The drop was attributed to lower prices and fewer marketings. (CP Newsmap)

Blames the Courts

Frank Tumpane, Toronto Telegram columnist, says the fact that hoodlums dare attack citizens in public places is more alarming than the fact that bystanders fail to come to the aid of the victims.

He is probably right.

The craven reluctance to assist is a private weakness. The fact that citizens should need such aid is an indication of public inefficiency. It would be fruitless, though it might be intriguing, to debate the influence of one fault on the other, whether they could be interpreted as cause and effect, and if so which was cause and which effect. There is, however, no doubt as to which is the easier to remedy. To make us all courageous is beyond the powers of any official; to see that hoodlums receive the sort of punishment which will discourage them from such outrages is relatively simple. All that is required is an efficient police force and courts alert to the need of severe sentences.

Tumpane says that the police are not to blame for the fact that "young thugs are so contemptuous of the law," but that the courts are. He cites light sentences imposed for assaults—"I have seen too many fines of $25 imposed for assaults on citizens to be impressed with the zeal of the average magistrate in stamping out the depredations of these hooligans."

Now any experienced police court reporter knows that there is nothing so unrewarding as attempting to evaluate sentences without full particulars regarding the nature of the offence. There are many assaults in which a $25 fine is a just, or even a severe, sentence, for the mere touching of a person technically constitutes an assault and, where the assault itself is violent, there are sometimes extenuating circumstances. But, while it is impossible to say that any particular $25 fine is too light a penalty for assault, some conclusion can be drawn from assault sentences overall. When Mr. Tumpane says they are too light, the experienced police court reporter is likely to agree. He may, perhaps, add that the whole tendency in our courts is to regard offences against the person more lightly than offences against property.

This ought to be changed. The change, though, cannot be effected by legislation, for increasing the minimum penalties for crimes against the person could produce injustice in those instances where there are extenuating circumstances—in some assaults it is extremely difficult to determine who really started the trouble. Magistrates and judges, though, could produce a quick remedy; perhaps attorneys-general might prod them in the right direction.

The point raised by Tumpane amuses and dismays us. "The police in Toronto have never had much to fear from gangs of youthful hoodlums because the punks are afraid of the police," he writes. "They know that swift and savage retribution awaits any group of them who gets a policeman on the sidewalk and puts the boots to him."

Now the courts are generally more severe in cases of assaults against policemen than assaults against civilians, but we do not think that is what Tumpane means.

The "swift and savage retribution" phrase suggests that punks who beat policemen get beaten. If this is done by the policemen in the course of the struggle, more power to him. If the punishment is imposed by the courts, more power to them. But in the nature of things, a lone policeman attacked by a gang of hoodlums is unlikely to be in a position to effect much retribution. The inference is that groups of apprehending suspects later, exact retribution before the accused are taken to courts. This is wrong, terribly wrong. There can be mistakes in identity. And even if there are no mistakes, by taking matters in their own hands the police are just exhibiting that contempt for the law which alarms Tumpane so much in the case of the hoodlums. He knows better than to condone this—in another paragraph he says "the subject deserves the gravest protection the law can afford, nor does it matter to me that the person under attack may be a thug himself."

If, in frustration over the light sentences imposed by courts, police are imposing their own penalties under certain circumstances, our courts have another sin for which they must bear the ultimate responsibility.

The United Kingdom continues to make an unholy profit from the exploitation of women in industry.—Sir William Carron, president of the Amalgamated Engineering Union.

Art on Italian Money

—Christian Science Monitor.

Until a couple of months ago when an Italian folded a 10,000 lire note and tucked it into his breast pocket, he was protected against pickpockets both figuratively and literally. Apart from fiction prices, 10,000 lire (about $16) bought a sizable amount of groceries or paid the boating bill for a good part of the winter.

Last Dec. 2, all this changed. In the interests of simplicity and convenience, the Italian government began issuing new smaller-sized bank notes. The Herculean 10,000 lire note has now been reduced to about the size of an American dollar, and the 1,000 lire note, formerly about the size of a dollar, has been cut to similarly diminutive dimensions.

In one way, though, the Italians made an advance in their money. They refuse to place the faces and figures of statesmen on their bank notes. Instead, once again, the bills Italians will soon fill so they take them from their pockets to pay for their taxis and soccer tickets are devoted entirely to art. The engravings both on their old and new money depict famous Italian paintings, buildings, sculpture, or architectural master-pieces. Italians have the most beautiful money in the world.

The new 10,000 lire note, for example, features Titian's face, a man who was perhaps the greatest artist the world has ever known, and on the reverse side of the bill is an engraving of Campidoglio, Rome's beautiful city hall designed by Michelangelo, palaces opening out on a square — designed by him. On the reverse side is a portrait of Michelangelo which he, himself, painted.

Opposite, Petitto unknown to American money, makes forgery difficult, all Italian bills have somewhere or other on them what looks like just a blank, white space. When the bill is held up to the light, however, a figure, usually the watermark on the paper, suddenly becomes visible. The blank space on the new 10,000 lire notes, when held to the light reveal an engraving of the head of Dante. The 5,000 lire note of Bernini, the 1,000 lire note of Marco Polo, and the 500 lire note of Columbus.

Before the new notes were released by the new money men, wise consecrated to the arts. At this time, all bills were photoreproduced Michelangelo's self-portrait; and the 5,000 lire note showed Bernini, sculptor, architect, and great Florentine poet is shown on the bill in the picture Giotto painted of him.

But the old 1,000 lire note is the bill which went to the composite opposite extreme from portraying a president or king. Engraved on its front was Venus, goddess of love.

Red Lights Trap Tipplers

London Daily Telegraph

Red lamps, now going up in the shops of the Liquor Monopoly retail shops, are Sweden's new trap for drunks.

The lamps, fitted to the cash registers, go on automatically at fixed intervals. Whenever the lamps glow red the customer who happens to be buying must produce identity papers. The assistant will then check to see if his name is on the list of persons, and the man who are forbidden to buy strong drinks.

The list includes the names of those who have been convicted of drunkenness twice within the same year, of people deemed by the local temperance Boards to be habitual drunkards, and of those convicted of selling liquor on the black market. These black market retailers are patronized by people on the list themselves or by teenagers who call at their homes and ask if they can buy their liquor legally.

By the end of March every liquor shop in Sweden had fitted red lamps, but after April 1, the Monopoly went one better. Now every customer, before he can buy red lamp must produce identity cards bearing his photograph and his signature. Incensed tax receipts and similar documents are not acceptable. Passports are accepted, will no longer do. Customers without passports or other documents bearing both photographs and signatures can obtain special identity cards from the shops.

These cards are intended to make it harder for a listed person to pass himself off as someone else, as some of the more artful have managed to do.

Mr. Harry Ahnelöf, general director of the Monopoly, has publicly warned heavy drinkers that the list is being kept by them. The local Temperance Boards are to become stricter.

The Temperance Boards with their powers of deciding who is and who is not an alcoholic are elected by the town and county councils for two years. Representatives on the boards about 94 each time they attend a session. The Boards make their decisions on the recommendations of salaried officials who keep in touch with the courts and the police and hear complaints from the relatives of heavy drinkers.

The Boards also examine all applications for driving licenses. If they classify an applicant as intemperate, he will not be granted a license.

When a Board blacklists anyone, it tells him so. If he feels that he has been treated unfairly he can appeal to the Governor of Stockholm or to the local council in the provinces. Their decision is final.

Many temperate Swedes are sighing over this new piece of bureaucracy. The red lamps, the forms filling, the lists and all the rest are, they say, enough to drive them to drink.

Fiendish Toys Are Offered

Atlanta Constitution

A trade journal for toy-makers crossed our desk the other day and all we can say is "Watch out."

We're pretty shaken at the prospects of fun in the living room next Christmas.

The plastic model of a transparent man that demonstrates the action and effect of smoking on the human body is the perfect gift for the man who has everything including the habit.

This little marvel is a foot-high torso from the waist up. Lungs function by a simple push-pull-in-displacement fill until cigarette in the model's mouth will light, smoke is drawn into the lungs and exhaled after — wouldn't you know? — nicotine and tars in the smoke coat the lungs black and tarry and the heart beats faster.

If you take your violence unblended, try a toy "time bomb." This little gadget is "programmed" at the baby Bolshevik market, is complete with fuse and all, and timed to explode by as players toss it back and forth (with cries of "Comrade!").

Unexpectedly, it makes a resounding noise like the explosion but, says the trade paper, does not fall apart.

We assume the players do. At least, whatever is left making a little monster is counted "out." Like a light?

Under the direction of WO Hancock, Bandmaster, the show featured Miss Ethel Smith, popular and talented young soprano from Belleville, the R.C.A.F. Twice within a month the Belleville Kinsmen Club has sponsored new kindred societies, the latest being at Tweed last night when four district members journeyed to that village to assist in the organization of a Kinsmen Club. Previously the Belleville members had assisted in the organization of a similar club in Trenton. An enthusiastic meeting of young men was held in the council chambers at Tweed when it was revealed that a charter membership of some 25 members could be assured. The Belleville Kinsmen present at the inaugural included President Matt Currie, Harry Farrer, C. H. Knott and Bert Farrer, the latter being chairman of expansion of the Belleville Club.

Mischief Not Delinquency

Montreal Gazette

It doesn't make sense to brand young people as juvenile delinquents for the sort of pranks that young people have always done or the sort of pranks that would have gone unnoticed not so many years ago. There is such a thing as real juvenile delinquency — and a very serious thing at that. But the diagnosis of juvenile delinquency is being stretched to cover even the normal antics of growing up.

This point of view was very sensibly put forward this week by Mr. Sidney Blum, research associate with the Hamilton Planning Council, at the spring conference of the Ontario Probation Officers Association in Oakville, Ontario. "Today," he went on to say, "because we live in a society which is the cause of the restrictions of a more complex society, they become juvenile delinquents for doing the same thing which grandad did when he was young."

Judge H. G. Arvel of Hamilton, moderator of the conference, agreed with him. It is a very bad practice to convict a child of delinquency for a frequent, regardless of the cause. "I shudder," he said, "every time I have to tell a youngster of 16 that he is a delinquent for riding a bicycle through park property."

The result of stretching the application of juvenile delinquency to cover what is often just juvenile mischief is that delinquency becomes something almost approaching a thing to be proud of. The adults, who should know better, have been responsible for it into a juvenile-status symbol.

The trouble with the modern age is that it is being victimized by its own love of giving things names. An American psychiatrist, Dr. Lawrence Kubie, Professor of Psychiatry at the State University of New York, says that "there is a mania for naming everything under the sun as 'illness'." "grand" "child," "novel," and so on.

Everyone over 40 remembers Noel Coward's "Children of the Ritz" and Jerry Kleban's art "Putting on the Ritz," and F. Scott Fitzgerald's story, "The Diamond as Big as the Ritz." We have Ritz Crackers and Ritz Cleaners and Ritz Theatres, and a Charles of the Ritz (no relation), and hundreds of commercial enterprises in 40 U.S. cities bearing the name "Ritz." "Ritz Hotel" has become a catchy if unimaginative synonym for "luxury."

Yet the irony in the situation is that Cesar Ritz did not intend to found a grand or lavish hotel. "It is not the biggest," says Webb, "but the most expensive or most venerable hotel in the world; it is simply the most famous."

It is small, as hotels go, with only 210 rooms. It has no telephone for there are but two television sets, and will not even permit radios. There is nothing like it in London, not even its lobby. The president has no office but lives at the top of the hotel. It is extraordinarily, unecconomically, and the rates are not excessive.

What, then, gave the Ritz its special cachet, and turned it into a synonym for poshness and luxury? It was, says Webb, the tact and the pride of its owner, "the hated hollow ostentation and sweeping splendor of the word "ritz" implies. As his son also protested, "The Ritz is not ritzy."

Crowning Symbol

Niagara Falls Review

An expert sees the status symbol of executives — posh offices and expensive cars. First class airline travel — as taxi-saving devices that get better efficiency out of the day. The executive is a man apart, like a king, and must have a status symbol to wear as the crown of office. We don't know, and history does not tell us, how much efficient kings have been for wearing crowns, but if a status symbol helps the boss to work harder, we are all for it.

Smallpox Vaccination Is Treatment for Cold Sores

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: For some time I have broken out with cold sores, usually after taking aspirin or similar medicine. I have been told that a smallpox vaccination may end my problem. Is this possible? — A. P.

Yes, sir, very much possible. This is a recognized treatment although it is not invariably effective by any means.

However, even if it doesn't work it isn't wasted, because we ought to have vaccinated small-pox boosters, and too many people don't. The immunity doesn't last forever, you know.

The connection between the sores and the aspirin might be a sensitivity to the drug. Or it might simply be that when you are attacked by some virus you take the aspirin because you don't feel very good, but the virus really touches off the sores.

Dear Dr. Molner: I'm a prediabetic or a borderline case. The doctor did not specify. I'm small, but he said I should lose weight. I've weighed from 127 to 138 and he wants me down to 120.

I guess I'm just afraid to eat, but can I go through life without insulin? Will I always be on a strict diet? I'm worried about my future and my children's. Can they inherit it? The doctor said I should be reinstated in time, my grandmother. — Mrs. W. W.

You don't say how old you are when diabetes set in, very early (in childhood) it is just about a fixed rule that insulin will be necessary. In mild cases, starting later in life but caught soon, it is often possible to get along well without insulin. Dieting to keep your weight steady at the proper level is the best way of avoiding the need for insulin later. The disease tends to be inherited — more often if there has been diabetes on both sides of the family. I suggest that you read my booklet "Diabetes, the Sneaky Disease." (To obtain a copy send 25 cents in coin and a large, self-addressed envelope to Dr. Molner in care of the Ontario Intelligencer, Syndicate, P. O. Box 158, Dundee, Ill.)

Dear Dr. Molner: Why do I have so much trouble with blisters forming on my feet? Is it caused by something I eat or drink. Sometimes I have to open them with a needle to let the water out. They itch and cause a lot of misery. — Mrs. F.

I can't tell from your brief description what they are. If they are ordinary blisters, then your shoes aren't fitting properly. But the itching suggests that you may not be telling about that form of blister, but rather an infectious form called impetigo. A skin specialist or a podiatrist (foot doctor) can tell you what your trouble is, and how to stop it. It's a thankless problem to try to do by mail or on a by-guess and by-gosh basis.

Dear Dr. Molner: What is cheiralgia? My physician's diagnosis claims to have this disease. What should we do about treatment? — L. J.

It is an abnormal fear of being shut in or in an enclosed place, such as a tunnel, elevator, or a closet, or a small room. It is psychological, and if your son is emotionally bothered by it, treatment by a psychiatrist is all he necessary. Most of our problems do go away good.

Note to Mrs. O. J.: Only rarely does a cold sore show in the X-ray, but it can happen. (The medication you mention is one of the newer, currently used tranquilizers.)

Strictly Personal

Name Altered To Noun Fills A Verbal Need

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Everyone knows how the names of real persons have turned into common nouns in the English language: sandwich, Boycott and the Earl of Sandwich and Lord Derby and Judge Lynch and M. Guillotin and Charles MacIntosh and Col. Bowie and Madame Pompadour and Mrs. Bloomer and the Marquis de Sade.

In looking through the new book, "The Ritz of London," a biography of the famous hotel by Stephen Watts, I had forgotten that in one of my own books I has joined this rare company of immortals — because "ritz" and "ritzy" have become such a part of our language, it is assumed that they preceded the name of the hotel.

Not so at all. When Cesar Ritz built the Ritz Hotel in 1906, more than 60 years ago, there was no such word; I was only a proper name, and not a very familiar one. Since that time, as Watts points out, "it is unarguably the only hotel which has contributed to common usage in many languages, dropped its capitals, declined, conjugated, and spawned an adjective, and found its way into most English language dictionaries."

Most names that are converted into nouns fill some verbal or adjectival need. Boycott, for instance, have no true synonyms. So when we made its very despite many and excessive use "classy," "grand" "chic," "swell," and so on.

Everyone over 40 remembers Noel Cowards "Children of the Ritz" and Jerry Kleban's art "Putting on the Ritz," and F. Scott Fitzgerald's story, "The Diamond as Big as the Ritz." We have Ritz Crackers and Ritz Cleaners and Ritz Theatres, and a Charles of the Ritz (no relation), and hundreds of commercial enterprises in 40 U.S. cities bearing the name "Ritz." Canada Enters Trade Pact With Hungary

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada will open formal diplomatic relations with Hungary and has entered into a three-year trade agreement with the east European Communist country, it was announced Thursday in the Commons.

Under the trade agreement, first signed between the countries since the war, Hungary will buy products worth up to $24,000,000 from Canada over the three years and not less than $4,000,000 in the first year of $8,000,007 in the second.

Trade Minister Sharp said the agreement, which provides for establishment of trade offices in each other'd country, "represents yet another step in the development of closer trade links between Canada and the countries of Eastern Europe."

He noted Canadian support for Poland's bid to enter the Kennedy-round of tariff talks; wheat sales to Poland and Czechoslovakia and trade agreements with Russia and Bulgaria.

TOPS NEGOTIATIONS

The trade minister's statement climaxed negotiations here with Peter Mod, first deputy minister of foreign affairs for Hungary.

Mr. Sharp said the two governments wish to expand trade progressively and each government had agreed to give sympathetic consideration to representations from the other for that purpose.

At the same time, External Affairs Minister Martin announced that Canada and Hungary will exchange diplomatic missions as soon as convenient to each country.

Hungary will give sympathetic consideration to applications from Hungarian citizens who may wish to be members of their family already in Canada. Mr. Martin said.

CJBQ to Provide Service To Motorists, Vacationers

PICTON (Staff) — In the constant efforts to provide additional news coverage for their thousands of listeners, Radio Station CJBQ at Belleville, has inaugurated a new and distinctively different type of public service, this time to the motor and the vacationer.

By special arrangement with the Prince Edward Flying Club the station is now providing an air report on highway conditions, lake conditions, water traffic on the Bay of Quinte. Reports on campsites at the Provincial Parks are also on the itinerary.

Each Friday at 6.55 p.m. and each Saturday and Sunday at 1 p.m. and again at 6.55 p.m. these reports are broadcast over CJBQ.

In order to make a two-minute taped report, one of the club aircraft starts out, about an hour before each broadcast time, and covers area bounded by Adolphustown Park on the east, all of Prince Edward County, and west to Presqu'ile Point Park.

The coverage includes Highways 2-14-41-33 and 401. It also reports any heavy congestion of traffic, particularly if this is caused by an accident, so that others may use a possible detour around these blockades. It takes about an hour's flying time to cover the area involved.

The Sun Oil Co. are the sponsors of this project they have an agreement with the club for the rental of a club aircraft and a pilot. They also pay a nominal fee to the radio station, and a special radio and special permission to use this radio had to be received before the actual reports could start.

The entire idea is to help incoming motorists or tourists to get in and out of the area more easily. For instance, if a camper was enroute to the Provincial Park at either the Sandbanks or Presqu'ile Park, he should be happy to hear that there is still room at one or the other, or perhaps both of these popular campsites.

A buffet luncheon was provided for members of the press and radio at the Flying Club last night where the entire program was explained in detail.

Murrey Clapp, C.P.I. at the club, told The Ontario Intelligencer that on these flights, it is quite permissible to carry passengers, so that anyone who would like to go along and see these actual broadcasts being prepared should contact him at the club.

25,000 Break Barriers to Welcome Beatles

ADELAIDE, Australia — A hysterical crowd of 25,000 broke through barriers and formed a screaming, waving mob around the car carrying Britain's popular Beatles on their arrival here today from Sydney.

An estimated 100,000 persons lined the 10-mile route taken by the mop-haired group from Adelaide airport to the city centre.

As yelling teen-agers surged around the car, two girls were trampled underfoot.

Police horses kicked out wildly and police had to use their elbows and shoulders to clear a circle round one of the trampled girls as she lay screaming on the ground.

A 60 - year - old woman collapsed from fatigue while waiting for the Beatles to arrive.

Finally police, four deep, whisked the Beatles one by one into city hall. As they did so a police motorcyclist had to drive his vehicle hard at the crowd to make them give way.

Teen-agers climbed under the bellies of police horses and between their legs to get near the group.

IT'S THE GREATEST

From the top balcony of city hall John Lennon, George Harrison, Paul McCartney and Jimmy Nicol—temporarily replacing Ringo Starr, now convalescing in London after a bout of throat trouble—all said:

"This is the greatest reception the Beatles have ever had."

In Sydney, four screaming fans, walked to see the Beatles catch their plane for Adelaide, were filled with police after jumping a barricade.

Earlier, the Beatles escaped injury when the car taking them to Sydney Airport was involved in a collision.

The car carrying officials ran into the rear of their car. The Beatles were shaken but unhurt.

Police Arrival Breaks up Gang Fight

TORONTO (CP) — A gang of youths led police on a chase through east-end Riverdale park Thursday, racing over a railway trestle and footbridge across the Don River and hiding in a cemetery and bushes.

The police were called to the park when a teen-ager was reported to have been beaten in a gang fight.

But detectives said Thomas Harmon, 17, beaten in the left leg accidentally when he fell off a fence. When a crowd of youths gathered around him, someone mistook it for a gang fight and telephoned police.

When the youths saw the police, they scattered through the park. Police managed to capture some of them.

The fleeing youths, police said, dropped lengths of chain, knives and clubs in bushes and deep grass as they ran through the park.

A youth not in the chase told reporters that a gang fight had been scheduled in the park but it hadn't started when police arrived.

PRODUCE MARKET

Butter prices: Agricultural Stabilization Board purchases and carlots: buying 40 score 53; buying 40 score 53; buying 39 score 52; selling 53.

Sunday School Lesson

World in Need of Peace

By Dr. Clarence W. Cranford

In Judges 5, an ancient poet describes the pathos of a mother waiting in vain for the return of her son from battle. The fact that her son was the commander of the enemies of Israel does not lessen the weight of foreboding and sorrow in the mother's own heart. "Why is his chariot so long in coming? Why tarry the hoofbeats of his chariots?" But never again will she hear the sound of his chariot, nor hear his happy shout. Her son has been killed.

War has always been horrible. Today it is unthinkable. The leaders in the Pentagon now use the blood-chilling word, "megacorpse", meaning a million corpses. If nuclear war comes, the dead will be numbered not in the thousands, but in the millions as weapons of unbelievable destructibility wipe out entire cities in the twinkling of an eye.

DESIRE FOR PEACE

The people of the world have always had a deep desire for peace. Isaiah dreamed of the day when battle garb "will be burned as a fuel for fire" because a king would come who would be known as "the Prince of Peace." (Isaiah 9:5-6 RSV) Zechariah longed for the day when a king would come, not riding like a warrior on a horse trimmed for battle, but a servant of the people, "humble and lowly beast of burden. (Zechariah 9:9 RSV) Micah prayed for the day when men would turn to the Lord, and quoting Isaiah he said that they will beat swords into plowshares, and their spears into pruninghooks." (Micah 4:3-4 RSV) Jesus said, "Blessed are the peacemakers" (Matthew 5:9), and at the time of His arrest, He said to one of the disciples, "Put your sword back into its place; for all who take the sword will perish by the sword." Matthew 26:52, RSV)

REALISM OF BIBLE

The Bible is realistic concerning the causes of hostility and war. It reminds us that real peace must be built upon good will. James asks, "What causes wars, and what causes fightings among you?" 3:4. He goes on to say war his own question, "Is it not your passions that war at war in your members? You lust and do not have; so you kill. And you covet and cannot obtain; so you fight and make war." (James 4:1-3 RSV) In other words, we want peace but they do not have. They covet power, fame, supremacy, wealth, and sometimes security. often they are willing to fight in order to get what they want.

The Uniform Sunday School lesson for June 15 is: "The Christian's Responsibility for World Peace," Micah 4:1-5; Matthew 26:47-56; Romans 13:14-24; 1 Timothy 2:1-2.

The Bible goes further. It recognizes that even if we were able to get all animosity and unfriendliness out of her, policy because "nothing moves in this world if someone doesn't speak out."

Tracks Found Spur Search For Prospector

MOOSONEE, Ont. (CP) — Four-day-old tracks found Wednesday in dense bush country southeast of here have spurred a two-pronged search for Jean-Marc Turgeon, 23, of Val d'Or, Que., missing without food or shoes for more than 20 days.

A party of Indian trappers, provincial police and officers of the department of lands and forests Thursday were following the Harricanaw River south from Hanna Bay, 40 miles east of the James Bay community, while a 15-day ordeal without food that he was unable to talk but he supplied details that

FOLLOWED OLD ROUTE

Grenier and Turgeon set out May 14 to retrace the route of the French explorer d'Iberville who followed the Harricanaw 200 miles to James Bay in the 17th century.

The men were within 13 days of James Bay, Grenier said, when their 16-foot canoe capsized. They reached shore and made camp but later, when the canoe drifted away from shore, they had to swim after it.

Grenier said when he returned to camp he missed Turgeon and did not see him again. The date was May 27.

Searchers have found Turgeon's sleeping bag and one shoe. They have also discovered part of his raincoat, which they believe he tore up to make coverings for his feet.

opinion on this question and now. I place a question mark behind his name and his organization."

DIFFER ON RELIGION

Other differences between Miss Horn and Mr. Wuttunee were over religion, she said. Mr. Wuttunee had criticized Christianity in public while 85 per cent of Indians are Christian.

She also said she "blew up" when she heard only French-speaking delegates from Quebec would be allowed to participate in centennial projects.

"The Indians fought against the French and decided in their treaties they would speak only English. We will not have anybody forcing us to speak French."

Often criticized by Indian leaders for being outspoken, she explained why she is: "I'm polite because "nothing moves in this world if someone doesn't speak out."

Blasts

It appeared to be the worst disaster in the history of Santo Domingo.

Many persons were thrown from their beds by the first explosion.

The Santo Domingo radio asked the rest of the country's radio stations to join it in a disaster network and appealed for blood donors.

The Dominican Red Cross also urged all donors to go to blood banks and all doctors to report at once to the city's hospitals.

Santo Domingo, with a population of 480,000 was known by the name of Ciudad Trujillo from 1930 to 1961, but reverted to its former name when dictator Rafael Trujillo was assassinated.

The city is the capital of the Dominican Republic which shares the island of Hispaniola with Haiti.

VANCOUVER (CP)—Habitual criminal proceedings have been started against Margaret Mc-Neill—believed the first time in Canada a woman has faced the charge. Proposed Hill would be fulfilled this evening.

With that announcement came a chorus of protest.

Mr. Diefenbaker asked whether the prime minister had carried it a point where he is the boss and determines these questions?"

OBJECTS TO PLAN

George Muir (PC — Lisgar) arose on a question of privilege to say he was glad he refused to rally right now that no unauthorized flag should be flown on Parliament Hill."

Mr. Pearson again said that no one asked him, and the matter was raised last week.

Mr. Muir went on to suggest that the 2,000-odd flag designs which have been presented to the government should each be flown for a designated day.

Could other political parties which have favored designs display these, too, asked NDP leader T. C. Douglas.

"The government has no claim to any monopoly in this regard," said Mr. Pearson.

Mr. Diefenbaker again asked, "... what possible justification is there, in view of the order-in-council of 1945 respecting the flying of the Red Ensign, to fly what is at the present moment the prime minister's personal choice ..."

IT'S FREE COUNTRY

"This is still, surely, a free country and if members of the House of Commons represent the showing of a design which is referred to in a resolution before the House, surely it is a matter of courtesy for the government to allow that to be done," said the prime minister.

"Liberal propaganda," said Mr. Churchill.

As the bristling exchange continued, Mr. Winch (NDP — Vancouver east) stood up and made an observation that attracted attention from the spectators — a forbidden participation.

"... I want to say, sir," he began, "that sincere and emotional as all are in this House of Commons, we have had after day ... question on the flag and at a point where a date is set for discussion on the resolution, the way we—I say we and I include myself—are carrying on is an unfortunate thing bringing the institution of Parliament into disrepute.

"Can we not get on with the business and deal with the motion on the flag when it comes before the House?"

Goldwater was not available immediately for comment.

The Eisenhower aide rapped a week of confusion in the Republican party over candidates that has grown from disappointment in Harrisburg, and Gettysburg, Pa. Cleveland and Baltimore.

Eisenhower began Saturday when Scranton met with former president Eisenhower in Gettysburg. Scranton emerged from the meeting to make himself "more available" for the nomination.

Eisenhower was back in the picture Thursday. Today the Associated Press he wanted a wide open Republican national convention to stir the party's and country's interest.

He disavowed a role of either pulling strings for—or cutting the ground from under—Scranton.

"Otherwise, since Souvanna Phouma must also bear full responsibility to history and the people," it said.

In Washington, a state department spokesman said the United States would continue to send reconnaissance planes over Pathet Lao-held areas in Laos whenever it is deemed necessary to obtain information of troop movements.

He said a "clear understanding on this matter" was reached with Souvanna.

Official sources in Washington indicated it was probable that only dangerous flights over Pathet Lao gun positions would receive armed escort.

SUFFER CASUALTIES

Meanwhile, Western military sources said today that neutralist troops have suffered 25 dead and 60 wounded in the last few weeks of fighting with the Pathet Lao north of the Plaine des Jarres. They said the Pathet Lao was believed to have suffered considerable casualties in Laotian 3-28 strikes.

One pilot claimed he counted 60 dead after an attack on a Pathet Lao-captured Phou Kout a strategic hill on the road to Muong Soui, last neutralist stronghold in the plain area.

Diplomatic sources said the U.S. Britain, Canada, India, Thailand and South Vietnam were expected to extend their Vientiane ambassadorial chats on the crisis until next week. The talks pick up Saturday, when they had been expected to end, after a one-day layoff.

Sent to Trial On Assault, Arson Charges

SIMCOE (CP)—Mrs. Frances Lessard, 40, of Beamsville, 18 miles west of St. Catharines, Thursday was committed for trial on charges of arson and assault causing bodily harm following an incident in a Delhi area cottage May 3.

She pleaded not guilty before Magistrate James Reznicks on the assault charge and elected trial by judge and jury on the arson count.

Mrs. Joseph Bulcsik, of RR 1 Delhi, some 10 miles west of Simcoe, said Mr. and Mrs. Lessard came to their cottage May 3 and demanded a $600 payment on the purchase of the cottage. Purchase arrangements called for $40-a-month payments. She told the couple to come back later and talk to her husband.

When they refused to leave Mrs. Bulcsik tried to telephone police but Mrs. Lessard knocker her to the floor and "tried to tear me apart."

Next-door neighbor Ray Brandow said Mrs. Bulcsik came to his door with her face bleeding and her dress ripped off and left her cottage where he found a chesterfield burning and gas escaping from a stove jet. He shut the gas off at the meter but was unable to re-enter the building because of dense smoke.

Eight Escape Death Penalty In South Africa

CP Telex AP-Reuter

PRETORIA — The eight defendants in the South African sabotage trial escaped the death penalty today. All were sentenced to life imprisonment.

Death sentences given three opponents of South Africa's racial laws had caused a storm of protest abroad. The United Nations Security Council Monday adopted a resolution appealing to the South African government not to execute the three and not to give death sentences to the eight who were convicted Thursday.

A ninth defendant in the trial was acquitted.

The eight men sentenced today included Negro nationalist leaders Nelson Mandela and Walter Sisulu; Dennis Goldberg, a white civil engineer; four other Negroes, and an Indian, Ahmed Kathrada.

Judge Quartus de Wet said in imposing the sentence that where people plotted revolution they usually meant to take over the government as well. "Personal ambition cannot be excluded. In essence this is a case of high treason."

Hundreds of Negroes who had waited for hours outside the Palace of Justice began singing on hearing the sentences. They then marched 10 abreast round the side of the building in an apparent attempt to see the sentenced men.

Scores of policemen linked arms and formed a barrier across the road, forcing the column to turn back.

Only people with business in the buildings were allowed up the steps. Even relatives of the convicted men had difficulty entering the small courtroom.

Mr. Mandela arrived early and was allowed to take in a party of six, including her husband's mother and sister.

Lionel Bernstein, a Johannesburg white lawyer, was acquitted but rearrested immediately on new charges.

Before Judge de Wet imposed sentence, author Alan Paton appealed to the court for clemency. Paton, author of Cry the Beloved Country, is president of South Africa's Liberal party and an opponent of apartheid, the government's policy of racial segregation.

The eight men were convicted of assisting the acts of sabotage in 1963 to prepare for guerrilla action and an invasion to overthrow the government.

Mandela admitted he had planned violence, saying it was the only "means open to us to relieve our oppression."

The trial lasted eight months.

Mandela, 46-year-old leader of the banned African Congress, was convicted of all four counts against him—of sabotage, another of attempting to further communism and a final one of soliciting, accepting and receiving money from both inside and outside South Africa.

least six times in Alabama and about 10 times in other southern states where he led integration demonstrations since 1955.

In an interview in Jail, King said "we are hoping to create such a crisis that the community will sit down and try to work out some good faith solutions."

At Augusta, Tex., police tore placards from the hands of about 15 Negro civil rights demonstrators — most of them women and children — standing in the front row of the spectators' section in the city council chambers.

In Washington, bipartisan leadership appeared in firm control of the voting in the Senate. They beat down a succession of attempts to make major changes in the civil rights bill.

15th "B" PACK, BELLEVILLE

On Saturday morning, June 6th, at 6:30 a.m., three excited Cubs of 15th "B" Pack, Belleville, assembled at Sir Winston Churchill School with their trip to Otawa and a tour of the city.

The Cubs were divided into six wolves groups — yellow, red, rose, green, white and blue with a leader for each group.

C.M. Arnold Welch (Akela) in charge of yellow with the following Cubs, Kevin Gardner, Craig Bakay, Wayne Andrews, Philip Daniels, Ricky Bell.

A.C.M. Helen Welch (Kim) in charge of rose, with Cubs Kerry Kaye, Ricky Green, Donald Welch, Paul Carson, and David Morin.

A.C.M. Carl Marcotte (Bagheera) in charge of red, with Cubs Roy Thompson, David Smith, Robert Welch, Kenneth Welch, and John Schwager.

A.C.M. Faye Wood (Baloo) in charge of green with Cubs Ralmo Heydick, Tom Lafferty, Ricky Brown, Mike Thompson, and Danny Glover.

(Blue Smoke), Mr. Harold Wood of the Group Committee, in charge of white, with Cubs Ricky James, Kevin Stout, Steven Old, James Southcott, and Steven Rodley.

Mr. John Morin, Chairman of the Group Committee, in charge of blue, with Cubs Garry Graham, Doug James, Wally Bailey, Mark Lancaster and Larry Rice.

The wolves boarded the bus and the miles sped by with cheers and sing-song. Mid journey at Silver Lake, all appreciated a stretch, cold drinks and fresh popcorn. On arrival at Ottawa we were greeted by District Commissioner Harry Stearns and Akela Guy Herne his assistant Grant Cummings and Cubs of the 51st Maxwell Group. Both groups formed a parade circle on the lawn at Scout Headquarters. The 51st Maxwell Group welcomed the 15th Belleville Group with a Grand Howl which was returned by the 15th. Then both groups exchanged hand-shakes and introductions. New friends were made and a tour of National Scout Headquarters by Mr. Leonard Johnson (Director of International Service) was enjoyed by everyone.

TOURED FARM

All the Cubs and leaders boarded the bus for a tour through the experimental farm to Rockcliffe Park. The Cubs and their friends had a picnic lunch. After the lunch the tour proceeded past the prime minister's home, French, Germany and Russian embassies, to RCMP barracks. Then to the new city hall which we toured, visiting the council chambers, and to the top where a good view of the river and Quebec was observed.

Our next visit was to the war museum, where many interesting things kept their eyes busy for sometime. On we go to Parliament Hill for a visit to the Upper and Lower House of Commons, Library and Peace Tower.

The groups proceeded to Gowling School on Merivale Road where each Cub of the 51st Group took their new friends home for supper.

The groups re-assembled at the school at 6:30 p.m. for a visit before leaving for home. The Cubs of the 15th gave those of the 51st a small token of appreciation. At this moment it was drawn to Akela Arnold Welch's attention that a Cub of the 15th, Wally Bailey, had found a $20 bill. He had been visiting a local store with his new friend. He promptly took the money to the cashier who kept it in safe keeping for the rightful owner. A few moments later a lady gratefully made her claim. The Cubs of both groups gave a Cub yell for the honest Cub and his good turn for the day.

The 19th boarded the bus for the last lap and as we pulled away we were singing "For They-Were Jolly Good Fellows" — which they were. On our journey home we stopped at Silver Lake again for refreshment. We arrived in Belleville at 10:30 p.m. with everyone tired and happy.

Gardener Admits Spanking Bottom Of Her Ladyship

LONDON (AP) — Widower Forman's head gardener admitted Thursday he gave Lady Forman a severe spanking to show her who was boss in the Forman greenhouse.

"I soundly spanked her bottom," Frank Klingensporr said in a magistrates court in Beckinghamshire village of Beaconsfield.

The judge fined the 51-year-old gardener £30 ($90) on a charge of assault, put him under a bond of £30 ($90) to keep the peace for the next 12 months and ordered him to stay at least one mile distant from the Formans estate for the next three years.

The prosecution said the dispute, which culminated in the spanking of her ladyship, who is 47, occurred May 20 in the greenhouse of the Forman estate, Burdley House.

Said the prosecutor:

"Lady Forman made a normal and reasonable request for Mr. Klingensporr to leave the greenhouse unlocked in the afternoon as she and her husband wished to have it.

"Mr. Klingensporr replied 'indeed I will not. I am not going to waste my time sticking around my plants when I'm not here.'"

When Lady Forman persisted, the prosecutor continued, Klingensporr banged her head against the greenhouse door, threw her down and beat her.

"Her ladyship," said the prosecutor, "suffered a considerable degree of bruising and abrasion."

His lordship fired the gardener forthwith.

Testifying in his own defence, Klingensporr said he was only defending his flowers.

He conceded that he lost his temper with her ladyship.

"I put my arms on the back of her neck to get her out and in the struggle pushed her to the ground. In the struggle I soundly smacked her bottom. She may have had cuts and bruises, but it wasn't malicious on my part."

fixed rate of five per cent. Stanley Knowles (CCF — Winnipeg-Nid said some farmers may be deterred from borrowing because of the fluctuating rate.

New Democratic Party Leader T. C. Douglas said 6% or 6½ per cent would be a "pretty stiff rate," and he could see no need for split-level interest.

Jack Horner (PC — Acadia) said that the amendments don't solve the problem of farm credit—getting the money into the hands of small operators who need to improve their lots. Fifty-five per cent of loan applications were rejected, and these were the people whom something should be done. He said the amendments were "the millionaire's approach to the problems of agriculture."

CORRADI — SMITH

Rt. Rev. J. P. Sullivan officiated in the Church of St. Michael the Archangel, Belleville, on Saturday, June 6, for the marriage of Virginia Gail Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Francis Smith, Belleville, to James Charles Corradi, Ottawa, son of Mr. and Mrs. Eric (Jim) Corradi, Belleville. Rev. Thomas Callaghan and Rev. John Daly of St. Mary's College, Brockville were present in the sanctuary during the nuptial ceremony, while Mr. Brian Smith and Mr. Michael Smith, brothers of the bride served on the altar.

Miss Dorothy Grant presided at the organ and accompanied the soloist, Mr. Robert Burke.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a white floor-length pure silk peau de glace over nylon taffeta bridal gown with the bodice featuring a scoop neckline outlined with rhinestone-studded Chantilly Alencon lace adorned with seed pearls and crystal jets, with this design continuing down the bodice and along the sides of the inverted pleat at the front of skirt, with a dainty self bow at waistline. A chapel train flowed from a large double self bow at the waist. The double bouffant French silk illusion veil was caught by a rosebud cluster with tulle petals studded with pearls. She carried a cascade bouquet of white Butterfly roses mingled with pink stephanotis, ivy and fern.

Miss Valerie Smith, sister of the bride as maid of honor was gowned in blush pink silk organza over taffta flattered with a scoop neckline, cap sleeves and a fitted bodice with piped seaming. A self bow at the front enhanced the gathered scissor front of the skirt which was highlighted at the sides with hand clipped Chantilly lace. She wore a pillbox headdress and matching veil in pink shoes and carried a bouquet of white and pink Shasta 'mums and white tulle and fern. The bridesmaids Mrs. Carl Wood, sister of the bridegroom and Mrs. James Hogan were identically attired to the maid of honor and carried colonial bouquets of white and pink Shasta 'mums with white tulle and fern. The little flower girl was Miss Patricia Smith, sister of the bride who wore a white nylon chiffon over taffeta frock. She wore a head band of pink and white poms, and she carried a basket of white and white Shasta 'mums with fern, pink bows and streamers. Mr. Sister Stephen Smith, brother of the bride, was the natty little ring-bearer who carried the wedding rings on a white satin cushion.

The groomsman was Mr. James Hogan, while Mr. Roy Watson of Ottawa and Mr. Carl Wood, brother-in-law of the bridegroom were the ushers.

A reception was held at the Belleville Shrine Club following the marriage ceremony, where the bride's table was most attractive and centred with a three-tier wedding cake flanked with pink and white lighted tapers in crystal holders. The mother of the bride received the guests, dressed in an aqua green silk organza over nylon taffeta gown with matching tulle hat and shoes and a corsage of Lestra Hibberd cream roses. She was assisted by the mother of the bridegroom who wore a navy silk shantung ensemble, pink and navy accessories and a corsage of pink Sweetheart roses.

Mr. Jim Corradi, father of the bridegroom and well known local pianist, entertained the guests following the dinner with a medley of his favourite selections. An especially honoured guest was an old family friend, Mr. Fred Ogle, 84 years of age who was present from Toronto.

Amid showers of confetti and good wishes the happy couple left for a wedding trip to Los Angeles, California. The bride donned a frosty blue Sarlin brocade ensemble, white straw hat, white accessories and a white gardenia corsage.

Guests were present from Hamilton, Burlington, Toronto, Richmond Hill, Ottawa, Brockville, Smiths Falls, Cataraqui Falls, Kingston, Picton, New York City and Belleville.

Previous to the marriage the bride was honored at two bridal showers, at the homes of Mrs. Mac Boyle, 52 Meadowvale Avenue, and Mrs. Frank McKay, 75 Emily Street.

Upon their return Mr. and Mrs. Corradi will reside at 198 Lavergne Street, Eastview, Ottawa.

Three Women Ordained in United Church

MONTREAL (CP) — Three women have been ordained into the United Church, an unusual event in Canada's church history. Each woman had family ties with the church.

Ordination took place Wednesday night during the annual meeting of the Montreal and Ottawa Conference of the United Church of Canada.

Mrs. Margaret Kervey, who took a three-year course at the United Theological College here, was following in the footsteps of her late husband, Rev. Eric Kervey, who died in 1961.

Mrs. Londa Ann Beaudoin decided to join her husband, Rev. Jacques Beaudoin, in the church. She gave up the ministry 25 years ago, when she was married two days before she was due to graduate from the Collegate-Rochester Divinity School in New York state.

Miss Phyllis N. Smyth, daughter of a former principal of the college, was the third woman minister ordained. She decided to enter the ministry while studying arts at McGill University, and will take a master's degree in theology at St. Andrew's College.

Miss Smyth has served at Bury's Green, Que., north of Peterborough.

Women's Institutes

FOXBORO W.I.

The May meeting which was held in the County Museum, of the Foxboro Women's Institute, was a most interesting and educational one. The meeting began with the 21 members and 3 visitors rising breaking up into two groups. While Mr. Boyce was showing the 200 pioneer scene pictures of early scenes in the county, Mrs. Sargent showed the other group some of the interesting things in the museum. The groups changed places after which the meeting was called to order in the usual way by Mrs. M. J. Walter.

During the business Mrs. L. Lewis and Mrs. W. L. Johnston were nominated as delegates to the district annual to be held with the automatic delegates, Mrs. Bamber and Mrs. Walker. In the absence of the treasurer, Mrs. Walker gave the treasurer's report.

Mrs. W. Rombough thanked Mrs. Sargent for her kindness, also the kindness of Mr. Boyce, on behalf of the members of the Foxboro Women's Institute.

Mrs. C. Hubble, as convener for the committee in charge of the meeting, in the absence of the annual, gave a few particulars of those present.

Mrs. C. Bamber, who had attended the officers' conference in Guelph, gave a report on the Adelaide District Annual which was much in keeping with the rest of the meeting, which was an Historical Meeting. Mrs. Bamber is to report on the rest of the conference at other meetings.

A letter from Mrs. B. Groh, a former member but now of Crawford, was read by Mrs. W. L. Johnston, also a note from Mr. and Mrs. Rae Scott.

The meeting closed in the usual way and lunch of soft drinks and doughnuts were served by the lunch committee. Mrs. Hubble, during the period of lunch divided the ladies into two groups and pictures were taken for the Tweedsmuir History Book.

Miss Judith Ellen Linton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Linton, has just returned from an eight-month tour of Europe and British Isles. Jode will be attending summer school in Kingston prior to joining the teaching staff of R. H. McLaughlin Collegiate and Vocational School, Oshawa.

Church Groups

PARISH GUILD, CHRIST CHURCH

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Hickey were the gracious hosts on Tuesday afternoon at their summer home "Treetops" on Lake Consecon, when a large group of ladies from Christ Church Parish Guild held their closing meeting and pot-luck luncheon. Special guests were Rev. R. E. Fleming, Mrs. Fleming and their daughters, Gail and Ellen. Rev. James Smith and several brave husbands. Luncheon was held picnic style in the beautiful grounds and was greatly enjoyed.

The business portion of the meeting was in charge of president Mrs. A. W. Jordan and reports were heard from all committees. Of thanks were read from the church wardens regarding the re-decorating of rooms in the rectory and from Camp Hyrante regarding a donation to help camp. Wedding receptions and a dinner were catered for by the Guild during May and plans were completed that in July, August and September there would be more receptions. The annual Blossom Tea was an outstanding success and all those who had helped by donating articles and food, and in many other ways were thanked sincerely. A parcel of clothing for the Red Cross veners is sent to those ladies who, though unable to get out to the tea through illness or other reasons, still did their part with beautiful donations of flowers and home-baking, etc.

Rev. Fleming reported that work on the stonework of the church would be begun in the near future, as part of the centennial program of Christ Church. Business over, the ladies were royally entertained by "Beetle Bailey," in the persons of Mr. Hickey, Mrs. Bishop, Mrs. Jordan and Mrs. Dawson, true trials of the "real thing." Several amusing prizes were won for unusual and sidesplitting costumes worn by the members. Mrs. Jordan, president, expressed the thanks of the members to Mr. and Mrs. Hickey for a delightful outing.

SIGN EMBARRASSED

PENZRITH, England (CP) — The council has now decided that the sign opposite a local church, reading "St. Andrew's Church," must be redesigned because it is an embarrassment to the congregation. But, in fact, it is not a sign for a public convenience. In small letters below are the words "Hairdressing salon. Prop., M. Trotter."

ST. MICHAEL'S PARISH COUNCIL

The closing meeting of the season for St. Michael's Catholic Women's League took place on June 8 in St. Michael's auditorium and showed a distinct increase in attendance. The meeting was preceded by a pot luck supper. The tables were gaily appointed and bountifully laden with turkey, salads, hot dishes, and desserts. Grace was said by Rt. Rev. Msgr. J. P. Sullivan who also opened the meeting which followed.

During the briskly paced business session the members were advised by Mrs. Herbert Brown, convener of Citizenship and Immigration that she had recently attended a Civic Action tea get committee meeting of the United Appeal. She was asked to appoint five captains who in turn would contact ten canvassers for the United Appeal drive in October. The five captains are Mrs. Jack Barrett, Mrs. Ida Tamaelen, Mrs. Oriel Gridley, Mrs. Morey and Mrs. Fern Kelly. Mrs. Brown stated that on June 30th the new Canadians would receive their citizenship papers at an impressive ceremony in the council chamber. Seventeen of these new citizens are from the three Belleville parishes. Mrs. H. Bird, treasurer of the education action committee spoke on welfare assistance. Although the figures were somewhat less than during the winter months, the need for welfare service remains always in demand.

Mrs. J. Bernard McAlpine, convener of brownies and guides, reported on the well attended dinner held in St. Michael's Auditorium for these groups on May 28th and the church parade which followed. The brownies received their golden bar and a flying up to guides ceremony was performed with Helen Cooper taking the honors with the most badges. Three new brownies were welcomed and sworn to help with the packs. They are Mrs. I. M. Pardit, Mrs. Jim Campbell, and Mrs. Gordon Dick.

EDUCATION REPORT

Mrs. Jack Sheridan, convener of education reported that on Monday, June 1, in the absence of Mrs. J. H. Radbone, president, she presented the prizes for home economics at St. Michael's Academy P.T.A. meeting. The Canadian League magazine subscriptions were brought to the attention of the ladies. A feature article, "Updating the Role of Women" points out the recent changes in the marriage ceremony.

It was pointed out that "Our Lady of the Way" is now the official patron of Brownies and Guides. Continuing on the educational theme, convener, Ralph Ackerman, quoted from the recent interview of Rose Malone, former world leader of Young Christian Workers. "In Canada this country's contribution to society was measured by his ability to produce. Now with automation this is no longer true. Malines can produce for him. In the twentieth century man's life is being measured by his cultural contribution to society and how he uses his leisure time. Hence the focus of attention falls on T.V. which could be the greatest educator of all if we only use it. This would involve group viewing discussion and evaluation and forwarding conclusions and recommendations to the producers. These viewing groups will be organized in the fall. There will be a blitz night for membership in the C.W.L. on June 15.

GARDEN TEA

Mrs. F. R. Ross, hospitality convener reported on the plans for a garden tea and bake sale to be held on June 24th at 32 Dundas St. W. It was decided to open the fall season of meetings with evening Mass, a pot-luck supper and an address from our spiritual director, Rt. Rev. J. F. Sullivan.

The business session closed with a brief summary of reports given at the 42nd diocesan council convention held in Smiths Falls May 31 and June 1. The delegates to the convention were taken on a tour of the hospital by the nursing students and it was gratifying to learn of the volunteer work done by our members and of the effectiveness of the Catholic Adoption Year Campaign which is still in progress.

Mrs. Ben Burley reported on the resolutions to adopt as the main project of the Companions of St. Helen, under the chairmanship of Rev. Fr. J. P. Ainley, Kingston and assist him in his work to educate the children of Santo Domingo to become self reliant in their schools, hospitals and work.

The evening's program concluded with the presentation of an uproarious takeoff on the Beatles called the "Ladybugs." This was followed by an equally humorous sketch of Queen for a Day to the delight and amusement of the audience.

COMING UP FOR FALL

Now, more than ever, there seems to be an interchange of ideas in the world of fashion. Typical American ideas are turning up on the runways of Paris fashion shows. Those ideas have acquired a French flavor. The "soft" look, born last fall in Paris, adapted and modified in New York, is still seen in Paris, the emphasis in this year's "soft look" is on soft tailoring which calls for smooth fabrics. Last year it denoted the fluffy depth of mohair and wool blends. The details of wellplaced seaming in the 1964 look only show up well in flat-surfaced materials.

The raincoat in a trench coat style has made a strong comeback. It is still double-breasted with a stand-up collar, deep pleated back and roomy pockets. Although the belt ties like a bathrobe, the bottoms are usually jeweled and the coat itself may be styled in anything from puffed satin to gorgeous Oriental brocades. Who says a trench coat cannot come out dandified? In fact, these trench coats are only suitable for after-five wear.

The same double-breasted coat design is seen in fake furs, in leather-like fabrics or alligator grained satins. Because these are more rugged fabrics, they are suitable for daytime, of course.

A switch has been pulled for this fall when the most opulent fabrics will be available in subdued fashions, while the more conservative and played-down fabrics will go out on the town. The same holds happens in the world of fashion. Last year, dresses of English tweed were wonderfully revered. Elements thereof, jacket and belts, but usually reproduced a brown dove at public functions.

IRIDESCENT FABRICS

Iridescent fabrics are making a comeback for evening wear as exemplified in Lilo's Paris showings. It is some time since this shimmering look was in fashion. Last year, a single button in the shimmering iridescent mesh in demand that it is seen in fine wool weaves as well as in silk and sheer-mesh fabrics. Lilo's showings indicate that drapable wool crepe that might take the place of the beautiful and beloved shantung of days gone by.

The metallic look is seen in every collection, spread on the tweed ranges and there are metallic threads woven into patterned fabrics to provide a "new" look.

SPEAKING of MANNERS

PATRICIA LEWIS

MAIL CALL

Question: My husband was transferred here from the Middle East by the R.C.A.F. accompanied him to a business reception a few days ago when we were introduced to business associates and their wives. Well, my husband was well introduced, but I was slighted completely. The executive who took us in now made sure my husband met all manner of important people. He made me nice enough to say hello to me anyway, and address me by name, but I was embarrassed by the oversight. Can you suggest what this is my husband later, he said everyone knew who I was anyway, since I was with him, but I thought the executive in charge was rather unchivalrous to say the least. Am I making a mountain out of a molehill, or was I correct in feeling slighted? — Mrs. C. D. Roanoke, Va.

Answer: The gentleman who was assigned to make the introductions certainly should have included you, even if it was obvious who you were. When he made an move to do so, your husband should have filled in the gap by saying "and this is my wife." Obviously, you saved the day by being gracious anyway, so there's nothing to be said but to suggest a few more post-mortems on the man's thoughtless behavior.

Ann Landers

Hubby's Hitting Habit Cured by Aimed Uppercut

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I was fascinated by the letter signed "Not Mad," because my husband used to hit me while he was drunk, too. I made excuses for Bud, just as "Not Mad" made excuses for her husband. I didn't want to face the truth, which was simply that Bud really wanted to hit me during the day but didn't have the nerve.

After innumerable black eyes and nose bleeds I decided I'd had enough. It was the night of our anniversary and he had forgotten. I didn't say a word but when a bouquet of flowers from our daughter and son-in-law arrived, Bud was embarrassed and apologetic.

He would have hit me if I had lit into him, but I remained silent and pleasant. This he could not tolerate. I was certain that he would hit me that night "in his sleep."

Sure enough, about 2:00 a.m. I was awakened by a crack on the head. I sat bolt upright, made a dandy fist of my own and delivered an uppercut to his jaw. I have never seen such a surprised look on anyone's face in all my life. — P.S. He has not hit me in his sleep since and it has been 8 years. — PEACE IVY WONDERFUL

ANN LANDERS

DEAR WONDERFUL — There is more than the absence of war. I hope you have really found it.

• • •

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Quite by accident I learned that my 30-year-old daughter is on very intimate terms with her steady boy friend, Jack.

Janice does not know that I am aware of this and there is no way to tell her without betraying a confidence. In the meantime I've been wrapped to death that they might get into trouble.

Last weekend I heard Janice talking to a girl friend. She referred to Jack as "that jerk." I was shocked. Later I asked Janice if she and Jack were having trouble. She replied, "Yes, all kinds. I'm trying to dump him, but he is fighting it."

I'm so upset, Ann, I don't know what to do. The only thing that has kept me from going crazy was the thought that these two would eventually get married. Should I have a talk with Janice? — DISTRAUGHT MOTHER.

DEAR MOTHER — And what would you talk about? Would you tell her she'd better marry Jack, even though she thinks he is a jerk?

If you can work a conversation around to the dangers and disadvantages of sex outside of marriage — and keep it plenty general — all right. But please don't try to push her into marriage. She made one mistake. Don't encourage her to make another.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — This gripe has been bugging me for ages.

The problem isn't mine but I work in a store and I deal with it every day. What do you think of people who return gifts and insist on getting the money? No amount of telling can persuade these cheapskates to take something else. I see nothing wrong if people want to exchange a gift in case of duplication, or because the color isn't appropriate, but to cash it in? What a friend or relative selected with great care seems like an insult to the giver.

Do you agree, or do I have a fix on this one? — GR—RR.

DEAR GR—RR — I agree, and if it's a fix, then I have it, too. In my opinion it is poor manners to return a gift and insist on the cash. Some stores do not allow this practice and I'm with them.

Victorian Look Theme Of Fashions

BY JANET HASK

MONTREAL (CP) — The Victorian "gentlewoman look" with a modern touch of lace, color and fabric was the theme of the 1964-65 fall and winter national collection, Canadian ready-to-wear clothes previewed Thursday to fashion writers.

Some 100 fashion houses were represented in the show, sponsored by the International Ladies Garment Workers Union.

Suits came in luxurious tweeds and large checks, topped with Alpine-length matching capes. Skirts were slightly shorter — barely covering the knees — and flared with self-matching pleats.

Jackets were slightly fitted, some belted, below the waist. The chanel suit remains a popular one for the best seasons.

Shades of red from pink to wine, greens and browns were predominant colors for daytime wear. Coats ranging from the redingote, look with slim lines and redingote shapes to wide, flowing full - length cape - coats covered slightly fitted dresses and suits.

The double-breasted coat was particularly popular.

Some styles were reminiscent of the Greta Garbo and Marlene Dietrich era in belted coats and redingote shapes to wide,

Camel hair suits and coats will be making a comeback in the fall.

Costumes were worn with high boots, spats and jaunty jockey caps.

For evening wear black was the predominant color. Gowns were all slimming sacklines, backlines, or both.

Women's Institutes

MOIRA — The Moira Women's Institute met at the home of Mrs. Jack Thompson with nine members and visitors present. Roll call was answered by Mrs. Clayton Vandervoort who opened the meeting in the usual manner after some business was discussed. The convener of historical research, Beula Halbert introduced the program with readings given by Helen Mulroy, Mrs. Holden and Mrs. Gordon Foster.

The guest speaker, Mrs. Ralph Sills, historical curator for the district gave an informative talk and showed a display of paper receipts, tax bills and other items dated back 100 years or more. Mrs. Sills is custodian of the history of the pioneers of the first and second concession of Thurlow and has a keen interest in all.

The meeting concluded and the hostess and assistants served lunch.

Establishment of Canada's first retirement community at Cardiff, Ont., is the result of a successful experiment, with a Federal government agency and private enterprise sharing the credit equally. The townsite's principal trustee, Myrtle Bamford, notes the change in the sign that until recently identified the place as an uranium miners' village. In three years the unique settlement will grow to 500 homes and a population of 1,500, project planners say.

Cardiff "pioneers" Mr. and Mrs. Leo C. Bellinger of R. R. 7, Belleville, one of the several district couples who have purchased homes there, watch a painter giving new look to dwelling they'll be calling home before long.

TOOK 1,153 LIVES

One of the costliest forest fires in history—the Peshtigo fire in Wisconsin in 1871—burned some 3,000,000 acres, wiped out 17 towns and claimed at least 1,153 lives.

Hundred Cardiff Dwellings Sold to Retired Couples

BANCROFT — The 2400 people of this village are likely to recover from a sad case of depression little sooner than expected. Ironically, it is a pocket-sized real estate boom in full swing at a neat door neighbor's place that is helping.

Tension started to mount here in 1959 when Grey Rock Mines, the first of the area's four uranium producers to cease operations, closed; in the ranks of some 1500 miners had $6,000,000 in pay a year to spend in a community oozing prosperity.

By early this year, when the Federal government ordered Bicroft pilig to stop at Faraday Mines by July 1, village leaders figured the death knell had finally sounded. The shut-down meant the last 300 miners and their families would disappear as quickly as they flocked here during the 'golden' era. It also meant that an economic void had to be dealt with realistically.

However, when all seemed lost, a great revival began at the miners' townsite at Cardiff, eight miles up the road. Concerned officials of the Federal government's housing agency C.M.H.C., decided to explore an idea offered by Peterborough realtors Bowes and Cocks. Then the spark was kindled to develop Canada's first independent retirement community. The move has been a big boost for morale hereabouts ever since.

Lifeless and dreary a month ago Cardiff is now a hive of activity. A small army of renovators, drawn from local unemployed ranks by C.M.H.C., has been working, sometimes late into the night, to restore bungalows for new owners moving in. More than $75,000 is being spent to refurbish dwellings previously rented to the miners.

A migration of retired people from all parts of Canada commenced last week. It will continue throughout the summer, until some 300 of them are settled in the 200 modern homes comprising the townsite.

186 HOMES SOLD

To date more than 100 of the 150 two-bedroom and three-bedroom homes advertised early in May, at less than half the original cost, have been sold. The fewer than 50 dwellings left are being picked up at an average of about three a day. And inquiries from interested buyers, numbering in the thousands already, continue to pour in.

When the stacks of letters bewildered head office staff, a woman was assigned to process the influx of incoming mail. A Winnipeg couple watching the story of Cardiff's revival on TV one night jumped in their car the next morning and travelled 2,000 miles to take advantage of the bargains. Then they turned around and drove back to make the necessary arrangements to return to their new permanent residence.

Looking ahead three years the project planners, optimistic over what has happened so far, anticipate construction of another 300 homes within the townsite confines and the population swelling to 1500. The sewer and water plants are adequate to handle the growth, one planning official explained. By then Cardiff residents will be a substantial "industry" themselves, pumping $3,000,000 yearly into the district economy, he said.

And according to him Bancroft businessmen before they think will learn: "It's an ill wind that doesn't blow somebody some good."

Beatles Are Very Nice, Extremely Talented Guys

DEAR DORIS — I bet you won't print this.

The Beatle are not Beatlies and whoever's ashamed of their age-years for loving the Beatles are either insane or just plain dated, because they don't seem to remember that they had their idols in their day.

My mother said her parents were against her idols too. As a member of the Beatle Fan Club, I wish to say the Beatles are just a group of very nice, extremely talented guys, although you might not think so — and very handsome ones too, I do not think girls or boys should wear their hair like the Beatles, but a boy could have the Beatle Bangs as long as he washes his face pretty often and the hair is out of the eyes.

DORIS CLARK

And if parents still want to hate the Beatles, please tell them for me that as long as they're so full of hate at that moment, they're showing a fine example of what they call Juvenile Delinquency.—FOREVER A BEOLVED BEATLE FAN. (F.A.B.F.F.)

P.S. — I am 15 years old.

DEAR F.A.B.F.F. — Well, I did print it, because I thought it was worth printing. Feel better now?

* * *

DEAR DORIS — Every time my husband and I go to a party or just to visit, my girl friend flirts with him. He'll take her dancing on the floor and tickle her. He won't dance with me but he'll dance with her. Or she gets on his knee and puts her arm around him and says, "What are you going to do about it?"

Why did that I wouldn't hear the end of it. Please, Doris, tell me if I am wrong to say anything. He thinks I shouldn't. — BEEN BOTHERING ME.

DEAR BOTHERING — Ignore it. Aim for something higher than a "floor show." Dance with any gentleman who asks you; and maybe your husband will learn to qualify for the title.

* * *

DEAR DORIS — I have come to a point in my life when I feel I should have more peace of mind. You say people need spiritual resources. I even need to know how to pray. Could you suggest any books I could read? — DEJECTED.

* * *

DEAR DEJECTED — We all hit bottom sometime or other. I am sending you a list of Books on Prayer which come well recommended. (Note to readers: This list is available to anyone writing in and enclosing a five-cent-stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

* * *

DEAR DORIS — I am 14 and being taken for granted by a boy I like very much. I know many other boys who like me, but would rather have him. He ignores me when I try to speak to him.

(1) Should I keep trying for him or forget him? (2) Many boys have asked me to go with them but I have refused because of him. Should I say "yes" to them? — GOING CRAZY.

DEAR GOING CRAZY — Ignore him back. For the next couple of years you'll best fun — and wisest plan — is to do your dating in groups. Only dates come later.

DEAR DORIS — I have a cousin who is a wonderful girl, who has two lovely children. Her husband deserted them and the boy was three two months old. She has had no support from him. She has tried to find him and has asked the welfare to help locate him, but never did find him.

Now, Doris, what I want to know is, can she get married again, as she has met a nice man who wants to make a home for her and the two children? It is eight years since he left. She has been told she can declare him legally dead after seven years. Is this so?

What would happe if she does get married and he should turn up later? He is a drunken alcoholic and beat his wife and child up several times.

God bless you and your good advice. — COUSIN HATTIE.

DEAR COUSIN — Proof is needed that a thorough search has been made, without result. Then a legal procedure is possible which will pronounce the vanished spouse legally dead. And she may marry. She should engage a lawyer or consult the Sheriff and Legal Aid Director.

for the County of Hastings, Belleville.

If he should materialize at her front door the new marriage becomes void, but she cannot be sued for bigamy.

DEAR DORIS — I used to have a very good friend. About a month ago, I tried to commit suicide. I told her about it. I realize now that I was very foolish to try, but everything was going wrong with me.

Anyway, all of a sudden she turned her back on me. She told another girl that she hated me because I tried to commit suicide. I acts friendly, but I know she hates me. Please, what can I I want her back. Please print. — WANTS FRIEND BACK.

* * *

DEAR WANTS — Friend, did you say? Then it's the part of real friendship to understand weak points as well as to like you for your good ones.

Since the "hating" is hearsay, assume she is still your friend. Live down that suicidal impulse with good cheer — and some thoughtfulness for her.

DEAR DORIS — Sometimes I think more details in your letters might help people with similar problems. More information might just give someone hope that a problem really could be solved.

Also, I wish you would mention the names of books when advising teen-agers. There must be hundreds, who read your column but don't have the nerve or write in. Teen-agers need guidance as much now as ever, and I think this way you would be helping many with a sort of "stitch in time." — ALWAYS READ YOU.

DEAR ALWAYS — Agreed. But column space it at a premium. My mailed replies are often four or five times as long.

I can't name the books for the simple reason that this is seen as unpaid advertising. But I can plump for our libraries. There's a wealth of help to be had from books within reach of just about everybody. Teen-agers, are you taking note?

* * *

Inglish as She Is Tawt Thees Daes

BOOKE, B.C. (CP)—A really printed assignment on the blackboard reads:

"Jhon chen. A woo rwen hows. Wisday is sevon. The weather is not bet".

The task at the head of the class is designated "Teacher." A sign nearby says "Wall." Over the entrance another reads "Door."

A little girl at her desk laboriously prints: "Mis name is Laulie. Is goo by now."

They record building a foreign language in the kindergarten classroom at John Stubbs elementary school. It's English in the form of a new 43-character Initial Teaching Alphabet, designed to make success in reading possible from the very start.

The school on southern Vancouver Island is the second in Canada to experiment with the new teaching device developed in Britain by Sir James Pitman, grandson of Sir Isaac Pitman, who introduced Pitman shorthand. The other school is in Toronto.

Mrs. M. P. Hewitt, the kindergarten teacher, says the new alphabet will be replaced with the standard 26-character alphabet when the children have gained a basic mastery of the reading process.

AMAZING RESULTS

"I'm absolutely amazed at the results we have achieved so far," she says. "We only introduced it early in March and already some of the brighter students can read up to 500 words — and these are only kindergarten children.

"Normally, they wouldn't start to learn to read until Grade 1."

The system assigns one letter to each sound in the English language. The conventional alphabet spells these 43 sounds 2,500 different ways.

In conventional spelling, the letter "c" has different sounds in the words acre, cure, good, one and women. Under the experimental system the words become maer, cuer, gon, wun and wimen.

When the child has learned the "sound characters" he can read anything written in the new system. After a year of instruction the pupil is given ordinary reading books along with his special books in preparation for the switch to the regular alphabet.

Superintendent F. A. McClellan, who introduced the system to John Stubbs, says parents of the selected children have been consulted at every step of the program.

"We got permission from the parents before we started and about it."

Hewitt while Marie Knox and Cathy Crawford (right) look on during kindergarten class at John Stubbs elementary school in Sooke, B.C. The children are learning to read and spell English in the form of a new 43-character Initial Teaching Alphabet developed in England. The new alphabet will be replaced by the standard alphabet when the children have gained a basic mastery of the reading process. (CP Photo)

HOME OF THE WEEK

A clever combination of split-level and ranch. Rear patio for outdoor living is accessible from the garage and family room which in itself forms an extension of the kitchen. There is provision for a washroom at the foot of the basement stair but an alternative plan is supplied showing the washroom on the main floor — usually where a septic tank is necessary. Construction is brick veneer.

Standard blueprints for this design No. 1001 cost $15. for the first set, and $5. for additional sets. They are available in Canada by return mail. (Ontario residents must remit 3% sales tax). Now available at this newspaper office is our new design book entitled "Suburban and Country Homes designed for Canadians," price $1. tax free. This 1964 edition includes information on cost of building and financing in Canada, heating, insulating, construction details, etc., plus many outstanding new designs — ranch, one and half storey, split level, twos storey colonial and duplex homes. Also included in this book are full details on how to order blueprints.

SUPPORTS SCULPTORS

MONTREAL (CP) — Quebec is to pay the fare of 12 sculptors for a summer at Beaver Lake on top of Montreal's mountain, asking only that they answer questions of passers-by and leave their works behind them when they go home. Sculptures by Canadians Robert Roussil, Armand Vaillancourt and Irving Burman, plus an Israeli, a Frenchman, a Hungarian, a Cuban, a Greek, an Italian, an Austrian, an American and a citizen of the Dominican Republic, will win the public because "a communication will grow between the spectator and the artist at work," says Guy Viau of the provincial arts council.

Cartop Carrier of Fir Plywood Keeps Camping Gear Out of Way

A fir plywood cartop box will carry an amazing amount of baggage and free the inside of the car of clutter during long vacation time trips.

While the dimensions given in the above sketch are worked out so that the box may be cut from a single 4 x 8 panel of ½-inch fir plywood, larger or smaller boxes can be made along similar lines to suit the requirements of the individual.

Various pieces of the box should be carefully measured out on the fir plywood panel before it is cut. Assembly, with galvanized nails and waterproof glue, can be easily followed from the drawing.

A centre piece is shown on the plan, which stiffens the sides of the box. This is slipped into place between battens, and can be moved, or removed, to accommodate items of different sizes.

Holes are indicated around the edges of the box through which cord can be passed to hold the contents of the box secure.

If desired, the box can be easily fitted with a fir plywood lid to keep the contents dry.

There are a variety of ways to attach the box to the top of the car. The easiest method is to bolt the finished box to a standard cartop rack. Crosspieces can be shaped to fit the roof of the car, and padded against scratching; or suction cups can be attached directly to the box near the corners.

Rain will not harm this cartop box. All fir plywood made in Canada is edge stamped PMBC EXTERIOR which means it is made completely with waterproof glue.

When finished, the cartop box should be given a coat of sealer, pointed in 1968.

Majority of Homes Ready-Built

The majority of people who obtain a new home buy it ready made from a builder. One of the reasons for this is that there are not many remaining serviced lots in the larger urban areas on which an individual owner can have a house built. But there are also other reasons. The purchaser can see what he is buying when he visits the builder's model home. He knows just how much it is going to cost him and this will probably be less than if he had a home built to order. There is much less paper work involved than if you build your own home. Furthermore, it means the family will probably be able to move into the house much sooner than if it had been contracted out. One of the disadvantages when buying from a model home is that though there is usually a wide variety of models to choose from in most subdivisions you may not always be able to buy exactly the type of house you want in the location you prefer. In any case make sure that you get your home from a builder who has established a favorable reputation in the community. That is your best guarantee of satisfaction later on.

Quality Workmanship Mark of Good Builder

A new house reflects not only the ability of the architect who designed it but also the skill of the builder who put it together. Choosing a builder who has built up a reputation for good workmanship means that you will not have to worry about the quality of the construction. From basement to roof every small detail will meet the standards of quality he has set for his homes. The subtradesmen will also have to live up to a reliable builder's exacting demands. The simplest and most practical way of establishing in your own mind a builder's credentials is to inspect some of the homes he has already built. Of course the cost factor is also an important consideration when buying a home. But the builder who makes the lowest bid is not necessarily the one who is offering you the best deal. In fact, a prospective owner would be doubly careful when he is offered a "bargain" home. A new home costs money to build and, although the quality and price are not necessarily synonymous, the cost of a home remains a fairly safe indication of its value.

TO THE RESCUE

EDMONTON (CP) — Bob Shaw, 22, of Edmonton seems to specialize in fire rescues. He recently raced into an apartment to rescue a man who had been overcome by smoke. Ten years ago he spotted smoke pouring from a cabin while vacationing with his parents in Idaho. He broke in and roused the sleeping occupants.

Hardwoods and Softwoods

Of the hundreds of species of trees that grow on the continent there are approximately 35 that are commonly manufactured into lumber.

These are almost evenly divided between two basically different kinds of woods — softwoods and hardwoods. Confusion is introduced by the fact that relative hardness is not the differentiating characteristic in listing the two. Some softwoods, paradoxically, are harder than some hardwoods. Generally, softwoods are the coniferous or needle-bearing trees such as the pine, fir or hemlock. Hardwoods are broad-leaved trees like the oak and maple. Lumber from the softwoods is usually used in construction and hardwood lumber is mostly used industrially and decoratively.

The woods are handled by three clearly defined classes of wholesalers and retail dealers. Some companies combine the functions of two or all classifications, but usually each class is conducted as a separate line of business. A sawmill operator is a manufacturer. The wholesaler is a salesman and the retail dealer, a merchant. They all deal in the same commodity — and that commodity is produced in our great, wide and wonderful Canadian forest.

EARLIEST LAUREATE

Britain's earliest official poet laureate was John Dryden, appointed with undercoat and enamel to complement the color of the car.

Build Barbecue for More Fun In Your Outdoor Living Room

Although charcoal cooking has been employed since man first rubbed two sticks together, it has enjoyed unprecedented popularity in recent years with the fast rise in backyard barbecues.

The present popularity of outdoor cooking originated in California, which generally is conceded to be the source of the simple but mouth-watering dinner of charcoal broiled steak, garlic or cheese sourdough bread, and a mixed greens salad topped with blue cheese or oil-and-wine-vinegar dressing.

Slowly this truly American meal has spread eastward during the past quarter-century until today almost every hamlet has a steakhouse that serves up a reasonable facsimile.

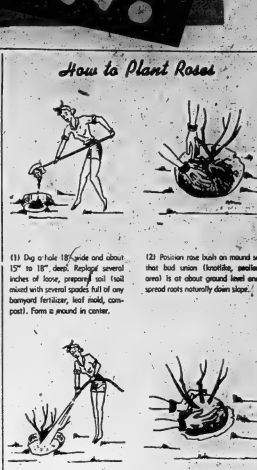
A home barbecue can either be contracted for or it can be built as a home handyman project. It can be plain and simple or big and costly — ranging from a portable table-top model available in any housewares store to a "bomb shelter" type that requires several tons and has warming ovens and other types of conveniences for luscious cookery.

Building a barbecue will vary to some extent depending on the size of the desired structure, but the basic construction remains the same.

An outline of the barbecue should be marked out on the ground, and this should be dug 10 or 12 inches deep. Eight to 10 inches of sand or sand-and-gravel mix is tamped well, and this is topped with concrete between four and six inches deep, depending on the size and weight of the barbecue. This will bring the base two or three inches above ground level, for which forms are needed.

A level or plumb bob should be used in laying the base and all courses of brick to insure a perfect level.

The second step is the chimney, built with the level or plumb bob to be sure it is perfectly vertical, for no one wants a miniature "Tower of Pisa" confronting them whenever they barbecue. A hole should be left in the firebox side of the chimney to draw smoke from the fire and up the chimney.



The firebox or ashpit can be constructed of block or brick or rock, or a prefabricated unit can be bought at a building supply outlet.

Two or three courses of block are laid (again, make sure each course is level) and then sidewalls are built up on the two sides, with an iron grate built into the concrete join about a foot above the ashpit. Although a bit more difficult to install but much more satisfactory than the built-in permanent grate is a series of two or three steel tracks on which a grate can be inserted at varying levels for different types of cookery.

An excellent accessory for every barbecue is an LP-gas torch that will save 15 or 20 minutes of preparation each time you build a fire. This is the same liquefied petroleum gas familiar to all who live on farms or in country homes, in small towns or other rural areas to provide all the comforts of modern gas appliances far beyond city gas mains.

A small LP-gas hand torch can be used, or a larger refillable tank can be installed for multi-purpose use. The small hand torch-will light charcoal in brief minutes. Not only does the larger LP-gas unit serve this same purpose, but it also can be used for gas cooking, if desired, such as grilling hamburgers or broiling hot dogs for youngsters.

How to Plant Roses

(1) Dig a hole 18" wide and about 15" to 18" deep. Replace several inches of loose, prepared soil (soil mixed with several spades full of any barnyard fertilizer, leaf mold, compost). Form a mound in center.

(2) Position rose bush on mound so that bud union (knobbie, swollen area) is at about ground level and spread roots naturally down slope.

(3) Work in the soil around roots to eliminate air pockets. Fill hole ¾ full and tamp down firmly. Fill hole with several pails full of water and allow to drain.

(4) Fill in remainder of hole with soil and mound up around canes to a height of about 3 to 10 inches. Allow this protective mound to remain until growth starts in spring.

In planting roses, remove paper, plastic or metal containers that may be around the roots. If the roots with a ball of soil around them are wrapped in burlap, leave the burlap on as you set the plant in the hole, says the Canadian Nursery Trades Association. Allow it to rot in the hole, all ready to spread the top soil, take a sharp knife and slit the burlap length-wise from top to bottom in 3 or 4 loose places. This will allow the roots to grow outward normally and will not disturb the earth around the roots.

Doing Home Jobs? Organize Them Well

Before you tackle any "ambitious", professional - type project for home improvement, be sure you have the proper know-how and equipment.

Then, make a complete layout before you start, think it out in detail on paper before you get under way.

Also, be sure the materials are available and fully satisfactory as requests.

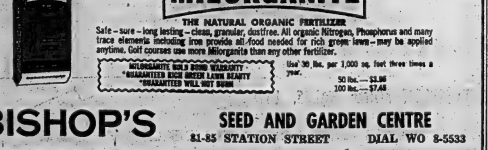
And don't forget to investigate the permit situation.

Some of the pitfalls to be avoided are these:

Be sure you put appliances where they are accessible; and similarity make certain that your complete project will not render some already-installed appliance valueless.

A heater in the wrong location is worthless; a fireplace improperly designed may not work; a floor that isn't built right will be "bouncy."

When you're buying appliances, electrical goods, wiring, etc., be sure they meet legal requirements. Salesmen's advice is not to be relied on and illegal equipment is sold in unethical stores.



For your own peace of mind, it is well to check with the city inspector on such equipment.

Never conceal work requiring inspection and never put any appliance, wiring, plumbing, etc., into use until the job is approved by the city inspector.

These men want to help people who do their own work and will give advice and instructions.

MR. MELTZER ON REAL ESTATE
"What's Your Problem?"

By BERNARD C. MELTZER

Most people are aware that mortgage interest rates vary for houses of differing age or quality, or for mortgages of differing risk potential. Not everyone, however, is aware that interest rates vary considerably according to geography. Commander C. P. C., however, is learning through experience.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: A Navy officer, I am often reassigned. My family travels with me, and it has been my custom to purchase a home wherever I go. I have been astonished, however, not only by the difference in prices of comparable quality homes, but also at the wide variation in mortgage interest rates. As a gentleman, my ability to pay, stability of employment, etc., doesn't change, so it must be the local custom, but how do you explain my having to pay 6½ percent mortgage interest one place and as much as 5 percent in another? — Commander C. P. C.

Answer: Interest rates reflect the differences in the availability of mortgage money and, in part, the custom of the area.

New England and the northeast, generally, for example, traditionally have had low interest rates, and their savings-lending institutions pay modest interest on deposits.

In the southwest and far west, however, growing areas where mortgage money is in short supply, interest paid to depositors is high and mortgage interest rates are, as a consequence also high.

The range of difference in interest rates, geographically, at any given time, may be as little as one percent or as much as two percent.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: Looking forward to retirement, I have been thinking of buying land in a nice place to settle. I received a promising brochure in the mail. I decided to take my savings and follow your advice, and look it over.

Bluntly, it didn't look much like its pictures — no lakes, no fancy houses, no roads, even. And there were lots of sun and sand as far as the eye could see.

The salesman was pretty game, though, he never gave up. He still insists it's a good investment and that all it takes to turn it into the garden spot of the west is a few good people (like me) and a little more water. After that trip I have my own opinion, but what do you think? — H. A. E.

Answer: It would be difficult to find fault with that salesman's argument, but then good people and water are all it would take to transform Hell into a Garden of Eden.

The likelihood of this parched desert land being a good investment for you (in the foreseeable future) is remote. If water, roads, and other improvements are ever brought to this site, you will have heavy assessments and other costs to pay. I'll bet the salesman didn't tell you that.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: I am in a terrible mess and don't know which way to turn. To house my growing family, I had a two bedroom and bath addition built at my house. To save money I hired an "I'll do it for you cheap" builder (and signed a contract.)

He didn't do a good job. Last week the city inspector came and said that not only did the builder neglect to get a building permit, there were so many violations of the codes that we will probably have to tear the new addition down. The builder has started a law suit because I refuse to pay. What should I do? What can I do? — A. T. M.

Answer: The first mistake you made was entering into a contract without legal advice. And I suspect that you wrote no time in getting an attorney now.

As a small reassurance, however, I can tell you, as an old time builder myself that it is implied in all such contracts that the builder will supply himself with necessary permits and that the work will be done in accordance with local building ordinances — a builder neglecting this implied warranty usually is not entitled to payment.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: This may seem premature but I am retiring in five years and foresee a serious problem. Eight years ago we bought a home. My mortgage payments are $175 per month. On my present income of approximately $12,000 per year, this is no problem. My retirement income, however, will be only half that.

I simply won't be able to carry the mortgage and am afraid I will have to sell my home. My wife is very upset at the prospect of losing the home she has grown to love, giving up our friends, and facing our uncertain future. Can you suggest anything else we can do? — T. E. F.

Answer: You are wise to plan ahead. Your foresight will go a long way to save your home. There will be no need to lose your home if you follow this simple procedure.

If during the next five years of your life, you pay an additional $50 per month, in addition to your regular payment, your mortgage will be reduced (according to your enclosure) will be only $5,000.

At that time you will probably be able to refinance at favorable enough terms and reduce your payment's to a comfortable $40 per month.

Mr. Meltzer welcomes your letters and comments. Unfortunately he is unable to enter into personal correspondence with readers, but will attempt to answer as many letters as possible through his column.

EASY DOES IT — Window sashes are sometimes fitted with glass before installation but glazing is often carried out on the site. With wooden sash care should be taken not to damage the edges of the frame. (CMHC Photo)

Care Required in Adjusting Window Frames and Sash

When nailing wooden window and door frames in place, care should be taken to avoid hammer marks. Disfigurements of this sort are difficult to conceal and are a continuing blemish on a finished surface.

A precision made wooden sash often has a tendency to bind in the frame when exposed to excessive moisture. This may result from coats of paint the tendency of the wood to swell is greatly reduced. Until the sashes are painted or some other type of moisture repellant has been applied, the house should be kept as dry as possible. Prolonged rainy periods may lead to marked swelling in wood that has not been properly moisture proofed. Moreover, until the basement floor has been laid, a certain amount of dampness can be expected throughout the house.

Plastering should be postponed until finish wood surfaces have been waterproofed. A great deal of water is used in plastering a house and some of it will be absorbed by the wood if it has not been properly treated.

Woodwork should be dry before putting a plane to it. Otherwise when the wood loses its moisture doors and sashes will no longer fit snugly. A gap of as much as a quarter of an inch may appear between the door and the door frame after the wood has dried out.

During the summer months window sash is often not glassed - in or "glazed" immediately, or the sash is installed temporarily before glazing. Care should be taken not to mark the frame or the sash with the tool used in glazing. Similar precautions are all the more necessary when the sash and frame are of soft-textured wood, such as white pine, often used for this purpose.

Some builders nail a piece of rough lumber to windows and exterior door sills to prevent damage during construction. This is good practice provided it is done carefully. Only finishing nails should be used and nail holes should afterwards be puttied over to remove tell-tale marks.

Sash balances are needed for double-hung windows. There are a number of devices for this purpose, spring balance probably being the most widely used today. The older cord and pulley type of balance is obsolete with the introduction of simpler types of frames. Many builders favour the inconspicuous friction balance. Once the window frames and sash have been given the requisite three coats of paint the tendency of the wood to swell is greatly reduced. Until the sashes are painted or some other type of moisture repellant has been applied, the house should be kept as dry as possible. Prolonged rainy periods may lead to marked swelling in wood that has not been properly moisture proofed. Air Conditioning Spurs Better Living

Are you planning a complete air conditioning treatment for your home?

Where there is an obsolete gravity furnace, or a worn-out forced air heating plant, replacement with one of the many top - flight year 'round heating and cooling units, is the most economical in the long run.

If you plan to replace a forced air furnace, you'll be able to use existing ductwork. Scrapping your old furnace and streamlining basement ducts may provide you with an "extra" room for any purpose you may choose.

Homes having "wet heat", floor furnace or space heater can enjoy warm weather cooling with specific cooling — dehumidifying units that are installed with a minimum of ductwork. These usually are connected to an outside refrigerating unit.

Conversion to all-season conditioning can be simple with a forced air furnace that's in good condition.

Your professional air conditioning specialist can advise you as to the most efficient and most economical installation for your purposes.

FINDING TINY PARTS

To find tiny screws or small parts dropped on the floor, place a lighted flashlight flat against the floor. The small part will be easier to find when the light hits it because of the long shadow it will cast.

New Plastic Laminates Aid Fix-Up

Fine woodgrains, marbles, and gleaming inwardness are but a few of the handsome effects achieved by the many versatile laminated plastics in use for home improvement.

Only the closest inspection of the natural discloses that it is a high pressure laminated "veneer".

Of particular interest to the home owner is the fact that these materials can be applied by the do-it-yourself fan, as well as by the professional.

On walls, laminated plastics may be applied in shower and bathrooms, backsplashes in the kitchen, wall paneling for rooms, on flush doors and as the exterior finish for built-in furniture.

It has also proven to be ideal for use on counter and table tops, sink tops, breakfast nooks, bathroom vanity tops as well as a great many other vertical surfaces.

GAIN CAPACITY

The port of Montreal's total grain storage capacity is 23,300,000 bushels.

Rent Tools For Fix-Up Chores

Now you can easily save lots of elbow-grease and muscle-power for needed difficult improvement jobs around the house, by renting just the tools and equipment you need for as long as you need it!

And it's your own fault too if you don't use the many implements available to ease a tricky job like tilesetting, or a messy one like removing old wallpaper.

All over the country, there are now shops that specialize in renting labor-saving tools and equipment to the hobbyist or handyman who don't feel like purchasing equipment that shows little likelihood of paying its way or need the tool for just a one-time job.

You can engage the temporary use of many other gadgets that enable you to get a hard job done fast, reduce the disruption that's part of the job, or tackle new jobs that await. These include such widely varied items as jacks, chain hoists, furnace vacuum cleaners, sewer augers, and drop cloths.

Prices are mild when you consider the machinery's cost and the work it saves! To illustrate, a cement mixer may rent for $4 to $5 a day, an electric tree saw for $8 to $10, rug cleaning equipment for around $6, paper hanging accessories for $2 or so.

Some places rent power saws, sanders, or certain other tools by the hour, or will make rates for half days. Usually if you want to keep equipment a week or more the day rate is reduced; one shop has a weekly rental rate equal to four times the day rate.

FOIL FUNNEL

Use kitchen - type aluminum foil to make a funnel when liquids or powders must be poured from large containers into narrowed-necked jars.

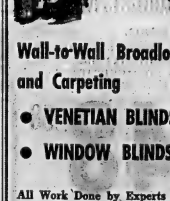
Realtor Services Are Available

Assuming you have decided to buy a home rather than rent you still have to make up your mind whether you would like an older home or one of the new ones. If you are searching for an existing home the realtor is the person to get in touch with. He usually has a variety of homes listed, located in different parts of the city, large homes, older established residences and homes that have barely been lived in. Your realtor will provide you with the opportunity of comparing prices. Today we have what is known as a buyers' market for homes. This means the prospective home owner can do very much as he wishes searching by narrowing down your search to the areas where the house you want may be found. He can also guide you in the matter of price by making a realistic appraisal of the house you select.

Glamorize Bathroom

Interior decorators report that "glamour" bathrooms can now be included in remodeled homes because modern building materials and techniques enable contractors to deliver room value for the buyer's dollar. Decorators point out that only a few tasteful accessories are needed to complete a bathroom that has been designed for both style and service.

Leading designers are constantly introducing distinctive marble patterns, and even handsome woodgrains, into bathroom decor. These same decorative themes can be incorporated into almost any home plan by using "Marflex", a predecorated hardboard panelling, available at lumber dealers in 10 "companion colors", seven woodgrains and six marble patterns.



These panels, whose marble and woodgrain patterns are authentic reproductions of selected natural materials, provide a "permanent decor" because they never need refinishing. Their plastic-finish smooth surface resists moisture, heat, stains, acid and other hard wear. The panels may be cleaned with an occasional damp wiping.

Among the new bathroom treatments introduced by interior decorators are rooms with a marble-patterned walnut or sunset wall, rich cherry, natural walnut or striped mahogany woodgrains also are gaining popularity as a bathroom wall panel.

For those who prefer plain colors, Marflex is available in 16 inch planks that are particularly effective in a smaller bathroom, where alternating pastel shades create a feeling of spaciousness. These planks may also be used around the vanity, storage space or dressing area in a larger bathroom.

Welfare Officials Reject Idea of Forcing Recipients To Work on Public Projects

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Most government and welfare officials in Canada agree that attempts should be made to find jobs for able-bodied welfare recipients but they reject the idea that recipients should be forced to work on public projects.

Dave Boldt, social welfare and rehabilitation minister in Saskatchewan's new Liberal government, suggested recently that the federal government share with the provinces and municipalities the cost of taking such persons off relief rolls and putting them to work on public projects. He said such a program could not be implemented unless all provinces agreed to it.

In a separate suggestion affecting his province only his department, as it does each year, asked all municipalities in Saskatchewan to get all able-bodied men off the relief rolls within two weeks. He said ablebodied persons comprise only five per cent of the 36,000 persons now on relief in the province.

Provincial policy stipulates that if an able-bodied man refuses to take a job offered to him, his relief is cut off.

"Our government does not believe the cure for unemployed able-bodied man a living," said Mr. Boldt.

PIERRE SHOWN

A Cross-Canada survey by The Canadian Press shows that Newfoundland is the only province which have expressed desire for such a plan. Premier Smallwood said the city of Newfoundland legislature during the last session he could "give all the unemployed in Newfoundland at least some work during the year, without resorting to welfare, if only Ottawa would pay the cost."

Emilien Lafrance, minister of family and social welfare in Quebec, said his department would not go along with a policy which would force beneficiaries of welfare to work for their money.

In regard to the cost-sharing by the federal government, Ottawa is bound by law on this issue and has refused to yield.

Parliament has authorized the federal treasury to pay half the bills run up by the provinces and their municipalities in relief payments to the unemployed.

Ottawa's official view, therefore, is that if a city or province puts a man to work—even on a project that is no longer unemployed and the 50-per-cent federal share is not paid. Thus a forced-work program would not receive financial support from the federal government and welfare laws were changed.

HAS NO PLAN

A spokesman for the Ontario welfare department said the provincial government has no plan to make relief recipients go to work, nor is any such plan being considered. He said Ontario relies mainly on the winter works programs in most municipalities to alleviate the unemployment problem, since most unemployment in Ontario is seasonal.

Nearly 1,500 bodied men in New Brunswick are cut off from relief if they refuse a job and Premier Robichaud, deputy minister of youth and welfare, said this province also further proposes to start such as that in Saskatchewan.

Premier Bennett of British Columbia said his government has long been in favor of putting relief recipients to work on public projects and agreed the federal government would have to share the cost. Welfare Minister W. S. K. Jones, Nova Scotia welfare minister, said his province has no plan to force municipalities provide work projects for men on relief, but municipalities have set up rules which prevent some men from getting these jobs. He did not elaborate.

Welfare Minister J. R. Carlyle of Manitoba said his province believes "in work instead of relief rather than work for relief." He said he agrees with the Saskatchewan plan because a man taken from relief for a month's work gets income from the labor market and is unable to look for a regular job.

The welfare department in Alberta has a prevention and rehabilitation branch which attempts to prevent people from going on welfare and to find jobs for those already on it.

Welfare Minister Dan Hilash W. W. Reid of Prince Edward Island said "It isn't a big problem in Prince Edward Island because there are few able-bodied men on relief. Most are self employed in farming and fishing.

Beaverbrook Called Egocentric

LONDON (CP)—Lord Beaverbrook was shamelessly egocentric, almost totally irresponsible and advocated political policies which would have "destroyed rubbish," the left-wing New Statesman says.

The weekly says although Lord Beaverbrook, Canadian-born millionaire publisher who died Wednesday, had his good points he was "a man of greatness in the two world wars, nevertheless his is a "record of unmitigated failure."

After spurring on aircraft production early in the Second World War, which he was a cabinet minister, "he became a symbol of mistrust and disunity."

As a newspaper man, he was "successful," says the New Statesman, but his Daily Express and Evening Standard were not influential and he held views of a great public entertainer."

"It is much to the credit of the country that it has relished the entertainment of its newspapers that their central political message was ignored for the lighthearted, irresponsible, and frequently carefree Windsor Castle and . . . of neighboring St. George's Chapel during Britain's finest hour.

Three more knights will be admitted into the order. They are Field Marshal Sir Gerald Templer former chief of the Imperial general staff; Lord Alexander of Hillsborough, leader of the opposition in the Lords and Viscount Cobham, governor-general of New Zealand from 1957 to 1962.

Dr. Swan, leading the procession of heralds, knights and the queen, who is the sovereign of the order, will wear red jacket, black breeches and a tabard or coat of rich velvet. On his head will be a Tudor cap of velvet embroidered with the royal badge of the rose.

Born on Vancouver Island 39 years ago, Dr. Swan left British Columbia at 13 to go to a private school in Weybridge, Surrey, but took degrees later at Assumption University, Windsor, Ont., and at the University of Toronto. He is 46 and has lectured at Assumption from 1956-59.

The Swan now lives at Boxford, Suffolk, with his English wife, Lady Hilda, and their four children, ranging in age from four months to 4½ years.

The job of Rouge Dragon was bestowed on Dr. Swan about a year ago. He is an apprentice herald and it is a full-time job. Heralds are trained and applied for it," said his wife, who spoke egotistically broke off a telephone interview with The Canadian Press to "look after these four screaming children of mine."

Girl Bitten By Rattler Is Improving

HONEY HARBOUR, Ont. (CP)—Jennifer Linville, 16, was bitten in the left leg Wednesday by a snake believed to be a massasauga rattler, and reported in good condition in a nearby Midland hospital Thursday.

Sandra, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hewitt who operate a resort at Honey Harbour, north of here, will leave hospital in two or three days, officials said.

The girl and two companions, Judy Longlad and Elizabeth Kirk, were going by boat to a wooded area about a mile from the resort and were walking through the area when Sandra was bitten. The girls, all familiar with the Massasauga rattler, rushed back to the resort by boat.

There is no road from the resort to Honey Harbour and the girl was brought here by boat.

The snake taken to Midland in a police-escorted car and was injected with antivenin.

Although the Massasauga rattler is not considered as dangerous as other rattlesnakes because of its smaller size and shorter fangs, its venom can prove fatal if not neutralized in time.

Honey Harbour is 40 miles northwest of Orillia.

Stock Dealings of Companies With Claims Near Site of Timmins Strike to Be Probed

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario will investigate the stock dealings in companies with claims near the site of a rich base-metal find at Timmins.

Announcing the investigation Thursday, Attorney - General Wishart said a three-man team will try to find out how much money the companies raised, the cost of raising it and the methods used in selling the stocks.

About 90 or 95 companies were involved in the Timmins area following the strike, announced in April, by Texas Gulf Sulphur Co. of New York.

Reaction to the investigation described by J. R. Kimber, Ontario Securities Commission chairman, as the first of its type in the province was swift.

The Toronto Stock Exchange, guided by the Ontario government, said it would, but certificated the attorney-general for his action.

The exchange said in a special statement the investigation would make it difficult for genuine companies to raise funds for development, and such a commission would be "most regrettable."

WELCOMES PROBE

But Peter Hallett, a Toronto geologist and head of four firms active in the Timmins area, personally welcomed Thursday's inquiry, adding that "it's time somebody separated the wheat from the chaff."

Other mining company officials either refused to comment, or could not be reached for comment.

Premier Robarts noted that the inquiry also will assist the United States' Securities and Exchange Commission in its inquiry initiated from the OSC in an investigation it is making into trading in shares of Texas Gulf both before and after the announcement of 26,000,000-ton, $250,000,000 copper-zinc-silver strike 15 miles north of Timmins.

The inquiry will cover trading in stocks from Nov. 1, 1963, to the present and findings will be made directly to the attorney-general.

The government is interested in insuring the economic benefits which flow from the stock market activity," the robarts-line continued, adding that the inquiry gives an opportunity to "inquire into the economic consequences of this type of financing of natural resources industries."

The three man appointed are H. C. McGuire, an OSC investigator, and auditors J. E. Marshall and S. Gorecki. Mr Kimber could give no estimate as to when findings may be announced.

Shares of penny mining companies rocketed on the Toronto and Montreal stock exchanges after the announcement of the Texas Gulf find April 16.

Two stocks active at the time of the announcement were Kerr Explorations Ltd. and Bunker Hill Explorations Ltd. The former rose from 40 cents to a record share prior to the announcement, then shot to a high of $1.38. It closed Thursday at 84 cents.

Bunker Hill reached a high of $1.40 and fell to 72 cents a share. It closed Thursday at 56 cents.

WASHINGTON (CP) — The U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission will co - operate closely with the Ontario government while plans to investigate the trading of mining shares following claims near Timmins a spokesman said Thursday.

The U.S. commission launched its own investigation soon after the find and is interested in the question of whether there was "abuse of inside information" by any officials connected with Texas Gulf in order to benefit through stock price fluctuations, the spokesman said the commissioner's investigation is still in the early stages.

First Time Canadian Will Lead Garter Procession

LONDON (CP)—For the first time in the 612-year history of England's most exclusive society a Canadian is to lead the annual garter procession at Windsor Castle.

He is Dr. Conrad Swan, formerly of Duncan, B.C., and now Windsor Herald, the assistant title of Rouge Dragon Pursuivant of Arms, and the honor of leading the procession falls to him by tradition, as the most recently appointed officer.

The Order of the Garter is considered perhaps the world's most ancient and glorious order of chivalry. Founded by Edward III in 1348, it has had the same symbol of mistrust and disunity.

Government Believes $500 House Bonus Was Success

OTTAWA (CP)—The government believes it has scored a dumping success with its $500 bonus to purchasers of winter-built houses.

The object was to create winter employment by giving house-builders an incentive to stretch their business over the fall year, instead of concentrating on eight warm - weather months.

In effect it meant "borrowing" some house construction that normally would be started this spring and summer. But that didn't bother the federal planners. They reckoned that a man laid off in the summer could find another job easier than in the winter.

From evidence available so far, it appears the scheme worked. In fact it worked better than even the most optimistic officials here had foreseen.

Finance Minister Gordon announced recently that the program will be repeated next winter.

The device is simple: The government pays the $500 bonus to anyone who is the first buyer of a new house built between Nov. 1 and April 1 and who could use the money as he wished. In practice, many entered it over the half-way point of the down payment.

ANNOUNCED EARLY

The bonus was announced early enough to allow builders to pour foundations before the end of November, when it became lowed to string first-floor joists before Dec. 1—but if they went any further, the bonus would not qualify for a bonus.

The government paid bonuses on 28,000 houses by the end of the four-month period. It cost the federal treasury $14,000,000.

The labor department estimates that completing these houses created 28,000 man-years of jobs and another 113,000 off-site jobs such as in sawmills, supply and service companies and transportation. This totals 205,000 jobs.

But since an estimated half of these houses probably would have been built anyway, regardless of the bonus, the real extra jobs created total a little over 100,000.

Officials now believe so much was saved in not having to pay unemployment insurance, that the government effect cost of $13,864,500 in bonus payments.

Another factor is that while the $500 is not taxable in the hands of the house-buyer, he probably has spent it. Whoever gets it increases his income. Therefore part of the money will trickle back into the federal coffers through income taxes.

Thus the government probably will break even—perhaps even make a little money. Most builders also ended up with a good year. New-house salesmen had big earnings.

But there is some doubt over whether the house-buyers got full value from their $500 government bonus.

Winter construction costs more. Some builders place the extra cost—back-to-back is big factor — at between $250 and $500.

TAX WENT UP

Another element was the initial sales tax which came on the new building - materials sales tax. This rose to eight per cent on April 1, and is scheduled to reach 11 per cent next Jan. 1. It is applied at the manufacturer's level but is passed on to builders.

The average cost of a bungalow financed under the National Housing Act rose by 23 cents a square foot to $10.78 between the first quarter of 1964 and the January - March period this year. On the average 1,200-square - foot bungalow, that meant an extra $276.

There is no accurate measurement of how much house building was actually "backed up" into the winter period.

The indication may lie in the fact that new-house starts in Canada in April were down 17 per cent from April last year. At the same time, starts in apartment buildings were up 27 per cent, raising over-all starts by 2.7 per cent and thus maintaining activity.

C. J. Cooper New Chairman Of Association

Cooper of the Northern Electric Co. Ltd., was elected Divisional Chairman, succeeding F. C. Whitney of the Aluminum Co. of Canada Ltd., Kingston, Ont.

The Central Ontario Division covers the area between Gananoque, Ont., and Alex. Ont., and north to the Peterborough-Lindsay area.

The objectives of an I.A.P.A. division are to promote and advance the work of preventing accidents in the industries included in the area in which it operates, and to provide the means of meetings and other approved projects to motivate the industry and the business community to become more accident prevention conscious.

Mr. Cooper has been active in the I.A.P.A. for the past five years.

Topless Ladies' Bathing Suit Selling Well

NEW YORK (AP) — The trade deal in fashion is bare.

And nobody is more surprised than the designers who brought it about and some of the buyers who are buying it.

"It's incredible," said Harold Gernreich Thursday-day after a hectic day of taking orders for his topless knitted bathing suit model.

"The time is right for it, I guess," said the California designer.

"But I did not make up my mind to sell it until three days ago."

Meanwhile in the garment district, Bill Smith, designer for Reban's Fashion House, was also exclaiming delightedly over the buyers' orders for his sheer-bodiced dresses. Only the flimsiest layer of flesh - colored nylon simulates "for figure control" separates the net surface of the blouse from the bare truth.

Recently decolletage has become so "de" that dresses are a mere step or two away from being topless anyway. The bare-chested woman at the beach was the trend which Gernreich prognosticated not for now but another three or four years hence.

Only to demonstrate how the topless swimsuit might look, Gernreich created one. The model appeared in magazines and the orders followed.

Labor Retains Scottish Seat By Bigger Vote

LIVERPOOL, England (Reuters) — The opposition Labor party retained its parliamentary seat in the Scotland constituency of Liverpool in a Thursday byelection, with a increase of 1,507 votes over its 1959 general election victory margin.

The result was Walter Alldritt (Labor) 13,558, Brian Keefe (Conservative) 8,877.

Political observers were watching the results with an eye to the general election in October.

Labor's share of the poll was 74.52 per cent. Its share in 1959 was 61.82 per cent.

There is a general exodus of MPs, back to their offices or to committee sessions. Press gallery members spill out of their quarters above the Speaker's chair and rush for typewriters and telephones. All but the unlisted hotels in the public galleries leave for the day.

And the few remaining MPs in the House of Commons generally is in the range of 200 for question period, the Commons sometimes gets a little difficulty retaining its quorum of 20 for the debate.

But then the law-making work is accomplished.

Parliamentary Notebook

OTTAWA (CP)—The nation's lawmakers finally are making some progress, quietly and unnoticed, in the annual ritual fire of the daily wrangle among politicians that marks the Commons question period.

In recent days, the debating period has shown a noticeable tendency to be less bitter and disparticularly that prevails during question time in the Commons.

As a result also of somewhat closer liaison between party whips and house leaders, the current parliamentary session which built a name for itself of being action packed, is now difficulty.

After lengthy committee hearings, Parliament has given first reading to a bill to amend certain with the United States finally won sanction. Amendments to the Income Tax Act would prohibit establishing a single chief of staff as a prerequisite of unification of the armed forces, was rejected and adopted. So has extension of the National Housing Act and amendments to the Farm Credit Act are well on the road to approval.

WELL, IT LASTS

How long this atmosphere, will last is debatable, however.

On Monday, Conservative Minister Pearson opens the flag debate. Conservatives still insist they will fight adoption of a new flag with every parliamentary device at their disposal.

What the present session has seen in parliamentary development is a more clear-cut division between the question period and the daily debating period.

When the Commons assemblies each day, the public galleries and the press gallery are packed with persons waiting for the rough and tumble daily question period between the government and opposition — and among the opposition parties themselves.

TAKES AN HOUR

When an hour or so has gone by and tempers and patience has worn thin, Speaker Roland Michener, Macnaughton wearily calls "orders of the day." Clerk Assistant T. R. Montgomery reads the day's order of business.

There is transformation comes over the House.

There is a general exodus of MPs, back to their offices or to committee sessions. Press gallery members spill out of their

Freak Reception On TV Set Helps Police

WALLACEBURG, Ont. (CP) Freak reception of a police call on a woman's television set helped police track a burglary fiends and along highways Thursday and ended with the capture of a man wanted by Brampton and Oshawa police.

Howard Kramer, 32, of Woodstock, is charged with theft.

Police were conducting a search about 20 miles northwest of Chatham with a rented light plane and 13 cars, when they received a telephone call from an anonymous woman who said she heard a police call on her television set. The description fitted that of a man who had just crossed her front lawn. After a car and foot chase, the man was captured.

Brampton police hold warrants charging Kramer with assaulting a police officer and Oshawa police were seeking him on a fraud charge.

A police spokesman said he didn't know how the woman received the call on television, but it might have been due to some atmospheric condition affecting her set.

SPENDING SETS RECORD

SUDBURY (CP) — James Auld, Ontario minister of consumer and corporation affairs, said Thursday tourist spending in the province last year reached a record $1,400,000,000. He said his department's budget was increased, bringing last year's net gain to nearly $1,000,000,000.

General Strike in Nigeria Has Observers Worried

By ROD CURRIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Western observers who have long considered Nigeria the most promising country in Africa are becoming increasingly worried by the paralyzing general strike in its second week with no end in sight.

They are concerned not so much with the strike itself but with the political implications of what could emerge from it.

Compared with Ghana and other African neighbors, Nigeria has enjoyed a reputation for internal stability and level headedness in external affairs and Britain looked on it as a model for other developing countries.

The majority of the West-African country's 38,000,000 people, the largest population bloc on the continent, had hoped for the prosperity that failed to materialize during three years of independence from British would finally come when the republic was established last October.

But still the old imbalance between the poverty of the masses and the ostentatious luxury of the few persisted.

Many think the government was rather naive and inept in its handling of the situation. But still it must be appreciated that the country's economic situation did not permit any very bold attempts to appease the majority.

BEHIND SCHEDULE

Development plans have fallen behind schedule through lack of expected outside capital and unemployment still is high.

Until the crisis, trade unions were never particularly strong or well organized. But when the government continually rejected wage demands, the unions won favor and finally formed the joint action committee which forced the appointment of a wage commission.

Its recommendations further aroused suspicions by first delaying publication of its findings and then rejecting the main recommendation — a minimum monthly wage of £13, about $36.40 Canadian, for unskilled men,* ministers, senior civil servants and employers, claim it is unrealistic but his Daily Express and Evening Standard were not influential and he held views of a great public entertainer."

NAME THORSON

TORONTO (CP) — Hon. Joseph T. Thorson of Ottawa, retired president of the Exchequer Court of Canada, has been appointed chairman of the Ontario July into alleged discrimination by an Ottawa firm which refused to hire a Negro mannequin. The Ontario Human Rights Commission said Thursday it asked the department of labor for the inquiry after failing to conciliate claims by Richard Plummer of Ottawa that Waverley Motors Limited refused to hire last April because he was Negro.

During the uproar, Waldon refused to withdraw his remarks.

May Stage Long Canoe Race As Part of Centenary Project

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP) — Seven experts on the ancient Canadian art of canoeing met Wednesday to discuss the possibility of restaging the pioneer fur-trading and voyageur treks as a 1967 centenary project.

Their findings will be filed in a report to the Centennial Commission and Expo 67, the world's fair to be held in Montreal.

John Fisher, centennial commissioner who opened the meeting said the feasibility of a 100-day race from Edmonton to Montreal is being studied before deciding whether it should be undertaken as a government-sponsored project.

"We are told the trip can be done in 100 days, and we'd like to see it done in 100 days to mark the 100 years of Confederation. Some of the fur-traders certainly did it in 100 days."

One thing, though, the race is likely to be run in the west-to-east direction, to climax at the fair and to draw attention from across Canada to Ottawa and Montreal.

ROUTE UNDECIDED

Whether it will be a straight race from Edmonton to Montreal, or whether it will be run in lazy-time point to point along the way tied in with local centennial celebrations, is undecided.

Matt Bernard of Golden Lake, Ont., one of the oldest—"well into my 80s" — native Indian builders of birch-bark canoes sat in as a technical consultant.

But his report was discouraging to those who hope to stage the trek with authentic birch-bark canoes. There just isn't the birch bark available in sufficient size and quantity to build enough canoes for the race.

For participants in the trek, the idea is to have crews from each of the 10 provinces and the two far-northern territories. Perhaps university students or Indians will be engaged to represent some of the provinces.

"We think it is a good idea which should go ahead if all the details can be worked out," Mr. Fisher said after the meeting.

"Besides the element of competition and the spectator-sport interest in such a trek, it would serve to emphasize the heritage that has been left to Canada by the courage and stamina of the voyageurs and fur - traders."

F. U. Local 171 Presents Many Resolutions

BONARLAW — The May meeting of Local 171 of Ontario Farmers' Union was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Cosbey.

Plans were made for the campaign sale in Springbrook hall this month and tickets will be sold on a quilt, the draw to be made on night of sale.

A letter from head office regarding the Union's junior activities contained a lengthy discussion and it was decided to ask the 4-H Club and Junior Farmer members to participate messages, art writing, printing, verse writing, drawing map of the county and agricultural scrapbook.

Mrs. George Williams gave an address on farm labor and education. A bus load from Hastings County attended a membership meeting in Oshawa on June 3rd. The speaker was Walter Belcher.

A resolution was proposed by Bob Cosbey asking the C.B.C. to broadcast the sessions of the provincial legislature and federal parliament so that listeners could hear the varied opinions of the members on national and international affairs, as well as get a first hand report on the work of local members. This resolution received the support of the meeting. A second resolution proposed that school taxes be levied on dwellings only, land being exempt. This also received unanimous support of the members.

A short program was presented with Mrs. Ella Munday, Mrs. H. Bateman and Albert Munday giving readings. An emergency one-day membership meeting of the Ontario Farmers' Union was held on June 6th at Oshawa. President M. J. Tebbutt of Markdale gave the address.

DIVISION REACHED

The decision was reached during the meeting of the Ontario Farmers' Union Board of Directors, held recently in order to clarify policy matters regarding farm marketing and farm marketing boards.

In addressing the meeting, Mr. Tebbutt explained that because of the dire need for a realistic improvement in farm income coupled with the lack of any significant improvement in farm marketing, a great need exists for taking a new look at where agriculture is headed, as well as deciding on objectives that will price farm produce according to its value.

He said that a number of resolutions received by the Farm Union indicated a "change of thinking" within the membership and farmers in general, toward further support for the type of marketing procedures that exist.

Mr. Tebbutt said that he believed farmers are becoming unsatisfied and are not going to continue supporting a theory when their income does not show improvement.

Economic Revolution Taking Place in Ireland Under P. M. Sean Lemass

By CAROL KENNEDY

DUBLIN (CP)—A quiet revolution is taking place in Ireland, four decades after the stormy one in which Sinn Fein nationalists wrested power from Britain. This time it's economic, not political, though Irish politics are taking on a new look in the process.

The new revolution may have even more lasting effects than the old one, because it has broken the stifling bonds of poverty, a dwindling population and all the defensive attitudes summed up in the slogan Sinn Fein—"Ourselves Alone."

Ireland isn't alone any more. Psychologically, she is part of the new Europe, though her trade links with Britain mean she cannot join the six-nation Economic Community until British does—probably not before 1970. French President de Gaulle's veto of Britain in January, 1963, was a bitter blow to Irish hopes, but the now-distant dust still beckons bright.

Garret FitzGerald, economic pundit of the Irish Times, says Ireland looking ahead to 1970 has already proved a valuable stimulus to Irish industry, making it more outward-looking and more growth-conscious.

EXPORTS HIT RECORD

That's something of an understatement. With the completion of his five-year First Program for Economic Expansion, Prime Minister Sean Lemass saw the Irish economy enter 1964 almost "fighting fit." In fact, annual growth has been raised to a steady four per cent and exports have hit a record level in the new era—boosted to a record level in 1963 of nearly £196,000,000.

In a recent report, Europe's Organization for Economic Co-Operation and Development called the plan "highly successful" and expressed optimism about the second program, an ambitious six-year blueprint that aims to raise national income 50 per cent by 1970—the general European target—as well as modernize the entire structure of the Irish economy.

The architect of modern Ireland represents a new breed of Irish politician, though his roots go back to the revolution. An energetic, young - looking 64, Sean Lemass took part in the Easter Week rising of 1916 and fought with de Valera's Irish Republican Army in the civil war of the early 1920s. Yet his pragmatic, forward-looking approach seems a generation removed from the utopian dreams of the Sinn Feiners, even from his predecessor, the idealistic de Valera.

CLOSE TO SOCIALISM

Lemass has led the Fianna Fail party—the name means knights of destiny and is pronounced roughly Feena Foyla—since 1926, when de Valera became third president of the republic. By temperament and outlook, he is a planner who sees the role of government as a "dynamic instrument" in the economic and social fields.

"Outsiders think of us as a conservative, hierarchical society because of the Roman Catholic church," said one Dublin journalist. "In fact we're moving towards something very like a socialist state."

Most of the Irish economy, including fuel, power and transport, is "state-sponsored" as they call it here, a phrase implying co-operation rather than coercion by government. In some ways the national industries are ahead of their big brothers across the Irish Sea.

Ireland put her own "Beeching plan"—trimming redundant railways to cut losses—into operation while the British equivalent was scarcely out of a stormy national debate. In time, the Irish transport system may do away with railways altogether, except for commuter lines into Dublin, concentrating instead on improving bus services.

Ireland's national airline Aer Lingus has a bank account to shame Britain's mighty BOAC, chronically millions in the red.

FOREIGN INVESTMENT UP

Among the most impressive achievements of Sean Lemass's first economic plan was the stimulus given to foreign investment and to exports, particularly exports of manufactured goods. With a cramped home market — fewer than 3,000,000 people—Ireland has always relied heavily on her export trade, but until recently this rested almost exclusively on cattle to Britain, food and drink and a few cottage industries like tweed and linen.

Now she is in everything from scientific instruments to processed turf fuel; high - fashion clothes to farm machinery; carpets to chemical products and confectionery. Lemass has sent out hordes of high-pressure salesmen around the world that a recent cartoon in the humorous journal Dublin Opinion showed a newly fledged Irish ambassador wheeling a trolley of export samples into a room full of foreign diplomats.

In the competitive hustle of the new Europe, Ireland's place will depend on industrial productivity. To achieve a 50-per-cent rise in gross national product, her industrial exports alone must rise by 150 per cent since they have already soared some 700 per cent in 11 years and now form more than a quarter of total exports, the target is regarded by OECD experts as realistic.

For historical and political reasons, the industrial revolution bypassed southern Ireland. Development was set back decades by the treaty of partition in 1920, which severed the industrialized, shipbuilding north from the underdeveloped, agricultural south.

Now the revolution rolls along with quickening speed. The government tempts foreign factories with substantial cash grants, a surplus labor force and additional subsidies to firms prepared to open in the backward rural west and north. Investment is rising and since 1956 nearly 190 new plants with foreign backing have opened.

The Second Program for Economic Expansion aims to bring about sweeping changes in Irish life, expanding secondary schools — now largely in the hands of religious foundations — and doubling electricity production from the mighty Shannon scheme; redeveloping Irish cities; lowering emigration to a maximum of 10,000 a year and halving unemployment, now seven per cent. Most of the surplus labor is to be absorbed into industry as agriculture, too, is modernized.

It is also planned to improve the social services, described now as being "a poor imitation of what existed in Britain before 1948."

STUDY FRENCH METHODS

Irish planners are picking the brains of Europe. France is admired for her "concerted economy"—state and private industry co - ordinating for mutual benefit — which has doubled production in 10 years. The mechanics of the French Commissariat au Plan are studied by Dublin experts, who have already forged one of Europe's most advanced instruments for economic planning in the Central Statistics Department.

Another brainchild of the first economic program was the creation within the finance ministry of an economic development division to forecast market trends, seek suitable projects for state investment and estimate the best ways of tapping their potential.

Far from being the sinister phrase it is some Scottish Tory ears, economic planning to the Irish is seen as a vital weapon to complete the revolution that was begun in military and political terms nearly 50 years ago. Whether Ireland joins the EEC or not, the challenge is basically one of survival as an economic unit. Patrick Lynch, economics lecturer at University College, Dublin, has said the alternative may be "disillusion with Ireland's capacity to regulate its own economic affairs and indeed govern itself generally for the remainder of the twentieth century."

NEW REVOLUTION IN IRELAND—A ship lies at anchor by Customs House in Dublin, a symbol of international trade which is the key to the economic revolution in the Republic of Ireland. With the completion of a five-year program for economic expansion introduced by Prime Minister Sean Lemass, Ireland's exports reached a record level of almost £196,000,000 in 1963. Industrial exports alone have soared 700 per cent in 11 years and now form more than a quarter of total exports. (CP Photo)

Police Under No Obligation Says Justice

QUEBEC (CP)—Chief Justice Leslie Tremblay of the Quebec Court of Appeal said Wednesday "certain journalists" are abusing the right" to be informed on the administration of public affairs.

He told the Quebec Association of Police and Fire Chiefs they are under no obligation to "keep the public informed about (police) investigations."

"Moreover, I believe that you are obliged to remain silent every time a disclosure could hamper your work or tarnish the reputations of the persons involved."

Chief Justice Tremblay said journalists who abuse the right to information "are incited to do so by the public itself."

An increase in leisure time had given the public more time to "read newspapers, listen to the radio and look at television."

SEEK SCANDAL

Many people, he said, "look especially for big sensations and scandals.

"Certain journalists allow themselves to exploit this desire and they obviously strive to obtain from you (the police) information that would titillate their readers."

To follow such a policy of silence "will scarcely make you popular," he told delegates.

"But in accepting the post of administrators of the law, you have by that very fact renounced popularity, at least for your lifetime."

He said constitutional law, calls for publication of the records of judicial proceedings. But this could be made applicable to the executive branch, the administrative power."

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

He is an honor graduate of the College of Applied Yeglers, Swannekie, and Hunchbirry. He is plenty-eyed from too much gazing at his pet crystal ball; vocals to all and sundry whatever hunch-wise comes to mind, a hero to his fans and a definite pain-in-the-neck to those who don't like him. He puts them all together and they spell championship hockey clubs.

Yeah, yeah, yeah, you're right. He's Punch Imlach, whose hunch offensive joined the hockey world when he picked up (for $60,000), two alleged ready-for-you-alan warbesses in the persons of Terry Sawchuk and Dickie Moore.

The first jolt came, at least to this corner, when Detroit Red Wings and Montreal Canadiens, after all the ballyhoo about Moore being a lifesaver next season, left him and Sawchuk unprotected in the draft.

Which goes to show that National Hockey League clubs' ambassadors-at-large publicity gagsters like Rocket Richard either make statements for publication only—or know what they're talking about. Richard shot a lot of guff the other day about Moore being invaluable to the Canadiens—if his legs pass a medical exam. He scoffed at the idea of the Habs leaving Moore unprotected.

Canadiens tossed him to the pack and Big Red Wolf Imlach snatched him without waiting for a rebound. In the third round the Red Wings heaved Sawchuk into the discard and Imlach pounced again with the second surprise of the gathering. In a few minutes awhile the Leafs managers picked Smehuk over Gump Worsley.

If Imlach's shot-calling is par for the course, and Moore finds his underpinning back to form, Leafs have secured what they needed, a high-scoring left winger.

Father Time weighed the scales in the Wings-Sawchuk divorce. What seven people figure is a one-time goner, has in this corner's opinion a helluva lot of hockey left in his battle-scarred frame. Imlach says Terry will split the 70-game schedule with number oh-oh, one Roger Crozier.

Red Wings coach Sid Abel appears to be patterning himself, dealer-wise, after an illustrious predecessor Jolly Jawn Adams. "Jawn" figured hockey success is not built on sentiment and would part with a player plumb out of the box.

Abel said the Wings' brass had given the Sawchuk deal much consideration and decided a younger man would be more to their pizzas and liking, despite Sawchuck's record and shutouts, plus being named an all-star three times. He is the NHL Mr. Zero all right, 96 blanks all told, a record.

At that, I believe, had Adams been in control of the Red Wings, Sawchuck would have gone long ere this Adams was a stickler for youth. He says there are guys still in the league who are 38, 37 and 36 years old. "We know they aren't going to be around much longer. A guy like that can have a good year and have nothing left when the next season starts. They can go overnight."

Adams even admits that his personal "superstar," Gordie Howe, is slipping a little. "He's a super-athlete," he says, "but nobody goes on forever."

Howe has been in the league 18 years and would like to make it 20. "He is not the hockey player he was 10 or even five years ago," Adams opines. "But the great ones like Howe and Rocket Richard can slip a long way and still be better than about 90 percent of the guys in the league. I think Howe can play for a couple more years and still be good, if he is handled properly."

Secret Draft At $2,000 Per Head

NHL Clubs Each Grab Four Juniors

HOW THEY SHAPE UP — These are the statistics on champion Emile Griffith and ex-champion Luis Rodriguez for their world welterweight title bout Friday. The 15-round fight will be held in Las Vegas. (AP Wirephoto)

MONTREAL (CP)—The National Hockey League's annual meeting, the occasion of three major trades and a spectacular draft session, came to a close Thursday with a secret draft of junior players.

Each of the six teams took four potential juniors at $2,000 apiece but the session was closed and no names were announced. Most of the players are about 18 years old and no rights can be exercised until they reach 18.

The 24 draftees, selected from a well-scouted group of 50, cannot be approached until they're 18 and even then are not obligated to turn pro or align with the team to which he belonged. These rights are automatically relinquished after a year.

Two-thirds of the $2,000 draft price goes to the team for which the youngster played in 1963-64 and one-third is paid to the team to w ich he belonged the previous season. If it's the same club, it gets the full amount.

Montreal Canadiens didn't exercise its special option to sign a player, when the junior draft was inaugurated, but this year made full use of its right to choose two players who are sons of a French-Canadian father.

WAS ANTICLIMAX

The draft was anticlimactic to three days of wheeling and dealing that saw the following developments:

—Two trades between Boston and Chicago that saw major leaguers Murray Balfour, Reggie Fleming and Ab McDonald of Chicago switch to Bruin uniforms and Jerry Toppazzini and Doug Mohns join the Black Hawks.

—Toronto Maple Leafs pick up retired Dickie Moore from the Canadiens and goalie Terry Sawchuk from Detroit Red Wings in the draft.

—Fourteen raised to almost $10,000 for retired 10 - year players, bonus money for the players increased and a trophy named in honor of Conn Smythe for the top performer in the Stanley Cup playoffs.

In its final session, the NHL gave approval to teams to play a maximum of two exhibition games with other league teams on a club's home ice. Previously, none were allowed.

There was also discussion and awaited confirmation of the appointment of a New York public relations firm to publicize hockey in the United States and attract sponsors for possible future U.S. television coverage of NHL games.

British Open Champ Wins 5th Round

CARNOUSTIE, England (CP-AP) — Defending champion Michael Lent of England forged a fifth-round victory over fellow-countryman John Young Thursday and won a berth in the British amateur golf championship quarter-finals.

Lent beat Young 2 to 1. In morning fourth - round play, Lent defeated Henry Webb, also of England, by the same margin.

In other fifth-round competition Joe Carr, the British Walker Cup champion from Ireland, defeated Alec Kyle of England 3 and 1; John Hall of England beat fellow Briton Mike Burgess 1 up and England's D. S. Harrison defeated John Glover of Ireland also 1 up.

Bob Sweeny, 35-year-old resident of Palm Beach, Fla., also won his way into the quarter-finals Thursday with a 2 and 1 victory over Peter Flaherty of England in the fifth round.

Sweeny, British champion in 1937, was the only one of four Americans to survive the fifth round.

RUSSIANS QUIT

LONDON (AP) — Two Soviet women pulled out of the Kent tennis championships Thursday rather than play two South African in a Russian protest of South Africa's policies on racial segregation. The situation raised the possibility of embarrassment for the organizers of the Wimbledon championships next week, but officials of the All England Club said Wimbledon will not make any changes in the draw to accommodate the Russians.

Griffith Meets Rodriguez Crown on Line Tonight

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—The world welterweight crown, which has been in and out of the hands of Emile Griffith since 1961, goes on the line again tonight when the New York champion faces ex-champion Luis Rodriguez of Miami.

The 15-round bout will be televised over the ABC network, starting at 10 p.m. EDT.

Rodriguez, the 26 - year - old Cuban exile who won and lost the title in two fights with Griffith in New York last year, remained an 8-to-5 favorite to return to the top spot of the 147-pound division.

This will be the fourth meeting of the two fighters. They had two 15-round title engagements last year and a 10-rounder in 1960, when both were title contenders.

Griffith won the first and third fight and each stirred up a row. Two of the verdicts were split decisions.

"California Cuties" Here Monday

The California Cuties, softball's celebrated sensations, will bring their unpredicted parcel of gags to the Belleville Fairgrounds on Monday night.

The Cuties will be matched against players of the Belleville and District Softball League in a special 7.15 game. Belleville's share of the gate will be turned over to the Belleville Minor Softball Association.

Stars from the Ellis Juniors and Trenton Commercial Printers are slated to start the game, since Trudeau Motors and Tweed have a scheduled game in Tweed that evening at 8.45. Most of the players hope to be back in time to take part in the latter stages of the Cuties' fixture.

The Cuties are a group of very talented softball players who choose to play it for laughs and laughs they do get. Dressed in female attire, the touring squad usually proves its ball-playing ability during the first three innings before turning to "serious clowning."

The team consists of such stars as "Little Beulah," a 36-inch high midget; six-foot-six "Dinah Shore"; the founder of the team and a top pitcher to boot, "Lim Jane"; plus "Scaggie Maggie", "Skinny Minnie", "Hefty Helen", "Dumpy Dora", "Viola Lynn", "Fifi the Flirt", "Main Street Sally" and "Leaping Lena."

The Cuties have entertained thousands of fans all over the world since their formation in 1948 and there is no reason to think they will not prove just as popular here Monday.

Despite the bag of gags, which includes everything from a pantomime infield drill, verbal banter with the opposing players, umpires and fans alike, to "Little Beulah's" stint on the mound (said to be worth the price of admission alone,) the Cuties can play ball—and they have the records to prove it. 1962 was a typical year and the Cuties won 96 of 110 games.

Softball fans, and others just looking for a laugh, will do well to catch the action.

Former Leafs Manager A's Fire Ed. Lopat; Hire McGaha

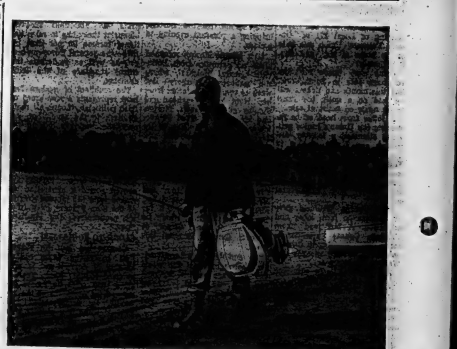
CLEVELAND (AP) — Mel McGaha takes over as manager of Kansas City Athletics in the city where he final managed a major league club, Cleveland.

The Athletics fired Ed Lopat, former New York Yankee pitching star, Thursday and immediately replaced him with the 37-year-old McGaha, coach with the club for a year.

The announcement by general manager Pat Friday Thursday kept McGaha from going to Withesville, Va., where he was to have reported in a few days as manager of the Athletics' rookie league farm club.

Lopat was stoical about being fired.

"It's standard procedure as far as baseball managers are concerned," he said. "It's easier to change the manager than to change five or 10 ball players."



MAY CHANGE ROUTINE

McGaha, whose rookie season as a major league manager was in Cleveland in 1963, said he may use starters as relievers. He did that as Cleveland manager and was criticized for it.

Lopat, a coach for the Athletics in 1962, became their manager on the last day of the season when Hank Bauer stepped down. Last season the club had a 73-89 record. So far this season it is 17-35.

McGaha, who never made the major leagues as a player, has managed minor league clubs t Shreveport, L., Mobile, Ala., and Toronto.

He was replaced as Cleveland manager at the end of the 1962 season by Birdie Tebbetts.

Motors are supposed to get bigger every year

(what happened to our new 9½?)

When the Evinrude engineers started to design our new 9½ they did the opposite to everybody else.

They went smaller.

They cut the size down to 34 inches. They reduced the weight. They improved the shape. They shortened the drive shaft to add power.

They made our 9½ into something that looks different and performs better than anything in its class. We predict that within 3 years every manufacturer will make motors like this.

Motors that are low-slung, so you can troll right over the stern. Motors that you can carry with one hand. Motors that plane along at over 20 mph.

Motors that troll at almost nothing mph. Motors that are so quiet you can't hear them when you're humming.

Motors like our new 9½.

Dropped 3rd Strike Costs Reds Win

Five Runs Follow

By MIKE RAYNER
Associated Press Sports Writer

There have been 6,119 strikeouts in the major leagues this year. Pitchers have been happy about 6,118 of them. The other four lost ball games.

It happened again Thursday night as Cincinnati catcher Johnny Edwards struck out. Dropped Third Strike Club that is quickly losing its exclusiveness.

Before Edwards could take his red face back to the privacy of the Reds' dugout, Houston Colts had rushed across five runs in the fifth inning, and rallied down a 3-2 victory.

John Tsitouris, the Reds' starter, held a 2-0 lead going into the fifth and retired the first two men. Al Spangler then drew a walk and Nellie Fox followed with a single.

Tsitouris, appeared out of trouble when he fired a third strike by Mike White, but the ball flashed past Edwards and White raced for first, loading the bases.

ADDS GRAND SLAM

Tsitouris, apparently unsettled, forced home Colts' first run by walking Dave Roberts and then Bob Aspromonte applied the crusher by smacking a grand slam homer.

The Dropped Third Strike Club has strict rules — the dropped strike must have directly led to a defeat. The other members in good standing are Joe Torre of Milwaukee Braves, Gus Triandos of Philadelphia Phillies and Mike Brumley of Washington Senators.

The Phillies, meanwhile, moved back into first place in the National League on their day off when Milwaukee defeated San Francisco Giants 8-5 and dropped them into second place, seven percentage points behind.

Don Drysdale posted his third shutout with a four-hitter in Los Angeles Dodgers' 5-0 victory over St. Louis Cardinals and Larry Jackson upped his eighth game as Chicago Cubs whipped New York Mets 6-3.

Aspromonte's homer was his third in three games. The Colts' third baseman also collected two singles, and in the last three games has collected seven hits in 12 at-bats.

Claude Raymond of St. Jean, Que., got the victory in relief, extending his scoreless innings streak to 22 before the Reds scored an unearned run in the eighth.

The Braves - Giants game seemed to revolve around San Francisco outfielder Harvey Kuenn, who lost Eddie Mathews' drive in the sun in the eighth inning for a three-run double. Then Kuenn homered in the bottom of the eighth.

He came up again in the ninth after Jim Giants had scored three runs and pulled within a run, but with a chance to win it he grounded into a double play.

Fallpe Alou's homer in the ninth against his former San Francisco teammates turned out to be the winning run as Warren Spahn brought his record to 5-4.

Drysdale, bringing his record to 8-5, was in serious trouble only in the fourth when the Cardinals loaded the bases with one out. But the Dodger right hander got Charley James on a shallow fly and Tim McCarver on a ground-out.

The Dodgers tied their season high for hits by collecting 14.

The Cubs pulled in front to stay against the Mets in the top of the first when Jim Stewart singled and Ron Santo homered. Santo later drove in the decisive run with a single in the seventh.

Driving Club Racing Card

Quinte Driving and Riding Club officials anticipate another outstanding race meet at the Trenton fairgrounds tonight.

With practically the same entries that thrilled a large crowd with photo finishes last Saturday night, they look to the same fine calibre of race for tonight.

Twenty-nine horses go to the barrier in the eight-heat four race card, and don't be surprised to see one or more photo decisions on any of the heats.

Heavy horses go to the post for the first and third races, seven will start in the second and six in the fourth.

The fourth race, a free-for-all, should be a thriller with last year's winner Lark, driven by G. Dolley of Port Hope, seeking its second straight victory. But some horsemen feel that any of the field of five will give "Lint" a run for the money.

The track is said to be in good shape and with good weather official look for the largest crowd to date.

City Hotel joined Lightfoots at the top of the Commercial Softball League standings last night by copping a 10-9 decision over Barrigye Landscapers.

The winners got the key victory by scoring four runs in the bottom of the sixth to snap a 6-6 tie, then cutting off a Barrigye rally which netted three runs in the top of the seventh. Barrigaes got the potential tying run as far as second before failing short.

Don Wood clouted a home run and single while Joe Harvey also homered for Barriages. Gary Wood tripled and doubled, Rod Turner and Gerry Genereaux also doubling, while Tim Cook, Cy Radford, Tom Coolen, Jim Sopha and Lawrence added singles.

Defeat Tweed 7-3

Homer Gives Juniors Win

Staff Sportswriter

Boby Moon's three-run homer in the sixth inning snapped a 3-3 tie and sent Ellis Juniors winging to a 7-3 triumph over Tweed Lombanks in a B. and D. softball tilt at CNRA Park last night.

The Juniors showed little respect for Blaine Healey's reputation, racking the Lombank ace for ten hits. They climbed into a 3-0 lead with two runs in the first and another in the third.

Tweed knotted the score in the fifth frame on a pair of fielding errors and a home run swat by Lorne Carleton with two out. T. LeSage followed with a triple but got caught after over-running third.

Ellis' restored the Juniors' lead in the sixth, following Boomhower's single and a walk with his round-tripper after two were down. The winners got a final tally in the seventh when Gardiner singled and came Boomhower's fly ball made it 5-3.

Soule doubled down the foul line and continued around on a passed ball and a wild pitch, in the second frame.

Bobby Ethier outpitched Healey to notch the victory. He was touched for five hits, four of them in the game's second half, while striking out nine and walking three.

Healey saw his strikeout average plunge when he nipped only five on strikes. He issued three free passes and hit another batter.

Moon paced the winners' attack with the home run and a single. Carl Boomhower, Eldon Weston and Donny Gardiner each rapped a pair of base hits while Larry Soule had a double and Stu Muirhead a single.

Eldon Gray had a pair of Tweed singles while Lorne Carleton's homer was the club's big blow. Terry LeSage added a triple and Bert Sherry a single.

The same two clubs hook up in a postponed game at Tweed Sunday afternoon at 2:00 p.m.

A sparkling one-hit pitching performance by H. Wark paced the Barriage Landscapers to a 5-0 Bantam league victory over the Jaycees in B.M.R.A. play at Park Dale last night.

Wark lost his bid for a no-hitter with one man out in the seventh and final inning when the Jaycees' Thornton wacked a single. Wark struck out the next two batters, giving him a total of 12 for the game. Windsor was his receiver.

Lee Baker pitched for the Jaycees, allowing ten hits and striking out nine. Curtis and Crossen shared the catching duties.

Ken Wilson slammed a home run and a triple to spearhead the Barriage attack. Roper and McKinnon each collected two singles, Windsor, D. Howe, Dunnie and Wark bagging the others.

Would End NHL Record
Hebenton To Minor Club

MONTREAL (CP) — Indications were seen Thursday that Andy Hebenton's iron-man record of 630 consecutive, regular-schedule National Hockey League games will not be extended by the durable Winnipeg native.

With the close of last season, as a member of the Boston Bruins, Hebenton's record reached 630 games. It believed the old record of 580 held by Johnny Wilson, ending with the 1952-60 season.

Hebenton was not protected in the draft by Boston and no club took him at the $20,000 draft price. He is a right - winger.

General manager Lynn Patrick of the Bruins declined to comment but it is believed certain that Hebenton, now 34, will be turned over to a minor league club.

Wilson, native of Kincardine, Ont., started his 580-game mark with the last 20 games of the 1951-52 season. It ended with the end of the 1959-60 season. He played with three clubs—Detroit, Chicago and Toronto.

Angels McBride Regains Stride

Relief Role Pays For Ten-Game Loser

Twins Deal Power, Green With Tribe

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Minnesota Twins put sentiment aside Thursday and cut loose two of the fans' favorites in a three-team swap for more beach.

The Twins dealt fancy-fielding first baseman Vic Power and little - used outfielder Lenny Green in the five-player trade with Cleveland Indians and Los Angeles Angels. Minnesota acquired infielders Jerry Kindall and Frank Kostro.

Here is the way the dealing went, in a straight swap with no cash involved:

Power goes to the Angels, who in turn send infielder Billy Moran to Cleveland. The Indians send Kindall to the Twins. Green goes to Los Angeles for Kostro, who is now with Hawaii in the Pacific Coast League.

Hartack Rides At Woodbine

TORONTO (CP) — Jockey Bill Hartack, who rode Northern Dancer to Kentucky Derby and Preakness victories, will be aboard another Windfields Farm entry Saturday in the $20,64 - added Canadian Oaks Stakes at Woodbine race track.

Fourteen of the finest fillies in Canada will strut to the post in this race for three-year-olds over the distance of one mile and one furlong. Winner's share of the purse will be $26,140.

Hartack will ride K. P. Taylor's Netosfa and although she hasn't been racing well, racing experts figure he could improve her enough to win.

The favorites are expected to be Lester Mel, owned by WIM Dorg, of Amherstburg, Ont., and Queen's Lew, owned by Viscount Hardings of Montreal.

After laboring in vain for nearly two months, Ken McBride has gone on relief and hit the jackpot.

McBride, a 30-year-old right-hander, halted his 10-game losing streak as Los Angeles Angels nipped Cleveland Indians 4-3 in 12 innings Thursday night.

The one-time ace of the Angels' pitching staff beat Washington Senators 4-0 on opening day, April 18, then lost 10 consecutive games, the latest last Sunday.

Then, against the Indians Wednesday night, manager Bill Rigney brought McBride in for his first relief appearance since April 18, 1952. He didn't give up a hit in 1 2-3 innings.

RELIEVED AGAIN

He relieved again Thursday, coming on this time in a 4-4 game with two on and none out in the ninth inning. He got Vic Davalillo on a grounder and induced Leon Wagner to hit into a double play.

McBride pitched two more innings, allowing one hit, before leaving for pinchhitter Willie Smith in the 12th. Smith's single started the winning rally.

Elsewhere in the league, Baltimore Orioles defeated Chicago White Sox 8-1, New York Yankees whipped Boston Red Sox 8 - 4 and Minnesota Twins downed Detroit Tigers 4-3.

After singling for McBride, Smith was forced at second by Tom Sabrino. Bill Skowron's single and an intentional walk to Jim Fregosi moved Sabrino to third from where he scored on Lou Clinton's sacrifice fly.

GETS BIG BLOW

A two-run homer by Brooks Robinson in the eighth carried the Orioles past the White Sox. The blow off Hoyt Wilhelm broke a 1-1 tie. Luis Aparicio homered for Baltimore in the sixth. Tom McCraw got Chicago off to a 1-0 lead in the first with a homer off Milt Pappas.

Mickey Mantle slammed two home runs and Roger Maris one for the Yankees off Boston starter Bill Monbouquette.

Ed Bressoud and Felix Mantilla homered against Jim Bouton, who won his fourth game in nine decisions.

Dick Stigman and reliever Garland Shifflett stopped Detroit on three hits as Earl Battey knocked across three runs with a homer and a double. Bill Fischer, a 4-6 loss. Dean Demeter tagged Stigman for home runs.

America's Cup Trials

GOSPORT, England (AP) — Kurrewa V, with 9 men Geneo Rigney brought McBride in for his first relief appearance since April 18, 1952. He didn't give up a hit in 1 2-3 innings.

Leafs Whip Crackers, Suns Win

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Jacksonville Suns, winners of 10 of their last 12 games, finally got a chance tonight to parlay their hot streak into leadership of the International League.

The Suns, who hammered Buffalo Bisons 12-2 Thursday night to stay half a game behind Toronto Maple Leafs, tangle with the leaders in a twi-night doubleheader in an effort to reverse the pitchings.

The Leafs warmed up for it impressively Thursday by clobbering Atlanta Crackers 9-5 while Syracuse Chiefs remained two games off the pace by edging Columbus Jets 3-2. The fourth - place Rochester Red Wings also won, blanking Richmond Virginians 2-0.

Don Dillard had four hits, including a home run and a triple, as the Leafs scored eight times in the first three innings. Bob Sadowski and Ken Retzer also hit homers for Toronto with Randy Hundley and Ed Olivares replying for the Crackers.

"LOB PITCH" A HANDY SHOT

Scarcely a round of golf goes by that the player doesn't have at least one occasion to use the "lob pitch."

This short shot is used when the player has very little ground between his ball and the hole — or if the green is very, fast or now downhill away from him.

The lob shot is handy at such times because this shot floats high through the air, drops almost vertically down-ward and settles quickly on the green.

You should use either a 9-iron or a pitching wedge for this shot. Play.

the ball well forward in your stance (#3). The shaft is to bend the club-head slide under the ball. This differs from the normal pitch shot, which requires a downward blow on the ball, which flies lower than the lob and which carries more landing.

On the lob shot, your backswing should be longer than for a normal pitch of the same length (#2). Keep your swing smooth and easy through-out and be sure you finish the shot as I have (#4).

THE Arnold Palmer METHOD
Four-Time Winner of the Masters

A QUICK WAY TO GUIDE PUTTING STROKE

If you have ever wondered why professional golfers seem so meticulous about how they replace a ball on the putting green, this may answer your question.

Naturally, we always try to replace the ball in exactly the same spot. It occupied before we marked it. However, many players go a step further. They not only place the ball on exactly the same spot, but they also place it in a manner so that the name on the ball points directly along the desired line to the hole (#1).

The reason for positioning the ball in this manner should be obvious. If the lettering on the ball points the way to the target, then all the player must do is to make his back and through stroke follow an imaginary extension of this lettering (#2).

If the stroke is so executed, the ball will roll along the desired line, and will have an excellent chance of dropping.

Hydroplane Race Is Cancelled

Doug Storey, president of the Quinte Hydroplane Racing Club, announced yesterday afternoon that the speedboat races proposed here in connection with Railroad Week has been cancelled.

The club had been asked earlier to hold the races in Bay of Quinte waters, just off Zwick's Island, on Saturday, June 27. Special events will be held in the city all that week as part of Railroad Week.

Plans for over 100 boats to take part in the sanctioned races were in the making but difficulties arose when the Hydroplane Club was refused rights to hold regular races near Victoria Park. The club has since moved its races to Cedar Cove on the other side of the bay.

Storey said yesterday that "we have been unable to get a sponsor for the races, there are no fences to help contain the crowd and no bleachers or seats available on Zwick's Island, so we have decided to cancel the meet."

STUDY RHINO BONE

BISHOPBRIGS, Scotland (CP) — Geologists at Glasgow University are examining a bone believed to be from the front leg of a wooly rhinoceros, an animal extinct in Britain for more than 12,000 years. A spokesman said that in 1932 a toe bone and a tooth from a similar beast were found on the same site.

Beatlemania Makes Seven Men Wealthy

LONDON (AP) — Beatle business has burgeoned into a $100,000,000 world-wide enterprise.

While The Beatles themselves go banging their way around the world the people raking in the Beatle booty for themselves—and for the four young men who made it all possible—go in advance of them.

They sell Beatle - brooches, Beatle - bags, Beatle-sweaters which adorn the teen-agers you see shrieking and screaming wherever the Beatles appear.

Most of the products are sold in the 7-13 age bracket. Few are expensive.

There are more than 100 Beatle-this and Beatle-that objects to attract the children.

They can get: wigs, wallpaper, towels, slacks, talcum powder, jigsaw puzzles, coloring books, dolls, luggage, note paper, dishcloths, cushion covers, Beatle bingo, diaries, coat hangers, hair brushes, tooth brushes, book matches, cuff links, shampoo, pillow cases.

MANAGER HAD RIGHTS

At first, The Northern England Musical Syndicate handled all Beatle marketing rights. This is the company of Brian Epstein, The Beatles' manager.

Late last year a group of seven young Englishmen anticipated world-wide Beatlemania. They decided to get as many as possible of the overseas manufacturing rights on Beatle products.

About 150 licences had already been granted by Epstein's company but the new group obtained a further 170 overseas rights on items ranging from scooters to pencils.

The firm in British is known as Stranmest and in the United States as Selfsch Inc. (Beatles spelled backwards.)

They give a percentage of their royalties to Epstein's company.

How much of the royalties go back to the four Beatles isn't made known. But Epstein and The Beatles all became millionaires in a year.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Botting moved into Blaine Foster's house recently and are welcomed to the community.

Mrs. Alan Baxter entertained Unit 3 of Bloomfield United Church Women at her home on Tuesday afternoon.

SOVIET "SKIMMER" — A Russian hydrofoil pleasure craft, believed to be the only one on the continent, skims along on her foils on Lake Erie, near Port Colborne, Ont. The 35-foot, two-ton craft was purchased at a Canadian boat show by Capt. John Misener, fleet manager of Scott Misener Steam Ships Ltd. Powered by a 70-horsepower automobile engine, the hydrofoil has a top speed of about 40 mph. (CP Photo)

Handling a Hydrofoil From Russia With Care

PORT COLBORNE, Ont. (CP) — When Captain John E. Misener was a boy he listened eagerly to accounts of Alexander Graham Bell's experiments with hydrofoils. Now he owns the only Soviet hydrofoil pleasure craft in North America.

Capt. Misener bought the boat —then the Volga but since renamed the Erie Dart—at the Canadian Boat Show in Toronto last fall. It was the first boat ever exhibited in Canada by the Soviet Union and the asking price was $7,000.

Capt. Misener, fleet manager of Scott Misener Steamships Ltd. of Port Colborne, entered a much lower bid and it was accepted.

The new owner went to school with a boy whose father experimented on hydrofoils with Bell in Baddeck, N.S., early in the century.

"We had pictures of them and I've been interested in hydrofoils ever since I saw those pictures," he says.

The craft can reach speeds up to 40 m.p.h. but turns are tricky with the 70-horsepower, 35-foot boat. It rides like any other boat up to 20 m.p.h. but after that begins to plane out. While riding on her foils, anything sharper than a 15-degree turn is disastrous.

MECHANIC FELL OUT

"My chief mechanic took her out and put her into too tight a turn. She fell out from under him and gave him quite a scare."

The craft is also a loss in choppy water, not being able to plane without the benefit of its skimming action.

Capt. Misener is still experimenting with the craft, and when he knows it better he may put in a more powerful engine.

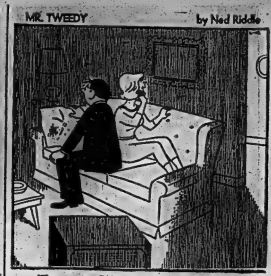
"I'm a little worried that if you get her up to say 50 miles an hour the foils might start to vibrate and I'm no more anxious than the next man to have two tons of boat come down on me. On the other hand, you have to experiment to learn."

He may turn it over to a university after completing his experiments — "it's my thought that young science students might learn a great deal by having a boat such as this to work with."

South Hastings Little League

Carmel used the long ball to register a 12-5 South Hastings Little League victory over the Corbyville Rockets last night.

Mike Musclow slammed a bases-loaded home run to lead the Carmel hitters while Brownell and Sheffield each contributed a triple.



Harrison and Woodcock were the best of the Rocket hitters.

Trevor Burt pitched the victory and S. Woodcock was the loser.

It was announced that a new entry, Frankford, has been admitted to the South Hastings Little League and will play two games against each of the other clubs. Frankford will make its initial start in Carmel Saturday.

Richard Crenna Given Title Role in Comedy

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—A new movie comedy star is in the making although it will come as no surprise to television and radio.

Richard Crenna, since the start living teen-ager on TV's Our Miss Brooks show and later Leila on The Real McCoys, plays the title role opposite Shirley Maclaine and Peter Gathers in John Goldfarb, Please Come Home!

It's the wildest movie script in years — budgeted by 20th Century-Fox at $4,500,000 and mostly shot on harem set complete with bathroom that has 56 towels marked "hers" and one marked "his."

Crenna plays a Jewish U-2 pilot who crashes in a mythical Arabian kingdom ruled by Ustinov.

That idea is funny enough but Goldfarb is a former Air Force Academy football star known as Wrong-Way Goldfarb.

He has a choice of being turned over to the Russians as a spy or else coaching a Sedouin football team. It seems Ustinov's son went to Notre Dame and didn't make the team.

Says Crenna, after six years with Grandpa McCoy on the farm:

"Making love in a harem sure beats fooling around with chickens."

Bitter Irony For Movieman

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Fate plays strange tricks. Ask director Tony Richardson.

When Richardson was 15 years old in New York City, he wanted to go on the stage.

He worked as assistant with no success. Daniel Frohman, the actor-manager, advised Mann to forget acting, that she was not the type and should stay in school.

A year ago in Madrid, Mann's movie career began and she did actor was in the outer office and wished a moment of the famed director's time.

"As soon as I heard the man's name," Mann recalls, "I knew it was the same fellow who steered me away from acting."

"Mr. Mann," said the assistant producer now turned actor, "I'm an American living alone in Madrid. I have a job four days—perhaps—any part in your picture."

Mann, without revealing the long-ago meeting, told the actor he'd get a call and took his phone number and address.

On the third day of shooting, the actor failed to appear for his role. Mann sent an assistant director to the actor's apartment.

There, at the foot of his bed is a lonely room, was the actor, dead of a heart attack.

At the Belle

JOAN GREENWOOD OF TOM JONES' VERSATILE STAR.

Delightfully fascinating Joan Greenwood, who plays the wickedly lusty Bellaston in the Belle's current showing of Henry Fielding's famous novel of 18th Century England, "Tom Jones," United Artists release, is Scottish-born, now playing an unlimited engagement at the Belle Theatre, has about as wide and varied a professional career on stage and screen as any actress in the business.

You name it — Joan's been in it. Comedy? Well, together with Alec Guinness she's been in "The Man in The White Suit," "The Detective," and "Kind Hearts and Coronets."

Drama? There's "Lydistrata," "The Grass is Greener," "Bleak House," "The Broken Heart," and many another besides.

Revue? "Rise Above It," "Conversation Piece." "The Importance of Being Earnest," "The Confidential Clerk," "The Irregular Verb to Love." And so on.

The daughter of the celebrated painter Earnshaw Greenwood, Miss Greenwood finished her formal education at 15 when she entered the Royal Academy of Dramatic Arts. And the stage, screen, radio and TV has claimed her ever since.

Her Lady Bellaston is played to the Tom Jones of Albert Finney, and she shines in a brilliant cast which also includes Susannah York, Hugh Griffith, Edith Evans, Diane Cilento, George Devine and David Tomlinson.

Ralph Allen, Managing Editor, Of Toronto Star

TORONTO (CP) — Appointment of Ralph Allen, 50-year-old journalist, editor and author as managing editor of the Toronto Star was announced Thursday by J. E. Atkinson, president and publisher.

The announcement said Mr. Allen will take charge of the new post in September after familiarizing himself with all the editorial operations of the newspaper, Canada's largest daily.

A native of Winnipeg, who grew up at Oxbow, Sask., Mr. Allen was a sports columnist for the Winnipeg Tribune and the Toronto Globe and Mail before the Second World War in which he served as an artillery man before rejoining The Globe and Mail as war correspondent in Italy and Western Europe.

In 1946 he went to Maclean's Magazine, later assistant editor, became associate editor, managing editor and then after a year as editor of the Toronto Telegram returned to Maclean's as editor in 1956.

He remained an editor of the magazine until 1960 when he left to devote himself to writing books and occasional articles for Macleans as contributing editor.

His most recent Maclean's contribution was an article about Cyprus which he has visited twice since the Canadian United Nations Force went there this spring. He returned to Canada from his second visit just a week ago.

Mr. Allen has written four novels and/or titled The High Commissioner, a book of short descriptive nature." He hopes to have symphonic performances in October. He was born Oct. 6 of following year.

ENJOYED FREEDOM

Because of his familiarity with Canadian landscape and Canadian history, the editing, he encountered no particular problems in scoring the program.

"One thing that pleased me so and was the orchestra I worked with, the (51 - piece) CBC orchestra, was the thing that was so exciting for me was the freedom with which I was able to get at the music—the lack of all the precise timing and cues which are necessary to film work."

Chotam, who married New Brunswicker Jane Gage and settled in Montreal after the war, has won many awards for his incidental music for the CBC and National Film Board.

Coming up June 18 on Camera Canada is a one-hour program combining film footage of the maiden voyage of the replica of John schooner Bluenose—he was sel seen on our dimes which went down off Haiti in 1946—with a treasure hunt on the Coria Rica-owned island of Cocos.

Produced by independent film-maker Maurice Taylor of Toronto, the program follows Bluenose II from the time she set out from Lunenburg, N.S.—a hurricane struck shortly after departure—on a voyage to The West Indies and through the Panama Canal into the Pacific. It includes some underwater footage shot by cameramen who reported seeing never less than 50 sharks when they went down.

Ten Costa Rican soldiers armed with machine guns were put on the vessel when B hesded for Cocos to safeguard that country's interests in the legendary ecclesiastical treasures said to be tons of silver bars.

FOUND MONTREALER

An expedition headed by Ian McBean, a Torontonian who worked on the Dew Line for several years in Chateau Bond, never found the treasure. But he did find something else on the island—a Montrealer named Pierre Brutus. He had been living there for three months after leaving an industrial company in Montreal to get away from it all.

When Bluenose II arrived at the island, the treasure-hunt expedition sailed out to meet her, hailing a raft with Brutus aboard behind it. The soldiers initially thought the expedition had the treasure on the raft, ready to transfer it to Bluenose II for a quick trip to North American waters. They were calmed down before anyone got shot.

Camera Canada, now in its fourth year, produces a program about once every month.

It attempts to reflect a complicated and diverse way of life to the people who make our way of life," says executive producer Thea Chotam.

Beginning next January, it will show a series of programs on the great rivers of Canada—the Fraser, Mackenzie, Red, Peace, St. Lawrence and St. John.

Prior to that, in September, it will present The Lost Decade, a film of the Depression years and how they affected the Canadian people and Canada. It's being produced by Ron Kelly, who produced The Open Grave.

Geographical Tone Poem
CBC Goes Coast-to-Coast In Spectacular Travelogue

By DAVE PIKE

TORONTO (CP)—There is a saying that the landscape shapes the character of the man who lives in it.

There also is a saying that Canadians will never be a route-hour program to be telecast by CBC-TV July 1 may indicate whether these sayings have any validity.

To be seen on the Camera Canada series, it is more a geographical tone poem than an educational documentary. Spoken commentary is sparse.

For a series, the program not only presents a visual appreciation of Canada, but celebrates it, appropriately enough on Dominion Day. It not only shows the country and its landscapes, its people—but the forces of nature that mould the country.

One of the unique aspects of the program is that about 55 per cent of it was shot from the air at altitudes ranging from 100 to 1,000 feet.

"You get a very detached view of the world from the air," says producer Gene Lawrence, himself an experienced amateur pilot. "I suppose it is a romantic view.

"You get an extraordinary sense of land from close to it, while high up even the Rockies look like a pancake. We got some spectacular footage of the various regions, and of the variations in weather which have an almost abstract pattern in a way."

PLAN FAR AHEAD

The program was conceived two years ago, although actual shooting was confined to two weeks last summer and two weeks last month.

"We often plan programs that far ahead," says Lawrence. "We're already planning programs for 1967."

For the program, the CBC contributed one of its most important musical scores ever. It was composed by Louis Applebaum after the program was even edited — by Neil Chotem, conductor of the Montreal Symphony Orchestra.

"I was given a brief outline of the kind of shooting that would be done, but otherwise I was left completely free," says Chotem, a 44 - year - old Saskatchewan native.

The instructions he did receive ranged from the definite — "Start with the air, very beautiful, seem as if they were shot in the moonlight"—to the vague — "The Rockies from 'the four minutes.'"

The finished score, Chotem, "got the idea of the Rockies as a cathedral, rather than in the usual sense, so I wrote a hymn tune which is used in all sections where there are hills."

Mr. Applebaum has done a lot of travelling across Canada, much of it by air as a performer, and found four months to compose the score, which he describes as "just a plain symphonic work of a somewhat descriptive nature." He hopes to have symphonic performances in October. He was born Oct. 6 of following year.

TV Producer for World's Fair Has Had Busy Schedule

By CYNTHEA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — The average American television producer counts the number of sets which will carry his program by the millions. Lou Ames, talent-ful show producer, counts his sets by the hundreds—300, to be precise.

The average producer feels he is exceptionally creative if he turns out 30 hour-long shows a season. Lou Ames estimates his output this summer alone will total 2,000 hours. Subject matter will range from cooking, fashion and flower shows to travelogues and interviews.

Ames does not have much trouble filling the 12-hours-a-day, seven-days-a week, schedule. Press agents from commercial exhibits will come through suggesting that his mobile camera cover a ceremony or event. He is involved with short commercial films.

Skill of Fine Hands Seen In Preparation of Cement

By BOB THOMAS

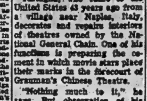
HOLLYWOOD (AP)—This is Hollywood Boulevard—

A man of eloquent hands is John Tartaglia, who uses them in conversation and for creating things, such as the world's most famous concrete.

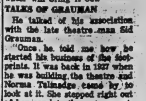
Tartaglia, who came to the United States 43 years ago from a village near Naples, Italy, decorates and repairs interiors of theatres owned by the National General Chain. One of his functions is preparing the cement in which movie stars place their marks in the forecourt of Grauman's Chinese Theatre.

"Nothing much to it," he says. But observation of his work revealed the skill of his fine hands.

A couple of hours before the most recent ceremony Tartaglia directed an assistant in removing a block of concrete a yard square. A three-inch base of rock and cement was laid upon the earth. Then ready-Mix cement and sand was sifted twice through a screen and pure cement was added to the fine mixture. Next came the coloring—green oxide earth, plus some black to deepen the hue. "Color can't see the color now," said Tartaglia, "but the water will bring it out."



TALKS OF GRAUMAN



He talked of his association with the late theatre man Sid Grauman.

"Once he told me how he started his business of the footprints. It was back in 1927 when he was building the theatre and Norma Talmadge came by. I took at it. She stepped right out of her car into the wet cement. Mr. Grauman saw the footprints and got his idea. Miss Talmadge, Doug Fairbanks and Mary Pickford were the first to go in.

"We've been putting them in pretty fast in the last few years, rock and cement are still 20 squares left. I don't think we'll ever run out of space."

Red Ensign May Be Heading To Its Final Flutter

First Canadian Flag Was Designed in 1896

By STEWART MACLEOD

OTTAWA (CP) — Depending on the outcome of the great flag debate, scheduled to open Monday in the Commons, the Canadian Red Ensign may be heading toward its final flutter.

If so, it will snap a long evolutionary process that stretches from the Peace Tower flagpole back to the sterns of mediaeval ships.

Adoption of a distinctive flag will also end one of the great Canadian hobbies — flag design. This goes back to at least 1896 when an E. M. Chadwick produced his favored design in the Canadian Almanac — a Blue Ensign with three maple leaves — "the usual colonial arrangement."

In the last 15 months, the government has received over 3,000 additional designs.

Just why Canada has a Red Ensign, rather than a blue one is not quite clear since virtually all other Commonwealth countries — and all colonies — fly blue ensigns in various forms. The Blue Ensign was traditionally for use on land; the Red duster for the sea.

"Without rhyme or reason we unconsciously first drifted into the merchant marine usage," says John R. Matheson, Liberal member of Parliament for Leeds, who is one of Parliament's foremost heraldry authorities.

CHANGES HANDS

The red duster was the flag that came into Canadian ports on British ships and went out on Canadian ships. Hudson's Bay Company ships had their own official version, with the letters H.B.C. on the fly, and this flag flies over company property.

Anyway, in 1892 the Canadian government sought and received permission to "deface" the red duster with the arms of the provinces and the Union Jack — Red Ensign — for marine use was born.

In 1921, a royal proclamation approved three red maple leaves in a white background as the official emblem of Canada, and red and white was established the official colors. A new Canadian coat of arms with these additions was drawn, and

Separatist Sentenced To 4 Years

MONTREAL (CP) — Roger Tetrault, the only Front de Liberation Quebecois terrorist to stand trial, was sentenced to seven years in penitentiary Friday for placing a bomb in a downtown Montreal office building a year ago.

All but one of the others pleaded guilty after preliminary hearing last year and received sentences of up to 12 years for the ringleaders of the 10-week wave of violence in which one man was killed and another seriously injured.

Tetrault, 25-year-old unemployed journalist, was found guilty late in May on a charge of public mischief endangering life arising from the placing of a bomb in a 14th floor washroom of La Presvyance Building on Place d'Armes. Police bomb expert Leo Plouffe dismantled the bomb minutes before it was timed to go off on May 3, 1963.

Mr. Justice Roger Ouimet told Tetrault he could have been held in contempt of court for what he said when he first appeared before the court. However, the judge said Tetrault recently sent him a letter in which it appeared he "realized the seriousness of the offence and had profited by his detention."

WILL APPEAL

Tetrault's lawyer said the sentence, starting from the date of his incarceration last November fled to the French-owned islands of St. Pierre - Miquelon and then to the United States. He was picked up in Boston, unsuccessfully fought deportation, then was returned to Montreal.

Of the 17 other cases brought before the courts as a result of the FLQ's bombing spree in the spring of 1963, only one remains unsettled. Ten resulted in prison terms.

Weary K Accepts Red Split

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
Associated Press Staff Writer

Nikita Khrushchev seems about ready to admit that the Soviet-Chinese split is unbridgeable in the foreseeable future and that a splintered Communist world is inevitable.

Khrushchev concedes there is an estrangement not only between the Chinese and Soviet Communist parties but also between the Peking and Moscow governments.

Khrushchev leaves it up to the Chinese whether there will be a move toward reconciliation. Displaying little hope that there will be, he virtually apologizes to the rest of the Communist world for the current state of affairs.

Khrushchev's remarks, interpolated in Friday's speech about the East German-Soviet friendship treaty, indicated a profound weariness with the whole Chinese affair. They seemed the words of a man caught in an impossible squeeze between pressures in the Soviet Union for economic advancement and the pressures of world Communism for more aggressive expansion.

NOT HIS FAULT

If there is no reconciliation, Khrushchev seems to say, it will not be his fault but Peking's.

"One should not," says Khrushchev, "allow the spread of ideological differences to interfere with governmental relations, since this ultimately weakens the position of world socialism and plays into the hands of imperialism."

"We believe that even today the road is not closed for the normalization of Soviet-Chinese relations, including governmental relations. All that is required is good will and awareness of one's supreme duty to one's people, to the entire revolutionary movement. Our party will constantly guide itself by this principle."

It seems likely Moscow considers China effectively outside the Soviet bloc of nations. The Soviet newspaper Izvestia recently quoted Marshal Chen Yi, China's foreign minister, as describing China as a "non-aligned country." Izvestia added that "politically he was right, by this means Chen Yi no longer considers China part of the world socialist (Communist) camp."

BEEN HARMFUL

The break has done enormous harm to the world Communist movement and Khrushchev seems to want to escape blame. He offers what seems like an excuse, with the implication that it wasn't really his fault. World Communists were expecting too much of him, he indicates, and said:

"Some Communists at first thought that in relations between Socialist countries there should be only a single hitch. But life proved more complicated and contradictory than ideological premises. . . . Temporary difficulties are inevitable. . . . Common mistakes are possible when such profound transformations are being carried out."

The Chinese accuse Khrushchev of going capitalist, of catering to the Russian middle class which thinks of comfort and individual happiness before world revolution.

Khrushchev insists he is just as ardently for world revolution as the Chinese but he rebukes the Soviet people's own aspirations when he says people around the world would hardly follow a Communist government "whose people have no trousers."

BABY'S ALL RIGHT

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Cosmonaut Valentina Tereshkova, Soviet spacewoman's space baby Irina is "perfectly all right" and not affected by radiation, a doctor said Friday. A visiting British woman journalist told a Russian doctor: "Women all over the world are worried about the possible effects of radiation on the baby." The doctor replied "So were we, but the baby is perfectly all right."

FLAG FLOWN — The government's proposed new flag for Canada flies from special flag pole set up on Parliament Hill in Ottawa yesterday. Mr. Pearson ordered the flag flown so Members of Parliament would have a chance to get a look at it. It contains three red maple leaves on a single white with a blue background. There are blue bars on either side. (CP Wirephoto.)

Money Spent in Wrong Place Says Defence Head

OTTAWA (CP) — On May 26, Defence Minister Hellyer told the Commons defence committee: "We are spending too large a proportion of our funds for operations and maintenance and not enough for equipment."

He added: "If this trend is not reversed, it will only be a few years until we will have no new equipment at all."

This week George McIlraith president of the Privy Council, introduced in the Commons the first supplementary appropriations for the current fiscal year. included in them was a decrease department estimate of $1,827,000—all of it, except $60,000 for operations and maintenance.

This raises 1964-65 operations and maintenance costs in the defence department to $1,126,000,000 out of a total defence budget of $1,826,000,000. By comparison, only $204,000,000 is allocated for new weapons and equipment.

Informants said Friday Mr. Hellyer is finding it as tough as his predecessors to cut overhead costs but described the supplementary appropriation of $1,337,000 as only a temporary setback in his campaign.

The ministers office announced Friday the appointment of six senior officers to top posts on the new single defence staff.

The staff now will be able to begin integrating the entire command structure at defence headquarters with the aim of reducing the 120,000 - member armed forces by some 10,000 personnel. This is expected to take a year at least.

Mr. Hellyer's avowed aim is to cut overhead by $100,000,000 a year and use the savings for purchase of new weapons and equipment.

Proposal for Federal Fund To Aid Indian Emancipation

KENORA, Ont. (CP) — A white-Indian—workshop Friday heard a proposal for a $100,000 federal fund to support a program "for the economic emancipation of the Indian people."

The suggestion by Alexander Phillips, general manager of Northwestern Ontario Development Association, followed a charge earlier in the day that a Fort William separate school was segregating white and Indian children.

Mr. Phillips said a fund such as the one he proposed would not set up segregation because similar funds already have been established. He cited as an example the $100,000,000 given to aid the Atlantic provinces for a development fund.

Mr. Phillips told 100 delegates that it is time Canada helped discharge a "long-unpaid debt" to Indians, who are "measuring up their own responsibilities and obligations."

"What is $100,000,000 constructively spent in assisting Indian bands, teaching new techniques, improving sanitation?" Mr. Phillips asked. The money could be spent on community halls and recreation, raising the population's activity could focus.

Earlier Friday, the executive director of the National Indian Council, Wilfred Pelletier of Toronto, claimed that Indian pupils at a Fort William separate school ate lunch in a separate classroom and played together apart from white children.

Although he did not name the school, he said later outside the meeting it was St. Annes Separate School. The Indian pupils

Stormy Preview Of Flag

By RUSSELL KLIMAN

OTTAWA (CP) — Parliament Hill was given a stormy preview Friday of the Liberal government's contentious maple leaf flag.

For a total of four hours the proposed Canadian national flag flew in bright sunshine on a 25-foot white pole on the lawns in front of the Peace Tower.

But the test flying provoked angry shouts of protest inside the Commons and a New Democratic MP to try to stop the flag from being hoisted outside.

Full-dress debate begins in the Commons Monday on the resolution proposing a flag design of three red maple leaves on a white background with vertical blue bars at the borders. The same resolution would allow the Union Jack to be flown as a symbol of Canada's Commonwealth connection.

Meanwhile, clouds of another storm loomed late Friday in the Commons as critics opened on the government by opposition parties that they will have a lot to say and a person being held for long periods in jail on immigration charges.

FIRE QUESTIONS

In recent weeks Immigration Minister Tremblay has been peppered with questions about such cases, and Friday David Orlikow (NDP — Winnipeg North) said he and a number of his colleagues are unsatisfied with the minister's explanations.

The New Democrat rejected a suggestion by President George Heidrich of the Privy Council that the matter could be disposed of by skipping the usual members' private questions' period on the grounds that wouldn't be time enough.

The chief Commons' business of the week—amendments to the Farm Credit Act—was finally completed Friday. Third and final reading was given to the measure doubling the lending limits of Farm Credit Corporation loans. The bill now goes to the Senate.

Almost as soon as the Commons began its day's work, the flag issue was run up.

Alfred D. Hales, a backbench Conservative from the Ontario riding of Wellington South, moved that Commons consider its regular business to debate the flag" on government property.

The prime minister was on Parliament Hill precisely at noon Friday when the flag was to be flown on federal property.

ASKED FOR FLAG

Mr. Pearson replied that some MPs had asked that the maple leaf design be flown and that the government had agreed to be a courteous and useful thing to do.

After some 45 minutes of wrangling, Speaker Alan Macnaughton ruled the emergency debate wasn't urgent any more since the urgency had passed.

The focus then turned to the temporary flagstaff set up in the green parliamentary lawns.

At 1 p.m., a burly public works employee began to run up the proposed flag, watched by MPs, civil servants, tourists and school children and a large contingent of reporters.

On to the scene marched Harold Winch, NDP MP for Vancouver East. He reached for the rope.

"Until Canada and Parliament decide to fly this flag it should not be flown," he told Mr. Winch, a Red Ensign supporter.

DIDN'T BUDGE

The check startled employee but didn't budge. His hand remained firmly clasped around the rope as it rose to the top.

The crowd cheered and broke out into a chorus of O Canada sung mostly in French.

Arms across his chest, Mr. Winch said "Let's sing the maple leaf forever."

"Right, you start it," said a spectator.

"Haven't sung it since I was

Casts Himself In Lincoln Role To Rescue Party

Given Warm Send-off By Ike, Not by Nixon

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (AP)—Suave Governor William W. Scranton of Pennsylvania embarked today on what he sees as Lincolnian crusade to rescue the Republican party from the Goldwater conservatism he sees as threatening a Republican defeat in November.

Scranton declared himself in the running for the party's presidential nomination Friday and received warm send-off from many Republican leaders, including former president Dwight D. Eisenhower and the target of his new adventure—Senator Barry Goldwater of Arizona.

Goldwater called Scranton one of the outstanding governors in the nation" and Eisenhower, who had urged an "open convention" and indicated differences with Goldwater, welcomed "the entry of Governor Scranton, whom I have long admired."

But, Scranton received anything but rousing good wishes from former vice president Richard M. Nixon, who had urged at the governors' conference in Cleveland earlier this week that someone get in the ring with Goldwater.

Nixon, after flying home Friday night from a business trip to London, said he thought Scranton's entry "fighting chance." But he declared that the governor gave a "very weak and unfortunate impression" on that famous television appearance last Sunday after receiving a telephone call from Eisenhower advising him not to enter into any cabal against any candidate, meaning Goldwater.

WAS BELIEVED READY

Scranton, 46, was understood to have been ready to announce his candidacy on the program—CBS' Face the Nation—but he told friends the telephone call left him uncertain and shaken.

Canadian Negro Seeks Equality

By JACK PICKETTS

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — The Canadian Negro is beginning a quiet revolution of the remaining barriers to genuine Canadian equality, but he still has a long way to go, a Yale University associate, professor said here Friday.

Dr. Robin W. Winks of Yale's history department told the annual meeting of the Canadian Historical Association here the Negro too often remains quiescent in the face of "over discrimination although he can genuinely say" that things are worse in the United States.

But the Canadian Negro is less clamorous for civil rights than the U.S. Negro because he is not as well organized and is given fewer provocations.

The Canadian Negro is "left alone and self-supported, and the white civilization that surrounds him assumes it is natural that he should be left alone."

Added to this, he has no national heritage because there was no African nation when Canada was being populated from Europe, he said.

LACKS UNITY

"The Canadian Negro lacks the sense of ethnic and national unity which gives reason and purpose to the broader Canadian tendency to cherish rather than to bury ethnic and national ties. The Canadian Negro is alone."

Canadian Negroes refuse to unite as a group, and are satisfied by "class lines of their

Canadians and Dutch Weep Openly at Remembrance Service

NIJMEGEN (CP) — Canadians and Dutch wept openly together here Friday at a remembrance service for the Canadian fighting men killed and died in the liberation of The Netherlands 20 years ago this week.

About 3,000 attended the moving, two-hour ceremony held a boiling rain in the Canadian Groesbeek war cemetery where 2,338 Canadians are buried.

The tears flowed as 15,000 Dutch school children knelt in unison to place small bouquets of summer flowers at headstones in rear sections of the cemetery before the ceremonial area.

It was the final and most emotional display in a series of ceremonies held in Europe this month by a Canadian government party to mark the 20th anniversary of D-Day and the 20th anniversary of the start of the First World War.

Besides the official party, headed by Prime Minister Lester Roger Teillet, Canadians at the event included 38 next-of-kin of Canadians buried here, members of a Royal Canadian Legion group touring northwest Europe and a number of families from Canadian military bases in France and Germany.

The wreath from the next-of-kin group was placed before the memorial by Rev. Harold Scudmore of Goderich, Ont., whose son, Lieut. John Scudmore, 21, died in action in Holland in 1945. Scudmore, 74, had his left arm shot off below the elbow while serving as a Cana-

Canadian Negro Leaves Indian Reserve To Fight Racial Discrimination

By JACK PICKETTS

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — A Canadian Negro who left his Indian reserve to fight racial discrimination said here Friday that Canada's Indians are "the most discriminated against people in the country."

Dr. Harold Cardinal, 24-year-old Indian leader from Hobbema, Alta., told the annual meeting of the Canadian Historical Association that Indians are discriminated against in housing, education and employment.

Dr. Cardinal, who is studying for his doctorate in political science at the University of Alberta, said Indians are also discriminated against in the courts.

"Indians are sentenced to longer terms than whites for the same offence," he said.

Dr. Cardinal said Indians are discriminated against in the provision of welfare services.

J. A. Pringle Named Member Of Committee

PORT ARTHUR (CP) — The Ontario Crown Attorneys Association Friday appointed a committee to establish a system of providing interim advice to accused persons.

The committee is comprised of H. E. McLeod of Toronto, W. A. MacDonald of Parry Sound, and J. A. Pringle of Belleville. It will begin work immediately.

The resolution establishing the committee was tabled following presentation of two papers involving the rights and needs of accused persons by R. P. Milligan, chairman of the Ontario Police Commission, and Mr. Pringle.

Mr. Pringle said that although advising accused persons was not generally considered part of a Crown attorney's duties, As officers of the court Crown attorneys should attempt to ensure that the accused is aware of his position.

"If you are going to send a person to jail, you should make sure he knows why he is there and how he ought to be there," he said after indicating that the average scholastic attainment of prisoners in federal penitentiaries is grade four.

Mr. Pringle suggested the accused could be informed of his rights by a presiding magistrate or other officers of the court, or by written pamphlets.

Mr. Pringle also urged that a proper balance be maintained between protecting the community and protecting the accused.

"... We must not only fulfill our responsibility to the general public but we must also ensure that an accused person is given the protection of the law."

SOME WISDOM ABOUT WISDOM TEETH

Early removal of unerupted or impacted third molars, the "wisdom" teeth, reduces the chances of gum infections and loss of other teeth. The inflammation of the gum from such a tooth may spread into a serious infection and the incidence of this type of infection increases with age.

Junction Scene Of Accident

It's happened again.

The junction of Highway 401's two-lane stretch and the regular four lanes north of Marysville was the scene of another accident last night.

This time, say police, Brian William Caulfield, of Winchester, was driving west and failed to spot signs warning of the holes used as a dividing median and sideswiped an oncoming automobile driven by Arthur Rodgers, RCAF Upper Heyford.

There were no personal injuries. Total damage was about $300.

St. John Plans Classes Here In Life Saving

"Save A Life Week" will be observed in Belleville the week of June 23 to June 30th. Classes are starting this week, trained instructors will be on hand at the St. John Ambulance Association, 121 Front Street, to give instruction on methods of life-saving.

Classes are being held from 7.30 p.m. to 9.30 p.m.

Canada has one of the highest per capita drowning rates in the world, according to the St. John Ambulance, which provides 1,200 Canadians with free their lives in water accidents this year.

To be prepared for accidents when they do happen, St. John is providing again this year its "Save A Life" classes in artificial respiration.

St. John contends that the two hours spent in learning the most profitable of a lifetime.

Two methods are taught in the "Save A Life" classes. The popular new mouth-to-mouth technique is demonstrated, along with the successful Holger-Nielson method in which the victim lies on his stomach, artificial respiration can be with the rescuer alternately pulls back on his arms and pressure on his shoulder blades.

The good Samaritan's practice is a time of fun on and in the water; any alive . . . be water wise.

Money Spent

Curtis, former chief of air staff, estimated this week in testimony before the defence committee that such a saving would require a reduction of about 30,000 personnel.

Mr. Hellyer cut upkeep costs by $20,000,000 this year below the 1963-64 estimate of $1,000,000. he also slashed spending on new weapons and equipment by $66,000,000.

On June 8, Mr. Hellyer was asked in the committee whether he thinks he risked "repire-building" by the new defence staff.

"I do not think it can be defeated but we are going to give it a running battle," the minister replied.

Farm Adviser, Wife, Receive Television Set

Farm organizations throughout the county of Hastings honored agricultural representative Sidney MacDonald and Mrs. MacDonald Friday night with a social evening and presentation in the Stirling community building.

Mr. and Mrs. MacDonald, who are being transferred to Marysville at the end of June were presented with a television set by the various farm organizations. Mrs. MacDonald received a bouquet of roses and their two small sons gifts of toy trucks.

Griffith Ketcheson, president of the county federation of agriculture, presided for the presentation, with Harleigh Hamilton reading the address. Kelvin Sharpe and Kenneth McConnell made the presentation on behalf of the farm organizations.

The county women's institutes took advantage of the occasion to make a presentation to home economist Miss Elizabeth Spouse, who is leaving the service at the end of June to take a teaching position in Montreal. Miss Spouse received a silver and combination desk clock and candelabar also a travelling clock.

Attended by approximately 300 persons, the evening was concluded with dancing and refreshments served by Junior Farmers.

Farmers' Union Members Attend Oshawa Meeting

One hundred farm men and women from Hastings, Prince Edward and Lennox counties gathered in Oshawa Wednesday for the first Ontario Farmers' Union annual convention.

Some twenty resolutions were presented by the various representatives at the emergency meeting, the subjects covered ranging from hospital care to dissolution of marketing boards with emphasis on the marketing board situation.

The resolution, brought to the floor by a Marysville representative, was carried following a lengthy discussion.

One of the highlights of the meeting was the unscheduled appearance of Jack Wilson, Farm Unions' leader, A. Glasse and president of the Manitoba Farmers' Union, in attendance.

Both men spoke briefly regarding the marketing board situation from their respective positions, national and provincial.

A resolution concerning the egg and fowl marketing board was defeated. This was mainly because members felt the plan was not concerned with printing or attempting to maintain a price.

Hospitalization came under fire for the high premium. The resolution damaged the investigation into the cost of operating hospitals in Ontario.

A resolution concerning tariffs on hogs for Ontario was discussed as was a resolution concerning the union promote the formation of a national hog marketing board with the power to control exports and imports.

Stratford Festival Ready For Opening of 12th Season

STRATFORD, Ontario — A hectic scurry of activity has pervaded the usual relative calm of the Stratford Shakespearean Festival. Workmen, still busy here, office staff, actors, wardrobe and properties departments hurriedly prepare for the opening minutes, to that all important opening night, June 15.

Victor C. Polley, Administrative Director, reports that sales have reached the $1,000,000 dollar mark already — far in advance of the 1963 figures.

Opening night guests will include the Lieutenant Governor of Ontario, the Honorable W. Earl Rowe, P.C., and Mrs. Rowe, the High Commissioners of Britain and Ghana and the Ambassadors of Chile, Brazil, Sweden, Switzerland and Yugoslavia.

On that evening, at 7.30, "Richard II", with William Hutt in the title role, will open the Festival's 12th season. "Le Bourgeois Gentilhomme", first shown by the company in Chester, England, in April, will have its Canadian premiere the following evening. Also at 7.30, Douglas Rain repeats his role of Dourdain in this Moliere comedy. On June 18, at 2.30, a bill of Shakespeare's greatest works, "As You Like It" with John Colicos as Leon, will have its first performance. The Country Wife", by William Wycherley, joins the repertory on July 27.

FIGHT SEQUENCE

How the sound of battle echoes on the grassy slopes surrounding the Festival Theatre, as Patrick Crean, teaching master, rehearses with a group of actors for the storming of Bristol Castle in "Richard II". On the theatre's promenade deck, they "parry" and "thrust", working out the details of the exciting fight sequence.

In the foreground, the sound of clanging swords is provided by a chorus of singers who practice the melancholy Welsh air, written by John Cook for the "Richard II" production. From the orchestra pit, in the auditorium hall and literally wherever they can find a spare room, musicians are rehearsing for one of the most unusual instruments to be used at the Stratford Festival — a Jewish traditional shofar (a type of ram's horn), a sax - trumpet, a bass-flute and primitive ninth century horn, all for "King Lear"; long ceremonial trumpets have been made for the festival in Toronto, for "Richard II"; Turkish bells, a wooden gong, wood-chimes, bells and a harpsichord, handmade by Malcolm Rose, who also plays the instrument on stage, for "Le Bourgeois Gentilhomme".

FRAYED AND AGED

For several weeks now, the wardrobe and properties departments have been working day and night. Scores of cutters-and sewers have been busy with bolts of velvet, silks, felt, heavy knit cloth for fabric, furs and leather, into the costumes that are to be seen on the stage. Leslie Harrop has designed and has himself has been given a heavy ceremonial robe of red wool, decorated with colored thongs, fringe threads and gold paint. To give the appearance of primitive work, the materials have all been cut unevenly and hand sewn, frayed, aged and aged.

Desmond Healey has designed "Richard II", costuming the characters in the style of the centric fashionable clothes of the period — the longsleeved, with its voluminous sleeves and loose fitting skirt; the cotehardie, a well - fitting garment reaching half - way down the thigh; the sopravest, a cap and cape combined; full armour for the combatants in the "Lists" scene. Sleeves have been cut at the edges into the form of leaves and other shapes and lined with contrasting fabric. All of these have been covered with badges and flowing patterns embracing heraldic designs or motifs, by the artists in the paint department. Now they are given the finishing touches — a little gold on this telephone call and chances his mind, he isn't a very strong man. He's got to make his own decisions and not appear to be a puppet manoeuvred by someone else.

Servaton, described by various pundits as the "Hamlet of Harrisburg" because of his profound indecision, "can't run or run or run" dilemma and galloped into the Republican convention Friday in spectacular style.

He waved his arms, smiled, shook every hand within reach at the Maryland state delegation in Baltimore and turned out polished phrases attacking Goldwater as a neo-neanderthal type who offers only a "weird parody" of traditional Republican beliefs.

But there was a feeling among many of the party pros, including those who oppose Goldwater, that Scranton waited too long—that the time is too short and Goldwater's lead too long.

The Pennsylvania governor still is "undecided whether with the difficulties he will face in his last - hour contest against Goldwater.

Told that the Goldwater camp believes it has the nomination in the bag, Scranton replied: "I have looked at it quite solidly myself and I don't think they have it anywhere near in the bag."

In political type casting, Yale man Scranton's performance Friday was reminiscent of the Harvard type style of John F. Kennedy.

The thinking among the professional politicians was that if Scranton could get a strong Eastern nomination he would offer tougher opposition to President Johnson in the key industrial, big electoral-vote states of the east than Goldwater would have.

Cannot Survive Without Quebec

TORONTO (CP) — If Quebec were to separate from Confederation, the rest of Canada would not be in a position to survive, Jean Lesage told the Canadian Manufacturers' Association said Friday night.

"We should all realize that the English-speaking voices saying 'Let them separate' are not more responsible than the French-speaking voices saying in Quebec 'Let us separate,' he told the York West Liberal Association.

Saying that the voice of extremism is heard too often, he added that it is regrettable that the Conservative party did not seem willing to reflect the views of the moderates at this time of national re-appraisal.

The Conservatives had two different voices: One from Quebec, the other from the rest of Canada.

"On the flag issue, one Conservative voice expresses its opposition to the flag and back the other to a distinctive Canadian flag.

"Such double talk is certainly not going to reduce tension in our country and solve our current difficulties."

Defence Minister Hellyer To Get Close Look at Cyprus

NICOSIA (CP)—Defence Minister Paul Hellyer will be given a close-up look at one of the hottest spots on Cyprus when he visits the island next week.

Details of his itinerary were released Friday by Canadian army officials, along with some hints about security precautions being taken by both the United Nations force and the army.

When Hellyer tours the so-called front-line positions in the suburbs of Nicosia and in the Kyrenia mountains 15 miles north of here, both Greek and Turkish-Cypriot troops will have been advised to put their rifles down.

Members of the UN force here—both military and civilian —make regular tours through the areas where the two races most frequently clash and the Greeks and Turks are kept advised by the UN of their movements.

But Hellyer is the first man of cabinet rank to visit Cyprus from a country participating in the UN force and UN officials don't want any incidents.

SPREAD THE WORD

Liaison officers working with both the Greeks and the Turks have passed on word of Hellyer's visit to them. In addition, Canadian officers in the field will deal constantly with front-riot forces are making sure they don't misunderstand the rank of the visitor or the nature of his visit.

Hellyer will arrive Monday evening for a two-day tour as part of a visit to Canadian forces in Europe and the Middle East.

Canadian High Commissioner Arthur Andrew will hold a reception for him Monday evening and accompany him Tuesday morning on visits to President Makios and Vice-President Fazil Kuchuk. Then he visits UN headquarters here for Talks with Gen. Prem Singh Gyani, Indian commander of the Cyprus force.

The afternoon will be spent touring Canadian units in the Nicosia area, including a tour of the "green line," the no man's land that divides Greek and Turkish quarters of the city.

Canadian troops are responsible for patrolling a section in the suburb of Trakhonas and Hilltyer will be given a chance to see an area where barricaded homes flying the blue Greek flag or the red star-and-crescent Turkish emblem are only a stone's throw apart.

HELLYER ENVOY

Hellyer will hold talks later with Galo Plaza Lasso, special envoy in Cyprus for UN Secretary-General U Thant, and then will go to a reception at the Canadian contingent headquarters in Nicosia.

Wednesday morning will be spent in the Kyrenia Mountains, where the bulk of the Canadian soldiers are stationed. Hellyer's itinerary calls for a brief helicopter flight to a mountain top known as Gin where Canadians are stationed permanently between opposing Greek and Turkish irregulars.

He will tour by car more than half a dozen small villages in the area where Canadians are posted to keep the peace and answer trouble calls.

And he will be given a close-up look at the Turkish stronghold of St. Hilarion Castle—a medieval ruin with a commanding view of the valley and the Mediterranean beyond—as well as a Greek-Cypriot position at Karmi Forest not far away.

After lunch at the battalion command post on a hill overlooking the main Nicosia-to-Kyrenia highway, Hellyer will return to Nicosia airport by helicopter and leave for the Gaza Strip in Egypt, where he will inspect Canadian troops with the UN Emergency Force there.

Army officials maintained that no elaborate precautions are being taken for Hellyer's trip here. The only guard for his car will be a UN jeep bearing members of the Canadian Provost Corps.

Holiday-Camp TycoonAwarded A Knighthood

LONDON (CP)' — A former 25-a-week Toronto office boy who became a holiday - camp tycoon in Britain was awarded a knighthood in Queen Elizabeth's birthday honors list announced today.

Millionaire Billy Butlin, a native of South Africa who went to Canada at the age of 11 to join his mother and stepfather, was among the more colorful of the 2,000 persons honored. He now controls eight holiday camps in Britain and recently spent £3,500,000 improving them.

The Royal honors, ranging from peerages to minor titles, included three new viscounts, three barons, two privy councillors and two baronets. But no one received the two highest awards, the Order of Merit and the Companion of Honor.

Sir William Butlin, who now probably will be called "Sir Billy," was born in South Africa in 1900, and soon after his boyhood arrival in Canada he quickly showed the inventive touch that was to bring him a fortune.

WAS OFFICE BOY

His main job as office boy at a Toronto department store (Eaton's) was to deliver goods in large wicker work trucks mounted on wheels. Bill strapped roller - skates to his feet and trebled the speed of his deliveries.

After serving with the Canadian Army in the First World War Butlin left Toronto with £5 in his pocket to make his fortune in England. His—first ventures, a hot-dog stall, snowballed into an amusement park in the Lincolnshire resort of skegness.

Butlin travelled seeing the first version of the "Dodge car" at a Toronto fair, bought the rights to it and had introduced them at his Lincolnshire fairground.

But his sights were on wider horizons. He wanted to provide colorful, cheap, happy holidays for the masses, in a setting somewhere by the sea. permanent lakeside centres he remembered as a boy in Canada. From this the Butlin holiday-camp empire was born.

HOOTENANNY! Lloyd Post, aged six, gives with the words while Della Post fills with the music. To be seen as well as heard at Trenton's first experiment in Community Gardens, he had to use a chair. He was seen — and heard — by more than 500, which caused event's sponsors — Chamber of Comerce and Jaycees — to dub it unequivocal success.

Special Meeting Of School Bd. Will Be Held

TRENTON — The Buildings and Ground Committee and the Finance Committee of the Trenton Board of Education met Thursday night to discuss school expansion.

At the June 22 special meeting of the board, a recommendation brought down by the joint committees will be laid before the board, that an eight-roomed school with an auditorium be constructed in the North Byron Street (proposed) sub-division, if possible, by 1965, but definitely by 1966, depending on sewer and water services being completed, and that tentative approval be obtained from the Department of Education.

It will also be recommended that Wm. Pattison, surveyor, be asked to survey land in the North Byron Street sub-division, bought by the board this spring for the school.

Another recommendation from the joint committees will be that the auditorium of Queen Elizabeth school be partitioned, at a cost of $2,678., for the use of Kindergarten students this autumn. The materials used will be salvagable.

That Barnett and Reider-Creighton be appointed architects for the proposed addition to North Trenton School and that the nurses room at North Trenton be used for the principal's office temporarily and that provision for a nurse's room, two classrooms and a playroom-auditorium be made in planning for the North Trenton addition.

The committees recommend that a supplementary budget estimate be made up to cover the cost of partitioning the Queen Elizabeth auditorium, $1,200 for actual material costs, including furniture and four months' salary of $1,200 for a teacher to be included in this year's budget.

Capital Budget Is Discussed

TRENTON — Trenton council met in committee Thursday night to discuss the projected five-year capital budget for the town, which must be in the hands of the Ontario Municipal Board by July 1.

Included in the projected budget are school requirements up to 1970, which will cost close to half a million dollars; the public works' committee's requirements for sanitary sewers, storm sewer, curbs and road work; the public utilities Commission's requirements for water mains and other items to do with administration costs of running the town, police costs, fire protection costs, etc.

RECEIVES REPORT

Mayor James MacDonald said on Friday that he had received a preliminary report from the Department of Transport engineers at Ottawa, regarding repairs needed to the swing portion of the town bridge.

Ontario department of highways' engineers last year, set the cost of the needed repairs at $60,000. The mayor had asked the DHO to check the bridge before Ottawa agreed to take over maintenance and repairs in a "trade" with the federal department of Transport and upwards grant towards the construction costs of a new bridge across the Murray.

Mayor MacDonald said he hadn't had time yet to study the Ottawa report fully, but had gathered that the department wasn't in full agreement with the $90,000 figure.

25 Students Expected to Take Course

TRENTON — Around 25 high school students will spend six weeks this summer at summer school at Queen' University in Kingston.

These students will be from Grades Nine to Twelve and will have failed to pass one or two June examinations. They will be given the chance to take extra instruction at the university and will try supplementary tests at the end of the summer.

The Trenton Board of Education will charter a Rathbun bus to take the studens to Kingston every morning and bring them home at night.

Meanwhile, 20 public school teachers are planning to take extra courses at university this summer. High school teachers, too, will take advantages of the long summer holiday to brush up or study for additional degrees.

New Foyer Will Be Built At Hospital

TRENTON — George Williamson, secretary of the Trenton Memorial Hospital's Board of Directors, said on Friday that plans for an addition to the foyer of the hospital has been accepted by the board but that no date had been set for the calling of tenders for the work.

The two-storey enlargement to the front of the hospital will serve to enlarge the waiting room for relatives and friends of the patients and to provide set upstairs sunroom for patients who are able to leave their beds during convalescence.

TO OPEN PLAYGROUND

A large number of Trenton public school students are looking forward to the summer playground activity, sponsored each year by the Trenton Recreation Committee.

Recreation chairman, William Workman, said on Friday that the playground program would start on June 29, this year. Hours are: 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. with the program at the baseball diamond in Bayshore Park, being held between 9 a.m. and 12 noon.

Playgrounds will be held at the high school, at Hanna Park and St. Peter's schoolyard in West Trenton, at College Street schoolyard and Allison Park in east Trenton and at the United Church grounds in north Trenton.

Playground supervisor this year is Susan Leavey and on June 21, ten high school students will leave for Camp Quin-Mo-Lac to train as playground leaders.

Television and Children

By and large, we suspect that parents in Catholic homes have to put up with less bullying by their children than their Protestant counterparts. Their religious upbringing tends to give Catholic children a certain modicum of respect for fatherhood and motherhood, even in this day and age. How long this will continue we should not like to guess, after reading of some findings in a two-year survey of a thousand English-speaking Roman Catholic homes, by the Christian Communications Service of Canada.

This service reported that television commercials beamed at children are considered a real problem by most parents. Some go to great lengths to counteract the influence of these advertisements.

"They take their children to the store, for instance, and show that the toy or other product in question has been greatly exaggerated by the TV commercials."

If this system actually did anything to reduce the volume or improve the tone of the "I want" record built into every red-blooded boy or girl, we should be amazed.

We prefer the method adopted by one sturdy non-conformist. "We say no," he replied. "If spoken loud and clear, it's amazing the effect this simple word has on them."

This statement needs to be qualified. "No" is only effective if it never dissolves into "Yes" after being subjected to a barrage of whines and a dose of tears.

This may seem elementary, but some parents do not seem to have a very strong grasp of elementary truths.

For instance, 74 per cent of parents questioned said that they banned children from watching programs involving violence. The list of banned programs is in itself evidence of the questionable nature of this decision; it includes such different types of programs as the Untouchables, wrestling, courtroom dramas, Quest and Hawaii Five. Nobody seems to have grasped the fact that the important factor is not the amount of violence shown, or even to a degree the type, but the kind of reaction to it. If a violent act is presented as deplorable, children may learn a useful lesson; if it is surrounded with an aura of glamor, the result is likely to be highly undesirable.

Some other parents banned medical shows, fearing that scenes of suffering or death might worry their own children. Two things are wrong with this. Firstly children are much tougher than most parents seem to realize. Secondly, life can be cruel and the sooner the child learns that fact the less likely he is to be seriously damaged by the fact.

Or so it seems to us.

The Sentimental Agnostic

There is no good reason why an agnostic should not also be a sentamentalist, if it pleases him, but he ought to have the good sense to recognize that, when it comes to death, sentimentalism is a peril to his reputation for agnosticism.

Pandit Nehru was an agnostic, but a sentimentalist. He decreed that his body should be burned, like that of an orthodox Hindu, but without ceremony. No priest was supervised the cremation. The Ganges was not holy for Nehru, but it was symbolic of Indian culture, and so he decreed that part of his ashes be cast into its waters. To the agnostic Nehru the act had no religious significance, but when it was performed it was done in the presence of thousands of mourners who sought to obtain from their proximity to the Hindu state of godliness known as darshan.

Thus Nehru, who during his life stood aside from the beliefs, superstitions, rituals and ceremonials of the dominant faith of the nation he led, in death was swallowed up by them.

Perhaps this would not have grieved him. But if it would, he had nobody but himself to blame. The unsentimental agnostic, aware of the perils, would have taken care to avoid them by some clear-cut departure from the traditional routines of cremation and ash-scattering.

Great artists must reserve their greatness for their art—Oscar Wilde said that the minor poet is always more interesting than the major poet—as a man, that is, as a human personality. This is because the minor poet lives and speaks and acts the poetry he wants to write but can't. The major poet empties the best of himself into his major poetry, leaving a dull and ordinary shell of personality which makes us foolishly doubt his greatness.—Anthony Burgess, author of a recent novel about Shakespeare.

Who's to Blame for Election, Diefenbaker or Pearson?

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Most of the Conservatives, and a good many Liberals, too, have become convinced in recent days that Prime Minister Pearson has just about come to a firm decision on an early Federal election.

The Prime Minister and Opposition Leader Diefenbaker argue about it, in and out of the Commons, manoeuvring to hang the blame on each other for what would be the third campaign in three years.

Backbenchers of all parties are studying their autumn calendars — with most eyes on October 19 and October 26 as the likeliest Monday polling dates.

Liberal organizers are activating a New Democratic organization headquarters here in the Capital are gearing up for the coming starts on a long campaign which they suspect may begin late in August and run for four or five nine or 10 weeks deep into October.

Only Social Credit, fractured by internal feuds between its Quebec and Western wings, is doing nothing, simply because of the Federal organization is flat broke.

The other three party headquarters, especially the Conservatives and Liberals, didn't really get going in the by-elections after last year's campaign — knowing from experience that those elections don't stand traditionally have short lives — and so, in some ways, are as ready as they ever get.

UP TO STRENGTH

After other elections, staffs have been allowed to run down to their campaign peaks, but back to little more than care-taking crews, clerks or four people at most to keep the cobwebs under control.

This time staffs were kept on, with the Conservatives currently busy with work going on 20 and the Liberals down to 15 to man the mimeographs, addressographs and the other machines that spin out speeches, notes from Hansard, polls and platforms — whatever is called for in the mails to the dispersed voters.

Then, the staff in the Centre Block, the people who keep Parliament Hill running for the MPs and Senators, and who are more surely than anybody else the first things alerted from caucus talk of an October election as if the prime minister had already called it.

The only thing that remains to be done is for the prime minister to drop the word to the particular October Monday and proclaim it the day of electoral decision.
